"Take a double handful of onions, mash them up, and with one quart of water boil down to a pint, squeeze the juice from them and strain it; let about half a warm, drench the horse well. Bathe his head freely with strong camphor; then take an empty barrel, set it on end, and put about one peck of live coals—ash or cob—throw upon them some green pine tops, which will make a large smoke. Hold your horse's head over the barrel and let him well; then, to a tough stick the size of a gun rod, tie a cotton or linen rag fast, dip this in water to soften it, and run it up his nostrils as far as it will go without injury—twist it around the nostril, and a quantity of bloody matter will run out. After this, smoke his head in the manner above mentioned, a short time. You may repeat the above remedy next day, and if it does not cure in nine cases out of ten, I am badly deceived, if attended to in time. —W. W." in Albany Patriot.

BAKED POT PIE.—From this time forth, we like to have a good many pot pies. A pan, two inches deep, needs only an upper and under crust, filled with apples; a deep pan needs a middle crust; sprinkle a little allspice and nutmeg, with water enough to cook it; let it bake an hour, or till the apples are done, and eat with sweetened milk. Dried apples make equally as good a pie, by first stewing them.

CORN BREAD.—As made at Green's, in Chamber-Street, N. Y.:—Take seven pints of yellow corn meal, three pints of wheat flour and mix them together well. Then six well beaten eggs, two cups of melted butter, about the consistency or stiffness of paste, prepared for drop cake; then dissolve three teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar and the same of salæratus, pour it upon the mass, stir it thoroughly, and dip at once into pans, and bake it in a hot oven.

SUPERIOR BREAKFAST CAKE.—Three cups of corn meal, one cup of wheat flour, one egg, two cups of sweet milk, one of sour cream or, in the absence of cream, a little butter, one teaspoonful of saleratus, one teaspoon of salt. Bake in a quick oven. A little molasses improves it.

BEEF HEART.—Wash it very carefully; stuff it the same as you would a hare; roast or bake it, and serve with a rich gravy and curran jelly sauce; hash with the same and port wine.

REMOVING SPOTS.—For scouring drops for removing spots, grease, &c., from linen or any other substance, take of spirits of turpentine, and essence of lemons, of each one ounce. The essence must be newly made, or it will leave a circle round the spot.

HOW TO EXTINGUISH A FIRE IN A CHIMNEY.—So many serious fires have been caused by chimneys catching fire, and not been quickly extinguished, that the following method of doing this should be made as generally known as possible: Throw some powdered brimstone on the fire in the grate, or ignite some on the hob, and then put a board or something in the front of the fireplace, to prevent the fumes descending into the room. The vapor of the brimstone ascending the chimney, will then effectually extinguish the soot on fire.

SIX DRACHMS OF ALLUM, dissolved in a quart of sage tea, will stop a horse from frothing at the mouth.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

Sandwich, March 15, 1857.

DROWNED.

DROWNED on Lake St. Clair on the 25th of May last, FRANCIS MORTON, Lad on when last seen a pair of Scotch Tweed Trowsers, a fine Marino under Waistcoat, a blue striped Shirt, a pair of Drawers, Socks and Boots, whoever can give such information as will lead to the recovery of his body will be handsomely rewarded.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK and WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,

P. J. RALPH, Commander.

Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays

" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,

J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.

Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays

" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,

S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.

Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.

" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, and arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandize with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or paralleled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Detroit, April, 1857.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY,	Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE,	"	Amos Pratt,
ONTONAGON,	"	A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC,	"	M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ,	"	W. D. Wilkinson

WABASH VALLEY,

(New Propeller.)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers; and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX.

To Amos C. Brush late of the Township of Colchester in the County of Essex.

TAKE NOTICE that on the Twenty Seventh day of June last, a writ of Attachment against the real and personal property credits and effects of you the said Amos C. Brush, as an absconding Debtor, was issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex, at the suit of William Dowler, and that there was shown at the time the order for the said Attachment was obtained that no information could be got as to where you had fled to. It was ordered by the Judge of the said Court under the forty-fifth clause of the Common Law Procedure Act that service of the said writ of Attachment be left at your last place of residence in the County and One Months Notice, published in one of the Newspapers published in the County of Essex, of such writ having been issued, be deemed good service of such writ of Attachment upon you. You are therefore required within ten days after the publication of this notice, for one month to cause special bail to be entered for you in the said County Court of the County of Essex, in an action to recover one hundred and fifty pounds due by you to the said plaintiff at the suit of the said William Dowler, otherwise the said William Dowler may, by the leave of the Judge of the said court, proceed thereon to judgment and execution, and may sell the property attached, under and by virtue of the said writ. And take notice that this Notice was first published on Thursday the thirtieth day of July, A. D. 1857.

G. W. LEGGATT,
Attorney for William Dowler.

AUTUMN.

Autumn is singing a solemn hymn,
To the year that is dying now;
Like one of the ministering seraphim
With a golden crown on his brow,
And his hymn is sweeter, far sweeter to me,
Than the merriest chorus of spring
Or the richest and rarest melody
That the sun-taught summer can sing,

Autumn is strewing the forest leaves
Crimson and yellow and brown;
And the south-west lifts up his voice and grieves
To see how the leaves come down.
But to me the forest is dearer far
Than with summer's grass o'erspread,
Like a carpet of flowers the crisp leaves are Yielding music at every tread.

Autumn is shedding a glory now
Even here through the city sky;
With rapture our wondering spirits
As we gaze on each sunset dye.
But the sunset dyes are more golden and red,
The glory more glorious still
Where the rainbow wings of the west are spread
Over forest and river and hill.

Autumn is breathing a holy calm,
Now that the storms of summer are spent,
And each well reaped valley and harvested farm
Are resting in sweet content.
And an eloquent hush from the lips of life
Is heard with his measured breath
For the queenly year, without murmur or strife,
Is yielding her throne to Death!

The New Broom.

It sweeps clean, of course. When were new brooms ever known to do otherwise? Mrs. Switch had purchased that broom after a week of threatening, and against her usual practice had put down the price in smooth fips and delapidated cents. When John Switch came home from the shop, Mrs. Switch had to show him the article, and in his presence, to sweep the floor she had already gone over at least six times. John liked household comfort; but he was not a man to give an expression to enthusiastic admiration of anything or anybody. A quiet, cautious man was John. Mrs. Switch did her best to extort some praise for her purchase. She twisted and turned the broom before John's eyes, while she expatiated on its merits, then got up and brought in her old stump of a broom to make a comparison.

To all her remarks John gave a nodding assent, but nothing more.—Finally, Mrs. Sa exhibited signs of getting in a huff. To work it off, perhaps, she swept the floor again. In the meantime John was hungry, and his dinner hour was dwindling to minutes. After looking at the operation of sweeping where there was no dirt for some time, and casting anxious glances at the empty table, he ventured to suggest, in a mild way, that dinner was a meal he came home prepared to eat, and if there was to be none, he might as well put on his hat and go back to the shop.—Mrs. S. was not a woman of whom it could be said that was "slow to wrath."

The want of admiration on the part of her husband of a purchase she took so much at heart, had nettled the good woman, and she merely honored the remark of John with an indignant glance, after shooting which, she went on with sweeping. This was rather more than Mrs. S. could stand in this mood. Up went the broom, and this time it did sweep clean—for it swept John clean out of the house. The sequel was John swore, and never returned. Moral.—Never stretch the virtue of an article to extremes. Sweeping too clean left Mrs. S. a grass widow.

The French Wizard and the Arabs.

Every one has seen or heard speak of the great Robert Houdin. Besides being the prince of conjurers, he is an able mathematician and mechanician, and his electric clock, made for the Hotel de Ville of his native town of Blois, obtained a medal at the Paris Exhibition. It is not generally known that he was sent to Algeria by the French Government on a mission connected with the black art—probably the first time that a conjurer had been called upon to exercise his profession in Government employ.

Some details of his expedition have just been published. Its object was to destroy the influence exercised among the Arab tribes by the marabouts, an influence often mischievously applied. By a few clumsy tricks and impostures these marabouts pass themselves off as sorcerers; no one, it was justly thought, was better able to expose their skill and discredit their science than the man of inexhaustible talent. One of the great pretensions of the marabout was invulnerability. At the moment a loaded musket was fired at him, and the trigger pulled, he pronounced a few cabalistic words and the weapon did not go off. Houdin detected the trick and showed that the touch-hole was plugged. The Arab wizard was furious and abused his French rival. "You may revenge yourself," quietly replied Houdin; "ask a pistol, load it yourself: here are bullets, put one in the barrel, but before doing so mark it with your knife." The Arab did as he was told. "You are quite certain now," said Houdin, "that the pistol is loaded and will go off.—Tell me, do you feel no remorse in killing me thus, notwithstanding that I authorise you?" "You are my enemy," coldly replied the Arab; "I will kill you." Without replying, Houdin stuck an apple on the point of a knife, and calmly gave the word to fire. The pistol was discharged, the apple flew far away, and there appeared in its place, stuck on the point of the knife, the bullet the marabout had marked. The spectators remained mute from stupefaction; the marabout bowed before his superior; "Allah is great!" he said; "I am vanquished."

Instead of the bottle from which, in Europe, Robert Houdin pours an endless stream of every description of wine and liquors, he called for an empty bowl, which he kept continually full of boiling coffee, but few of the Arabs would taste it, for they made sure that it came direct from the devil's own coffee pot. He then told them that it was in his power to deprive them of all strength, and to restore it to them at will, and he produced a small box, so light that a child could lift it with his finger; but it suddenly became so heavy that the strongest man present could not raise it; and the Arabs, who prize physical strength above everything, looked with terror at the great magician who, they doubted not, could annihilate them by the mere exertion of his will. They expressed this belief; Houdin confirmed them in it, and promised that on a day appointed, he would convert one of them into smoke. The day came, the throng was prodigious; a fanatical marabout had agreed to give himself up to the sorcerer. They made him stand on a table, and covered him with a transparent gauze; then Houdin and another person lifted the table by the two ends, and the Arab disappeared in a cloud of smoke. The terror of the spectators was indescribable; they rushed out of the place, and ran a long distance before some of the boldest returned to look after the marabout. They found him near the place where he had been evaporated; but he could tell them nothing, and was like a drunken man, ignorant of what had happened to him. Thenceforward Houdin was venerated and the marabouts were despised; the object of the French Government was completely attained.

The fashion of "testimonials" having, it appears, infested even the Arabs, a number of chiefs presented the great French conjurer with a piece of Arab writing, wonderfully decorated, hyperbolical and eulogistic, and to which they were so attentive as to append a French translation. Besides this memorial of his Algerian trip, Houdin has a rosary which he one day borrowed from an Arab to perform a trick with, and which the owner, persuaded that Sheitan in person was before him, refused to receive back.

Courting an Old Maid.

Some men may discourse most elaborately upon the art of angling, disputing warmly and pertinaciously concerning the relative merits of soft crab and clam as a bait, or what ought to be the shape of a hook—others can boast if they choose of their fast horses, get in raptures at the magnificent action of the bob tail bay, betting their lives he can make his miles in 2.40 and be ready to back the opinion by putting up the funds—or others again, having a more exalted idea of human felicity, may tell you of the ecstatic bliss one experiences in sporting of a widow (card-wise and revolvers included; but oh ye gods and little fishes, what is to be compared to the pleasure unalloyed of courting a prim, coy old maid, (the term is not applied as commonly used, for of a variety, the gems of the sex are those that are styled old maids.)

Ah! the ineffable rapture—the joy unspeakable—the wild delight of stealing a kiss from the mesmeric plump lips of unsuspecting Miss Dimity. And who can describe the all-overish sensation so singularly fixing itself upon, and gradually stealing over him, when he hears the sound—"Now don't, sir—oh don't, Mr. Brown—don't"—as he attempts to seize the hand that she fain would use to conceal the rose (a little faded to be sure) blossoming on her chaste cheeks.

If the man almost confirmed in bad habits would be reclaimed, rely upon it as the speediest and safest way is to address an old maid, for she will as kindly and unerringly point out the remedies for ill practices, as apply such restoratives to a pair of dilapidated unmentionables as are needed. Its really a comfort (provided you are minus muddy feet, or wish to avoid a look of undisguised horror) to visit the premises presided over by such a fair one—every thing is in such apple-pie order. And so feelingly and urgently does she speak of the necessity of guarding against exposure—that you are led to ejaculate—"Oh woman, thy gentleness and foresight are indeed blessings to reckless male humanity."

Expatiate, if you will, upon sparkling eyes and ruby lips, but should you desire sensible courting (doubtless a misnomer) try an old maid, and a wager for it, you will find something substantial, if the expression be allowable.

VICTORIA AS A PATTERN.—One of our Philadelphia exchanges—we cannot say which—in an article on the absurdity of American women running after foreign fashions, notions, &c., remarks, after alluding to the admiration which has entered upon Eugenie, as follows:—

Victoria, Queen of England, is a safer model for our women, if they must go across the Atlantic and into places for their exemplars. She is a sound hearted, well-behaved, kind woman. She takes interest in whatever is calculated to do good. She dresses with queenly simplicity. She tries to make her subjects contented and prosperous. She sympathizes with the poor, and binds up broken, burdened hearts. Her children she rears with care; training them in the knowledge that they are only flesh and blood, like the rest. But then Victoria isn't fast enough, dashing enough, dressy enough, for our women. She really don't even set a single fashion. And we firmly believe that some of our matrons and maidens would rather go with Eugenie to a bull fight, than with Victoria to a cottage, where there is suffering to be relieved and misery to be driven away.

Investigations into Title.---Responsibility of Lawyers.

[From the Law Journal.]

We think it our duty to call the attention of the profession generally to a case tried at the Fall Assizes for the County of Simcoe, before Mr. Justice Hagarty

As questions of law arising out of the suit have yet to be argued and decided by the Court, we refrain at present from offering any opinion thereon, and confine ourselves to a mere statement of the facts, in order that those whom it may concern may be made aware at the earliest moment, of the extent of their responsibility in the opinion of jurors, if not also in the eye of the law, and govern themselves accordingly. The suit to which we have reference was brought by John Moss against John Strathy, as an attorney, for negligence and want of due care and knowledge in making search into the title to five acres of land, which plaintiff was at the time of the alleged retainer about purchasing from one Perry, and which he afterwards did purchase on the faith, as it was averred, of the representations as to title made by defendant. It appeared that, in 1852, the Sheriff of the County of Simcoe sold three acres of land belonging to said Perry for taxes. In 1854 (before the three years then allowed for redemption had expired) Perry agreed to sell the plaintiff five acres, including the three above mentioned, for £25 an acre, and plaintiff employed and retained defendant to look after the matter and get him a good title." Defendant made search in the Registry office, and found that the title as there shown was defective, and the purchase was accordingly completed. In 1857, one Wm Graham, the purchaser at the Sheriff's sale, took out his deed, and recorded it, thereby becoming the absolute owner of the land. The Plaintiff having re-sold the five acres, a search was made, and the sale for taxes became, for the first time known to plaintiff, who brought his action against defendant, to recover the damages sustained by him consequent upon the loss of the three acres. In defence, both the negligence and retainer were denied—and questions as to what would constitute the former, and be sufficient as proof of the latter, were mooted—and the only one left to the Jury was that of damages. A verdict was given in favor of the plaintiff for £90.

Whatever be the result of this suit—whether the verdict be sustained or not, it certainly is a lesson to the profession should profit. The responsibility which persons assume when they take upon themselves the duty of advising a purchaser as to whether or not the title of vendor is perfect and free from incumbrance does not appear to be sufficiently comprehended. It would seem to be the duty of the latter to decline to have a perfect understanding, evidenced by writing, of the exact nature and extent of the services required to be performed by the party retained. A strict attention to this precaution may save the loss of thousands of pounds. We believe that searches in the office of the Register and Sheriff are all that it is enstomary to make; and at the trial several legal gentlemen who were examined gave evidence to that effect. The learned Judge also said he was free to confess that in a long practice he had never made search in the Treasurer's office—and that he had no hesitation in mentioning this to the Jury as the sole question was that of damages. We may have occasion to refer to the matter again, but as a further precaution we would now remind our professional readers of the existence of the Statute, whereby lands are to be bound by the registration in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Queen's Bench at Toronto, of any instrument creating a debt to the Crown: (14 & 15 Vic. cap. 9.)

Has the Seat of Government been Chosen!

We have on several occasions expressed our belief that no decision as to the future Seat of Government would be announced until after a general election. The shameful trick by which the imbecile Ministry evaded the performance of their duty, would, recoil upon their own heads, if the Province of Canada learn before an election that they had been victimized by an ignorant, wrongheaded, or badly-advised Colonial Secretary. The reasons and the arguments likely to prevail in Downing street, are precisely those that have least weight in this country, where the question is understood. Therefore, a decision was arrived at before Sir Edmund Head left England, and if, as has been strongly rumoured, the far off city of Ottawa is the chosen locality, we may be assured that no official will announce the fact until the Legislature have made their threatened appeal to the country. We are confirmed in the view by the nervous anxiety of the chief organ to induce a belief that no decision has yet been made. A story has been in circulation, and extensively credited, that the location of the Seat of Government will be made the subject of a more important question of a Federal Union of the Provinces, said to be under consideration. The people of Quebec, putting faith in this solution, have announced that their choice is to be the seat of the Federal Government. But as the people of Canada have not yet had the opportunity of declaring what they have not been consulted even as to their views, hypothetically, of the matter, the story has attracted little notice out of Quebec. The "popular" ministry, however, cannot afford to allow even this rumour to float uncontradicted. The organ is instructed to mystify the whole affair as follows:

"Unless we are grossly misinformed, her Majesty's Imperial Government has not had under its consideration any question relating to a Federal Union of these Provinces; and there is no reason to suppose that any such question will be complicated or mixed up with that of the permanent Seat of the Canadian Government. We take it for granted, that her Majesty the Queen, will, in her own good time, carry out the pledge given to the Province in the despatch of Mr. Labouchere, the Colonial Secretary, and make selection of a new and permanent capital for united Canada."

Sir Edmund Head, then, we are to understand, has left behind him information on this important subject. It must still be kept in mufti to serve the personal ends of the corrupt crew with which he has surrounded himself. A "new and permanent capital," "will" be selected in "good time." Why does the organ not tell the country in so many words, if it be definite information has yet been made? The reason is obvious: it would not be so easy to wriggle out of the difficulty, when it shall appear hereafter, by a reference to dates, that the decision was made before the Governor General left England, but suppressed with a view to serve the ministry at the elections.

That Mr. Labouchere is still in doubt, after all the addresses and deputations he has received, after his long interviews with the Attorney General and Governor General, is not very likely. We are inclined to believe that either the place is already selected, or he is determined to remit the matter back to the Canadian Legislature, where it properly belongs.—Globe.

The Crisis in New York!

STOCKS IMPROVING.

Thursday, Oct. 5—p.m.

Stocks were quite buoyant and active to day, and the market was strong for a majority of the leading securities. The corner on New York Central is getting rather close, and the contest for supremacy between bulls and bears grows interesting. At the opening sales the efforts to depress prices were vigorous, and for a time partially successful; but at the second call the buyers had the field again, and succeeded in establishing a quotation full one per cent above Saturday's. Perry agreed to sell the plaintiff five acres, including the three above mentioned, for £25 an acre, and plaintiff employed and retained defendant to look after the matter and get him a good title." Defendant made search in the Registry office, and found that the title as there shown was defective, and the purchase was accordingly completed. SENTENCES ON MOSES R. CUMMINGS AND SAMUEL D. ROSS.

Monday, Nov. 9.

THE BANK ROBBERY.—At the opening of the Court of this morning, the crown prosecutor James Duggan, Esq., moved that the sentence of the court be now passed upon Moses R. Cummings. The prisoner was accordingly placed at the bar, and in reply to the usual question, Have you any reason why sentence should not now be passed upon you? he replied that he could only say that though he had been found guilty of the charge of embezzlement, in his own heart he knew that he had no intention of permanently depriving his employers of their property.—He has been employed for fourteen years as a bank clerk, ninety-six of one and five years in another office, and this was the first charge that had ever been brought against him, and as such was the case, as this was the first offence, he trusted his lordship would be as merciful to him as he possibly could.

His Honour said—Since the jury retired their verdict in this case, his (the prisoner's) learned counsel suggested some points of law which might make the legality of the verdict questionable, but he (the learned judge) had taken every pains to investigate it, and there was no doubt of the propriety of it in his mind. In addition to his own opinion he had also that of the Lord Chief Justice, who having given a very considerable portion of his time to the legal consideration of the question, had looked into all the authorities, and their opinions were both in unison. This being the case, let fall it be duty to pass sentence. Then came the painful consideration of the amount of punishment. He could not shut his eyes to the fact that the prisoner had occupied a situation of responsibility and trust, that he had a good education, and moved in a respectable sphere of life. It was the duty of a judge to consider in what consisted the chief vice of the present age, and then to consider also whether it was not required that an example should be made in order to afford protection to those whose property had to be entrusted to the control of others. Had the case not been of such a peculiar character, where he could not help but reflect that it was only a few months since, in England, persons higher in station than the prisoner, who were imagined to be strictly religious and of high moral worth, were found to have been false to their trust, and when he recalled to his mind that the courts were overwhelmed with business, though it necessary to inflict a sentence of transportation for life, he felt it necessary that if a similar case should occur here, it would not do to let it be supposed that we were content with a lower moral standard than in England. The crime of which the prisoner had been found guilty was one of too frequent occurrence.

A few month ago the name of Redpath was familiar to every one in the British Empire, and here in this country we saw the cashier of a bank, flying away with the property of his employers, and in the prisoner's case as clerk, who had in his own admission, been employed and trusted for fourteen years, making use of money which had been entrusted to him. When he considered the only way in which society could be protected against the conduct of individuals was by the law being fully carried out, and when he recollected that if he were by leniency to cause it to be believed that the Courts were afraid or unwilling to sentence a prisoner on account of the pain it must occasion, not only to himself, but to the innocent beings who must suffer by the punishment, he was by no way to a feeling of that sort, it would encourage the commission of crime. He (the learned judge) had reflected anxiously upon the recommendation of mercy made by the jury. He would forward the recommendation to the proper quarter, and he should say that the sentence he unwillingly made by a jury who had patiently considered the case. For his own part he felt it was his duty to pass that sentence which would satisfy the demands of society, and it would be well for those who were present as well as the prisoner, who might from it learn that evil only reflect, that when once they take one step out of the path of duty, they never, perhaps, can retrace it; and crime of the worst kind may follow. But for the breach of trust into which the prisoner was unfortunately led, depending upon the representations of friends, who had left him in the position in which he now stood, he might still have been respectable and respected. It was not a slight thing to be obliged to sentence the prisoner to a punishment which would, for a time at least, deprive his family of their protector. He might easily enlarge upon this topic, but he trusted the example thus afforded would be a lesson to the whole community, and that the sentence the Court would impose would have the effect of deterring some who might be contemplating a breach of trust under the impression that they were thereby not amenable to the law. "The sentence of the Court is that you be imprisoned in the Provincial Penetentiary for a term of five years with hard labor."

THE POST OFFICE ROBBERY.—Samuel David Ross was then placed at the bar.—He made no remarks. The Judge in passing sentence said:—The law in your case leaves me no discretion as to the amount of punishment to be inflicted upon you. The Government has secured the exclusive right of conveying letters at their own risk, in one sense, but at the risk of all those who send letters by them in another. And where the Government take from the public the right of any branch of industry, they have also felt it to be necessary to give as great protection as possible. It is with that view and on that principle, that an offence which might, under other circumstances, be but a petty larceny, is punished with tenfold severity. In this respect the legislature have been stringent in their provisions. In almost every case except where the extreme penalty of death is incurred, some discretion as to the amount of punishment is left to the court; but in this, and some few other cases no discretion whatever has been left: they have strictly said, whoever offends against this law shall receive this precise punishment. They have not left it to each court and climate—to other circumstances or previous character might not mitigate the penalty; all they have said is that for him that has offended as you have, there is but one punishment, and that is imprisonment for life in the Penetentiary. I have no authority or any other alternative than to pass that sentence.

The prisoner, who is a fine looking young man of about five and twenty, sank down upon the seat in the dock, apparently almost insensible. He was, by the aid of several constables, assisted out of court.

ARRIVAL OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.—At eight o'clock on last Thursday evening, His Excellency the Governor General, accompanied by Lady Head arrived at the Bay Street Station. The Canadian Rifles formed the Guard of Honor. His Excellency, on his arrival, was received by the Hon. Colonel Tacon and other members of the Executive Council There were also in attendance the officers of various Volunteer Companies among others, Colonel de Salaberry, Captains Nicholson and Feehan, &c, &c. There was also a large attendance of Citizens, who warmly welcomed His Excellency on his landing from the cars, and again when he entered the carriage for Government House.

MR. Manley, the night station-master in London, C. W. was put on his trial in that city, on the 5th instant, for allowing one Sheridan, a cattle dealer, to escape, where by a collision took place. After hearing the evidence, the jury returned a verdict of guilty. He has not yet been sentenced.—There is a strong feeling in his favour in London.

INCREASE OF RAILROAD FARE.—The Michigan Central and Great Western Railroads have increased their rates of fare. The fare from New York to Chicago will be $24; from Buffalo to Chicago $15; from Buffalo to Detroit $6 50; from Detroit to Chicago $8 50.

It is rumoured that the Buffalo and Lake Huron Railway Company have received, by the Persia, a consignment of specie, and that the works upon the road are to be prosecuted with vigor.

Fourteen hundred journeyman printers have been thrown out of employment in New York, during the last fortnight. They are flocking by hundreds to Washington.

The money pressure is affecting the price of slaves in the United States. The New York Herald says that since the crisis commenced they have fallen fully ten per cent in value.

THE ERIE AND ONT. RIO RAILROAD.—The Erie and Ontario Railway has stopped for the season, without the Company giving the public a day's notice of their intention to do so, causing both great dissappointment and loss to the merchants and others in Niagara who had their goods to get to and numerous matters of business to attend before winter commenced, and which if the Company had the manners and decency to notify them of their intention to close the road, would have been provided for within the time given.—Niagara Mail.

ATTEMPT TO SET FIRE TO THE ROBINSON HALL.—On Friday night last, a fire broke out in the Robinson Hall, and Mr. Church, one of the ever vigilant burglers of fire brigade, having scented the scurn, assistance was speedily at hand. The hall was entered and it was found that a bundle of clothes had been placed in the garret and set on fire. This bundle, however, instead igniting the rafters, one would suppose was the intention of the incendiary, burnt through the floor of the garret, and from thence to the next floor also. Before the fire spread the firemen succeeded in suppressing it, and totally extinguish it.—London (C. W) Prot.

STATE OF THE POOR IN QUEBEC.—The following cases appeared in the Recorder's Court in Quebec:—Jane Robinson, a tall young woman of the town, charged with having that morning left a month's rent unpaid, and by a jury who had patiently considered the case. For his own part he felt it was his duty to pass that sentence which would satisfy the demands of society, and it would be well for those who were present as well as the prisoner, who might from it learn that evil only reflect, that when once they take one step out of the path of duty, they never, perhaps, can retrace it; and crime of the worst kind may follow. But for the breach of trust into which the prisoner was unfortunately led, depending upon the representations of friends, who had left him in the position in which he now stood, he might still have been respectable and respected. It was not a slight thing to be obliged to sentence the prisoner to a punishment which would, for a time at least, deprive his family of their protector. He might easily enlarge upon this topic, but he trusted the example thus afforded would be a lesson to the whole community, and that the sentence the Court would impose would have the effect of deterring some who might be contemplating a breach of trust under the impression that they were thereby not now amount to about $75,000, having been reduced within three months from over $200,000 to that amount.

They will be able to pay up every cent and have a surplus of $100,000. They are now paying depositors in the best class of notes, such as choose to take them, and wait for their pay until such time as the best business men shall be able to meet such demands against them.

We regret to announce this suspension, but the causes that led to it are very apparent, and are such as no ordinary foresight or prudence could prevent or control We hope soon to chronicle their resumption —Detroit Tribune

DAY OF HUMILIATION.—We are happy to observe that the Governor General has issued his proclamation, naming Friday, the 27th day of November instant, to be observed through the province as a day of general Fast, Humiliation, and Prayer to God for the success of our armies in restoring tranquility to India.

Professor Hind and several of the members of his party have returned from their explorations in the Hudson's Bay territory. They travelled over an immense tract of country, which they describe in glowing terms both as regards soil and climate.—Their labors are likely to be attended with very important results. The public will look anxiously for an authentic narrative of their explorations.

Capt. Van Vliet, the confidential agent of the Government, lately returned from Salt Lake City reports that the Mormons declare that the United States troops shall not enter the city, and that Brigham Young expresses the determination to burn the prairies, and thus deprive the animals connected with the expedition of subsistence. Young also says he will burn the city, if necessary, before he will submit to the demands of Government.

The Journal de Quebec pronounces formally against a confederation of the Provinces; because, he argues, that the interest of Lower Canada are better protected by the present act of union, than they possibly could be under any form of confederation. Rather than consent to the union of all the provinces, he would accept of representation based upon population, and consider it a boon. His chief reason for opposing changes lies in his dread of an ungenerous policy towards Lower Canada by the mother country.

HER GOLD TROUBLED HER.—The following anecdote connected with the suspension of specie payment by the city banks, is related by the editor of the Canada Bank Note Reporter: "The day the suspension of specie payment took place in Boston, an elderly lady called at our office and wished to exchange two hundred dollars, Molson's Bank, for American gold. We told the lady that the banks had all ceased to pay specie and quite as safe as the gold. She however insisted upon the exchange which we made for her. After we made the exchange she kept running into our office, ring ring if the times were coming good again; at length we replied in the affirmative; she at once pulled from her pocket the two hundred dollars of gold and demanded the two hundred dollars of Molson's Bank, which we gave her, saying she was tired of lugging the gold around. The gold had been a great trouble to her, she could not sleep nights with a bag of gold in her bosom, fearing she might be robbed. We simply give this as one of the incidents which happen in life, showing the very great inconvenience and danger of keeping gold about their persons."

The Hamilton "Spectator" states that within a few miles of that city, near Lancaster, is a cascade, falling down a ledge of rocks one hundred feet, the waters of which have a petrifying power, which is exhibited in the conversion of mosses and ferns, growing upon and near the rocks Whenever anything is placed within the waters touches the moss, its tips, yet green, are found turned to rock, and the ferns, dropping their leaves upon the rocks, and wet with the spray, are converted to stone. Not far from this spot are sulphur springs of peculiar excellence.

A London (England) paper says:—On Saturday, at the parish Church of Marylebone, the popular eccentric comedian, Sir William Don, took unto himself, "for better or for worse," Miss Emily Sanders, whose celebrity as a comic actress has been long spread over the United States, as well as the provincial towns of England, where she has been for a considerable time associated with Sir William in his starring engagements. The happy Benedict and his fair bride started, after the ceremony, for Southampton.

MR. TEN. BROECK'S 100,000 BET.—As there is much anxiety about as to whether Mr. Ten Broeck won one side of his great one hundred thousand dollar bet, by the victory of Prioress on the 13th October, we will state that Pryor lost it, by the withdrawal of Prior from that race. The bet was made with Mr. T. B. by Mr. Davies, commonly known as "the Leviathan," from his immense wagers, and was to this effect; to wit: Mr. Davies bet Mr. Ten Broeck one hundred thousand dollars against one hundred dollars, that Pryor would not win the Czarwitch stakes, and Prioress the Cambridgeshire; and the same bet over again that Pryor did not win the first and Belvidon the second. This virtually was but one bet; and as the Czarwitch depended in both cases upon Pryor, it became really a bet of $100,000 against $100. The following week, the result is, that Mr. Ten Broeck has been called upon to pay Mr. Davies two hundred dollars.—Porter's Spirit.

SUSPENSION OF C. & A. IVES, BANKERS.—The town was taken by surprise this morning by the announcement that the old and responsible Banking Firm had been forced to suspend. Such is the fact. They have paid depositors until they have no money left, while they hold any quantity of the best paper, past due. The fact that those for whom they discounted are unable to pay, explains the cause of the unsolicited suspension.

The Messrs. Ives are making out a statement to be submitted to the public, we understand, which will fully explain their position. Their assets are said to be largely in excess of their liabilities Their deposits

Central American the Special Mission.

On a fair estimate it would cost us about two columns and a half of space, and fill it unprofitably, were we to attempt to fish order out of chaos, and set before our readers the troubled condition into which Nicaragua and Costa Rican affairs have turned led. The truth is that a good understanding once established, as we trust it now is, between the United States and Great Britain, and our right of way across the Isthmus being secured, the end of all the intrigues and speculations in hand concerns us very slightly in a national point of view. Still we anticipate with satisfaction the arrival of an experienced diplomist, charged to settle on the spot such open questions as admit of final arrangement. And that Sir William Gore Ousely, K.C.B., has had experience enough in dealing with minor powers, may be seen in the records of his public life.—Commencing his official career exactly forty years ago, namely in November, 1817, he was during several years our Charge d'Affaires at the then important Mission of Plenipotentiary at Buenos Ayres, and was subsequently employed on a special mission to Monte Video in 1840, and 47. He retired from regular service several years ago; but having private relations with this country, and being eminently fitted for this special duty, he again carries out the policy of our Foreign Office.

It has been erroneously stated that Sir Gore Ousley's mission might or would clash with the duties of Lord Napier at Washington. Not the least in the world. That they will meet and take counsel together is obviously in the nature of things. Indeed it was at one time in contemplation to employ in Central America, under Lord Napier's immediate direction, a person of official rank altogether subordinate to that of the coming Minister. The little-tattle therefore which was current lately on this subject was altogether out of place.—N. Y. Albion.

Washington, Nov. 6.

The Secretary of War received to-day a despatch dated at Fort Leavenworth, that intelligence had been received to the effect that the Mormons were calling into Salt Lake city all their forces from the surrounding country, and were organizing to resist the U. S. troops. Orders had been sent to General Harney to remain at Fort Leavenworth for the present, in case the Mormons use the troops. Another large force under the command of Gen. Harney, will be immediately ordered to Utah.

Washington, Nov. 7.

The War Department has just received despatches confirmatory of previous reports that the Mormons are bent on resistance to the U. S. troops. The appointments of the army and general preparations are such, that no fears are entertained for the result.

The Administration has received no peculiarly important despatches in relation to the events in Central America, or to Costa Rica. It is understood, however, that the governments may do with regard to these affairs, ou's will pursue an independent American policy without entangling alliances.

New York, Nov. 10.

The City Banks last night resolved to call on the Country Banks for specie, and at the Metropolitan Bank, after Monday, the 16th November. The present accumulation of country currency will be carried by the city banks until the 1st May next.—Fifteen, (15th,) however, be taken upon 1st January, 1st February, 1st March, 1st April, and 1st May, at the rate per cent established after the 1st December. (The proceeds are understood to look to early re-mption, provided the arrangement is agreeable to country banks.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The stomach, by the chemical agency of its solvent fluids, converts the food into order to make it fit for the nutritive functions which fits it for the venous system; the lungs vitalize it. If the stomach is diseased, it cannot produce a healthful element and if the foundations of life is affected, all the streams that flow from it must be poisoned. It is upon the stomach, the great laboratory of the system, the manufacturer of the aliment which subsequently become bone, muscle, sinew, and flesh that Holloway's Pills exercise their salutary influence, curing indigestion in all it shapes, and thus giving a vigorous tone to every dependent organ. This is the philosophy of the health and strength-giving result, all the varieties of the internal diseases accomplished by this powerful remedy.

MACLEAR & Co. have placed upon our table, their Almanac for 1858. This number is not behind the former ones, as regards useful information. A very able article upon the Hudson Bay Territory, and a Railway Map of Canada, are among the many pieces of useful information contained in it. For sale by all booksellers throughout the Province.

Great Britain.

The circular issued from the Colonial office to governors of colonies, impressing upon them the necessity of not neglecting that reasonable amount of warlike preparation during peace which it is desirable should be everywhere maintained, says that otherwise the colonies will be a source of weakness, in so far as it is necessary for the land and sea forces of the mother country to defend them against aggression, and a source of strength if, while they are able to repel any ordinary efforts of an enemy's squadron, they will afford shelter and support to our own forces." This important "circular despatch" is signed by the Right Hon. Henry Labouchere, the colonial secretary. The circular intimates that the colonies of this country should be able to repel any ordinary attack of an enemy's squadron, and at the same to afford shelter and support to our own forces. The writer impresses upon the governors of colonies the importance of strengthening the circumference of the empire as well as its centre, and requires them to report annually to the officer commanding her Majesty's troops in the locality as far as they can the state of discipline, &c., of any local forces, and the numbers and efficiency of all guns and military stores under their government.

The Court Journal says it is rumoured that the Prince of Wales may possibly visit Canada in the course of next summer.

We (Liverpool Albion) learn that, with a view to the speedy and amicable adjudication of all points of difference between England and the United States, in regard to the Bay Islands, Mosquito protectorate, Guatemala boundary, and other Central American debateable matters, including, perhaps, the Panama transit, a Minister specially accredited by Great Britain to Washington and the Central American Governments will leave this country in the course of a few weeks. If we are correctly informed, the person selected for this important object is one whose diplomatic antecedents give every reasonable assurance of the success of his mission, he being, moreover, personally well known to the President of the United States where he was formerly attache to Sir C. Bagot. Lord Clarendon has chosen him entirely for his fitness, irrespective of party considerations, for he does not belong to the favoured family Whig circle.

A rumour is current, in well informed circles, that Lord Canning will be recalled, if Lord Ellenborough consents to supersede him. It is said, however, that the noble Earl declines to accept the Governor Generalship without he has the power to discard the present Council Company and its officials when he considers it necessary so to do. It is also generally believed that Mr. Vernon Smith no longer presides at the Board of Control.

The Prince of Wales has finished his tour in Germany and Switzerland. On Monday evening his Royal Highness arrived at Dover.

DUBLIN, Tuesday.—Archbishop, Cullen, and other trustees of Maynooth, assembled to day at the Presbytery, Maltborough street, and appointed Doctor Russell President of Maynooth.

News from Nebraska.

CORRECTION OF REPORTS OF RECALL OF GOV. WALKER AND SECY. STANTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

The Nebraska correspondent of the Times writes as follows under date of Oct. 22nd:—"News has just reached here, from our frontier Mormon settlement, on Roop, Fork, Platte River, near the mouth of the Beaver, that some seceders from the Mormon church were flying from the Danite of Salt Lake, reaching that settlement a few days since, bringing the news that a large force of Mormon militia under Brigham Young and H. C. Kimball, were preparing to leave Salt Lake City, with provisions, &c., for a six weeks' campaign in the mountains, and thus if possible to stop the passage of the United States troops. Although the positive destination was secret, yet it was generally supposed that at the pass in the mountains near Bear River Cut Off or at Soda Springs, is the stand would be made with an almost certainly of whipping out the entire force sent amongst them.

In relation to the Kansas despatch received Saturday, the St. Louis correspondent of the associated Press says:—"We have no such intelligence here, and nothing like it was passed through the telegraph office in this city to day. The despatch has internal evidence of its being a hoax. Gov. Walker has troops at Lecompton for the protection of the Constitutional Convention, and if he had not he would scarcely demand it of an officer who has not been in command, and who for some time past has been under arrest. I saw a letter from Secretary Stanton to-night dated Lecompton, October 28th, and it makes no mention of any difficulty."

CONFIRMATION OF THE ABOVE.

Washington, Oct. 31.

It is now ascertained on a specific inquiry that the reports of last night, which were prevalent in usually reliable and well informed circles, of the intention of part of the Administration to remove Governor Walker and Secretary Stanton, is without the least foundation.

RUSSELL & RICHARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Thalberg, Dreyschock, Jewell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quarto of 55 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a descriptive index to the ideas of over 600 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of this work, we are inclined to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to people interested in music, and we will PRE-PAY THE POSTAGE.

N. B.—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. The work will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz:

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share - -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years -	96.
Total - - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38,
And for three years - - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to their curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, calling as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic! they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headache,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles.
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

* * Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

The Shopman's Adieu to the Ladies.

TUNE:—"The girls we left behind us."

FAREWELL, sweet ladies, we shall now
No longer have the pleasure
Of sowing you with scrape and bow,
Whist wielding wand and measure.
The cruel Indian mutineers
More fit employment find us;
And in our place, you'll have, my dears,
The girls we leave behind us.

You, with their patience and their time,
Instead of ours, will trifle;
We go to India's distant clime,
To point the Enfield rifle.
Instead of plying scissors' blades,
(The task till now assigned us,)
Which we relinquish to the maids,
The girls we leave behind us.

Up shop steps we must cease to crawl,
And scale the Alps of Delhi,
Which do contain what statesmen call
A genuine casus belli.
Against the cruel Sepoys' bands
Our spirit has combined us,
Our old work left to fitter hands,
The girls we leave behind us.

We go, a full revenge to take
For every British martyr,
For which that we our thirst may slake,
We'll give no black beast quarter.
Unless to hang him by the neck,
To make the others mind us,
But ask, for muslin, chintz, or check,
The girls we leave behind us.

Our charge we purpose and intend
To make extremely heavy,
Our bayonets we can recommend
Against the blackguards' levy.
We'll put the goods in lewd or high,
As chance the means may find us,
But seek, if poplins you would buy,
The girls we leave behind us.

With "Any other article?"
Inquiry thrust succeeding,
We shall, on shopman's principle,
Address each tiger bleeding.
Those words wherewith our wares, to press,
The Shop's traditions bind us,
None now will speak to you—unless
The girls we leave behind us.

Mirth and Wit.

The French excel all nations in studied equivoque; but give us a Yankee for the unintentional blunder. A Western New York farmer writes as follows to a distinguished scientific agriculturist, to whom he felt under obligations for introducing a variety of swine:
"RESPECTED SIR:—I went, yesterday, to the fair, at M——; found several pigs of your species. There was a great variety of breeds, and I was astonished at not seeing you there."

A friend in speaking of California, says: "If you think I am, because I am looking Fuller in the face."

"When war's proclaimed, and danger's nigh,
God and the soldier is the people's cry:
When war is o'er and all things righted,
God is forgotten, and the soldier slighted.

Reynolds, the dramatist, observing the thinness of the house, at one of his pieces said; "I suppose it is owing to war." "No," was the reply; "it's owing to the piece."

"What has brought you here, sir?" asked a magistrate of a prisoner. "Two policemen." "Then I suppose liquor had nothing to do with it?" "Yes, sir; they were both drunk."

A culprit being asked what he had to say why sentence of death should not be recorded against him, replied,—

"He had nothing to say, as too much had been said about it already."

"If ever I reach Heaven," said the eminently pious Dr. Watts, "I expect to find three wonders there. First, to meet some I had not expected to meet there; second, to miss some who I had expected to find there; third, the greatest wonder of all, will be to find myself there!"

In a great storm at sea when the ship's crew were all at prayers, a boy burst into a fit of laughter; being reproved for his ill-timed mirth and asked the reason for it, said he, "I was laughing to think what a hissing the boatswain's red nose will make, when it is coming in the water."

Some men are like cats. You may stroke their fur the right way for years, and hear nothing but purring; but accidently tread on the tail, and all memory of former kindness is at once obliterated.

"Tell me, ye winged winds, that round my path way roar; do ye know some spot where women fret no more?—Some lone and pleasant dell, some "holler" in the ground, where babies never yell, and cradles are not found? The loud wind blew the snow into my face, and snickered as it answered, "nary place."

Agriculture and Science.

Wheat in Western New York.

(From the Rochester New Yorker.)

The culture of Winter Wheat has to a large extent been abandoned in Western New York, and in many instances to the profit of the farmer. If, for instance, it has been pursued upon a poor soil—one worn by long culture of this grain, perhaps, or by methods of husbandry unsuited to its wants, and but partially developing its productive capacity, it has been followed without profit, and may be withdrawn from our farm catalogues of agricultural production. Cropping with wheat regardless of the character of the soil, regardless of the changes of seasons which seem to have taken place, and above all regardless of the character and habits of the new and potent insect enemy it must now contend with, has resulted in the loss of millions to the farmers of Western New York. Yet with proper attention to these influences, we would still advocate a share of attention to this late great staple of this section of the country.

What are the demands of the wheat plant, and what the cause of its general failure among us? A partial consideration of these questions will show us, that under certain circumstances its culture is still profitable, and that under other circumstances we but throw away the labour and expenses of attempting its production.

To grow wheat, we need a fertile, well-drained soil, either a porous but heavy loam, or a clayey soil made porous by artificial drainage. A soil containing lime, and above all rich, so that it shall be capitable of sustaining a vigorous and healthy growth, is now a necessity of the wheat crop. It must be a porous soil, that the plants may pass winterkill, and that their maturity may not be retarded by a late, wet spring and summer. A rich soil, if liable to suffer from the long continued rains of spring, will be a cold soil as well, and produce an unhealthy vegetable growth, maturing but slowly as well as unequal, and hence extremely liable to the various casualties which affect the wheat crop. What is called a warm, quick soil is needed, as that secures healthy and perfect growth.

Another demand of the wheat crop is early sowing, so that the plants may get a fair autumn growth, be prepared for the rigor of winter, and for tillering, so as to fill all the ground in the spring. Early sowing also tends to hasten the ripening of the crop, at least to some extent. Attention should also be given to selecting the most productive and vigorous varieties,—those of early maturity, of course, are to be preferred.

That the soil be well tilled, is also a requisite of the wheat crop. It should be in the best order possible; if manured at this time, the fertilizer applied, should be intimately mixed with the soil, and near the surface as may be. Let the land be in fine tilth, and then drill in the seed, and an additional security is had against winter-killing and other injurious consequent thereon.

The alleged cause of the failure of the wheat crop, and its consequent abandonment, is the wheat midge, and its ravages have been truly appalling. But many serious failures occurred before this injury became general, or was considered of much account—failures from poverty of soil caused by wheat after wheat, &c.,—from lack of drainage and consequent winter-killing and rust, —from late sowing on imperfectly prepared ground, also inducing blight and rust, and from poor management generally. All these causes prepare the wheat plant for the attacks of the midge, and it will generally be found that the poorer and later the wheat, the less there is left by the weevil to reward, the labor of the farmer; while the best wheat, the brightest, earliest, and heaviest growth, though injured to some extent, still yields a fair product, and pays at present prices a good profit.

The average injury by the midge in many instances known to us, has been from five to seven bushels per acre—the latter sown the later the wheat, the greater the comparative loss. A light yield say ten bushels per acre, will be one half or more destroyed—a good crop of twenty five or thirty bushels per acre, will seem comparatively uninjured, though one sixth of it has gone to feed the insect. Hence the importance of securing a good growth, for a light one fails to repay the labor of its production. Hence we advise the sowing of only such soils as are in fertility and characteristics united to the crop, and of sowing these early to vigorous and early maturing varieties. Let our farmers again select such soils and situations, and sow wheat again, but only so much as they can put in the best order on a rich, warm porous soil, and we think they will not long have occasion to buy flour or use so largely of other grains as many are now obliged to do.

Keep Fruit Trees Straight.

Trees in an open exposure often acquire a leaning habit from the prevailing winds. This should not be suffered beyond a certain stage of the tree. When as large as one's wrist, they should be set up erect, and, indeed, thrown into the wind at an angle of ten or fifteen degrees; in order to bring them ultimately into perpendicularity. This is best done by obtaining two crotched limbs from the woods, eight to twelve feet long, and placing the but end, which should be sharpened, in the ground, and the crotch end either against the trunk, immediately beneath the branching point, or against a neighboring tree, and then proceed to find them, and, if need be, to renew the fastening it from chafing in the crotch by a padding of straw or litter, and setting the tree at once up to the desired angle or elevation Loosen also the ground on the windward side of the root, so that it will not bind, and the work is accomplished. Let this be done when the tree begins to make its summer growth or soon after leaving out.

One season, if the tree is thrifty, will be all that is required. If, however, it be obstinate, repeat the trial another year. The remedy is sure. Even large trees, which have acquired a permanent lean, may be thrown into an erect posture, by loosening the earth, at the root, and occasionally cutting off an obstinate large root, without injury to its growth, and thus be made sightly. An erect tree will be longer lived, and more fruitful than a leaning one, and not half so subject to casualty as if left to its own guidance.

Why are husbands like dough? Because the women knead them.

BEANS FOR SHEEP.—Bean straw is valuable for sheep, and if when properly cured they eat it with avidity. In a chemical analysis of beans, it is found that they abound with a greater quantity of the elements of wool than any other grain or vegetable, to make sheep produce heavy fleeces. They will eat them with avidity, whole or ground, even in a damage state. To our store flocks during the winter season we generally give a pint of beans per day, and potatoes. Corn is good for fattening sheep, but not so valuable as beans, oats, and most other grains, for the production of wool.

A WASH FOR TREES.—Heat one pound of tal soda to redness in an iron pot, and dissolve it in a gallon of water. This wash will take off all the moss and dead bark, and kill all insects on all fruit trees or grape vines, and make them as smooth as though polished, and make old trees bear anew.

CURE FOR WARTS.—A paste made of the sales of Willow bark and vinegar, and put on the warts once or twice a day, for a week or so, will cure them. A very little nitric acid put on a wart once a day for a few days is a sure cure in every case, without soreness or pain, unless the acid is used too freely. Warts cut a little about as large as a knitting needle dip into the acid, and just touch the top of the wart with it. It is better to get on too little than too much. The cure is certain, but the danger is in getting on so much as to cause pain.

SWALLOWING POISON.—If poison should be swallowed accidently, take two tablespoonfuls of ground mustard, mixed in warm water. It will operate as an instantaneous emetic.

APPLE OR PEAR SYRUP may be made, by boiling, in clarified syrup, an equal quantity of either fruit, cut in small squares, but not washed or broken. The syrup extracts the flavor, and may be poured off, leaving the apples, &c., which may afterwards be used as a common preserve.

MALAGA RAISINS.—HOW PREPARED.—The process is the most simple imaginable. As soon as the grapes begin to ripen, the vinedresser pass through the vineyard, and cut the clusters off from the vines, and leave them on the naked ground, turning them over daily, until the heat of the sun and the warmth of the earth upon which they lie, have baked and dried them, when they are gathered up, put into boxes, and are ready for use. This is all the wonder and mystery there is in preparing this delicious fruit. To my inquiry why they did not place leaves, or some clean substance of the kind upon the ground for the fruit to lie upon, I was told that naked ground was much better, that in fact, the fine flavour of the fruit was dependent more upon the warmth of the earth, than upon any more artificial heat of the sun. Care has to be taken, however, that the fruit does not get wet while undergoing the process. But as it seldom rains during the summer or vintage in this country, it is very rarely that the fruit has to be taken up before it is dried.

DECAY OF IRON RAILINGS.—Every one must have observed the destructive combination of lead and iron from railings being fixed in stone with the former metal, and the oxygen of the atmosphere keeping up the oxidation of the iron, while the lead is left. This waste might be prevented by substituting zinc for lead, in which case the galvanic influence would be inverted; the whole of its action would be preserved; and as zinc is oxidated with difficulty, it would, at the same time, be scarcely acted on; the one remaining unoxidized, and the other nearly so. Paint formed of the oxide of zinc, for the same reason, preserves iron exposed to the atmosphere infinitely better than the ordinary paint, which is composed of oxide of lead.

BENEFITS OF THE CHIMNEY.—A great deal has been written of late years in disparagement of the open coal fire; and the chimney in comparison with the stove and flue; but Professor Faraday has shown the chimney to possess very important functions in sanitary economy. Thus a parlor fire will consume in twelve hours forty pounds of coal, combustion rending 42,000 gallons of air unfit to suport life. Not only is that large amount of deleterious product carried away, and rendered innoxious by the chimney, but five times that quantity of air is also carried up by the draught, and ventilation is thus effectually maintained.

The British East India Company

According to recent and authentic documents, this Company now rules, directly or indirectly, an empire of 500,000 square miles, with a population of more than 160,000,000. The nominal money capital is set down at $60,000,000, and its annual revenues are also estimated at $185,000,000. The salaries of principal officers are: Governor-General, $125,000—perquisites $20t,000; Members of Governor's Council, $48,000; Bishops, $12,000 to $15,000; Law Judges, (30 in number,) $15,000; Collectors and Magistrates, (45 in number,) from $6,000 to $12,000. In striking contrast with these great salaries is the pay of the native soldiers, being eleven cents per day.

The standing military force of this powerful company is about three hundred thousand men, European and native, the former the flower of the British army. The department of the topographical engineers is remarkable for its skill and efficiency and has done much for the material development of the country. Railroads completed and in construction, now span the whole extent of its empire, from Carnatic to the Himalayas, opening a brilliant prospect for the agriculturist at no distant future. There are also in operation at the present time more than four thousand miles of the magnetic telegraph, with which connection will soon be made along the southern coast of Arabia, and through Egypt, subtmarine the Red Sea, with the Mediterranean lines, thus communicating directly with the whole of the western world. There is special interest attached to this company, at this moment, growing out of the terrible rebellion now fearfully progressing in India, for upon the company devolves the momentous duty of stopping the progress of the insurrection, and the heavy responsibility of its consequences.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N.B. Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

North Shore Line of Steamboats
DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Willleave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays.
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Tuesdays and Fridays
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequaled, and are in all respects considered the best and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of MESSRS SEYMOUR, Buffalo; merchandise from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Select Poetry.

I think of Thee, Beloved One.

BY FINLEY JOHNSON.

I think of thee, beloved one!
Throughout the night and day;
And gire thou all the worship which
A poet's heart can pay,
And oft, at midnight's solemn hour,
In waking dreams I start,
To find thee, but a fancy flower,
Still idol of my heart.
And O, thou hast, beloved one!
Each thought and wish of mine.
O, say, have I, for a return,
One single thought of thine?

Life's joys, like summer birds, may fly,
My cherish'd hopes depart;
Yet, there's one flower that dieth not—
Thy memory in my heart!
No dew can blighton its fair bloom;
But unto it is given
The power to live and flourish here,
To be renewed in heaven.
Then, while my every thought and dream
Is centered still on thee,
O, bear thou not one tender thought
To lavish, love, on me?

Though bitter tears we both may shed,
When by misfortune bow'd;
Though all life's joys may buried be
Beneath dark sorrow's shroud;
Though fate should sever us, dear one,
And we apart must move,
Our souls, when God shall set them free,
Can live in worlds of love.
O, this, indeed, an ecstacy
Untold would be to me!
Say, dearest one, Oh, would it be
A heavenly joy to thee?

The Little Lost Shoe.

BY FRANCIS S. OSGOOD.

CHAPTER I.

What a musical shriek! Harry Fielding was wandering through a noble western wood, at sunset, when the sound startled him from a profound reverie, and looking up, he beheld at a distance a young girl, motionless with terror, gazing as if fascinated, upon an immense snake, apparently just coiled for a spring. Harry raised his hunting rifle, aimed, fired, and the monster lay wreathing in the agonies of death. But whither had the wood-nymph flown? She was nowhere to be seen; and vexed and disappointed the young man wandered on. He had caught but a glimpse of a youthful and picturesque-looking creature, with wild, gazelle-like eyes and parted lips, her soft dark hair and snowy robe floating in the breeze, and her hands clasped in terror.

He hurried forward hoping he might overtake her. Suddenly he sees a prize in the path, and stoops to take it up. What can it be? It is a bracelet? A ribbon? A ring? No, gentle gracesr, it is a little black kid slipper, of the daintiest and most graceful proportions imaginable. Harry was sure now he should overtake her, for she must limp, poor thing! with that little shoeless foot; unless, indeed, she had wings, which he was almost afraid she had.

Suddenly he came upon two paths, diverging from the one he was in. Here was a dilemma—which should he take? The right or the left? There was no time to lose. He chose the right, which proved the wrong after all; for he led straight to a great pond in the depths of the wood, and left our unlucky friend but one of two alternatives, to drown his disappointment in the tempting water, or to retrace his steps and try the other. With an enlightened wisdom, and a profound moral courage, which did him honor, our hero chose the latter, and that led to his own home in the village, where he ought to have been at least three quarters of an hour before, and not have kept everybody waiting for dinner. Upon the whole, though, it would have been better if he had staid away altogether; for he pounced the waiter into his aunt's plate, instead of her tumbler, and pat mustard into her tumbler, instead of her plate, and when she asked to look at the newspaper, took out of his pocket the poor little shoe, and placed it gravely in her outstretched hand.

"Harry Fielding, what upon airth ails you, and what in the world is this?" exclaimed the astonished old lady, peering into his face with her little gray eyes, from which she had removed the spectacles to wipe them.

Harry replied by seizing the shoe and rushing out of the house. On he went, up one street and down another, looking in vain for the fairy foot of the forest Cinderella.

As he approached the inn of the village, he saw capering the stage coach, which was just ready to start, a lady thickly veiled, in a very elegant travelling dress. Harry ran forward with a sudden misgiving. One little foot, in its neat black gaiter-boot, was already on the step—she sprang lightly in—the door closed—the driver cracked his whip, and ere our hero reached the spot, the coach was half-way down the street.

It was she! he was sure of it. She had gone, perhaps forever! and Henry Fielding sauntered listlessly on, humming "What's this dull town to me?" and looking as if he had not a friend in the world.

CHAPTER II.

"Are you looking for anything my dear fellow?" said Charles Stanton, meeting a friend in Chesnut street, about a month after the occurrence of the incident mentioned in the last chapter.

"What large feet you Philidelphians have!" was the rather irreverent reply.

"Large! au contraire—they are famous for their small ones."

"Well, here is my model," said the other, sighing deeply, and taking from his pocket a tiny kid shoe.

"That, is indeed, 'a trifle light as air!' exclaimed Seaton. "Introduce me to the sylph who owns it—and I will take you to sea la belle Julie this very evening."

"Hang la belle Julie! Have'nt I been waiting a whole month in search of the foot to which this little slipper belonged?" And Fielding proceeded to relate the history of his adventure with the wood-nymph.

"And you acknowledge you have wasted a month in this ridiculous search? Take my advice, Harry, resume your law studies at once, and forget your wood-nymph as fast as possible. What would your father say if he knew of this romantic folly?"

Harry colored a little at this frank reproof from his open hearted friend; but after a moment's pause, he replied sadly:—"You are quite right, Charles; but if you knew what a beautiful dream I resign, in adopting your advice, you would not wonder at my reluctance."

He did resume his studies; but he could not quite forego the lone and lovely hope which gleamed like a morning star in the heaven of his future, and now and then a vision of an exquisite little foot, pure and white as alabaster, would glance across the dull, dry page of Coke upon Littleton, or put even Blackstone to the blush.

CHAPTER III.

"Mamma! darling mamma! you are suffering for a thousand things—do let me go."

"Yes, my sweet child, you must indeed go now. I fear I have already delayed it too long. But you will have a quarter's salary in advance, and that will more than discharge the few debts we have incurred. Go now, dear, while I dare let you go."

"Julie St. George repressed her starting tears, tied on her little crape bonnet, (she was in mourning for her father,) kissed the pale cheek of the invalid, and set forth on her errand with a beating heart. She had been offered the situation of governess in the family of Mrs. Beaumont, a Banker's widow, and she was now going to accept it.

Mrs. Beaumont received her with cold hauteur, calculated to chill her into humility. Her eldest daughter, a delicate, aristocratic-looking beauty, languidly raised her glass—surveyed her for a moment—then let it drop, and resumed her book. But Julie felt in an instant, the superiority, the innate nobility of the person upon whom they affected to look down.

Dressed in deep mourning, and with the most tasteful and graceful simplicity, her dark hair parted plainly on her brow, her beautiful face radiant with spirit, feeling and intellect, Julia St. George walked calmly up the room, bending her head with perfect self-possession, in return for the haughty greeting of Mrs. Beaumont, while the slight yet perceptible curve of her lovely lip betrayed her consciousness of the manner in which she was received. The lady pointed to a chair—the visitor seated herself with provoking composure.

"You have come, I presume, Miss St. George, to say you accept the situation, I propos d to you."

"I have, madam," was the reply, in a low, calm, but musically modulated voice, "and I should like to enter upon my duties at once, if agreeable to you."

Mrs. Beaumont hesitated—Miss St. George was evidently not a person to be put down—and for a single, haughty, the result of a self respect, which that lady could neither understand nor appreciate, might possibly prove troublesome—but then, on the other hand, the example of her evident high breeding would be invaluable in forming the manners of her hitherto untamable little Angela, while her attainments were such as were rarely to be met with, even in a governess.

"I will let you know in the course of a week," she said at last."

"I am sorry, madam, to disoblige you," replied Julia, as quietly as before; "but I cannot wait a week for your decision. It is necessary that I should secure a situation of some kind immediately."

"Oh, very well: if you are in such haste, perhaps you had better look elsewhere."

"Good morning, madam!" said Julia, rising at once.

"Stay!" said the lady hastily, "Upon the whole I think you will do. You may come to morrow if you like."

Miss St. George calmly bowed her assent and was about to take leave, when a wild, graceful little creature burst into the room, exclaiming—"I will see the governess!" Her white, embroidered frock was torn and soiled, a profusion of soft, glistening, amber colored hair, in the utmost disorder, clustered round her face, and her singularly lovely countenance. The large, dark, Oriental eyes were instantly cast down on meeting those of the stranger, their long, jet-black lashes resting with a slight curve on the colorless cheek beneath; the full, yet delicate lips were of the richest red imaginable, and her attitude of unconscious, childish grace was charming, as she stood for a moment, silently twisting in her pretty fingers the ribbons of a gipsy hat. The next instant, however, she looked up again into the eyes which had awed her at first, for Julia had lingered in the room absorbed in surprise and admiration, and seeming to gather courage from her expression of earnest interest, the child went timidly up to her, and climbing into her arms, whispered half aloud—

"Will you love me very much, and praise me all the time; and never, never punish me?"

"I cannot promise all you ask, darling—began Miss St. George—

"Angela, I am ashamed of you!" exclaimed Mrs. Beaumont; "you are always making scenes! Go to your room and have your hair brushed, and your dress changed immediately!"

Angela pouted and clung to the neck of her new friend; but Julia kissed the pout away, and putting her gently down, repeated her good-morning to the stately lady of the mansion and her indolent daughter and departed.

CHAPTER IV.

"Oh, mamma! she is beautiful and so affectionate—I shall be so very happy I know."

"Is she dear? Then I must confess I am agreeably surprised. I have always understood that she was very cold hearted, and anything but beautiful."

"What! Angela?"

"Who is Angela? I was speaking of Mrs. Beaumont."

Julia laughed and shrugged her pretty shoulders; she had forgotten all the unpleasant occurrences of the morning, in the delight with which she thought of the lovely and loving little girl who was to be confided to her care.

CHAPTER V.

"If you can manage that child," muttered the nurse, as she consigned Miss Angela to her new governess the next morning, "you will do more than any one else ever did—that's all I've got to say."

"I will tell you a secret, if you will promise never to tell," whispered the child to Julia, as the door closed upon the nurse. "But I cannot promise never to tell, dear, for that would be wrong."

"Well, then, you may tell, if you like; but I know you wont. You see, the reason they can't manage me is because I try to be naughty before mamma and nurse!"

"Oh, Angela! I am sorry for that. Why do you do so?"

"Because they make such a fuss about every little thing. I like to hear them scold—it's so funny. Besides, they never let me have any pence except when they shut me up, and then I have real good times, all by myself, in the little bed-room next to the nursery. They shut me up once in a dark closet, but I didn't like that, because I couldn't do any thing there; so I screamed just as loud as I could, and they thought I was frightened, but I was n't a bit; and now you will do more than any one else ever did, for I've got to stay."

"Then I cannot promise never to tell, dear, for that would be wrong."

"Well, then, you may tell, if you like; but I know you wont. You see, the reason they can't manage me is because I try to be naughty before mamma and nurse!"

"Oh, Angela! I am sorry for that. Why do you do so?"

"Because they make such a fuss about every little thing. I like to hear them scold—it's so funny. Besides, they never let me have any pence except when they shut me up, and then I have real good times, all by myself, in the little bed-room next to the nursery. They shut me up once in a dark closet, but I didn't like that, because I couldn't do any thing there; so I screamed just as loud as I could, and they thought I was frightened, but I was n't a bit; and now mamma would punish you and me together sometimes, and we'd have grand times playing fish! But I suppose grown up people never need punishing. They are always good—ain't they? Mamma never seems to think she ought to be shut up. Did you ever play fish?"

"Yes, dear, when I was a little girl. But can't you have good times, without being naughty first, Angela?"

"No, indeed! They won't let me do any thing I want to. They say I must n't climb, for I shall tear my clothes; and I must'nt run, for fear I should get heated; and I must'nt read much, for fear I should make my head ache; and I must'nt sew, for fear I shall stoop. They don't want me to do any thing out of school hours, but just to play like a lady. Why should I be like a lady, when I aint a lady? I'd rather be a child, and be like a child—hadn't you? I don't think ladies are half as happy as children—do you? Oh, dear! if I only had something to do, all the time, I don't believe I should ever be naughty, or unhappy either—that's all I want, something to do. Do all little girls have a mamma at home, that keeps plaguing them and fussing over them?"

Alternately surprised, amused, and grieved as she little indefatigable chatterbox ran on, Miss St. George saw the difficulty of the task before her. She saw the weeds and flowers struggling together in that rich but neglected garden, her pupil's heart; and she felt how difficult it would be to destroy the one without injuring the other. But she resolved to bend her whole energies to the work, and she was sure to succeed in time.

In the course of two or three months, the little Angela visibly improved. Her hair and dress were not often out of order; she was seldom disobedient, or disrespectful, to her mother or her nurse; and if she were ever so, a word, a look, from Julia had the desired effect. Passionately fond of books and of her teacher, there was no fear that her intellect would be neglected. The great difficulty seemed to be to keep her ever restless imagination in check; without any companions of her own age, she was in the habit of surrounding herself at her studies and her play with the creations of her fancy, to whom she gave the most romantic or high sounding names she could make up at the moment. These little visionary friends she would address in terms of endearment, reproach, or expostulation, reply for them, and carry on the conversation until she forgot that they were unreal.

One morning she was sitting in the school-room, surrounded by empty chairs, in each of which she had placed a little invisible schoolmate, and asking them in turn, to spell all the hard words she could call to mind when her sister entered to speak to the governess, and, ignorant of the mischief she was doing, rested herself in one of the "shocod" chairs. The little girl, excited by her interesting play, burst into a passion of tears, exclaiming, "Get up, quick! quick! You will kill that darling Cariella!" and flying to her astonished sister, endeavoured to drag her from her chair.

Julia saw, for the first time, the evil tendencies of this habit, and fearful almost for the reason of her charge, begged Mrs. Beaumont to allow the child real flesh and blood playmates.

CHAPTER VI.

But what have we done with our hero? Has he found the little lost foot yet? No, he has almost given it up; but he has become an attache to a foreign embassy, and is quite a pet among the higher circles in Europe, where a true, frank, honorable and intelligent American is always received with favor.

Mrs. Beaumont, her daughter, Victoria, and her neice, Miss Adelaide Sinclair, were in "perfect ecstacies," for George, the only son, who had just returned to England, from a continental tour, was expected home to pass the Christmas holidays at their country seat, and was to bring with him the wealthy, talented, and distinguished Henry Fielding, and his pleasant friend Mr. Seaton.

Julia St. George had gradually become a favorite in the family. Once secure of a position among them worthy of her talents and refinement, she was quite willing and ready to unbend, and to make herself agreeable and obliging to all. The young ladies soon discovered that nothing could be done without the assistance, the advice, the sympathy of little Angela's tasteful and kind-hearted governess, and even the cold and stately mother felt her heart soften toward one who had devoted herself so tenderly and so successfully to the improvement of her child.

On the day of their arrival, the young men did not linger long over their wine after dinner; for George was anxious to renew an old flirtation with his spirited cousin; Seaton had heard much of Victoria, and Fielding always enjoyed the society of an intelligent and interesting woman more than any thing else.

Adelaide Sinclair was a brilliant, playful, pretty and saucy coquette. Her cousin, Victoria, a dainty and delicate creature, indolent, graceful, and gentle, partaking somewhat of the cold and calm pride which was the prevailing characteristic of her mother. When the gentlemen entered the drawing room, Adelaide was arranging a ringlet at the glass, Victoria, half reclining on a sofa, embroidering a velvet slipper, and in a distant corner, looking over a book of prints, the governess and her young charge, who had been allowed to sit up in honour of her brother's arrival. Mrs. Beaumont had retired, fatigued with the unusual excitement.

Fielding seated himself near Victoria, and admired her work. 'It is for a friend,' said she; 'isn't it a tiny shoe?'

"I think I can show you a smaller one," said Fielding, and, impelled by a sudden impulse, he drew from his bosom the little kid slipper of his wood-nymph.

Adelaide caught it playfully from his hand, "A prize—a prize!" she exclaimed, trying to hold it up out of his reach. "As I live, here are verses, on the sole of it! Listen, good people," and she began—"Little treasure, light and—"

"Nay!" remonstrated Fielding, in the same gay tone, "no one shall read the verses who cannot wear the shoe."

Adelaide's satin slipper was off in a moment, but the shoe was too small; she tried in vain to squeeze her pretty foot into it.

"Come, Vic," said her brother, "let me try it on you—if it don't fit somebody, we shan't have the verses."

Victoria languidly put out her foot, but in vain, it would not fit.

"I know somebody it will just suit," exclaimed little Angela, in an eager tone. "Miss. St. George has the cunningest foot in the world, only she never shows it." Fielding drew the beautiful, earnest child towards him, and Adelaide, flying to the governess, dragged her forward, laughing and blushing, into the circle.

"La belle Julie! by all that's wonderful," exclaimed Seaton, in a low tone, as they approached.

"Hang la belle Julie!" murmured a sweet and playful voice, and the next moment the young governess was cordially shaking hands with her well-remembered friend. Mr Seaton, who could scarcely believe his eyes or his ears.

"Introduce me," whispered Fielding.

"Miss. St. George—Mr. Fielding Years ago, in America, my friend was promised this introduction."

"Yes, and I happened to hear his polite reply to your proposition," said the lady, laughing.

"What was it?"

"To the best of my recollection, it was, 'Hang la belle Julie!'" I walked into a shop to avoid hearing the rest of his courteous adjuration. What had I done to deserve hanging, Mr. Fielding?" she asked, turning gaily toward him, with her lovely smile.

"Oh! stop! no matter what you had done. Don't you see that the poor man is out of his wits with consternation? Try the shoe at once!—there's a dear!—and let us hear the verses. They ought to begin—'Sole of my soul,' but men so seldom pay a graceful compliment."

Fielding was perfectly enchanted with his "la belle Julie." He gave but one sigh to his wood-nymph, and, almost sure that his verses were safe, or many a belle had tried the shoe in vain, he said, "Yes, Miss St. George, prove that you generously forgive my thoughtless folly, by putting on the slipper."

As Julia took the shoe from his hand, she started, colored deeply, and gazed from it to him with a bewildered look, which was infinitely amusing to all but our awakening hero.

"That look! He felt a strange thrill as he met it! Could it be? "Pray try the shoe at once," he exclaimed in an agitated voice.

Miss St. George had recovered her self-possession. Seating herself, she drew the shoe with graceful ease upon her perfect little foot, and looked up into Fielding's eyes; such a look! so eloquent, so full of wonder, joy, and gratitude, that his wild hope changed at once into conviction. He had found her at last! His wood nymph! his Cinderella! his morning star.

Adelaide clapped her hands in ecstacy.—"The verses! read the verses, Miss St. George. It fits exactly! I should think it was made for you! The verses!—we will have the verses!"

And poor Julia was obliged to read, in her low, soul-toned voice, the lines on the sole of the shoe.

Little treasure! light and airy,
Didst thou elasp the dainty foot
Of a wandering woodland fairy,
Flying from a sylph's salute?

Or did some young mortal lace thee,
Tripping with elastic tread,
All too softly to deface thee,
Where her sweet, wild fancy led?

Tell me what her woman-passion!
Was't to bend thy graceful sole,
Tell me, did she love to daily,
While along the dance she stole,

Or, through upland, glen, and valley,
Hast thou pressed the happy flowers?
Tell me, did she love to daily,
Mid the fragrant woodland bowers?

Did the prairie blossoms caress thee,
Breathing balm around thy tread?
So the heart where now I press thee,
All its wealth for her shall shed.

"I should judge from all I see and hear," said Seaton, in a sly, demure tone, "Miss St. George could show, if she chose, the mate to this wonderful shoe."

"Oh, what is it?" exclaimed the lively Adelaide. "There is some romance attached to it, I know. Tell us all about it, Mr. Seaton—there's a nice man."

The story was told, the mate was brought down, and slyly exchanged in the course of the evening with Fielding for that he had cherished so long, and Julia was persuaded, ere many months had elapsed, to leave her pet Angela, and reward with her hand, and "her heart in it," the untiring devotion of her lover.

Miscellany.

PREACHING AND PRACTICE.—The New York Post says that a worthy clergyman in that city, following the practice of his ministerial brethren, recently preached a very earnest discourse on the hard times, enforcing the duty of retrenchment and economy. Immediately after church, the congregation held a meeting at his word by holding a meeting, at which his salary was cut down from $1,000 to $600.

LORD BYRON'S INDIAN PROPHECY.—In connexion with the Indian mutiny, a curious poetical prophecy of Lord Byron has been recalled to light. It occurs in "The Curse of Minerva," written 1811 against the collection of Greek marbles made by the Earl of Elgin, and runs as follows:

"Look to the East where Ganges' swarthy race
Shall shake your tyrant empire to its base:
Lo! there rebellion rears her ghastly head,
And gives the Nemesis of native dead;
Til Indus rolls a deep purpureal flood,
And claims his long arrear of Northern blood."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Look out for Counterfeits!—These can always be detected by the absence of the Water mark, which appears in every leaf of the genuine book of directions. Unless the words "Holloway's New York and London," are visible in semi-transparent letters in each page, the medicine they envelope is spurious. To deplete the system by bleeding and violent purging, is to deprive life's machinery of its motive power. These great remedies disinfect the Blood and the secretion, and cure external and internal complaints, by destroying their seeds in the vital fluids.

One day at dinner, a scientific lady asked the late George Stevenson, "What do you consider the most powerful force in nature?" "Oh," said he, in a gallant spirit, "I will soon answer that question; it is the eye of a woman for the man who loves her; for if a woman looks with affection on a young man, and he should go to the uttermost ends of the earth, the recollection of that look will bring him back. There is no force in nature could do that."

A LITTLE EPISODE IN THE "PANCHICHITA" CASE.—A courteous letter from Lord Napier to commodore Kearny, of the Brooklyn Navy Yard appears in Print conveying the thanks of the Lords of the Admiralty from the kindness and hospitality shown on board the U. S. ship North Carolina to the officers and men attached to H. B. M. S. Sappho, who brought over here the above named vessel. It is always agreeable to record the exhange of such international civilities.

Fall of Delhi.

(From the Globe correspondent.)
London, Oct., 30th.

SUMMARY OF THE INDIAN NEWS.

I sent you on Wednesday a summary of all that was then known regarding the capture of the city of Delhi. Since then a number of letters and papers have been received; and many additional particulars, though far from complete, have been received and published. As you may well suppose, this great and long looked for event eclipses everything else. The rebel Sepoys had possession of the place just four months, but they are now utterly routed from their stronghold; and this lost to them, we may decently hope, the back of the mutiny is fairly broken, although it would be too much to expect that the wide spread insurrection is at an end. There is a laborious work to do ere peace and safety shall be once more restored. The particulars of the storming and capture of Delhi have reached us in the very detached portions, and from several sources, and are evidently far from being so perfect as could be wished. The narrative is this:—The siege train sent from Ferozepore, after the attempt made by the rebel General Bukhtar with a large force to intercept it had been defeated by the attack of Brigadier Nicholson, reached the camp before Delhi on the 4th or 5th of September. The guns were speedily mounted on batteries formed in commanding positions on the north side of the city, between the city and the British camp; and the fire was soon directed on the principal bastion. It would appear that the rebel king now sent a flag of truce, offering (for the second time) to surrender, and to deliver up the actual murderers. General Wilson replied as he had done when the British Government at first proposed to him similar terms, which, and matinous, surrender must be unconditional; any other rebel coming to propose will be hung; all future operations will be carried on at the muzzles of the guns."

Henceforth the struggle became one of the fiercest desperation. The bombardment commenced, and the Cashmere and Moree Bastions, near the magnificent gateways of these names, suffered severely from the British shot and shell. The garrison replied smartly with grape and Musketry, but with out doing much loss. On the 10th and 11th September two sorties were made to endeavor to destroy our batteries, but the rebels were driven back, and the bombardment continued vigorously. In these operations we lost two officers of artillery, Lieutenant Hilderbrand and Bannerman. On the 12th the breach being sufficiently breached, the British assaulted Delhi in four columns. Such was the resistance that one of the columns formed of the Cashmere contingent, was repulsed; but the other three columns succeeded in establishing themselves within the walls, and in clearing the fortifications from the Cashmere Gate to the Moree gate, that is, the whole of the side of the walls, and round to the north west as far as the Colaf gate. This is an extent of from three-quarters of a mile to a mile. They also seized a large building, not far within the city, called Skeindors house, and in the Chandney Chowk (public called Skinner's house,) which they occupied as their chief position. From this point the assailants attacked the great and strongly fortified magazine, which, on the second attack, they carried on the 16th,—and also the mosque in the rear of the palace and other strong buildings within the city, and fought desperately from the house to house, it was not, till four days after, namely, on the 20th, that our soldiers were masters of the city. Whether the puppet King did really escape, or attempted to do so as reported says, in the confusion of the assault, is not absolutely certain, but it may well be believed. Of this, however, and a multitude of other matters possessing far deeper interest, with reference to the assault on the city, and the several desperate fighting within it, we hope very soon to be informed. From what we do know, it is believed that the narrative will surpass everything of the kind in the history of modern sieges. Our generals and our troops appear to have discriminated in the exercise of justice and mercy just as we should have expected them to do. There was no indiscriminate slaughter. They would lack a firm arm, and as little that they would confound themselves with the wretches against whom they were sent, by the slaughter of innocent and unoffending persons. Many of the inhabitants sought and obtained protection. The Sepoys also sought to make terms, but their offers were indignantly rejected." For the details of these terrible six days we now impatiently wait; but, meanwhile we too sadly know that our loss has been severe—six hundred English troops, and also fearfully large proportion of fifty officers have fallen.

The following casualties occurred in the operations preceding the assault:—

KILLED.

Captain Fagan and Lieutenant Hildebrand, Artillery; Lieutenant Bannerman, Bombay Army; Arthur Belooch, 6th.

WOUNDED.

Major Campbell, Captain Earle, and Lieutenant Lockhart, Artillery; Captain Chesmiller, 73rd Foot.

In this list received the rank of the officers has generally not been mentioned.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 18.

The Nubia arrived at Suez on the 18th, with dates from Calcutta to 25th Sept.; Madras, 30th; Galle, 3rd Oct.; Aden, 12th. From Calcutta the news is, that the assault on Delhi took place on the 14th Sept., and troops entered by a breach near the Cashmere Gate without serious opposition, and advanced along the ramparts to the Cabul Gate, where resistance was very obstinate, and our loss severe. We advanced gradually within the city. The enemy were soon retiring over the bridge. The guns were turned on them. The King of Delhi and family are said to have escaped. The Times Marseilles correspondent telegraphs that a large number of the mutineers, including cavalry, escaped from Delhi.

Lucknow.—Accounts up to the 16th September, say that the garrison is in good health, and provisioned to Oct. 1st. When Gen. Outram would have reached them. A private despatch says a mine exploded at Lucknow, killing 400 of the enemy. An assault on the 5th was repulsed by the garrison with great loss to the assailants. Sir Colin Campbell had sent one thousand men against the 2nd cavalry, who had joined the rebels and laid waste the country. Opium has risen very much, and the company's paper has fallen. The Gazette contains a copy of a minute of September 8th recording the services of Sir H. Lawrence, and relative to the death of Sir H. Lawrence, and the appointment of General Sir J. Outram to the united command of the troops in the Dinapore and Cawnpore divisions, and his reappointment as Chief Commissioner in Oude. The Governor General speaks in the highest terms of admiration, esteem and affection of the late Sir H. Lawrence and regards his loss as one of the heaviest public calamities.

The Indian telegram received at the Foreign office stated that a detachment of Gen. Outram's force under Major Eyre, on September 11, with the greatest gallantry, defeated a party of the enemy who had crossed from the Oude side of the Ganges for the purpose of harrassing the advance of Gen. Outram. Generals Outram and Havelock had effected a junction on the 19th, a 6 p.m. that the troops crossed the Ganges without opposition, skirmishing only with advanced posts. One hundred and fifty prisoners, taken by General Neill at Cawnpore, are said to have been liberated by Mr. G. P. Grant. The leniency of the Government is generally approved.

Mr. Samuels, the commissioner at Patna, being informed that the insurgents had taken up a position at Gaya, ordered a party of Sikhs to attack them. The result was that the Sikhs were outnumbered, and the insurgents entered the city and plundered it. The insurgents at first liberated the prisoners, and departed next morning, without molesting a small party of Europeans who were entrenched in a bungalow. Fears were entertained of a new outbreak in Assam. A conspiracy to restore the ex-Rajah of Assam was detected. Colonel Hay has entrenched himself with his Ghoorkas at Drumbrughar. The Rajah was in custody. An encounter took place between 200 Sauthals and a party of Sikhs under Lieutenant Graham near Hazaribagh. The Sauthals were speedily dispersed. The 52nd Regiment Native Infantry mutinied on September 18, doing no injury to their officers; the men deserted in a body. In Rajpootana the mutineers of the Jodpore Legion defeated the Rajah of Jodpore's troops, killing the General and taking the guns, on September 22; they then joined the rebels at the head of Arrah. General Lawrence proceeded, on September 15, from Beaur and attacked the rebels; he compelled them to take refuge in the town of Gya, but found the place too strong for an assault to be risked and fell back on Beaur. Captain Mason, with the Behar Light Horse, and 200 Sikhs is endeavoring to join General Lawrence's force. The Bombay Government sent up Her Majesty's 89th Regiment, and other European troops, to enable General Roberts to reinforce General Lawrence. In Indore, Holkar's Native Infantry mutinied, but were worthy of note has occurred. In Gwalior, Scindia is said to be raising a force of 15,000 men to intercept the fugitives from Delhi.

A portion of the Mhow and In lore rebels are reported to have crossed the Chumbul with the Bombay Government sent a wing of the 4th Foot, just arrived from the Mauritius, to Kurrachee. The Commissioner of Scinde had previously sent detachments of invery small European garrison to Hyderabad and Shikarpoor. Khelat is in a very disturbed state. The commissioner of Lahore has been reinforced by some squadrons of the 10th Lancers from Hyderabad, which have been replaced by some squadrons of the 3rd Madras Cavalry from Shoolapoor. A telegram received at the Indian Board says Colonel Fraser of the Engineers had succeeded Mr. Colvin the Lieutenant Governor of the North West Provinces. On September 5th the Dinapore mutineers had reached Lay ode. The 50th Native Infantry continued there had mutinied; officers believed safe.—The mutineers at Indore, notwithstanding Scindia's opposition, reached Dolhipoore.—The mutineers of the 1st Native Cavalry were expected to march on Agra on Sept 18. H.M.S. Sanspareil, Shannon, Pearl, Belleisle, Penelope, Himalaya, and Adventure are at Calcutta. The steamer Thebes arrived at Galle with part of the 98th Regiment on board.

Nothing of importance from China. Lord Elgin sailed from Singapore for China on the 13th September. On the 16th Sept., H.M.S. Furious, with two gun-boats, arrived at Singapore. The other gun-boats are hourly expected.

The reply to the mutineers in Delhi when they asked for terms, and offered to give up the actual murderers, was—"The British Government will hold no terms with murderers, rebels, and mutineers; the surrender must be unconditional—any other rebel coming to propose will be hung. All future negotiations will be carried on at the muzzle of the guns."

In General Van Corutlandt's attack on Mungeld, a number of the rebels were killed, and 13 of them, with others, made prisoners, and immediately executed.

About 20,000 rupees worth of plunder is said to have fallen into our hands, together with 80 horses and 2000 head of cattle. At Kurrache, of 43 deserters seized, 14 were hanged, 3 killed in attempting to escape, 4 blown away from guns, and 22 transported.

CAWNPORE.—All the rebels from Oude who are in gaol, with their wives and children, are to be kept as hostages to secure against a repetition, at Lucknow and else where, of the atrocities committed at Cawnpore and Jhansi.

In the house of a follower of Nena Sahib, who is now before Lucknow, the females were found left behind. Lowry and Neil put them under arrest, and they were told that they would only be provided for, and protected as long as any English women or children, fallen into the hands of the Oude rebels should be murdered. The threat was effectual. So long hope that it would reach the ears of the Nena Sahib, and that he would put them under arrest, and they were told that they would only be provided for, and protected as long as any English women or children, fallen into the hands of the Oude rebels should be murdered. The threat was effectual. So long hope that it would reach the ears of the Nena Sahib, and that he would

A despatch from Major Eyre gives a splendid description of the affair against the Oude mutineers on the banks of the Ganges. On their side they brought up two guns. Shot and shell were showered into them, and a terrific fusilade destroyed 300 of them in a few minutes.

The Times' Calcutta correspondent writes that the latest Delhi News received there was only to the 15th. At that date the head of the Sepoy besieging army was at Skinner's house, within the city. Many of the inhabitants had sought and obtained quarter. The Sepoys also sought to make terms, but their overtures were indignantly rejected.—A great many of the mutineers, including many Lancers, had fled from the city.

The British force, at the time of storming was about 10,000.

Army and Navy Intelligence.

Major General Havelock is to take his present rank from the 1st instead of the 30th of July.

Seventy-six thousand medals of the Medjidie are to be sent from Constantinople for distribution to the English army and navy.

The 2nd West Indian Regiment (composed of African negroes) is under orders for Bengal, and has probably ere this embarked at Kingston, Jamaica.

Eight battalions recently raised are to be stationed as follows, viz., the 4th at Newport, the 5th at Newcastle upon Tyne, the 6th at Bury, and the 7th at Preston.

Information has been received of the Defiance, which sailed with troops from King ston to Ceylon on the 6th August. She was spoken in lat. 4 south and long. 20 west, being at the time 28 days out.

Lord Panmure has decided that the wives and children of soldiers ordered to the East are to remain at home. The children are to be admitted to the military schools in preference to those of strangers.

It is in contemplation to increase the strength of the three West India regiments to 1,200 rank and file each, and in addition to give a second battalion to the West India Regiment, to be recruited in Canada, with a view it is supposed, to the employment of the troops in China.

The death of Earl Fitzhardinge, the elder brother of Vice-Admiral Sir Maurice Berkley, K.C.B., and Senior Naval Lord of the Admiralty, having devolved new duties upon the Admiral, and placed him in a different position, the gallant officer has sent in his resignation as a Lord of the Admiralty.

The United Service Gazette says:—"The volunteer ossula has died out—Lord Panmure has declined to recognize the martial spirit of the counters and the counting house, not only because he thinks the government can no without amateur soldiers, and partly because they would be difficult to deal with. But the East India directors are open to offers of service, and we really think they would do well to accept of as many colonies of Gentlemen Cadets as offer."

The first detachment of a West India regiment that has completed a course of instruction in the Enfield rifle at the School of Musketry, Hythe, arrived at Chatham, on Saturday, the 17th instant, the draught being composed of non commissioned officers and men of the 2nd battalion of the 3rd Regiment, in charge of Ensign L. M'A. de Lancey, of that Corps. A number of the privates are men of colour. On their return to the West Indies they will be employed in instructing the men of their corps in the use of the Enfield rifle.

RECRUITING FOR THE ARMY.—The reduction of the infantry standard and the extension of the cavalry standard have not been without their effect upon the recruiting. Men are coming in at the rate of 1000 per week, men of good appearance, most suitable for the finishing such as we were too glad to snap at during the Crimean war, and ready to discharge but hale, well built, robust lads—the very fellows for Indian rifle corps or regiments of dragoons. The service is decidedly becoming more popular every day.

The Colonial Episcopate.

The Church of England will, in the course of a few weeks, have 37 bishops in the colonies and dependencies of the British Crown, there are at present 33 English colonial bishops, viz:—Dr. Wilson, Bishop of Calcutta; Dr. Strachan, Bishop of Toronto; Dr. Selwyn, Bishop of New Zealand; Dr. Parry, Bishop of Barbadoes; Dr. Thomson, Bishop of Gibraltar; Dr. Hebert, Bishop of Jamaica; Dr. Field, bishop of Newfoundland; Dr. Medley, Bishop of Fredericton; Dr. Chapman, Bishop of Columbo; Dr. Perry, Bishop of Melbourne; Dr. Grey, Bishop of Capetown; Dr. Short, Bishop of Adelaide; Dr. Tyrrell, Bishop of Newcastle; Dr. Anderson, Bishop of Rupert's Land; Dr. Smith, Bishop of Victoria; Dr. Dealtry, Bishop of Madras; Dr. Mountain, Bishop of Quebec; Dr. Fulford, Bishop of Montreal; Dr. Binney, Bishop of Nova Scotia; Dr. Harding, Bishop of Bombay; Dr. Colenso, bishop of Natal; Dr. Barker, Bishop of Sydney; Dr. Ryan, Bishop of Mauritius; Dr. Bowen, Bishop of Sierra Leone; Dr. McDougal, Bishop of Labuan; Dr. Hale, Bishop of Perth; Dr. Courtenay, Bishop of Kingston; Dr. Harper, Bishop of Christ Church, New Zealand; Dr. Cutrell, Bishop of Graham's Town; and Dr. Gobat, Bishop of the United Church of England and Ireland in Jerusalem. To these will very shortly be added by consecration, Dr. Cronyn, who has been elected Bishop of Huron, Upper Canada; Mr. Hobhouse, who has been designated to the Bishopric of Wellington; and Archdeacon Williams, who has been designated to the Bishopric of Tauranga, an exclusively Maori district. As soon as tranquility is restored in India, arrangements will be completed for the establishment of three new bishoprics there, one at Agra, for the northwest provinces; one at Lahore, for the Punjaub; and one at Palamotta, for the missionary province of Tinnevelly. When these appointments are made, the number of English colonial bishops will be forty.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, NOVEMBER 19, 1857.

DAY OF FASTING AND HUMILIATION.

We are pleased to find that almost the first official act of His Excellency the Governor General, upon his return to assume the Government of Canada, has been one, which will be heartily received by all parties and creeds, and responded to with the most hearty good will.

The troubles in India we need hardly say, have aroused the strongest feelings of horror and detestation against the murderous savages who have so brutally caused the death of many of our brave fellow beings in the East, and the strongest feelings of loyalty and sympathy towards the parent State. The many and urgent requests on behalf of the Canadians to enlist troops to assist in quelling the rebellious and murderous Sepoy, speak plainly that the Canadians have not lost one particle of their devoted loyalty to the mother land.

What can be more awful than the cold blooded murders that have been committed against the British residents in India? and what can be more appropriate at the present moment, than that we should devote one day to humiliation for these sufferings, which have so often caused us to shudder at their magnitude? The following is the Governor General's proclamation:

PROVINCE OF CANADA } EDMUND HEAD.

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c., &c. To all our loving subjects in the Province of Canada, GREETING:

A PROCLAMATION.

KNOW YE, that taking into our most serious consideration the grievous Mutiny and Disturbances which have broken out in India and putting Our trust in Almighty God, that He will graciously bless our efforts for the restoration of lawful authority in that country; And considering the propriety of setting apart a day to be observed throughout Our said Province as a day of Humiliation and Solemn Prayer to Almighty God, for imploring his blessing and assistance on our arms for the restoration of tranquility, We have thought it, by the advice of Our Executive Council for our said Province, to issue this our Proclamation appointing, and We do hereby appoint FRIDAY, the TWENTY SEVENTH day of NOVEMBER inst, to be observed throughout our said Province as a day of General Fast and Humiliation and Prayer to Almighty God for the success of our arms in restoring tranquility to the said territory. AND we do hereby earnestly exhort all our Loving Subjects in Our said Province reverentially and devoutly to observe the same as a day of General Fast, Humiliation and Prayer.

But while we have reason to feel sadness, we have also reason to rejoice that our arms in the East have at length meted out to the mutinous sepoy a just and honorable vengeance, and a victory of which all true British subjects, as well as all who wish to see the spirit of liberty and the right of the Gospel extended to the extremities of the earth, must feel proud. The stronghold of rebellious India was within the fortress of Delhi, one of the strongest fortifications in the hands of the rebels. But what were fortifications and hordes of murderers to the conquering British troops, the sepoy plainly shows. Delhi has fallen, and the sepoys have been thoroughly routed. This result we have never for a moment doubted, yet we had hardly hoped that this glorious victory would have been achieved without greater loss to our brave soldiers. The particulars of the battle will be found in another column.

Report says, that in all probability, before many days wil have passed over our heads, there will be a dissolution of the House, and Writs issued for a new election.

Thus far, we have abstained from taking any notice whatever of the thousand and one reports that have been flying about, in relation to election matters, and have waited patiently until there was a prospect of an election in earnest.

Our readers will no doubt expect from us, as the Conservative journal of the County, the first information in connection with the coming contest, and the names of the different candidates who propose to enter into the contest for the honor of representing this County. This we will not neglect to do so soon as the different candidates have been decided upon, and the one in particular whom we intend to support.—This will in all probability be done in the next issue of our paper, unless circumstances should turn up that will render it advisable to pursue silence still further. Upon one thing, however, our readers may rest assured, that there will be a Conservative in the field in ample time to contest the election effectually. With these few remarks, we propose to leave the matter for the present with the intention of returning to it again at the earliest possible day. In the mean time let the Conservative Electors, abstain from making rash promises to any party who may offer himself for their suffrages.

ESCAPE FROM GAOL.

On Sunday last, the prisoner Young, who was convicted at the last Assizes for the murder of his Wife at Windsor, and was lying under sentence of death in the Sandwich Gaol, made his escape, and it is supposed has fled to the States. The means by which he succeeded in breaking gaol are rather extraordinary, and exhibit an expertness and perseverance that few men possess, and must have caused him the greatest labour for weeks past, in order to accomplish it.

It appears that he succeeded in burning a hole the ugh the thick oak floor in his cell, which he has kept concealed by covering it over with his bed; the hole which he made was at a point where the rafters were 6 inches and ½ apart. He then went below, and underminied three foundations, two, beneath his cell, and the third the main foundation of the Gaol, and thus succeeded in working his way out. There is no doubt that he has been at work for two or three weeks past, as the quantity of earth removed, with the implements which he is supposed to have used (a tin pan) could only have been accomplished with the greatest labour, in that time.

He is supposed to have had two suits of clothes, one suit that he wore when at work, and the other in the day time, that he might not be detected.

Many will ask, how it was possible for a prisoner who was under sentence of death, to accomplish without detection all that he did, and how the hole in his cell was kept conceal ed with out the keepers finding it, or how he could have burned it without the smell of fire being perceived. They all appear to be matters, which the gaoler should not have let happen, without his knowledge. These are questions of some consideration to the public, and we hope that explanations of a satisfactory nature will be made by the Gaoler, as it becomes a subject of public interest, for if the Gaol is insecure, means should be at once adopted by the County Council to remedy the evil.

A reward of Four Hundred Dollars has been offered for his apprehension, by the Sheriff of this County; and we hope that he will yet be taken, as a character such as he has been proved to be, should never be allowed to associate with the rest of mankind.

Since writing the above, a report has arrived here, that Young has been caught somewhere in the interior of Michigan.

EXPLOSION OF A TUG BOAT ON THE DETROIT RIVER AND EIGHT LIVES LOST.—On Saturday last, at three o'clock in the afternoon, a frightful accident happened upon our river, a short distance above Detroit, which unfortunately resulted in the death of eight men. The tug-boat Sprague was proceeding down the river with two vessels in tow, which had been taken up to Lake St. Clair, namely the Winslow astern, and the Sunshine alongside, and while coming down the river and about half a mile above the city of Detroit, carrying only the usual quantity of steam, the boiler exploded, tearing the tug to atoms, and scattering the fragments in all directions. The sails of the vessel alongside were completely torn to ribbons, Captain Snow, having stepped upon the vessel a few moments before the explosion took place, was only slightly injured. The first Engineer, Mr. Allen, of Buffalo, had one leg broken and was somewhat scalded, and having been thrown some distance into the river, was greatly chilled before he was rescued, his injuries are not dangerous; all the rest of the crew on board of the Tug were either blown overboard and drowned, or sunk with the shattered hulk and were lost. The sails of the Sunshine, which was being towed alongside, received the full force of the steam, and were torn to shreads, and was otherwise considerably injured. The following is a list of the killed and their places of residence.

Mate, John Rumsdill, of Cournean, O., a widower, leaving two children.

2nd Engineer, Samuel Woodward, of Detroit, leaves a wife and two children.

Two Wheel-men, Sanford Everett of Springfield, Pa., and John McPherson of Canarangus, New York.

Cook, William Sanford (colored) of Malden.

Two firemen, both colored, of Malden, names unknown.

A deckhand, a German, name and residence unknown.

ARRIVAL OF THE ARIEL.—We learn by the Ariel that, the attempt to launch the "Great Eastern" was made on the day appointed, but was a failure. The second trial had been postponed one month. Several persons were injured, two of them severely.

☞ Our Town Contemporary the "British Canadian" has changed its name to the "Western Mercury."

Communication.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf

SIR.—It is much to be regretted, that correspondents should exhibit so much rancour and spleen in their communications to the press, and showing so much personal feeling in their dislike of persons and places, as their interests may happen to be affected thereby; for instance, the account of the Amherstburg Horse racing, as published over the signature of "A PLAYING SPECTATOR," in the Windsor Herald of the 6th inst.

That correspondent appears to act solely upon the principle that by traducing the character of others, and lowering them in public estimation, they may be able to direct public attention from the illegal and extraordinary course pursued by themselves toward our loyal and devoted citizens. What Amherstburg was, and how her gallant sons threw the desperate invaders from her soil, can be no secret to any one who has paid the least attention to the history of the Country. It was a scene of contrast in the war of 1812, and also of the rebellion of 1837-8. Then all our yeomanry stood boldly by the side of the gallant soldiers of the line, in defence of their common country. Welfare and and young soldiers mixed with the people in the most social manner, contesting the manly sport and exercises of the field with the humblest of her inhabitants.

The couplet in the print, have left an impression upon the minds of the people of this town, that cannot be easily erased from their memory.

The grounds of those performances, (the Military Reserve) remain yet, to remind us of the loyalty of our forefathers, and we are not to blame, nor does our position warrant us in turning our residence into a place for ploughing and turning the Reserve into a Cornfield, as the Agricultural Major openly avowed to be his intention.

The old Course and the Horse Stock affair, the citizens naturally considered themselves at liberty to dispose of a portion of it at least, as they pleased, and upon finding themselves in a neglected condition, they consulted the proper authorities, and found that it was not designed for the exclusive and sinister purpose of any party.

Agreeable to such information, they concluded at a public meeting held for that purpose, to lay down a few panels of the fence; but now attacked by Military Mob, armed with clubs, which had been secured by their Commander to be upon the ground two hours before the time appointed for opening the fence, and when the first panel was taken down, the work of destruction followed in rapid succession, till the Major saw his men repulsed, when he stepped up to the fence, and threatened to bring out the military force if he could not be driven by citizens, and then with crew, followed by the pensioners. After the fences were levelled, some two or three hundred youngsters, engaged the water carrier and his old horse to carry a pole, that was picked up by the way side, and mounted with two or three hand kerchief, paraded through the town with Police and Firing party, and British Colours, and "The Girl I left behind me," who seemed highly delighted at the pr spect of being again admitted to their old pay ground. It is a wonder that the fence was not destroyed, will cause some investigation to be instituted into this affair, which could not be subject to the influence of Col. Tuinock, as he is as much, if not more, a loser than any of the other parties concerned.

Rest assured, Sir, that I am not actuated by any personal feeling in this unfortunate affair, and I deeply regret its occurrence.

I am, Sir, &c.,
AN OLD RESIDENT.

GUELPH FAIR.—Until to-day Fair was held over Wednesday, and both days it was weather rare good, and no pressing work to keep the farmers and their "helps" at home, there was a great gathering of both day folks, and not a few parties anxious to dispose of surplus stock. The main portion of the Market Square was filled with carriages, waggons and horses, and droves of superior oxen, which, six months since would not have lacked purchasers, but although not a few were in good condition for the butcher, there were but few sold. Oxen, which but a few months since would have fetched $140, were sold for $120, good six year olds at $93. The fall of prices in cows and young stock was still greater. An Erinnois farmer sold a couple of cows in calf, for $40 the pair, for which $80 or $70 might have recently been obtained. We heard of no cows bringing over $40. A small lot of sheep or pigs, were disposed of at fair prices, something less than $5 a head. There were a considerable number of horses on the ground, but generally of very indifferent quality. A few good spans were held at a high figure. For a span of well matched and well broken carriage horses, and nearly harnessed, fit for a light carriage, $410 were asked as they stood, but no buyer.—Herald

IMPORTANT RAILROAD DECISION.—The Binghampton Democrat states that a trial case of before Judge Bloomfield, at the Broome Circuit, last week, between Mr. Bebbe, a respectable gentleman of fifty years, and upwards, and Mr. Ayres, a conductor upon the Erie Railroad. Mr. Bebbe had purchased a ticket from Newburgh to Awego, but on arriving at Deposit he left the cars, leaving Edgwell, to the over till the next day. The next day he took the ten o'clock A. M. emigrant train west, but left it at Great Bend, and took the day express train Ayres, the conductor, refused to recognise the ticket, and put him off the cars forcibly. The suit was brought for damages for the assault. Mr. Bebbe received a verdict for $250 under the direction of the Court.

News from Buffalo say that the Judge before whom Mr. McGuffey was brought up at Buffalo, holds that the arrest is illegal under the Ashburton Treaty, and the extradition therefore of Mr. McGuffey cannot be effected, and this decision will enable him to prefer an action for false imprisonment.

The unemployed in New York City, numbering fifty thousand, are getting some what disorderly, and are calling upon the corporation to provide them with work or the winter, and in order to obtain this, they form in processions, with flags bearing inflammatory inscriptions, and paraded the streets. A promise has been held out to them, that there has been no outbreak as yet, but a hard long winter may be followed by fearful consequences.

Mr. Williamson, the correspondent of the St. Paul Times, writing from Payuzze on the 26th ult., says that a report had reached there that 500 U.S. troops, supposed to be a detachment of the Utah expedition, had been attacked and killed by a large party of Teeowan Indians, near the Missouri River Mr. Williamson believes that

A Gallant cowhided by a Woman

A singular affair, which has given rise to a good deal of scandal, occurred yesterday afternoon in Broadway. About 1 o'clock a handsome carriage drove up to the curb stone at the corner of Morris street and Broadway, just above the Bowling Green, when a fine looking young woman sprang from the side walk, and collared a gentleman who was passing. He was apparently very much excited, and attempted to release himself, but she held him with an iron grip, and drawing a short gutta percha whip from the folds of her robe, lashed him over the face and head unmercifully. He roared out lustily, and with a desperate effort wrenched himself loose, but she sprang after him again, and catching him by the skirts of his coat, renewed the castigation. Every blow stung to the quick, and brought up a livid wale, causing the victim to writhe and yell with pain, to the infinite amusement of a large crowd of bystanders. At length, her vengence satisfied, the lady gathered all her strength for a finishing stroke, and losing her hold, brought down her whip with force enough to unhorse a gallant spinning along the side walk. At the next moment she was in her carriage and dashing up Broadway at breathing speed. The unfortunate fellow flew to the opposite direction, amid the jeers and merriment of the mob, and took refuge in the Southampton and Howard Hotel. He entered by the side way, from whence he issued a few hours later under the protection of the clerks of the establishment. Neither of the parties is known.—New York Tribune.

RUSSELL & RICHARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Thalberg, Dreyschock, Jaell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quarto of 84 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a descriptive index to the ideas of over 300 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of this work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to people interested in music, and we will PRE-PAY THE POSTAGE.

N.B.—Only one copy will be sent to the same address, unless a second is ordered in the same order as the addresses are received.

☞ You will certainly get a copy FREE of all EXPENSES, by sending your name and address with a stamp to

RUSSELL & RICHARDSON,

POT TERY.

WILLIAM HOPE,
COLCHESTER, CANADA WEST,
MANUFACTURER OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF FANCY AND PLAIN POTTERY WARE.

The material that he uses cannot be surpassed, being the very finest Fire Clay, thoroughly and being an experienced hand as a manufacturer is enabled to supply an article that is inferior to none. His facilities for borrowing are such that he can supply in fair sized quantities, at the most reasonable prices, at his Establishment in POTTERSVILLE adjoining Eldridge Corney's Sulphur Springs, in the Township of Colchester.

Draining Tiles of superior manufacture also made, and farmers are requested to encourage home manufacture before going elsewhere, as they hope to supply all farming articles. Sugar Troughs are also manufactured at this establishment, which have been found superior to anything yet used for the same purpose.

Mr. Perris of Colchester has used them, and will certify to their superior qualities.

Mr McGee, Merchant of Amherstburg has been appointed agent for the disposal of his wares.

Colchester, Feb. 5th, 1857.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX.

To Peter Brown late of the Township of Colchester in the County of Essex.

TAKE NOTICE that on the Twenty Seventh day of June last, a writ of Attachment against the real and personal property credits and effects of you the said Peter Brown, at the suit of Charles J. Messer, was issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex, at the suit of Charles J. Messer, and that it having been shown at the time the order for the said writ was applied for, that no information could be got as to where you had fled to. It was ordered by the Judge of the said County under the forty-fifth clause of the Common Law Procedure Act, that a copy of said writ of Attachment be left at your last place of residence in the County; and One Months Notice, published in one of the Newspapers published in the County of Essex, of such writ having been issued, be deemed good service of such writ of Attachment upon you. You are therefore required to appear to defend the said Action at the order, for one month to cause special bail to be entered for you in the said County Court of the County of Essex, in an action to recover $5615 at the suit of the said Charles J. Messer, otherwise the said Charles J. Messer may, by the cave of the Judge of the said court, proceed thereon to Judgment and execution, and may sell the property attached under and by virtue of the said writ. And take Notice that this Notice was first published on Thursday the thirtieth day of July, A. D. 1857.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature,

The Law regulating the disposal of funds are as following, viz:—

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $2300 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, loaned for eight years at 6 per cent, per annum.

Amount of share	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS
CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain states and localities.

Alarming Disordera!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Constipation,	Liver Complaints,
Dy-pepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptome,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

* * Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 624 cents, and 81 each, and 82 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. v1n43

☞ CAUTION.—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York" and "Holloway, London" are discernible as a water mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

WANTED!!!

500 CORDS of WOOD wanted at the Sandwich STEAM MILL.

THE EVENINGS.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

In the summer evenings
When the hew low,
And the skies were radiant
With the sunset glow,
Thou and I were happy,
Long, long years ago,
Love, the young and hopeful,
Hovered o'er us twain,
Filled us with sad pleasure
And delicious pain,
In the summer evenings,
Wandering in the lane.

In the Winter evenings
When the wild winds roar,
Blustering at the chimney,
Piping at the door,
Thou and I are happy
As in days of yore.
Love still lovers o'er us,
Robed in white attire,
Drawing heavenly music
From an earthly lyre,
In the winter evenings,
Sitting by the fire.

The Printer's Devil and his Love

A printer's devil was pierced in the heart
With the charms of a little Miss;
Quoth he to the lass, "My dear, ere we part
Let us seal our vows with a kiss."
The maiden replied as the imp she eyed,
"Dost thou think I'll let you reveal
Where others before you have tried—
No, no, I'll not kiss the Devil!"

Years rolled along, and the sweet little lass
Became an old sorrowful maid;
She lived like a queen—with a title—but alas!
Her beauty had all decayed.
Once again they met, and the old maid tried
To recall her former issue,
But he gaily smiled, and he only replied:
"The devil now wouldn't kiss you!"

Wit and Wit.

AN EXPERT DENTIST.—A German cartwright (Herr Stumpf) winds up a programme of his extraordinary merits by the following boastful recommendation:—"P. S. Gentlemen, professors, students, and others, need not be under any needless alarm that it is at all necessary for them, during the dental operations, to put aside their beloved pipes. On the contrary, they may continue smoking with the most blissful impunity and they will only find that, between two whiffs of tobacco, their tooth has quietly gone!"

Clerical Wit.—A clergyman's acknowledgement of a present of game from a noble lord, the patron of a vacant benefice:
Many thanks, my dear lord, for the birds of your giving,
Tho' I wish with the dead you had sent me the living.

TIT FOR TAT.—A newly wedded pair returning their marriage calls, met a donkey in their way. In the kindest manner the fair bride jokingly said, "My dear, there is one of your relations," "Yes," was the prompt reply, "by marriage."

A Negro was brought up before the Mayor of Philadelphia for stealing a chicken. Theft conclusively proved.—"Well Toby," said his honour, "what have you got to say for yourself?"—"Nuffin but dis," replied Toby. "I was crazy when I stole dat pullet, coz I might hab stole de big rooster and neber done it. Dat shows 'clusively to my mind dat I was laboring under delirium tremendus."

A sailor dropped out of the rigging of a ship of war, some fifteen or twenty feet and fell plump on the head of the first lieutenant.

"Wretch!" said the officer, after he had gathered himself up, "where the devil did you come from?"

"An' sure I came from the north of Ireland; yer honer."

ABSENCE OF MIND.—In a state of mental absence, a young man demanded the hand of a young lady, and only perceived his error when he got her father's foot.

It is remarkable fact that, however well young ladies may be versed in grammar, very few of them are able to decline matrimony.

A dun was somewhat taken aback the other day by the coolness with which the debtor said, "Call next Thursday, my dear Sir, exactly at ten o'clock, and I'll—I'll tell you when to call again!"

Did you ever know such a mechanical genius as my son?" said an old lady. "He has made a fiddle out of his own head, and he has wood enough for another!"

"I say, Pat, what are you about—sweeping out that room?" "No" answered Pat, "I am sweeping the dirt, and leaving the room,"

Somebody said that if nature had designed man to be a drunkard she would have constructed him like a churn, so that the more he drank the more firmly he would stand.

PAINTING has become in fashion among the English ladies; and paleness, as an aristocratic grace, has "paled its ineffectual fires" to extinction.

"Will you give me them pennies now?" said a big newsboy to a little one, after giving him a severe thumping.

"No I won't" exclaimed the little one.

"Then I'll give you another pounding."

"Pound away. Me and Dr Franklin agrees; Dr Franklin says. Take care of the pence and the pounds will take care of them selves.

The art of conversation consists in the exercise of two fine qualities. You must originate, and you must sympathize, you must possess at the same time the habit of communicating and listening. The union is rare but irresistible.

NO SUCH CHURCH THERE.—A letter addressed to the "Church of God," at Portland, Maine some years ago, was returned in the General Post Office with the endorsement, "miss-directed—we have nothing but sectarian churches in this place.

A gentleman once made fun of a sack which a young lady wore. "You had better quit" was the reply, "or I'll give you the sack," "I shall be most happy was the gallant response, "if you would give it to me as it is, with your self inside of it."

Agriculture and Science.

Winter-Killing of Grain and other Plants.

The phenomena which are commonly classed under this head are various, and the causes which produce them must also vary. Some of them are undoubtedly beyond our control; but others it is in our power to obviate, or at least to alleviate. More careful observation, and a collection of facts, will aid in determining these causes and the corresponding remedies.

Winter grain, as wheat and rye, suffer more than the common grasses, yet they will often endure an exposure which is astonishing. Last winter, rye, with a bare surface exposed to the fiercest north-westers during a zero temperature, not only survived, but came out in fine condition. But, if this exposure is accompanied with frequent freezings and thawings, the result is different—the roots are thrown out of the ground, torn and weakened, and if the plant lives at all it retains but a feeble vitality. Clover, under the same circumstances, suffer even more severely and entirely dies out, when the rye may live. This freezing and thawing is more destructive where the soil is moist or of a tenacious character, called heavy. The roots of clover are in this way so laid bare that they would die even with out the cold. Some other plants as parsnips, are killed by this severe freezing in a damp soil, or where water stands on the surface. In the spring several inches of the top of the root will be found decayed, while the lower part remains sound. The bulbous flowers, mullen pink, foxglove, and Canterbury bells, will not endure this severe freezing without protection.

Various shrubs, as some varieties of roses and the flowering almond, will live if the soil is well drained, while upon a moist soil with the same exposure they will be killed to the ground. The cause is not the same as in the case of winter grain, and the herbaceous plants just mentioned, for these meet the winter at all periods of their growth, and continue to grow all over the ground thaws. But it is necessary that the shrubs should fairly mature their wood, and thus prepare for winter. A well drained soil enables them to do this most perfectly, and thus prepared, shelter from piercing wind being added, they will endure almost any degree of cold ever experienced in our climate.

The flower buds of some fruit trees as the peach, are killed by extreme cold, though the wood, if well ripened, may survive. Last winter, with us, at a temperature of eighteen degrees below zero, they were all killed, except those of some blood peaches. The young wood suffered somewhat, but they still ripened a fair crop of fruit, while other varieties of peach as well as apricots, did not produce a single blossom. At fourteen degrees below zero, a previous winter, the flower buds on a nectarine were the fair bride jokingly said, "My dear, there is only ones killed except on one limb, which being covered with snow, bore fruit, while the peach generally produced a fair crop.

The different kinds of grass and other plants which clothe our fields, are all more or less affected by the same causes. Those that are of the least value or positively injurious often endure the winter best, and take possession of the space vacated by better plants. Once noticing the extreme prevalence of a species of golden rod in the pastures of a good farmer, and throughout the neighborhood where the soil was peculiar, we asked the cause of its abundance. He replied, "The winter brought it in." Now if the winter had any effect to increase this plant, it could only have been by destroying the grasses which otherwise would have occupied the soil to its exclusion.

The covering of grain with straw has been recommended as a preventive of winter-killing, but this practice can never become general. Early sowing, by enabling it to get a good start and cover the ground, and thus shield its own roots from the repeated freezings and thawings is desirable. If it follows oats, their growth may serve as well as a coat of straw to shield it, and in the spring they will be out of the way, though if too abundant, they may choke the fall growth of the crop.

The preservation and cultivation of the belts of timber may do much to break driving winds, that sweep off the snow and expose the fields, but this is a slow operation, and it only by a general dissemination of a spirit to this effect, that any extensive good can be accomplished. It is true that a screen of evergreens will shield an orchard or garden, or protect a dwelling from the winds; but to break up the force of our storms through the country, the gorges through which the wind now draws must again be filled with forests and the hill tops stand bristling with their native guards. We have recently noticed the effects of clearing the forest from a single acre. The winds were allowed free sweep, and the half way was blockaded with snow drifts, more than half a mile distant, where the snow was never known to accumulate before.

The fierce north-west winter storm em browned the foliage of those hardy evergreens, the laurel and the hemlock, while in sheltered situations they were unaffected, allowing the importance of protection even to them.

But the most efficient assistance we can render our grass or grain in enduring the severity of our winters, consists in thorough draining. Though it is true that grain and clover sometimes winter kill upon warm, dry land, the cases are comparatively rare.

But grains die in the winter from some other causes, than those we have mentioned. When the snow falls before the ground is frozen, and is blown into deep drifts, so that the frost cannot penetrate, we find as it melts off in the spring, spots of varying size, that turn brown and die, and are said to be "smothered." Early sown grain is more often thus affected, and as a preventive it is recommended to allow calves to feed it off just as the ground freezes. We have never seen this affect, except when the snow was very deep, and then in the parts of the field where the soil was the richest, and the grain the largest.

When the snow is trod down by the passage of men or teams and a thaw and frost succeed, the paths are often marked next spring by the deadness of the vegetation. Ice formed from water flowing over or standing upon a field sometimes kills the grass beneath it, and at others no injurious effect is visible. Did the same effect always follow the same apparent cause, we might be better able to determine the reason and provide a remedy. More careful observation continued through a series of years will alone accomplish this object, for each one has noticed some facts bearing upon these points; and we propose the following interesting questions, and many more of a similar character will suggest themselves.

When the grain or grass have been killed during the winter, what were the circumstances of soil, exposure, &c., attending it? What the kinds of grain and grass? The time of sowing and state of forwardness? What vegetation, if any, survived?

USE OF PLASTER.—A correspondent thinks every crop benefited by plaster, and that upon clover it is indispensable. An application of 100 lbs. plaster will increase the hay crop one-third. He sows early in the spring on grass, and on grain as soon as it shows green over the ground. Potatoes, he says, should never be planted without rolling the seed in plaster. It is beneficial on all but wet clay soils. Sandy, gravely, loamy soils never fail to have their crops well benefited by plaster.

TO DESTROY GRUBS IN THE HEAD OF SHEEP.—Make a hole in a standing board, 24 inches from the ground, and large enough to let a sheep's nose through up to the eyes. Let one man hold the sheep in this position, another with a syringe throw up each nostril of the sheep a slush of yellow snuff and water, strong enough to make them sneeze, and they will thus throw out the eggs of the fly that are deposited in July and August.—Cor. Ohio Cultivator.

LEMON JUICE IN DROPSY.—Lemons are recommended for dropsy in a Russian medical journal, and are said to be beneficial in the most hopeless cases. The first day one lemon was given, after taking the peel off, and cutting it up into small pieces in sugar; the two following days three were given, and afterwards eighteen every day. For nourishment, meat was given. In every case the water came off on the seventh day.

APPLE MARMALADE.—Pare seven pounds of apples; put them on to stew in a preserving-pan with a pint of water; when they are all dissolved, rub them through a strainer; add one weight of sugar as of apples, and the grated peel of four lemons; boil nearly an hour, stirring it all the time; then add three ounces of essence of ginger ten minutes before taking it off the fire; wet some shapes, and fill them. This is very useful throughout the winter.

TO PRESERVE PEACHES.—Three and a half pounds of sugar, to one gallon of pump water; make a syrup, and let it get cold; fill the can with fruit, and pour in the cold syrup; set the can in water and let it come to a boil; boil briskly for three minutes, and then seal.

APPLE JELLY.—Take light-colored apples; pare and cut them in thin slices into a deep saucepan, with as much water as will just cover them; boil to a pulp, and strain through a jelly-bag; weigh and to every pound of liquor add a pound of lump sugar powdered; boil, till it comes to the top of the pan, for a quarter of an hour, or rather more; put it into teacups or moulds. The juice of a lemon to every pound of sugar is an improvement; and the sugar should be made hot before it is added to the juice.

SPONGE CAKE.—One and one-third cup sugar, 1¼ cup flour, ½ cup sweet cream and 3 eggs—white and yokes beaten separately—1 teaspoonful cream of tartar, 1 teaspoonful lemon extract. Bake quick

HICKORY NUT OR JACKSON CAKE.—Two cups white sugar, 1 cup butter, ½ cup milk, 1 cup chopped hickory nuts, 1 cup raisins 2 cups sifted flour, 4 eggs—the whites and yokes beaten separately—1½ teaspoonful soda, 1 teaspoonful lemon. The whole to be well beaten and baked in a quick oven, in square tins. Is much nicer to be frosted and cut in squares for the table.

DELICATE CAKE.—Two cups sugar, one cup butter, 1½ cups flour, whites of 5 eggs, 1 spoonful lemon extract, using the yokes with the same measure of ingredients make a GOLD CAKE. Using the two in thin alternate layers spread with jelly, makes an excellent cake for tea or evening parties.

TO PREVENT A COW SUCKING HERSELF.—Take a stick some two or three inches in diameter, and from 2½ to 4½ feet long—the length depends on the size of the cow—the larger the cow the longer the stick. Make a mortice an inch and a half or two inches wide in each end, and pass the stick between the cow's fore legs, and buckle a strap that is passed through the mortice in the stick just behind her fore legs and fasten the other end of the stick in the same manner around her neck. Neither of the straps need be buckled very tight.

FEMALE LOVELINESS.—Young ladies sadly miss it, who labor solely to improve their outward looks, while they bestow not a thought upon the mind, when it is the true loveliness of their moral and social nature that wins, and continues to retain the affections of a true heart. Fools and fops may be won by gew-gaws and fashionable show dresses, but those who are really worth having, are never caught with such traps. Dress has an important influence in determining a gentleman's opinion of the character and taste of the other sex. Many a wife looks prettier, if she did but know it, in her neat morning frock of calico, than in the incongruous pile of finery, which she dignifies with the title of "full dress." Many an unmarried female first wins the heart of her future husband in a style of dress unpretending attire, which, if consulted about, she would pronounce too cheap for ordinary wear.—Spirit of the Times.

WONDERFUL WHEAT SEED.—The "Exeter Gazette" relates wonderful results from sowing Australian wheat seed, by a farmer named Harwood. The seed was drilled in proportion of two and a-half pecks to the acre. Many of the ears are seven inches long, and as many as forty shoots of corn can be extracted from one of them. The average height of the stalks is from five to five and a half feet, and the soil underwent no higher preparation for the seed than a sensible farmer would resort to ordinary farm labour.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

Sandwich, March 15, 1857.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs SEYMOUR, Buffalo: merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Select Poetry.

The Home Angel.

She dwelt apart from early youth
In gentle household ways;
Contented with her mother's smile
And with her father's praise.
Her- was "the grace of quiet born,"
Of fancies gay and pure;
Of trusting love that could obey,
And strength that could endure.

Beauty from simplest actions rose,
And harmony from strife;
So did her kindly spirit fuse
The elements of life.
Hers was the hand that freely gave
The ready smile or sigh;
The cheek that true to feeling flushed,
The bright and upward eye.

A stranger came; he looked and loved;
He whispered at her side;
There fell a shadow on her home
The day he claimed his bride.
And we who kept her vows; she turned
The prose of life to song;
But all too high that strain for earth,
And it was hush'd ere long.

She died, ere love was fully told,
As dies a flower in spring;
Earth never lost, nor Heaven gain'd
A sweeter angel thing.
Ay, hundreds like her live and die,
In England's household bowers;
And blessed are the hearts that feel
"Such angels yet are ours."

The Sorrows of a Moneyed Man.

AN EPISODE OF THE PANIC.

One morning not many days since, Mr. Von Muff conceived and executed the idea of rising at five o'clock. To the great disgust and indignation of Mrs. Von Muff, he continued the practice, to use her own words, "he deprived her of sleep, and exposed her to a cold draught before it was light."

She followed him one morning, and found him in a state of extreme disbable, reading the Times.

"So this is your occupation, is it, Mr. Von Muff? It is to see the paper, is it, that you deprive me of rest, and destroy my health? Why can't you read the papers after breakfast, like other folks eh?"

"Because there's a panic, Felicia, and I want to find out who were attacked with it yesterday.'

"Panic, indeed! you're enough yourself to give any one a panic. I expect you will have to bury me before long, if this sort of treatment is continued. Then, I suppose you will be overjoyed.'

"My dear Felicia, don't agitate yourself. But, really, the commercial panic is frightful. Nobody, trusts any body. I feel quite alarmed, for, as you know, my money is all in the Blunderbuss Bank, and if that should burst?"

"Serve you right if it did, you fool! Why don't you put it into the Watersput Bank? that sound."

"No; but there may be a run upon it.'

"Draw out the money altogether, then, and lock it up in an iron chest.'

"Why, you see, if I did that, people would laugh at me, though upon my soul, if this panic continues, I must.'

"Really, Mr Von Muff, you are the most inexplicable person I ever encountered.—Here we are, it seems on the verge of ruin and yet you have the heartlessness to get up at five o'clock and sit here quietly for three hours, almost in a state of nudity reading the papers. I'm disgusted with you, Sir. What are you gazing at? Are you going to make no effort to save your introcent family from destruction? Will you sit there forever doing nothing but reading the papers —evening reading the papers?'

Von Muff made no reply, but dressed, breakfasted, and took his leave. As he opened the front door a well known voice called after him from the top of the stairs:

"Joseph?"

"Yes, my dear.'

"Draw that money out of the Blunderbuss Bank this very day, if you don't want to find yourself witeless and childless within a week?"

With this awful threat she disappeared and Joseph hailed an omnibus.

"Ah! Von Muff, how d'ye do?"

"Good morning, Crokur. Dreadful times, these. What's the news?'

"You've seen the morning's papers?—Enormous list of failures. Can't stand it much longer, Sir. Everything must go—you and I must go—banks must go—everything—general smash up.'

"Good God! you can't mean it. Surely the city banks are safe. I have a hundred thousand deposited.'

"Draw it out at once, then. Don't hesitate—don't lose an instant. Perhaps you are too late now. Get gold—nothing but gold—or you're lost. That's all I've got to say.'

Von Muff pulled out his large red pocket handkerchief, and wiped the perspiration from his face. He remained silent—overcome by his reflections. When he left the omnibus at Stone Street, Crokur put his head out of the window, and called after the retreating capitalist.

"Attend to that at once, Von Muff, or consider yourself a ruined man.'

Von Muff entered his office in Stone Street terribly perplexed. He found Scrummage there—Scrummage, who knew the financial condition of every institution in the country.

"Well, Scrummage, how are the banks?'

"Bound to go before long. I give 'em a week.'

"What do you think so, too, Scrummage? And the Blunderbuss?'

"No better than the others. Got money there?'

"Yes.'

"Then draw it out immediately; that's my advice." And off he went to counsel some other bewildered mortal.

Von Muff now began to realize the panic. To think was only to make matters worse. He rushed into the street in frantic alarm; as he hurried along, he saw an immense crowd of people before the doors of the Watersput.

"What is the matter here?' he timidly inquired of a by stander.

"Run on the bank.'

"Good Heavens! you don't say so!"

"Where's my hat and coat?—and out he rushed recklessly, leaving his wife in the middle of a sentence.

"Blunderbuss; this was the climax of his agony. He directed his steps at once to the bank where his treasure was deposited.

The quiet and repose that surrounded that German institution somewhat reassured him. His fears however, were not to be dispelled. "This is the calm,' he said to himself, 'that invariably precedes the storm. There is deception in it. I am just in time.' So he entered; drew his money in gold, and, with the aid of several porters and a cart, had it conveyed to his office in Stone street.

An air of immense satisfaction pervaded Von Muff's round, good natured face, when he saw the not twenty-dollar piece deposited in his safe—one of Chrisechinn's great iron patent, everlasting safes. No fear of that bursting. He lighted a cegar, and puffing forth the smoke in a long succession of wreaths, he turned to Fekes and Sturp, confidential clerks of many years standing in the house of Von Muff & Co., and whispered:

"All right now boys; let the banks break if they like, and be ——— to them!'

It was of course, necessary that the large amount of treasure recently transferred to Stone street should be watched at night, otherwise a burglary, in the third degree, might be as disastrous as the breaking of a bank. Von Muff himself, with the enthusiasm of a raw recruit, declared he was ready to mount guard for a fortnigh; he could obtain sufficient sleep in the evening and morning before and after the fulfillment of his nocturnal duties; and those accommodating clerks, Fekes and Sturp, consented to assist him, on condition that they should be supplied with brandy and cigars ad libitum. The preliminaries being settled, Von Muff went home to dinner. He looked round upon his fellow citizens with the air of a man who had just achieved a coup de etat.

Von Muff experienced a special glow of pride that afternoon on entering the portals of his spacious mansion in the Avenue. In the evening he returned to the office, laden with him for defensive purposes, the musket with which his sire performed prodigies of valor in the Revolutionary war. He thought it prudent to inform his wife, through the domestic that he would not return home before the following day.

The first night's watch passed off tolerably well. Cigars and still brandy and water were provided, and the guard were kept awake partly by the liquor and partly by mysterious noises, like the picking of locks and other burglarious sounds. On more than one occasion Von Muff brought up his musket to the "present," and took deadly aim at the knob of the door, and his two attendants nervously handled the revolvers they had borrowed for the emergency. They had no occasion, however, to use their weapons. Toward morning Von Muff looked very haggard and fatigued. He felt "confoundedly done up' as he himself expressed it; so about six o'clock, after a shave and a mutton chop, he cusconsed himself in his arm chair, and fell asleep. But neither the attitude nor the place were suited to a comfortable snooze. People, too, commenced to pour in, for the news of the night's watch had by this time extended throughout the whole business community, and the utmost curiosity was manifested as to the result. Reporters of newspapers, especially, were urgent in their demands for Von Muff's own statement of the facts that had transpired.

"Well, Von Muff, how do you feel after last night's work?' Is your money safe yet? How is it done up—in bags or kegs?—Take my advice, and never lose sight of it again—sleep on it.' 'Good Heavens! you don't mean to say that you deposit your treasure in one of Chisellem's safes! Might as well fling it into the fire.' Keep up your spirits, old boy! the panic won't last over six months. You can watch it out.'

These, and a multitude of similar remarks from solicitous visitors, disturbed the equilibrium of Von Muff's mind as much as his vigil had disturbed the equilibrium of his body. He was, therefore, ill at ease when, late in the afternoon, he found himself at home in the Avenue.

Mrs. Von Muff took no notice at first of her spouse's dejection, but in the course of dinner she abruptly broke out:

"Mr. Von Muff may I ask if you've been drinking, for your conduct is inexplicable.?'

"My dear Felicia, I was up all night, and am really quite worn out. I must take some sleep before I return.'

"I thought this would be the result of your freak. A pretty exhibition you are making of yourself before your family! It certainly would be the wisest step you could take to go to bed.'

Von Muff thought so too. A frightful yawn, that he tried in vain to suppress, rather hurried his movements, and he withdrew without further remonstrance.

He had scarcely been asleep an hour, however, when he was roused to consciousness by Mrs. Von Muff, who appeared to be alternately shaking him and punching his head.

"Do you hear that?' she yelled; 'do you hear that?'

"What?' rubbing his eyes, and fully awakened to the presence of his spouse, if not to anything else.

"What! Why, the fire-bell, you deaf adder! It has been ringing eight this half hour. A pretty time for you to be sleeping when, probably, your office is in ashes, and we are all beggars?'

"Good Heavens! you don't say so!—

"Stone Street.' This answer nearly drove him mad. His perturbation, when he reached the head of the street, and found it actually blockaded by firemen, was overwhelming. He knocked people about right and left, and when he reached his office, and found that the fire was round the corner, the reaction nearly produced an appoplectic fit. He sunk into a chair, faint and exhausted with his exertions.

The watch that night was a painful one. Neither Von Muff nor his assistant could help falling asleep. Brandy and water only made them more drowsy. They nodded at each other like madarins, and every now and then Von Muff would start from a dream, in which he had been an impotent spectator of the robbery of his own safe. He passed an agonizing night; and when morning dawned he looked as though he had been dragged by the legs along a corduroy road.

"Sturp!"

"Yes, Sir.'

"I feel as if I couldn't put one leg before another. I can't stand this sort of thing any longer. I think I'll take the money back to the bank this morning.'

"I hope you will, Sir.'

"I'll think over it, Sturp.'

Toxin entered the office about ten o'clock. Toxin was one of the first victims. The panic had left its impress on his face, and his sole occupation now was to alarm other people.

"Von-Muff!" he shouted

"Is that you, Toxin?" was the faint answer from the inner office.

"How d'ye feel, old feller?'

"Fairly done up.'

"Well, I've come to tell you that you must immediately get a new safe. At the bank last night, one of Chisellem's safes was burned to cinders, and poor Fripper lost ten thousand, in hard cash!'

"You don't say so!'

"Yes, 'tis a fact. Good by.'

Poor Von Muff, was now utterly bewildered. His safe, weighing him down to the earth, and the fears for its loss that he felt in other days were light in comparison to the responsibilities and perplexities that tormented his soul now. He visited the banks to see if any of them would accept his gold as a special deposit. [A special deposit, some of our readers may not be aware, is money kept in the vaults of a bank as a favor to the depositor; the money cannot in such cases be used by the bank, but must be returned on call.] He even implored the Watersput Institution, upon which there had been such a run, to take pity on him, but without avail. Finally, he resolved to pocket pride, and re deposit his money in the Blunderbuss.

His mind was relieved from an appalling weight when this was done. Severe thought however remained. How should he inform Mrs. Von Muff of the course he had pursued?

He approached the subject, timidly, as soon as he got home.

"Felicia, my dear.'

"Well?'

"I have sent the money back to the bank.'

"What! to the Blunderbuss?'

"Yes.'

"Upon my word, if you aren't a fool, and worse, I don't know who is.'

"But what can I do?'

"Do! Can you sit there and deliberately tell me that you don't know what to do with your money, when your wife and daughters are positively going about in rags? No wonder there's a panic, if all men are like you?'

History sayeth not what response, if any, Joseph Von Muff make to this particular attack of his spouse. It is probable, however, that he was too experienced a husband to find safety in flight.

The next morning, Mr. Von Muff learned to his despair, that all the banks, including the Blunderbuss, had suspended specie payments!

Miscellany.

NENA SAHIB IN ENGLAND—The Walsal Guardian says:—"It is not generally known, and, we believe, has never before been stated in the public papers, that Nena Sahib on the death of the prince who had adopted him as his son, came to England to endeavour to obtain redress for the injustice done him by the Anglo-Indian Government in retaining in their own hands the property left him by his father. On arriving in England he resided in Cambridge square, with some friends of his adopted father, and took ample measures to obtain legal redress for the gross violation of right committed by the East India Company's servants. He soon discovered, however, that in the House of Commons, before whom he intended to bring his case, there were seventy persons forming a majority on all Indian questions, pledged to support the East Indian Company, and that any attempt to recover his property or to obtain justice would be ineffectual. In a frame of mind that may easily be imagined, he went to Constantinople and had an interview with Omar Pasha, seeking to obtain assistance from him in a design he then entertained to subvert British authority in India. The reply was not favorable, the Turkish and British governments at that time (early in the Russian war) being in strict amity, and Nena Sahib departed for Calcutta, vowing vengeance against the English and declaring that his day would soon come. His day has come, and fearfully has he avenged on innocent people too injustice of which he was made a victim by a company who have ever regarded their own pecuniary advantage in preference to the rights of the people whom they have ruled in the responsibilities they were called upon by Providence to undertake. Few men possess greater talent for intrigue than Nena Sahib, and no doubt can be entertained that he has been the moving spirit in a conspiracy that has imperilled our empire in the East, and rudely shaken the military prestige of the British nation.

A Washington correspondent of The South says:—"Mrs. Buchanan still continues to have hosts of lady visitors, and, scarcely a pretty woman comes to Washington, but she must see the bachelor President. His manners toward his fair visitors show that he is no "lady's man;" his graceful common place seems to fail him with them; and I have seen him evidently sorely tried to find a few words to say to the fair dames who will find their way to his reception room. He is said to have been compelled to have recourse to two stereotyped phrases, which he invariably addresses by turn to the ladies as he runs the gauntlet of them at reception hours. They are these; "Madam, is this your first visit to Washington?" Answer. A pause, and then, "Madam, I would advise you to visit the Smithsonian Institute." After which the lady is expected to vamose."

PREPARING TO COOK YANKEE CABBAGES.—A friend recently returning from Margate, found on board as fellow passengers two American gentlemen. Nothing that our friend could possibly avoid, listening to them during the run, but an exclamation followed to the tune of, "Oh! eigh! that's nothing to what we have in America."—Some very fine cabbages were pointed out to the "sons of the west," and, as usual met with, "Oh, they cabbages! they be nothing to ours!" Captain: "What's the difference? Why our grow as big as—as—a sugar hogshead!" The captain made his bow and cut away. On reaching Millwall, where the Great Eastern is building, an anxious inquiry was made by our Yankee friends as to what "that great black thing was for?" Captain: "We're making that to boil a cargo of your cabbages, when you send us over the same!" Yankee friend: "Well now, I guess, captain, you have done us there."

A COMMON CASE.—"A queer world is this. We recollect a young lady, a former resident of Winstead, beautiful and accomplished, and the daughter of a pious and venerable old Methodist elder. We remember her as the most ardent advocate of the humanitary side in politics, a rapturous reader of Uncle Tom's Cabin in the village club of young ladies, and Anti-Slavery in all places and on all necessary occasions. Not long ago, we recorded the marriage of this young lady to an Alabama planter who is the owner of some 500 – niggers! A queer world is this."—Winsted Herald.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—are indispensable to security of health and life in new settlements. Fever and ague, bilious remittents, and bowel complaints, are the worst enemies the western pioneer has to encounter, and he can only certainly and permanently put them to flight with the aid of this unrivalled cathartic, detergent, and restorative. There are multitudes of sallow and feeble invalids, now languishing in the western clearings, under the endemic disorder of that region, who would soon find their healthy appearance, strength, and cheerfullness return under a course of Holloway's Pills.

Two cows affected with malignant carbuncles, were slaughtered in a village in Flanders and the meat was sold. Persons who ate it were not injured, but the farmer who washed his hands in water tinged with the blood, died within 48 hours, and his servant, who had done the same, is in great danger, whilst the two other persons who had assisted in cutting up the animal one had his arm and the other a finger amputated to prevent gangrene.

MATERIAL FOR A ROMANCE.—A letter from a friend informs us of the marriage at Baltimore, of two of the rescued from the "Central America." Both parties became mutually attached to one another on board the steamer, and on the evening preceding the disaster, sealed their affection with the usual "vow." When the gale came on and the panic was at its height, the young lady threw herself in his arms, and with a gallantry quite becoming the romantic occasion, the gentleman impressed her brow with one of Tennyson's purest "soulsent" kisses, and "slid" her over into the first boat that was lowered. He saved himself on a plank. Upon arriving at Norfolk the lovers met. But the young man appeared strange He had lost his valise, and all his money. The young lady assured him that money was nothing. The young man shook his head and looked sad, as much at to say—"now, maybe, you think so." But, said his devoted one, I have enough. Fear not. Father has two hundred thousand. Ah! gasped the affianced bridegroom, (we speak novel fashion to give Bonner a chance to make a point,) and he looked extremely philosophical, but said no more. They suddenly vanished, and we suppose are now enjoying all the blessings of matrimonial, &c., &c.—Petersburg (Va.) Express.

DIPPING INTO THE GRAVY.—We were not long since much amused by a couple of Hoosier girls who came on board the steamer, at the little town of Mt. Vernon, Ind. They had evidently never been a thousand miles from home, and were making their first trip on a steamboat. The elder one was exceedingly talkative, and perfectly free and unconcerned, without regard to the many eyes that were scanning her movements The other was of the opposite turn of mind, inclining to bashfulness At dinner, our ladies were honored with a seat at the head of the table, and the elder one, with her usual independence, cut her bread into small pieces, and with her fork reached over and enrolled each mouthful in the nice dressing on a plate of beefsteak before her. The passengers preserved their gravity during the operation by dint of great effort. Perceiving that her sister was not very forward in helping herself, she turned round to her, and exclaimed, loud enough to be heard by half the table:—

"Sal, dip into the gravy; dad pays as much as any on 'em!"

This was followed by a general roar, in which the captain led off. The girls arrived at their place of destination before supper, and when they left the boat all hands gave the three cheers for the girls of the Hoosier State.

The Mormon War.

Important despatches from the Army for Utah—Brigham Young's declaration of War, and his reasons therefor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, 1857.

Col. Johnson's letter, together with Col. Alexander's, was received at the War Department to-day, confirming the destruction of the supply train; also a letter and proclamation from Brigham Young, and Col. Alexander's reply.

Col. Alexander was within thirty miles of Fort Bridger, which place is occupied by Mormon troops, when he received the following letter from Brigham Young, through the commander of the "Nauvoo Legion:"

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, UTAH TERRITORY. }
Great Salt Lake City, Sept. 29. }

To the Officers Commanding the Forces now Invading Utah Territory:—

SIR,—By reference to the act of Congress passed Sept. 9, 1850, organizing the Territory of Utah, you will find the following:—

"SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, that the executive power and authority in and over said Territory of Utah, shall be vested in a Governor, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the President of the United States. The Governor shall reside within said Territory, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia thereof, &c., &c."

I am still the Governor and Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Territory, no successor having been appointed and qualified, as provided by law, nor have I been removed by the President of the United States. By virtue of the authority thus vested in me, I have issued and forwarded to you a copy of my proclamation forbidding the entrance of armed forces into the Territory. This you have disregarded. I therefore have forbidden your entire force to the Territory, by the same route you entered. Should you deem this impracticable, and prefer to remain until Spring in the vicinity of your present encampment—Black Fork, on Green River—you can do so in peace and unmolested, on condition that you deposit your arms and ammunition with Lewis Robinson, Quartermaster General of the Territory, and leave in the spring as soon as the condition of the roads will permit you to march, and should you fall short of provisions, they can be furnished you upon making the proper application therefor.

Gen. D. H. Wells will forward this and receive any communication you may have to make.

Very respectfully,
BRIGHAM YOUNG.
Governor and Superintendent of Indian Affairs.

The following is the proclamation referred to by Brigham Young:—

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

CITIZENS OF UTAH.—We are invaded by a hostile force, who are evidently assailing us to accomplish our overthrow and destruction. For the last twenty years, we have been persecuted officials of the government, from constables and justices, to judges, Governors, and Presidents, only to be scorned, held in derision, insulted and betrayed. Our houses have been plundered and then burned—our fields laid waste—our wives and children butchered while under the pledged faith of the government for their safety, and our families drove from their homes to that shelter in the barren wilderness and their protection among hostile savages which were deemed them in the boasted abodes of Christianity and civilization.

The constitution of our common country guarantees unto us all that we do now or have ever claimed. If the constitutional rights which pertain unto us as American citizens were extended to Utah according to the spirit and meaning thereof, and fairly and impartially administered, it is all that we could ask—all that we have ever asked.

Our opponents have availed themselves of prejudice existing against us, because of our religious faith, to send out a formidable host to accomplish our destruction. We have had no privilege nor opportunity of defending ourselves from the false, foul and unjust aspersions against us before the nation. The government has not conducted so base an investigation, through a tool or other person to be sent to inquire into and ascertain the truth, as is customary in such cases. We know those aspersions to be false, but that avails us nothing. We are condemned unheard, and forced to an issue with an armed mercenary host, which has been sent against us at the instigation of anonymous letter writers, ashamed to father the base, slanderous falsehoods which they have given to the public—of corrupt officials, who have brought false accusations against us to screen themselves in their own infamy, and of hireling priests and howling editors, who prostitute the truth for filthy lucre's sake.

The issue which has been forced upon us compels us to resort to the first great law of self preservation, and stand in our own defence—a right guaranteed unto us by the genius of the institutions of our country, and upon which the government is based.

Our duty to ourselves, to our families, requires us not to tamely submit to be driven and slain without an attempt to preserve ourselves. Our duty to our country, our holy religion, our God, to freedom and liberty requires that we should not quietly stand still and see those fetters forging around us which are calculated to enslave and bring us in subjection to an unlawful military despotism such as can only emanate, in a country of constitutional law, from usurpation, tyranny, and oppression.

Therefore, I, Brigham Young, Governor and Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Territory of Utah forbid,

First—All armed forces of every description from coming into this Territory, under any pretence whatever.

Second—That all forces in said Territory hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's notice to repel any and all such invasion.

Third—Martial law is hereby declared to exist in this Territory from and after the publication of this proclamation, and no person shall be allowed to pass or repass into or through or from this Territory without a permit from the proper officer.

Given under my hand and seal, at great Salt Lake City, Territory of Utah, this fifth day of September, A. D., eighteen hundred and fifty seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty-second.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

The following is Colonel Alexander's reply to Brigham Young:—

HEADQUARTERS 10th REG., INFANTRY, Camp Wingfield, Ham's Fork, Oct. 2.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, Esq., Governor of Utah Territory.

SIR:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of Sept. 29, 1857, with two copies of a proclamation and one of the laws of Utah, addressed to me in an attentive consideration. I am at present the acting and commanding officer of the troops of the United States at this point, and I will submit your letter to the General commanding as soon as he arrives here.

In the meantime, I have only to say that these troops are here by the order of the President of the United States, and that all further movements and operations will depend entirely upon orders issued by competent military authority.

Very respectfully,
E. B. ALEXANDER.

Among the documents is a letter from Col. Johnston, dated from the camp on the Three Wings of the Sweet Water, addressed to Adjutant General McDowell, New York, in which he confirms the burning of the contractor's trains by the Mormons. He says the Governor's escort is four days march behind him, with two companies of dragoons. He knows of no reason why Col. Alexander should attempt to reach Salt Lake by Bear River, excepting from the fear that the Mormons have burned the grass on the shorter route. He adds—"If I could communicate with Col. Alexander I would direct him to go into a good position for the winter at Ham's Fork. The road is beset between this and Hau's Fork with companies of Mormons, so it is doubtful if I shall be able to communicate with Col. A."

It is supposed at the War Department that the troops are all in good condition, as nothing to the contrary is said in the despatches.

MORMON AND INDIAN ALLIANCE.

The latest accounts from Mormondom are to the effect that the Mormons of Carson Valley and San Barnardino have sold their cattle and property for nearly nothing, and at the bidding of their chief, have repaired to Salt Lake with the secret design of organizing, arming, equipping, returning, murdering and plundering their gentile enemies. They declare that for every saint slain by the United States troops, ten gentile women shall make an atonement: that they will first exterminate the troops from the east; that they will, next, and in predatory bands allied with Indians, they will ravage the border, rob, plunder and murder, until they shall have replenished the Lord's treasury and revenged the insults put upon his chosen people. Of their ability to execute this threat there is but little doubt. Under order of their leader and prophet, they can muster 15,000 men, armed with the most effective instruments of destruction. They have many thousand of the finest horses, trained to camp service; they have a foundry where cannon and shells are cast; a powder mill and a factory where revolving rifles and pistols are manufactured, equal to those made at Hartford. They have every munition of war and necessary provision and means of transportation, within themselves, and even the women and children are instructed in the use of arms, and are well versed in their geographical position. To reach Salt Lake, from the east, it is necessary to pass through a canon of twenty five miles, under hills so steep and rocky that a dozen men could hurl down an endless train of stones on an approaching caravan; and even in the event of several thousand troops reaching the valley, the besieged, with their herds, would take to the mountains, and, reinforced by their savage allies would, in turn, besiege their besiegers, and cut off their supplies until the invaders were starved out. They have, it is said, 20,000 Indian allies, whom they are ready to furnish with arms and horses on an emergency. These Indians are partly instructed in the Mormon religion —enough to make them superstitious in regard to the God of a superior race, and modifying none of their ferocity. With allies like these, and fighting for their homes, and, according to the belief of the ignorant, under the direct supervision of the God of battles, and from their compact with which nature has surrounded them, it is easy to convince what would be the fate of a few thousand troops, who travelled a thousand miles to fight their own countrymen, brave as themselves, as well armed, better used to field fare, and stimulated by their love of country and family, assured of victory by the revelations of their prophets.

THE ATTEMPTED LAUNCH OF THE LEVIATHAN.—Those prophets of evil who predicted that the "Great Eastern" would prove too big to float have been gratified this week by the failure attempting to launch her. Instead of moving down the river, but every body else, I suppose, has experienced a feeling of deep regret that any accident should have occurred to hinder, if not wholly to prevent, the complete realization of one of the most dazzling projects of the age. It may be, as Mr. Bunsap told Sir Isambard Brunel somewhere the other day, that monster ships will not be profitable speculations, but nevertheless, the mass of the people will be deeply anxious to hear that this great experiment in naval architecture has been so far successful that could but be taken down in the form of stones on the stocks at Millwall. It appears to have been attributable rather to a mistaking of signals by the men at one of the windlasses, than to the size of the vessel or any want of engineering skill, that the launch of Tuesday failed. There is little doubt now but that before the next spring tides, or the December Spring tides, will be abundantly successful. It appears that, after all, matters are not so bad as were represented. It was said that the vessel had been strained and twisted by the violent means used to pull her up into the water, to a frightful extent; a close inspection proves that she was neither strained nor twisted even to the extent of the most fractional portion of an inch. The six men injured by the accident at the windlass are all progressing slowly, though still no thing exists of the recovery of Donovan, and Stacey remains in a precarious state. Some idea of the frightful violence with which these poor men were struck may be formed from the fact that one of the massive handles of the windlass, of solid iron 12 inches in diameter, which struck the men, is bent and twisted as if it was formed of lead.

Cardinal Wolsey, an eminent minister of State of Henry VIII., is said to have been the son of a Butcher at Ipswich, where he was born.—He was educated at Magdalen College, Oxford, and had he not been a priest and a Catholic, he became first the chaplain to Dean Archbishop of Canterbury, and served in the same capacity the Governor of Calais, Sir John Nevaln, by whom he was recommended to Henry VIII., who raised him to the Deanery of Lincoln. On the death of Henry VIII., he was introduced by Fox, bishop of Winchester, to Henry VIII, whose favor he attended so successfully that he became the first in the royal favor. Ecclesiastical preferments were heaped upon him with a most lavish hand, and the Pope to ingratiate himself with Henry, made him a Cardinal. Naturally proud and ostentatious, no English subject ever took such state upon himself, and he entertained a train of 800 servants; many of whom were Knights and gentlemen. So great was his influence over the King, that Charles V. of Spain by holding out to him the hope of receiving the Papal Chair, induced him to invade France in a war with Francis I. of France. His revenue at this time nearly equalled that of the Crown. The critical affair of the divorce of Queen Catherine, was the last step towards his fall, as he was thought by the King to assist the delays of the Court of Rome. The attachment of the King to Ann Bulgen, still further involved him; and in 1529 the great seals, was taken from him, and ordered to quit his palace, all his plate &c., having been seized by the King he was arrested for high treason, and set out for London, but was obliged to stop at Leicester from indisposition and distress of mind where he died, 1530.—Battle of Bexar, 1835.—Rebellion of colonists at Sing Sing prison, New York, 1855. THE ELECTION.

The report, that an election is near at hand, has roused the people of this county into action; and with the view of bringing into the field, JOHN MCLEOD, Esquire, as a candidate, a requisition is being very generally signed, through every township in the county, requesting him, to allow himself to be nominated as a candidate. The great success which has thus far attended the requisition, leaves little doubt, but that he will be the popular candidate, and will be elected to represent the County of Essex, in the new parliament. The feeling appears very general, that he is the only person who will cont st the election successfully, and it is for this reason that the requisition is being circulated for signatures as soon as it is.

It is not our intention this week to enter into the merits of the respective Candidates who are likely to come forward, and will content ourselves and satisfy the curiosity of the public by stating that JOHN MCLEOD will become a Candidate for Election. We have heard of no other, with the exception of Mr. Rankin, and have no doubt whatever but that the contest will be between those two gentlemen, so that there will be little difficulty in choosing which of the two candidates should receive the suffrages of the people.

Southern Railway Amalgamation.

From the Colonist we learn that, "The two Boards of Directors interested in the Southern Railway have, we understand, been remodelled, and have subsequently agreed o terms of amalgamation. The Amherstburg and St. Thomas Board met at the City Hotel, London, on Saturday last, and were reconstructed as follows:—John Mercer, Esq., Sheriff County Kent, President; P. J. Salter, Esq., Windsor, Vice-President; Col. Askin of London; George Gott, Esq., Amherstburg; H. T. Cunningham, Reeve of Anderdon; Jn. Ferres of Colchester, John Cuthbertson of Windsor; Charles Baby of Sandwich, and Thomas G. Ridout of Toronto, Esquires, Directors.

The Woodstock and Lake Erie board met yesterday at Russell's Hotel, in this city, and was reformed as follows:—Andrew Thompson of Port Dover, J. H. Cornell of Otterville, J. G. Wilson of Simcoe, John Smith of Dereham, James Kintra of Woodstock, J. A. Woodruff of Clifton, and Thomas G. Ridout of Toronto, Esquires.

At a meeting of the remodelled boards held at the Rossin House, a deed of amalgamation was agreed upon, and the following gentlemen nominated Directors of the amalgamated Board:—Thomas Rae of Hamilton, Thomas G. Ridout of Toronto, John Simpson of Niagara, George McBeth M PP, of London, Dr. Southwick M. P. P, of St. Thomas, Joseph Berthelet of Amherstburg, John Mercer of Chatham, P. J. Salter of Windsor, W. D. Lewis of Simcoe, J. A. Woodruff of Clinton, J. G. Wilson of Simcoe, James Kintra of Woodstock, and J. H. Cornell of Otterville, Esquires. It was understood that the western terminus of the road would be located at the Town of Amherstburg, and the machine shops and offices at some point on the Detroit River. These arrangements, we learn, have been secured by the exertions of Arthur Rankin, Esq., M.P.P. for Essex; and James Morton, Esq., of Kingston. Mr. McLeod of Amherstburg ceases to hold any stock or interest in the company.

It is expected that the effect of this amalgamation will be to secure the immediate construction of the road."

The following correspondence in connection with the raising of Colonial troops, to assist the mother country in quelling the rebellion in India, has been furnished us by Col. the Hon. John Prince. This offer, on his part, is similar to one made by him during the war with Russia, to send a regiment to the Crimea. It affords us much pleasure in noticing another mark of the loyalty of the Canadian people to the parent State, and cannot but regret that the offer had not been accepted, as no doubt Col. Prince does, who made it. It appears that it is the policy of Great Britain, not to withdraw from her colonies any portion of the population, which might have a tendency to weaken the ties between them, and reduce the already small population, until she finds that there is a difficulty in raising troops at home. This has not yet happened, and hence the refusal to accept the loyal proposition of Col. Prince, and a great many similar ones throughout the country.

Although it has been decided, not to raise troops in Canada, it must nevertheless be a source of the greatest pleasure to Great Britain to receive so many tokens of attachment and regard from one of her best and richest colonies.

The Park Farm, near Sandwich, Canada,
24th August, 1857.

MY LORD,—

In the office of the Department over which your Lordship presides, will be found a correspondence between that Department and myself respecting an offer made by me in 1854 to raise a battalion in this country for service in the Crimea. In reply to it, I was informed by the Secretary of State His Excellency Sir Edmund Walker Head, Bart., (the Governor-General of this Province,) that if any troops were raised, it would be done "through the direct intervention of the Government." That "agency," at the head of which was Sir Alan Napier MacNab, failed to accomplish the end suggested, not sure I was it would be my task unworthy of referring your Lordship to the correspondence I have alluded to, and more especially to my letters of the 11th of July, 1854, the 24th of January, 1855, and the 7th of May, 1855; and as the same spirit still prevails here as sprung up in 1854, I have the honor to propose to your Lordship that I be permitted to raise a Battalion in Upper Canada for service in India at the present alarming position of affairs there; and I propose to raise it upon the terms mentioned in my letters, which (among others) were, that I should have the command in person, and that my Son, Captain Prince of the 71st Highland Light Infantry, [now stationed at Malta,] should be the Major. If my offer be accepted, or if it be deemed, will your Lordship pardon the liberty I take in asking you to direct that Captain Prince is informed of the result, simultaneously with your Lordship's reply to this letter? Because, if my offer be favorably received, it will afford him time to prepare, and if declined, I shall feel it my duty to advise him to quit, forever, a profession in which he has been placed by the acts of the prime of his life without the least advantage and without any chance of distinguishing himself, except as a good soldier and an accomplished officer, facts I believe well known to Lieutenant General Sir George Brown and many other British officers, as well as to Admiral Lord Lyons. But he has no very influential "Friend at Court," and he is a "Soldier of Fortune." I pray your Lordship to honor me with as early a reply as is consistent with the circumstances of the case; and I do trust that my proposals will be accepted from the urgency of the case, because that I entertain no doubt whatever that the Corps can be raised and prepared for embarkation at any time your Lordship's judgment may order and direct.

I have the honor to remain,
Your Lordship's most obedient
And very humble Servant,
JOHN PRINCE,
Colonel and M.L.C. Canada.

To the Right Honorable
The Earl of Panmure,
Sec'y of State, War Department,
London.

Colonel Prince also addressed a letter, in a few days afterwards, to the Premier, Lord Palmerston, in the following terms:

The Park Farm near Sandwich, U. Canada,
31st August, 1857.

MY LORD,

I trust your Lordship will pardon my intrusion and will honor me with some attention to this letter, which shall be as brief as possible. The inclosed correspondence will inform your Lordship that I offered my services in the year 1854 to Government for the Crimea, and that I now offer to raise one here, for INDIA. As regards myself personally, not having the honor of being known to your Lordship (except, perhaps, by reputation,) I may be permitted to remark that I represented this County of Essex in the Common House of Canada for eighteen years and upwards, and am now a Member of the Legislative Council, as the representative of Essex and Kent, under the new Constitution of that Body. I belong to the party called Loyalists and Liberal Conservatives; but I assure your Lordship that we have had great reason to feel dissatisfied and to feel deeply injured in witnessing among the number of our Rulers, men of disloyal and disaffected principles, and some of the chief promoters of Rebellion! I trust, however, that the next general election will "tell a different tale" though loyalty, my Lord, has no encouragement in Canada."

I beg your Lordship to read the papers which I now inclose; and with all due submission and respect, I humbly solicit your Lordship as first adviser of the Crown, to give your sanction to the proposal which I have had the honor of submitting to Lord Panmure. By supporting it, your Lordship will raise the still but despairing hopes and powers and will revive the almost expiring Loyalty of multitudes of native born, and other British subjects here, whose devotion to the Crown and whose energies in sustaining it, I deeply feel ought, in these days of the troubles of 1837 and 8, cannot but be well known to your Lordship, and hence, will become a matter of history for years past. But we are firmly convinced that the time and that loyalty have been for a very long and a very painful period to us, the chief barrier to our temporal interests, as well as to our promotion in many of the walks of life to which an honorable ambition taught us to aspire; and our hopes have been too often, far too often, extinguished by the preference given to disloyal and disaffected name. It is now in your Lordship's power to revive our hopes and to give us some encouragement, and I appeal to your Lordship, as the head of our Foreign Department, to do so; and I pray your Lordship that my appeal may not be made in vain.

I have the honor to remain, &c.,
JOHN PRINCE,
Colonel, &c.

To the Right Honorable
VISCOUNT PALMERSTON,
Downing Street, London.

Lord Panmure's reply was as follows:

War Office, 16th Sept., 1857.

SIR,

I am directed by Lord Panmure to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 24th ultimo, requesting permission to raise under certain conditions, a Battalion in Upper Canada for service in India. Lord Panmure desires me, in reply, to convey to you an expression of thanks for the offer of service thus made, which, however, his Lordship is unable to avail himself of.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
H. R. STORKS.

Col. Prince, &c., &c,

And Lord Palmerston answered thus:

Downing-street, 30th Sept., 1857.

Sir,

I am desired by Lord Palmerston to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st August, and to inform you that the answer to your proposal will come from the War Department.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
C. G. BARRINGTON.

Captain Prince, of the 71st Highlanders, has returned home as an invalid, and we believe it is his intention of leaving the service, if he has not done so already. We regret to learn that his illness was of such a nature that he was unable to leave his room for months before he left for home. He has however improved in health since his arrival.

☞ There is a report in Town this morning, that Young, the prisoner who escaped from Gaol, has been captured in the neighborhood of Jackson, Mich., and the Sheriff, John McEwan, Esq., has gone to that place to identify him.

☞ Our enterprising townsman, H. C Guillot, has moved into his new and hand some brick store, and has opened a large and varied assortment of new and seasonable goods, and will no doubt be happy to wait upon his numerous customers in his new establishment. It affords us no small degree of pleasure to see improvements going on in the community, and particularly of such a permanent and handsome description, as our enterprising neighbour has entered into

The store has a large glass open front with iron pillars, and has quite an imposing appearance; the inside is very tastefully finished; and is also well filled with a handsome stock of goods. Just call and see, and you will not be disappointed.

As an evidence of the distress in New York, it may be mentioned, on the authority of the "Herald," that there are from twelve to fifteen hundred applicants for lodgings at the station houses every night, by homeless wanderers, about one-third of whom find accommodations.

The Reading Room and Mechanic's Institute of Port Hope, following the example of that of Hamilton, have also expunged the name of "Harper's Magazine" from their list of periodicals.

ANOTHER RAILROAD IN TROUBLE.—It is reported that there has been an over issue of bonds of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, amounting to $2,000,000. The last recurring interest on its bonds has not been paid, and its stock is selling for 15 and 16 cents.

A number of married women in Philadelphia are retrenching their domestic expenses by doing the highest class business that they can with all surplus "help." In consequence of this a great many young women accustomed to service as chamber maids, nurses, &c., are suddenly thrown out of employment.

Bears are very plentiful at present in the State of Maine. The tracks of one measuring six inches across the ball of the foot have been observed. Another one which weighed, when killed, 500 pounds, and was less than forty-one have been killed by different persons in Aroostook county.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY.—We have just been informed of a horrible tragedy, which occurred near Hannsville, Nelson on Tuesday evening last. It appears that a man named Thomas Corner, of questionable character, having two wives living with him, came home on the evening mentioned, considerably intoxicated, when an altercation took place between him and one of the wives, the other, it appears, came to her rescue, when Corner discharged a double-barrelled pistol at her, the balls taking effect in her breast. After disposing of the latter, he then beat his first victim in a shocking manner with a bootjack. Our informant states that when he left, neither of the unfortunate women were expected to survive their injuries. Corner was lodged in jail on Wednesday. He has already served an apprenticeship of five years in the penitentiary, for shooting his daughter. Since writing the above, we have been informed that one of the women has died, and the attending physician despairs of all hopes of the recovery of the other.—Halton Journal.

We are able to state, on authority, that the Hon. E. P. Taché has tendered his resignation as Premier, and that it has been accepted by the Governor-General. The formation of a new Administration follows as a consequence, and we understand that His Excellency has charged the Hon. J. A. Macdonald with the task. The previous retirement of Mr. Cauchon from the Commissionership of Crown Lands, and of Mr. Ferril from the office of Provincial Secretary, afforded the relative position of liberal parties of the late Cabinet. The balance will be restored by the reconstruction of the Lower Canadian section, which will take place immediately.

The position which His Excellency has assigned to Mr Macdonald will be regarded by the country as the best pledge that can be given for the maintenance of moderation and efficiency in the councils and policy of the in coming government. His name is a tower of strength; as his proved vigor and liberality are guarantees of future usefulness We are sure that he is the chosen leader of the great body of the conservative party, altogether apart from exploded partisan alliances; and we look forward to his Administration with hope and confidence.—Colonist.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT QUESTION.—"Whatever may have been the object of Mr. Cartier's visit to Quebec, it may not be uninteresting to know that that gentleman was requested by the Governor General to intimate to the Mayor His Excellency's regret that he could not accept the invitation to stop at this city on his way from Europe to the Seat of Government. The indisposition of Lady Head induced His Excellency to continue his journey to Toronto immediately, and any delay in Montreal arose from the same cause. The Governor Gener l, we believe, too, has given it to be distinctly understood that the question of location of Seat of Government question previous to his departure from England.—Quebec Chronicle.

THE VICTORIA BRIDGE.—The Transcript of Tuesday says, that the first tube between the abutment and pier No. 1 on the Montre l side of the river, has at length been fixed, and attracts the admiration of thousands of curious visitors. When the supports were removed, and the immense weight of iron was left to support itself on its own bottom, a depression of about an inch and a half took place. The calculation was made, however, for four inches, so that the work has succeeded better than was anticipated. During the winter another tube will be laid on the Longueuil side. We understand the work on the piers is not yet completed will be discontinued for the season when two more tiers of stone have been laid. The wooden frame work and machinery will then be removed, until another spring enables the contractors to commence operations anew.

GREAT SNOW STORM.—Railway travelling was seriously interfered with yesterday, both east and west, by the heavy fall of snow which took place. The express train on the Great Western Railway which was due at three p.m. yesterday, had not arrived up up to a late hour last night. In fact, the road is so blocked up with snow, to the eastward and westward of this city, that trains cannot run. In some places the snow is over three feet deep. We have received no particulars by telegraph as yet, and are indebted to a friend for the foregoing information.—Hamilton Banner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—We are informed of an almost hair's-breath escape of the Emigrant train on the Great Western Railway, on the night of the 19th inst. The bridge on the Welland Canal was swung open to allow a schooner to pass, just previous to the arrival of the train, and if it had not been for another accident, we should have had a repetition of the Norwalk Bridge tragedy or the Desjardins catastrophe. The train was and frost had rendered the rails slippery, and thus made it difficult to stop the train, and the locomotive was thrown off the rails close to the edge of the canal! No one was injured: but it was one of the narrowest escapes of which we have ever heard. —Hamilton Banner.

SUPPER.—On Saturday evening last, Mr. John Lovell gave a supper at his residence, Beaver Hall, to the principal individuals engaged in getting up his Canadian Directory. The supper was on the most liberal and princely scale, and indeed a feast of no ordinary character; and to notice the kind sympathy and respect between the employer and employed exhibited on the occasion was exceedingly gratifying. During the evening many toasts were given and responded to in a manner that showed the superior intelligence of the profession. Among the toasts were—" Mr. Lovell, and success to the Canadian Directory; Mrs. Lovell and her fireside; The British Army in India; The Queen &c.; The health of Mr. Donald McDonald, as the senior printer in Montreal, was proposed with a few prefatory remarks, and expressing the hope that he might live as long as Lord Lyndoch, (93). Mr. McDonald replied in a few appropriate remarks, and shortly after 12 o'clock the meeting Broke up, the company about twenty-four present.—Montreal Gazette.

Arrival of the Commissioner.

SURRENDER OF THE KING OF DELHI.

Lucknow Relieved and a part of the City Taken.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.

The United States Mail Steamship Atlantic, Captain Eldridge, which sailed from Liverpool at 4 o'clock on the 11th Nov., arrived at this port last evening.

Advices from India and Europe are important. The British Government had received telegraph advices a fortnight later from India. It is confirmed that Delhi was entirely occupied by the Europeans. On 21st Sept., the old King of Delhi surrendered, with his chief wife, and their lives were spared. His two sons and a grandson were shot. General Nicholson had died of his wounds, on the 21st. The garrison at Lucknow was relieved, and a part of the city taken. General Neil was killed.

MORE FAILURES AND SUSPENSIONS.

On Saturday, the 7th, shortly after the departure of the Niagara, the suspension of Dennistoun & Co., one of the largest firms connected with the American trade in Britain, was announced. Their liabilities are estimated at something like two millions sterling. The almost total cessation of remittances from America was the cause of the suspension.

The Western Bank of Scotland, at Glasgow, with a paid up capital of £1,500,000, and deposits supposed to amount to $6,000 000 sterling closed its doors on the 9th.

The City Bank of Glasgow has also suspended.

FURTHER INCREASE IN DISCOUNT

Funds were buoyant throughout the day, and an advance of half per cent in consols took place.

Applications for discount at Bank continued extremely heavy. At Hamburg rate of discount advanced to 9½ per cent.

On Monday, 9th, the Bank of England raised its rate of discount from 9 to 10 per cent.

On the 10th funds were quite buoyant, and closed at a considerable advance. Sovereigns to the amount of 300,000 or 400,000,000 pounds were taken from the bank for Scotland, the fall of the Western Banks having caused a run on some of the principal banks at Glasgow and elsewhere, including several savings' banks.

THE ATLANTIC CABLE.

The work of taking the Atlantic cable out of the Agamemnon, as well as the Niagara had been completed. The cable is coiled in water-tight compartments so as to admit of its being submitted to a variety of tests under water during the whole of the winter. Mr. Whitehead the chief electrician of the Company is to be engaged in experiments of a most interesting nature upon the cable, so as to ascertain not only its electric capabilities, but the rate at which each signal can be transmitted, and the effects which the different periods of the day, the temperature and state of the atmosphere, have upon its conductibility.

The attempt to lay the cable next year is to be made at the end of June or beginning of July, and it has been determined to resort to the plan original y contemplated, namely to commence the submerging process in the middle of the Atlantic—the two vessels engaged sailing respectively for the shores of Newfoundland and Ireland; and 3,000 miles of cable are to be coiled on the vessels instead of 2,600, as in the first attempt, and the manufacture of the additional quantity has been commenced by Glass and Elliott. The construction of the new paying-out machines has been entrusted to Eaton and Amos.

CONTINENTAL NEWS.

The "Patrie" says that the French Government have under their consideration the modification of the law of interest of 1807.

The Bank of France has further advanced its rate of discount.

The French Government is understood to have approved of the conduct of its minister at Constantinople in refusing to hold any intercourse with Redschid Pasha.

The financial crisis was beginning to be felt in Sweden and Norway, and money was becoming scarce. The Bank of Frankfort had raised its rate of discount from 6½ to 7½ per cent. The Bank of Prussia had raised its rate of discount from 6½ to 7½ per cent.

A Russian war steamer had been lost in the Caspian Sea, the Captain, 9 Lieutenants, and 18 men were drowned.

At Vienna there was commenced depression in the money market, and the premiums on gold was increasing.

The "Journal de Constantinople" announced that the Turkish Government had decided upon constructing a line of telegraph to Bassorah, on the Persian Gulf. It was reported that some of the foreign representatives had offered their services to Redschid Pasha, to put an end to the misunderstanding between him and the French Ambassador, and that Redschid had accepted them.

The following telegraph was received at the Foreign Office on the day the Atlantic sailed:—The Hindostan arrived at Suez, from Calcutta, on the 5th instant, with Calcutta dates of October 9th, Madras 14th, Galle 18th.

Delhi, which fell into our hands on the 20th September, was entirely occupied on the 21st, and the whole of the enemy expelled. In the assault of the 14th, 81 officers and 1178 men, being one-third of the storming force, were killed and wounded.

The old King, said to be seventy years of age, surrendered to Capt. Hodges and his cavalry about fifteen miles south of Delhi. He was accompanied by his chief wife.—Their lives were spared. Two of his sons and a grandson, also captured by Capt. Hodges about 5 miles from Delhi, were shot on the spot, and their bodies brought to the city and exposed at the police office.

Two moveable columns were despatched from Delhi on the 23rd, in pursuit of the enemy, by accounts from Agra, and one column appears to have reached the neighborhood of Allyghur, and the other that of Muttra, on the 25th September.

Gen. Havelock, with 2,500 men, crossed the "Ganges" from Cawnpore on Sept. 19th, and relieved Lucknow on the 25th, just as it was ready to be blown up by its besiegers. On the 26th the enemy's entrenchments were stormed, and on the 29th a large part of the city was taken. There were 459 killed and wounded.

There has been a slight rising of the rebels near Nassuck in the Bombay Presidency, in the suppression of which Lieutenant Henry of the police was killed. Madras troops defeated the mutineers of the 52nd, near Kemptee, and killed 150. A native officer and a Sepoy having been convicted were blown away from guns at Bombay on 15th October, Predatory tribes in the Punjaub between Mooltan and Lahore, has given some trouble lately, and the disturbance seems to have been suppressed.

The following despatch was received at India House:—

Alexandria, Thursday, November 5th. The mutineers have gone towards Rochilcund and Muttra, and some to Dutre, being followed by our troops. Mr. Greenhead, Commissioner of Delhi, died Sept. 19th of cholera.

Monetary Affairs in England.

The Niagara's mails reveal a gloomy condition of things in the Money market in England. The Times hints that the existing unprecedentedly high rate of discount may prove not to be the maximum; and, further, that a continuance of the prevailing alarm, culminating, probably, in panic, may necessitate "one remedy"—a "degrading confession." The Times calls on to protect the Bank of England from the consequences of unreasoning fear. The allusion, no doubt, is to a suspension of specie payments.

In the north of England and in the manufacturing districts of Scotland a movement is on foot to induce governmental action of another character in the direction of relief. The object is to obtain a "conditional power of relaxation" on the part of the Bank of England, similar in its nature to that accorded during the panic of 1847. On that occasion, as our newspaper readers may remember, an Order in Council was issued, sanctioning further issues of notes by the Bank without reference to the increase or diminution of bullion in its vaults. The effect was immediate. The panic ceased, and confidence was restored without the Bank being called upon to exercise the discretionary powers thus vested in it by the government.

Reports from New York show that the Niagara's advices have not tended to improve the condition of affairs in that city.—Colonist.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz:

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall cease at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share - - -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total - - - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years - - - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they restore the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogised the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. v1n43

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Smut on Wheat.

Smut seems to be a parasitic fungus, of which there are several varieties, as on Indian corn, wheat, &c. The black dust of matured smut is to be regarded as its seed, each particle of which, however light and evanescent, is capable of germinating and producing its kind when brought into favorable circumstances. It is difficult to say precisely how these seeds find their way into the receptacles of growing wheat; but it is probable they adhere to the kernels of wheat when sown, and are there, that in some way they are carried upward with the growing plant, and are developed at the base of the newly forming before the head makes its appearance. From this time the fungus grows and develops itself more or less rapidly, as the weather favors or checks it, drawing its nutriment from the plant, thus partially supplying the forming wheat of its appropriate food, as well as insinuating a hurtful ingredient.

Now, on the supposition that the smut in wheat comes from sporules (smut seed)-distributed with the seed wheat, which we suppose to be correct, it follows, that if you could wash the seed before sowing, perfectly clean, there would be no smut in the crop; for however warm, damp, or lowery the season, smut will not grow unless there is seed for it to grow from. But it is impossible to secure perfect cleanliness from these sporules or smut seeds; they are too minute to be all washed away, and their vitality is not destroyed by pure water. Hence the importance of washing seed wheat in some solution that will destroy the vitality of such of the sporules as fail to be washed out.

Salt, plaster, quick lime, arsenic, sulphate of copper, and other things have been recommended. The first is always at hand, and the next two are seldom far absent from the farm and we believe that these are sufficient. If the seed be first washed in pure water, then in a weak brine, of say one quart of salt to a pailful of water, and then dried in plaster or quick lime, (the latter not to be used too fresh, nor very freely, lest it injure the vitality of the wheat,) we think that there will be little danger from smut, and that the operation will be favorable rather than otherwise to the germination and early growth of the seed wheat.—American Farmer's Magazine.

W. Frankland, Esq. said he considered that very much depends on the state the potatoes are in when taken up. As regards his own, this year they had been partially attacked with the disease, and he thought at one time they were going to be very bad; but they have turned out much better than he expected. Those diseased he sorts out as he takes them up. He then thinly spreads the good in his out-houses, when they are taken up wet; but this year they are so dry and clear that he has laid them much thicker. He lets them lie ten days or a fortnight to sweat, and then sorts them into three heaps, marketable, for seed, and the bad and small for pigs, &c. At about another fortnight he sorts them in pits in the field, as by keeping in the house all the winter they are apt to shrivel, and do not look so blooming in the spring.

Mr. Geo. Welburn, of Kyingdales, said that he sorts his in the same way as Mr. Frankland, and spreads them not enough; he has an out-house on purpose for storing them or the winter, and therefore never makes pits in the field. As soon as he thinks they are fit to put by, he stores them in his out-house, and covers them with straw and dry sods. He takes particular care of his sods from year to year, always preserving them from wet. By these means, lying as he does near the fishing town of Robin Hood's Bay, which he supplies all the winter, he can get sods from any hill-top, whether frost or snow, which he could not were they in pits in the fields.

Mr. T. Ward, of Bannal Flat, said he does the same as Mr. Frankland as far as he has room in his out houses; but as he grows a large quantity he cannot, lake, perhaps, such minute pains and care of them, and causes them all to be sorted, as they take them up, and leaves all the diseased and bad ones on the land, and turns his pigs in to consume them. He first puts the good in small heaps in a field, and covers them with straw, and lets them lie in the field about a fortnight to sweat; he then has them properly sorted, and stores them in pits for the winter. He thinks Mr. Welburn's plan a good one, where there is a proper storing house.

Mr. E. Stormeston, of Strugglethorpe, said that he puts all his potatoes in the house the same as Mr. Welburn. He is very particular in sorting them, as he believes that the diseased potatoes infect the good; but in a few weeks after they have been taken up and sweated, they may then be stored for the winter, he having houses for the purpose.

All the other members present concurred in the opinion that potatoes must be allowed time to sweat before they are stored away for the winter, and the diseased regularly sorted from the good, as there is no doubt of the disease being contagious.—Mark Lane Express.

To Prevent Girdling of Trees

Great injury is done to young orchards in some districts by the Meadow Mouse. This little animal always works under cover, and therefore does its mischief in winter when the snow has deeply upon the ground. A common and effectual mode of deterring it is that of treading down the snow firmly about the stem directly after every fall of snow. But this is a very troublesome affair.

The following mixture will be found to be an efficient preventive. Take one spoonful of hot slaked lime, one ditto of clean cow dung, half ditto of soot, one handful of flowers of sulphur, mix the whole together with the addition of sufficient water to bring it to the consistence of thick paint. At the approach of winter paint the trunks of the trees sufficiently high to be beyond the reach of these vermin. Experience has proved that it does no injury to the tree.—A dry day should be chosen for its application.

English nursery men are in the habit of protecting nurseries of small trees from the attacks of rabbits, simply by distributing through the squares of the nursery coarse matenes made by dipping bunches of rags or bits of tow, in melted sulphur, and fastening these in split stakes a couple of feet high. The latter are stuck into the ground among the trees, at from 12 to 20 feet apart, and are soon completed to answer the purpose.—Fruit Trees of America.

Manns for Farmers.—A writer in the Boston Cultivator says:—"I would lay down the following rules, or maxims, which I think experience has demonstrated to be sound:

To rich farms, stock with the stately Durhams; for poorer, the active Devons.

The best point for a milker is a thin high.

To kill caterpillars, rub them up with the hand.

To kill lice on cattle, dust lightly with ashes.

To make the best hay, cut the grass early; when partly made by spreading, cook it up for two or three days, then open and cart it. By curing hay in this way, it contains all the aroma and nutriment of grasses.

Potato Yeast.—Cook and mash ten peeled potatoes, pour on a quart of boiling water and stir well, and add a coffee cup of sugar; let this stand a few minutes; pour in a quart of cold water, wanting a gill, and when lukewarm stir in a pint of yeast, and set in moderately warm place to rise. When well fermented, put into a stone jug, cork tightly, and tie the cork down and keep it in a cool place. After the first rising keep enough of this yeast for the second batch. A teacup of this yeast is sufficient for two large loaves of bread; most excellent it is for muffins and griddle cakes also. There is no need of hops or flour in it, and in my opinion it is the best yeast I have ever tried, and I experimented in all known receipts.—Anon.

Leaf Manure.—The best manure, says Liebeg, (Humus) for any plant is the decomposed leaves and substances of its own species; hence when the small onions or scallions, as they are called, are left upon the whole garden early in spring, is beneficial, destroying the germs of insects and acting on the foliage of plants, retaining moisture, &c. Ten bushels to the acre will answer the purpose.

'Seed Ticks,' on Horses and Cattle.—The best remedy for the evil is to wash the parts affected with strong soap-suds, and then rub well with sweet oil or hog's lard. Spirits of turbaturn (aqua ammonia) 2 ounces; sweet oil, 2 ounces; shake well and sponge the horses with it before riding through "the bush," and they will not take hold.—Correspondent Country Gentleman.

British Lead.—The produce of lead in Great Britain amounts to fully two-thirds of the produce of Europe. Spain stands second, producing about one-third as much; united, the production of these two States is equal to seven-eighths of the European produce. The finest deposits of the United States extend upwards of 3,000 square miles in the States of Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Oregon, North Carolina, and California. A few years since the Western States of North America produced large quantities of lead—as much as 400,000,000 pounds having been produced in 1851; but the deposits opened out, it is said, have not continued equally productive in depth, and their present comparative poverty is demonstrated by the large importations of British lead into these States.

Live Fences, &c.—Some time since, in alluding to this subject, we spoke of the experiments of Mr. Isaac Feller of Woodhouse. A few days since we visited his place, and witnessed the success that has attended those experiments. Not only does Mr. Feller propose to make, from almost any of our forest trees, a live fence in a couple of years, but by the intermixing of various fruit trees, which his system has tended to reproduce in large ration, he makes such fence not only ornamental, but highly productive. The willow hedge, planted from branches, this last spring we examined, and find that there is not a doubt that another year's growth will make it a permanent and thorough fence. His system of planting forts with blocks of cedar trees, and putting small stakes with those blocks, thereby not only saving the block alive, but causing a number of healthy trees to shoot up from it, is well worthy of attention, and we trust yet to see it practiced.—Syracuse Standard.

The Cunning Thrush.—There is much more intellect in birds than people suppose. An instance of this occurred the other day at a slate quarry belonging to a friend from whom we have the narrative. A thrush, not aware of the expansive properties of gunpowder, thought proper to build her nest in a ridge of the quarry, in the centre of which they were constantly blasting the rock. At first she was very much disconcerted by the fragments flying in all directions, but still she would not quit her chosen locality. She observed that a bell rang whenever a train was about to be fired, and that at the notice the workmen retired to safe positions. In a few days, when she heard the bell, she quitted her exposed situation and flew down to where the workmen sheltered themselves, dropping close to their feet. There she would remain until the explosion had taken place, and then return to her nest. The workmen observed this, and narrated it to their employers, and it was also told to visitors who came to view the quarry. The visitors naturally expressed a wish to witness so curious a specimen of intellect, but as the rock could not always be blasted when visitors came, the bell was rung instead, and for a few times answered the same purpose. The thrush flew down close to where they stood, but she perceived the change, and it interfered in the process of incubation; the consequence was, that afterward when the bell was rung she would peep over the ledge to ascertain if the workmen did retreat, and if they did not she would remain where she was.—London Literary Journal.

Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays and Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects calculated to afford the most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Haymon, Balch & Co., Buffalo, and from the West should be to the care of John Hosmer, agent, Detroit.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

1857.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY, Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE, " A. Mills
ONTONAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY,
(New Propeller,)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate Ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO three times each week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over Five Thousand Tons Burthen, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transit of Property.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supportedhim since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

THREE "WEEKS" AFTER MARRIAGE—(SUGAR)
"Dearest, are you going out?
Indeed, its very cool,
Let me, sweet love, stand your neck
This handkerchief on fold;
You know how anxious for your health,
My own dear George, am I,
One loving kiss before we part—
Good bye, sweet chuck—good bye!

THREE "YEARS" AFTER MARRIAGE. (ALOES.)
You're going out—why don't you go?
I cannot help the rain;
You would be grieve me mightily,
To ne'er come back again!
Umbrella!—don't know where it is;
What if you want next, I wonder?
Don't pester me about your cold,
Goodness, gracious!—go to thunder!!

Beauty.

BY MRS R. T. ELDRIDGE.

'Tis not the fairness of the brow,
Nor brightness of the eye,
Nor yet the cheek, whose radiant glow,
Can with carnation vie—
That has power to chain my gaze,
Or hold it in control;
The beauty that I most admire,
Shines spotless from the soul.

The beauty of the form and face,
Last only in our prime;
The charms that centre in the soul,
Will never waste with time;
The radiance from that inner shrine,
Will chain for hours my earnest gaze,
Its charms can never die.

—ooo—

Moral Courage.

The man whose mind on virtue bent,
Pursues some greatly good intent,
With undiver ed aim,
Serene beholds the angry crowd;
Nor can their clamors fierce and loud,
His stubborn honor tame.

Not the proud tyrant's fiercest threat,
Nor storms, that from the dark retreat
The lashes surges wake;
Not Jove's dread bolt that shakes the pole
The firmer purpose of his soul,
With all its power can shake.

Should Nature's frame in ruins fall,
Should Chaos o'er the sinking ball
Resume primeval sway,
His courage dauntless, undefies,
Nor feels the wreck of earth and skies
One more than destined way.

Norah Clary's Wise Thought

BY MRS. S. C. HALL.

'We may as well give it up, Morris Donovan; look, 'twould be as easy to twist the top off the great Hill of Howth, as make father and mother agree about any one thing. They've been playing the tune of contrary these twenty years; and its not likely they'll take a turn now.'

'It's mighty hard, so it is,' replied handsome Morris, 'that married people can't draw together. Norah, darlint! that would not be the way with us! Sure, its one will in two and soul, and an example of love and——'

'Folly,' interrupted the maiden, laughing. 'Morris, Morris, we've quarrelled a score o' times already; and, to my thinking, a bit of a breeze makes all the pleasanter. Shall I talk about the merry jig I danced with Phil Kennedy, or repeat what Mark Doolan said of me to Mary Grey,—eh, Morris?'

The long black lashes of Norah Clary's bright brown eyes almost touched her low but delicately pencilled brows, as she looked archly up at her lover; her lips curling with a half pout, half mischievous smile; but the glance was soon withdrawn, and the maiden's cheek glowed with a deep and eloquent blush, when the young man passed his arm round her waist, and pushing the clustering curls from her forehead, gazed upon her with a fervor that thrilled her heart.

'Leave off joking now Norry; God only knows how I love you,' said he in a deep voice and broken by emotion. 'I'm yer equal, as far as money goes, and no young farmer in the country can till a better share to his stock than mine; yet I don't pretend to deserve you half that; only I can't help saying, that when we love each other (now don't go to contradict me, Norry, because ye've good as owned it over and over again) and ye're father agreeable, and all, to think that yer mother, fit-out of divilment, should be putting betwixt us, for no other reason upon earth, than only to spite her lawful husband, is what sets me mad entirely, and shows her to be a good for——'

'Stop, Mister Morris,' exclaimed Norah, laying her hand upon his mouth, so as effectually to prevent a sound from escaping; 'if I'm yer mother, ye are talkin' of and it would be ill blood, as well as ill-bred, to hear a word sod against an own parent. Is that the pattern of yer manners, sir, or did ye ever hear me turn my tongue against any one let-nigh to you?'

'I crave yer pardon, my own Norry, he replied meekly, as in duty bound; for the sake of the lamb, we spare the sheep. Why not? and I'm not going to gainsay—but yer mother——'

'The least said's the soonest mended,' again interrupted the impatient girl. 'Good evening, Morris and God bless ye, they'll be after missing me within, and it's little mother thinks where I am.'

'Norry, 'bove all the girls at wake or pattern, I've been true to you. We have grown together, and since ye were the height of a rose-bud, ye have been dearer to me than any thing on earth. Do, Norah, for the sake of your young heart's love, do think if there's no way to win yer mother over. If you take one without her consent, there's nothing, I'd care for thousands, let alone what ye've got. Dearest Norah, think, since ye'll do nothing without her consent, do think,—for once be serious, and don't laugh.'

It is a fact equally known, and credited in the good barony of Bargy, that Morris Donovan really possessed an honest, sincere, and affectionate heart—brave as a lion, and gentle as a dove. He was, moreover, the priest's nephew—understood balm as well as the priest himself; and better than that, he was the beau, the Magnus Apollo, of the parish;—a fine manly looking fellow, that all the girls (from the housekeeper's lovely English niece at Lord Gort's down to the little deaf Bess Martican, the lame dressmaker—were regularly and desperately in love with;—still I must confess (perfection certainly was never found in man), Morris was at times a little—the least bit in the world—stupid; not exactly stupid either, but slow of invention—would fight his way out of a dozen scrapes, but could never get peaceably out of one. No wonder, then, where fighting was out of the question, he was puzzled, and looked to the ready wit of Norah Clary for assistance. It was not very extraordinary that he loved the fairest creature—the sweetest, gayest of all Irish girls; —now weeping like a child over a dead chicken or a plundered nest, then dancing on the top of a haycock to the music of her own cheering voice; now coaxing her tetragant mother, and anon comforting her henpecked father. Do not let my respected readers imagine that Mr. and Mrs. Clary were contemptible bogtrotters, with only a plot of praties, a pig, and a one roomed cabin. No such thing; they rented a hundred good acres of bright meadow land, and their comfortable though somewhat slovenly farmyard, told of an abundance and to spare.—Norah was their only child; and had it not been for the most ungentle temperament of Mrs. Clary, they would have been the happiest, as well as the richest family in the district.

'I'm not going to laugh, Morris,' replied the little maid at last, after a very long pause; 'I've got a wise thought in my head for once. His reverence, your uncle, you say, spoke to you and Mrs. Donovan about it? I wonder (and he a priest) that he hadn't more sense. Sure mother was the man; but I've got a wise thought.—Good night, dear Morris, good night.'

The lass sprang lightly over the fence into her own garden, leaving her lover perdu at the other side without possessing an idea of what her wise thought might be. When she entered the kitchen matters were going on as usual—her mother bustling in glorious style, and Clary (her husband mutter'd) as airing of weases.'

'Yer a pair of lazy hussies!' she exclaimed to the two frightened, unoffending handmaids; 'if ye think I can keep ye in idleness? Ten cuts to the dozen! why, that wouldn't keep ye in praties, let alone salt—and such illigant flax, too! Barney Leary, ye dirty neger do good, can ye find no better employment this blessed night than kicking the sods off the cat's face? Oh! we'll be mate for the ravens yet, that's one comfort. Jack Clary,' addressing herself to her husband, who sat quietly in the chimney corner smoking his dookeen, 'it's well ye've got a wife who knows what's what! God help ye, I've little the good of a husband, barring the name! Are ye sure Black Neil's in the stable? The spean nodded. The cow and the calf, had they fresh straw? Another nod. 'Bad cess to ye, man alive, can't ye use yer tongue, and answer a civil question?' continued the lady.

'My dear,' he replied, 'sure one like you has talk enough for ten.'

This very just observation was, like most truths, so disagreeable, that a severe storm would have followed had not Norah stepped up to her father, and whispered in his ear, 'I don't think they should be disturbed.' Mrs. Clary, caught the sound, and in no gentle terms ordered her husband to attend to the comforts of Black Neil. 'I'll go with father myself and see,' said Norah. 'That's like my own child, always careful,' observed her mother, as father and daughter closed the door.

'Dear father,' began Norah, 'it isn't altogether about the stable I wanted to see ye—but—but—the priest said something to ye to day about Morris Donovan.'

'Yes, darling, and about yourself, my sweet Norah.'

'Did ye speak to mother about it?'

'No, darling she's been so cross all day. Sure, I go through a dale of pace and quietness. If I was like other men, and got drunk and wasted, it might be in reason. But that's neither here nor there. As to Morris, either by morning or evening, she generally met Morris Donovan. I don't know how it is, but the moment that the course of true love runs smooth, it becomes very uninteresting, except to parties concerned. So it is now only left me to say, that the maiden, after a due and proper time consumed in teazing and tantalizing her intended, (a practice by the way, which I strongly recommend as the best mode of discovering temper, &c., of the gentleman,) told him her saucy plan and its result. And the lover hastened upon the wings of love, (which I beg my readers to understand, are swifter and stronger in Ireland, than in any other country) to apprise the priest of the arrangement, well knowing that his reverence loved his nephew and knew that was to be (to say nothing of the wedding supper, and the profits arising therefrom too well, not to aid their merry jest.

What bustle, what preparation, what feasting, what dancing, gave the country folks enough to talk about, during the happy Christmas holidays, I cannot now describe. The bride, of course, looked lovely and she-pish, and the bridegroom—but, pshaw! bridegrooms are always interesting. One fact, however, is worth recording. When Father Donovan concluded the ceremony, before the fateful kiss had passed, Farmer Clary, without any reason that his wife could discover, most indecorously sprang up, and seizing a shillela of stout oak, whirled it rapidly over his head, shouted, 'Carry me out!—By the powers she's hot!—we've won the day!—Auld Ireland for ever!—Success, boys! she's het—she's hot!' The priest, too, seemed vastly to enjoy this extemporaneous effusion and even the bride laughed outright. Whether the good wife discovered the plot or no, I never heard; but of this I am certain, that the joyous Norah never had reason to repent her 'Wise Thought.'

Miscellany.

A singular capture and death took place in Galt on Monday. Mr. Robert Wilie, of the Saw Mill, observed during the afternoon a fowl of vast dimensions "showing off" a very goodly one than about attached to the Dickson Mills, and thought it no harm to have a crack at him, in order to discover what was his business in that locality. Accordingly, he stole up the banks, and watching his opportunity, made a deposit of an ounce of cold lead in the carcase of the stranger, and forthwith made him a captive. The stranger, on examination, turned out to be a wild swan, of an uncommon sort, for the feathers on his back were grey, instead of white, as all well-dressed swans ought to be. The creature measured seven feet from tip to tip over its extended wings, was upwards of five feet in length, and as heavy as a small porker. If he is a sample of the produce of the Hudson's Bay Territory, it would add greatly to our zeal for the annexation of that land of snow to our own happy Canada, for such conquests have hitherto been strangers here.—Reporter.

COINAGE FOR CANADA.—The adoption of the dollar and cent system on the list of January next, necessitates the preparation of a silver and copper coinage of our own. We are therefore glad to learn that Government has been acting in the matter, and that Mr. Wyon, the celebrated designer to the Royal Mint, is engaged making designs for a Canadian coinage. It is said that the obverse is to bear the Queen's portrait, and the reverse a maple leaf, with the value of the coin marked in the centre.—Pilot.

AN UNFORTUNATE CITY.—The Rochester Union states that the City of Cobourg Canada, is without money, credit, or City Council. It has loaned its credit for railroads and local improvements, until it has none left to loan or pledge. Its people are taxed half a dollar on each pound's valuation, its treasury is empty, and finally it is without local government—the Councillors or city fathers having all resigned. Of the city government the Mayor, Wm. Weller, Esq., alone remains.

GOOD FOR THE HAULING.—One day last week a merchant in Gardiner, Me., offered a piece of broad cloth to Rev. Chas Blake, the Baptist Minister in that city, provided the young ladies would haul it to him. To this they consented, and after having obtained a small pair of trucks, the barrel of flour was placed thereon, and about forty young ladies took hold of the ropes and drew the barrel about half a mile up one of the steepest hills in Gardiner to the Minister's house. The Gardiner Band seeing what was going on headed the procession and played some excellent music during the haul. There was a large crowd to witness the proceedings, and a cabinet maker built out a very handsome rocking chair, which he fastened to the barrel, and let it go as an additional present to the minister.

Our friend Robert Spence was brought to bed of a rather lively sprucb spreading last week. Whilst walking King Street the Hon. gent was accosted by an unsophisticated native of Dundas who had discussed many a horn with him in former humbler days. "Will you take charge of this letter for me, old chap?" quoth the unkempt villager. "Pray excuse me sir"—returned the official with dignity,—"though Post Master General, I am not a general Post Master!"

NENA SAHIB A TIPPERARY MAN.—An Irish journal mentions a report now gaining ground, that the celebrated Nena Sahib is a relative of the equally notorious Mr. Regan, who, with fifty Tipperary men, swore allegiance to the Sepoy, and sympathy with his atrocities. It is reported that the ancestor of Nena Sahib emigrated at some remote period from the Town that now contains his sympathisers, and was known in India as the "Nenagh Sahib," or Tipperary gentleman. We congratulate Mr. Gavin Duffy and the supporters of the Nation on this addition to the ranks of illustrious Irishmen.—English Paper.

EXODUS OF THE MORMON'S FROM CARSON VALLEY.—California papers by the steamer St. Louis give the particulars of the Mormon exodus from Carson Valley. On the 20th September the whole Mormon Colony departed in one grand train, numbering 956 men, women, and children, 148 waggons and 700 head of live stock, for Salt Lake in obedience to the summons of Brigham Young. Although it has been supposed that this emigration from California is merely the forerunner of one by the united Mormon nation to Washington Territory, there is it is doubt that the Prophet is seeking to strengthen himself in anticipation of the arrival of the United States troops.—Chicago Press.

A SINGULAR ELOPEMENT.—A man from Minnesota, stopping at Little's Hotel, Indianapolis, Ind., the other even ng related a curious case of bereavement. He said he had been married twice, and that by his first wife he had a son, now full grown. A few weeks before his departure from Minnesota his son ran away with his (the son's) step mother—leaving his father a grass widower.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Possessed of these remedies every man is his own family physician. If his wife and children are troubled with eruptions, sores, tumors, white swellings, sore throat, asthma, or any affection of the skin, glands or muscles, a persevering use of the Ointment is all that is necessary to produce a radical cure. If, on the other hand, the internal organs are assailed by disease—whether it be located in the liver, the stomach or the intestines—he can eradicate it by administering the pills to the sufferer, under the guidance of the clear directions which accompany every box.

From an Irish paper we extract the following item: "Miss Jane Conroy of Dublin was received into the Loretto Convent, at Fermoy on the 8th ult." Much do we wish to know whether the homily on the above occasion was preached from the annexed words of St. Paul: "I will that the younger women marry, and bear children, guide the house." Perchance Jane Conroy is on the wrong side of fifty. If so, there is no great harm done by her taking the vows of perennial spinsterhood. Everything, however, hinges upon the question of Chronology.

MOST STRANGE.—A man was relating a story of being on a locomotive that struck a cow standing on the track and threw her several rods into a field, where she lit square upon her feet, with her head toward the train, and strange to tell, she wasn't hurt a mite.

'But didn't she look scared?' enquired a listener. 'Well, I don't know whether she was scared or not, but she looked a good deal discouraged!'

VERY GALLANT.—Fonetnelle at the age of 97, and having many years' able and gallant things to the young and beautiful Madame Helvitius, passed her once with out perceiving her. "See" said she, stopping and addressing him, "how I ought to value your gallantries. You pass me." "Madame," said the old man, "if I had looked at you I could not have passed."

THE BEAUTY OF A BLUSH.—Goethe was in company with a mother and her daughter, when the latter being reproved for some fault, blushed and burst into tears. He said—"How beautiful your reproach has made your daughter. The crimson hue and those silvery tears become her better than any ornament of gold and pearls. Those may be hung on the neck of a wanton, but these are never seen disconnected with moral purity. A full blown rose besprinkled with the purest dew is not so beautiful as this child blushing between her parent's displeasure, and shedding tears of sorrow for her fault. A blush is the sign which nature hangs out to show where chastity dwells."

AN INCIDENT.—At a recent railroad disaster to a freight train on the New York Central, a tall slab sided, long haired Yankee drover was along with six horses in a car which was precipitated down an embankment. It rolled over and over until it reached the bottom of the hollow below, and rested upon its side. In a minute or two, the terrible sensibility of the drover was broken, and the consternation of the spectators changed to mirth, upon seeing the door of the upset car thrown open and the head and body of the Vermont drover projecting out of it; his elongated physiognomy expressing the most unmitigated astonishment.

"What on airth," he exclaimed, "are ye doin' on?"

The effect was irresistably comic, and the spectators had to laugh in spite of the calamity.

ONE of the most remarkable instances of love at firs. sight on record occurred in Buffalo a few days since. A lady from the country had business to transact at a lawyer's office, in which a somewhat diffident attorney had his desk. In the course of the business the eyes of the parties met; the attorney was smitten; he declared his passion, and was accepted. The couple were married in the afternoon.

The Maple Leaf.

SANDWICH, DECEMBER 3, 1857.

As every thing has been said, and every manœuvre tried, by Mr. Rankin and his friends, to injure the reputation of Mr. McLeod in relation to the all important subject of the Southern Railway, we have thought it advisable to publish the correspondence that has passed between him and the parties, who have appeared to be interested in the matter, as evidence of his integrity and the dishonesty of the party professing to be represented by Mr. Rankin. When the subject of retirement was broached to Mr. McLeod by F. R. Ball, there were certain conditions upon which Mr. McLeod consented to transfer his stock, and the transfers were accordingly placed in Mr. Ball's hands, to be used only when those conditions should be fulfilled; these transfers, it would now appear, have been used illegally, as we are authorized in stating, that those conditions have not been carried out. Therefore any action that may have been taken, and that is now being taken, is wholly illegal, and may be upset at any moment, that Mr. McLeod wishes to file a bill in Chancery, and the boasted election of new Directors, and the terrible ruse that has been lately got up in relation to the immediate construction of the Railway, is all a sham electioneering dodge to deceive the people.

And not only this, Mr. McLeod has been deprived of the stock fraudulently, as will appear by the following correspondence; and the most dishonest and barefaced means have been used to deprive him of any influence in the direction of the road. Such being the case, any person who will read the following letters, cannot but perceive the infamy of the whole transaction, on behalf of the opponents of Mr. McLeod. And upon their being made known to the electors, must convince them that Mr. Rankin is not the person to represent the County of Essex for another term.

Let every reasonable minded man weigh the facts that are stated in the correspondence, and compare with them the statements made by Mr. Rankin and his supporters, and see if they will agree; and whether Mr. McLeod has not throughout been honest and straightforward in every particular; and any advantage that may have been obtained over him was only through dishonest means, and have been exposed to the disconfiture of their perpetrators.

In order to prove further our assertion of Mr. McLeod's honesty in the matter, we will copy a portion of an article that appeared in the "Western Mercury" a paper devoted to Mr. Rankin's interests in relation to his conduct; and when even his enemies give him credit for honesty and integrity in his transactions we may certainly take it for granted that it is so, and that they would not give him any undue praise, and that they were forced to give him credit for what in truth they could not withold, they say "In the mean time we cannot but remark that the attitude taken by Mr. McLeod was singularly judicious and deserving of all consideration; inasmuch as we in this part of the county as well as the people of Amherstburg, are secured, the advantages which must result from the completion of this important national undertaking. In saying this, we by no means seek to pluck one leaf from the laurels which Mr. Rankin may consider his due, but we do accord to Mr. McLeod and his friends a large amount of perseverance and a disinterestedness far from what we were led to suppose actuated them." A little further on in the same article in speaking of the conditions upon which Mr. McLeod was to resign his stock they say "First the stipulation was that Mr. Rankin should not only resign his stock, but be excluded from the board of Direction,—that the new board should be persons of their choosing of those capitalists in whose hands the undertaking is to be placed."

Now let us ask, has this last stipulation been carried out? and has faith been kept with Mr. McLeod? The answer is most certainly in the negative.

It may be asked by some, why Mr. McLeod allowed them to get the advantage over him in the manner that it would appear they have. The only answer is, that if he had supposed for one moment that he had been dealing with swindlers, he would not have intrusted the transfers out of his possession until the conditions were complied with.

The following is the correspondence referred to above, and is sufficiently plain to satisfy the most scrupulous.

Woodstock, Oct. 21, 1857.

JOHN McLEOD, Esq.,
Amherstburg.

DEAR SIR,—I am happy to inform you, that the negociations which I have been conducting (as agent for all parties concerned,) re passing our Railway matters, are now in a shape to submit to you, for your approval and co-operation, as the only link required to carry out the undertaking. The parties with whom I am negotiating require all the stock in both the Amherstburg and St. Thomas, and Woodstock and Lake Erie Railways, to be assigned to them, and in pursuance of this requirement, Mr. Rankin has already transferred his Stock, conditionally, on you and your friends doing the same. I have, then, to beg you will favor me with your views as to your willingness to assign the stock held by you and your friends to Mr. Morton, who with his friends, are the parties with whom I am negotiating, and trust that you will not, from any local or personal feeling in the matter, offer any obstruction to this beneficial arrangement being carried out.

Yours truly,
FRANCIS R. BALL.

Amherstburg, Oct. 24, 1857.

FRANCIS R. BALL, Esq.,
Woodstock.

DEAR SIR,—Before I can comply with your request that I should consent to transfer my stock, and the stock of my friends, in the Amhurstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, either to Mr. Morton or any one else, I shall require such an assurance in writing from Mr. Morton, as will satisfy me that it is his intention faithfully to carry out the spirit of the present charter, by constructing the road to Amhersburg, as well as Windsor. This has always been my chief and principal object, and I am determined not to betray the confidence which has so long and sweetly been reposed in me by the people of Amhersburg and its vicinity in this matter.

Yours very truly,
JOHN MCLEOD.

Toronto, Oct. 26, 1857.

JAMES MORTON, Esq.,
Kingston.

DEAR SIR,—Mr. MacLeod declines transferring his Stock, and the Stock held by his friends, until he receives from you an assurance or guarantee that the Charter of the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway shall be preserved intact, and that the road shall be constructed to Amhersburg as provided for by the present charter, so far as your influence can effect these objects,

Yours truly,
FRANCIS R. BALL.

Kingston, Oct. 31, 1857.

F. R. BALL, Esq.,
Woodstock,

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your favor of yesterday, in which you inform me of Mr. MacLeod's determination not to transfer the Stock held by him and his friends, in the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, unless I can assure him that it is my intention to use all the influence I possess to preserve the present charter intact, I beg to say, that, so far as my influence extends, the present charter shall be carried out in its integrity, and that I will resist any attempt to alter that portion of the present charter, which requires the Railway to be constructed to Amhersburg; and I consider that point most essential to the value of the Road, and you may convey this assurance to any parties interested in the Railway in the town of Amherstburg.

Very truly, yours,
JAMES MORTON.

Toronto, Nov. 2, 1857.

F. R. BALL, Esq.,
Woodstock,

DEAR SIR,—I beg to acknowledge your favor of yesterday, enclosing Mr. Morton's letter, in which he guarantees that the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway charter shall be held intact, and the road to Amhersburg be constructed. I may further add, that I have seen the Honorable John A. MacDonald on the 31st Ult. Park and another friend, and he fully endorsed and approved of Mr. Morton's letters, and also pledged us his honor that Mr. Rankin had already assigned his Stock, and neither now nor hereafter would have any connection with the Southern Railway; as owing to the odium attached to his name by the exposé of last session, it would damn any scheme he would be connected with. I therefore enclose you the assignment of what is called the Buchanan Stock, held by me and my friends, but which are not to be used, nor anything done with them, but to be returned to me unless the following conditions are fulfilled: 1st, That the Stock Book replevined by Mr. Rankin, shall be returned to Mr. Park; 2nd, That the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Board shall meet before Mr. Park and myself resign, and adopt resolutions paying all expenses in Surveys and other matters on proper vouchers being produced, and also that a certified copy of the Minute Book of the Board be given to me; 3rd, That Mr. Park shall receive Five hundred Pounds for his expenses, and that an agreement be given me from Mr. Morton, that if the arrangements for building the Road are not gone on with within three months, we are to be replaced in our original position.

Yours truly,
JNO. MACLEOD.

"I ACCEPT THE ASSIGNMENTS ON THE ABOVE CONDITIONS."

RAILWAY MEETING.

On Monday evening last, the Town Hall at Windsor, was filled with respectable persons, to hear Mr. Rankin's explanations as to the Southern Railway. The meeting was appointed by Mr. Rankin himself, pursuant to a requisition, signed by several persons, to him for that purpose. Mr. Bartlett was called to the chair.

Mr. RANKIN addressed the audience at considerable length, and talked a great deal about himself, and how he had been assailed by calumnies, &c., &c.; but we confess we failed to discover any sort of explanation or any thing, throughout his discourse, which incline us to think that the Southern Railway is more likely to be made now, than it was twelve months ago! He, however, did not hesitate to declare that, from the beginning of his public life, he had a keen eye to his own interests, and that a Member of Parliament had every right to take care of himself in any events.

COLONEL PRINCE then addressed the meeting, and expressed his surprise and disappointment that Mr. Rankin should have failed to supply that explanation which he had promised to afford, and for which the meeting was convened, and that he had not even stated why he and Mr. McLeod were not in the Directory; and after speaking for some time, the Colonel thought that, from some of the expressions which had fallen from Mr. Rankin, the latter intended that the meeting should assume something of a political character, and he advised them to separate, which they did, after voting thanks to the chairman. No resolution approving of Mr. Rankin's conduct, or with reference to him in any way, was even suggested, and the meeting ended with no better information than at the beginning.

Now that a dissolution has actually taken place, and writs issued for a new election made returnable on the thirteenth day of January next, there will be little time to play; and now that we are fairly in the midst of a contest the result of which will affect the interests of the County of Essex in a greater degree, than almost any other one that has yet taken place, it is incumbent upon the electors to bestir themselves and work energetically, that the representation of Essex may not remain in the hands of one who has sold his constituency to his own private and individual gain, one who has delayed the construction of a work which would, if completed, have been of the greatest importance to the advancement of our section of the county, because he was unable to secure for himself the golden prize which he had determined to reap. If the electors still allow themselves to be misrepresented, it will be their own fault, for they have had abundant evidence furnished them of the many and glaring inconsistencies of their representative, which should be sufficient to damn any person in the public estimation, and for ever exclude him from the high and distinguished honor of representing a constituency.

There is not a single act, with one exception, that Mr. Rankin has secured, that in any way affects the County of Essex, and that one, we have no doubt, would not have received so much attention at his hands, had he not hoped to reap a golden harvest. In this, however, he has failed, through the persevering energy of parties, who, although merely private individuals, had an interest in the public welfare, and so successfully have the schemes for plunder been exposed, that all the golden bubbles have been dispersed, and our worthy member has been left a standing "Monument of injured innocence." Alas! how unfortunate. Only think of the Twenty-five thousand pounds vision, flitting by his anxious gaze!—and how disconsolate must be his feelings (!) when he thinks upon the lost treasure.

It may not be out of place to mention here, that one of our most energetic opponents to Mr. Rankin's schemes of self gain and public plunder, was Mr. John McLeod; whose time, energies and means, have been devoted to the advancement of our interests in Railway matters—and it is therefore with pleasure, that we are enabled to to announce him as a candidate for the representation of Essex, in the next parliament.

We cannot for a moment suppose, that Mr. Rankin will be re-elected for this County—that the electors will be gulled by the fair promises that are being held out to them merely for electioneering purposes, by him, who will promise to turn all creation upside down, for the sake of a few votes, and will tell the electors, in all probability, that through his exertions alone, the Southern Railway has become a fixed fact, and many other like and unprobable stories, which he supposes the people in this County, green enough to believe, after having again and again tried to sell them, for his own private advantage.

We hope that the electors will teach Mr. Rankin, when they cast their votes, that they do not require a railway jobber as their representative in Parliament.

To Messrs. McLEOD and RANKIN:

WE, the undersigned electors of ESSEX, understanding that you are Candidates for the Representation of this County in Parliament, and desirous of knowing your views on various political questions, and more especially desirous of having a full explanation on both sides, of the arrangements recently effected in regard to the Great South-Western Railway, request that you will appear on Monday next, at One o'clock, to meet the Electors at the Old Court House, in the Town of Sandwich.

From Kent we learn that our friend Larwill is again in the field for re election, and with a fair chance of success.

Mr. Larwill is a staunch conservative, and has held fast by his colours, and we may be allowed to congratulate the County upon having again an opportunity to elect a member possessed of shrewdness, and an active business turn of mind; and being one of the people themselves, he is enabled to judge of the wants of his constituents.

He has served the County faithfully while in Parliament, and we hope to be able to announce shortly, that he has again been elected for another term.

The following are a few hints, which perhaps if carried out, would effect a great reformation in certain places; let the fair ones only follow the advice given below, and the evil will be cured.

"If you have any self-respect, or wish other people to respect you, you will never dance with a tipsy man, nor with any other man whom you do not choose to honor in that way. Your will is sufficient in the matter. If Edward Sherry asks you why not? you can say "Because I prefer not." If he is a gentleman, he will ask nothing more. If he is not a gentleman, why do you speak with him?

You think it is very odd," and "will look so." But is it not rather odd that your father's daughter should appear in a crowded room with a tipsy man? How will it look that you should be encircled by the arm of a man who has to hold himself up by clinging to your waist!

Do you think you must give up dancing, if you don't dance with every body? Then you are a silly little sparrow. Are you the toy of the men? Do you live by their suffrage? Do you suppose any decent man and good dancer is going to have less pleasure in dancing with you, because you won't dance with a zany? Why, a word to your partner, as he passes you, or sits down near you, will let him understand that you are not a fool because you are a pretty woman and a charming dancer."

Appointments.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Toronto, 28th Nov., 1857.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz.

The Honorable Louis Victor Sicotte, to be a member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

The Honorable Louis Victor Sicotte, to be Commissioner of Crown Lands for the Province of Canada, in the room and stead of the Honorable E. P. Taché, resigned.

Charles Alleyn, Esquire, to be a member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

The Honorable Charles Alleyn, to be Chief Commissioner of Public Works for the Province of Canada, in the room and stead of the honorable Francis Lemieux, resigned.

Thomas Jean Jacques Loranger, Esquire, to be a Member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

The Honorable Thomas Jean Jacques Loranger, Esquire, to be the Secretary and Registrar of the Province of Canada, in the room and stead of the Honorable Timothy Lee Terrill resigned.

John Rose, Esquire, Q. C., to be Solicitor General in and for that part of the Province of Canada, called Lower Canada, in the room and stead of Dunbar Ross, Esquire, Q. C. resigned.

DEMONSTRATION BY THE UNEMPLOYED.—The Quebec Chronicle of Saturday morning states that the afternoon previous, in accordance with a resolve adopted in St. Rochs, on Sunday last, after Mass, between 2000 and 3000 unemployed persons, principally ship carpenters from that suburb, assembled at the City Hall, and presented a petition to the Mayor, praying him and the City Council to afford them relief. The petitioners represented that they did not want alms but work at any price, and besought the Mayor to obtain it for them, either from the Government, the Corporation or the Citizens. The meeting passed off quietly, all present being, apparently, peaceable well disposed men, whose destitution and trouble results from the effect of "the crisis" upon the ship building interest. The Mayor addressed the crowd in the English tongue, and told them that could be legally and judiciously done to help them, also that the Committee of the Corporation appointed to consider their wants, were giving the subject the best consideration, and would report without delay. Messrs. Rose and Plamondon, M. P. P., also addressed the meeting, and dressed the meeting, advising the maintenance of law and order. The unemployed then returned to St. Roch's in an orderly manner, proceeding through the principal streets of the Lower Town.

A YOUTH OF SEVENTEEN YEARS TO BE HUNG IN NEW YORK.—James Rodgers, the lad convicted of the murder of Mr. Swanston in New York in October, was placed at the bar on Saturday for sentence. In answer to the usual question if he had anything to say, the boy, who was somewhat sullen, accompanied by a party of homeless children from the Central Office. The girls were delighted with the opportunity afforded them of bettering their fortunes in the land of the West, many of them having suffered severe ly with the unhappy financial crisis which oppressed all classes, but fell most heavily on them. Their avocations had been miscellaneous; sewers, shirt makers or workers at umbrellas, and pen makers, composed the party. All had a neat and modest appearance, and their clothing, though worn, showed signs of having been sufficiently proved by the excellent references they give to the Society. Hope was beaming from the bright eyes and handsome faces of this interesting party.

CHARIVARI.—FOUR MEN SHOT.—The Perth correspondent of the Montreal Gazette, writes that a recent table farmer from Bathurst named J. Butler, had gone to Newboro' to the marriage of his daughter, and on the charivari party approaching, warned them to retire, but as they refused, he discharged his gun, which was loaded with buckshot, into their midst, wounding one young man named Lappin in the abdomen, battering the arm of another, and wounding two others more slightly. It it said that Lappin cannot survive. Butler has returned home, and so far there have been no steps taken to arrest him, although case tried before the Court, the Chief Justice highly recommended Baird, whose house was thus assailed, for having shot Horn, one of those engaged in the charivari, so that it is probable nothing will be done to Butler.

Major Warburton, author of "The Conquest of Canada," is dead. The people of Quebec will mourn the gallant Major, and doubtless bear in mind his exertions in their behalf during the fire of 1845.

GOLD FEVER IN THE LAKE SUPERIOR COUNTRY.—The Detroit Free Press learns from a private source that considerable excitement was lately caused at Ontonagon, by the arrival of a party of Indians from the head waters of the Menominee River, bringing with them some remarkably rich specimens of gold-bearing quartz. They represented that the country was rich in the same species of mineral. Some of the leading mining men of Ontonagon, after examining the specimens, formed an agreement with the Indians to guide them to the place from which they procured the specimen, and also to keep the matter a secret for the press at. By their special request the Ontonagon papers are also silent in regard to the excitement. The Menominee River rises in Marquette county, and flows southeast into Green Bay. It forms the southern boundary of the Peninsula. It is thought that the heavy snows which have fallen will perhaps prevent the expedition reaching its destination this fall.

We understand that Mr. Hespler's appeal to the Judges against a decision at the last Quarter Sessions in the County of Waterloo, sustaining a conviction of the Magistrates for Sabbath Labor, has been dismissed. This is the third time the case has been tried—twice on appeals.

Arrival of the Africa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.

The steamer "Africa" arrived last night from Liverpool. Her dates are anticipated by the "Vanderbilt." She brings nearly $350,000 in specie.

The official announcement that the exportation of grain and flour from France would be permitted, was followed in Paris by an advance of 12 per cent on flour.

The Emperor of France has written a letter to his minister of Finance, discussing the financial question. He is pained to see that the public credit is injured by chimerical ideas, and by the propagation of evil distinct remedies for an evil which existsonly in the imagination, and begs that the Minister will deny peremptorily all absurd projects attributed to the Government, affirming that there is no country in Europe where public credit rests upon a more extensive and solid basis. The letter had but little effect.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"
COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.—The Commercial Department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and aim to be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active mercantile pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most important religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, enough to pay for much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, (post paid) to JOHN DOUGALL & SON, Witness Office, Montreal Montreal, December 1st, 1857.

NOTICE.

TENDERS will be received at the office of the Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, in the Town of Sandwich, until SATURDAY, the 5th of December next, for building a Mile of Plank Road in the neighborhood of Maidstone Cross. The following are the principal items in the Specifications for its Construction.

The Contractor to grade the balance of the mile of road below the Cross, by raising the mile Road in the centre, and forming the sides, and to put sufficient heavy Sleepers of Oak timber along the said low places, and other good sleepers where heavy ones are not required; and to lay the plank in the road not less than 9 feet from Ditch to Ditch, which Ditch shall be of sufficient depth to take off the water, and all the earth wanted to fill up the low places to be taken from the inside of the road where the road is the highest.

The said line of Road to be completed in Six Months.

A BY-LAW,
OF THE SANDWICH STREET PLANK ROAD COMPANY.

Passed 21st November A.D. 1857.

WHEREAS, according to the Provisions of an "Act to amend and consolidate the several Acts for the formation of Joint Stock Companies for the Construction of Roads and other works in Upper Canada," it is ordered that the Directors pass a By-Law, which shall regulate the manner of voting, the place, and hour of meeting.

Be it therefore enacted by the Board of Directors of the Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, assembled under the authority aforesaid, that the Election of Directors for the ensuing year take place at the Old Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on MONDAY the 14th day of December 1857, at the hour of Eleven o'Cloc, A. M., and that the Election be by open vote; and that each share shall entitle the holder thereof to as many votes as he has shares.

THOMAS WOODBRIDGE.
Chairman.
Sandwich, 25th November, 1857.

The Mayoralty of New York.

New York is now in a state of considerable excitement anent the election of a Mayor. The scenes of riot and the general disorder which have pervaded that city, since Fernando F. Wood has occupied the chair as the head of the Corporation, have created a very bitter feeling against him. On Friday afternoon a large meeting was held in the Merchant's Exchange, at which Wood was vehemently denounced.

It was resolved—"That the citizens of New York, in mass meeting here assembled, will make one more effort to put down fraud and corruption in the Municipal Government, and, with this object, hereby ratify and indorse the nomination of Daniel F. Tiemann as the people's candidate for Mayor, and earnestly appeal to all men, of all shades of feeling and avocations, to throw aside the prejudices and trammels of party, and join in the struggle to elevate to this high office a man in whose public as well as his private life is a sure guarantee that the executive duties of the office will be discharged with energy and with honesty, and without fear, favour or fraud."

The body supporting Mr. Tiemann, is composed of men of all parties, including many Democrats, to which Mr. Wood belongs, and on which he places his chief reliance. On Tuesday night an opposition meeting was held in Tammany Hall, to ratify the nomination of Mayor Wood. There were a great number of people present, and the result seems somewhat to have shaken the confidence of Mr. Tiemann's supporters.

LIFE IN MEMPHIS.—Memphis, Tennessee, is engaged in a laborious effort to rival Boston and New York in deeds of violence.—The papers of the 22nd inst., contained the following bloody items:

A man at the fair ground managed to let his horse become unmanageable, and to run over a child, and then to run over his children. He stopp'd the horse and was about to get out of his buggy and apologise, when some one stepped forward and gave him a blow with a cane. He drew a knife and ran up to the crowd, asking who struck him. A man named Butler avowed himself the man, which, however, he was not, and drawing a pistol, it went off by accident, and shot in the stomach and fatally wounded the man who had knocked the fellow out of the buggy. The man killed was named Mason. The one who had started the row by running over the woman and children was a Mr. Lewis. On the evening of the same day, there was a dispute between two men, names unknown, and one plunged a knife into the other. About 8 o'clock, on the same night, at the Commercial Hotel, Dr. Frank Hicks and one Keene got into a dispute, and from that into a fight. Gibbs stabbing Keene with a bowie knife three times and killing him at once. Keene was waiting to receive his wife and children, who had been placed on a steamer at Evansville, expecting to meet him at Memphis.—The night before this tragedy, at the same house, D. Cechrell, Esq., of the hotel, and a Dr. Hooks had an affray, in which they wounded each other with canes, and cut with knives for a time; when Cechrell shot Hooks with a pistol, giving him a dangerous wound in the lungs.

A NEW YORK ALDERMAN.—The Daily Tribune publishes the following gem as illustrative of Aldermanic ignorance. It says that to many members of the New York Common Council, pen and paper are as useless as a fifth wheel to a coach, and asks any other democrat who can beat the annexed to come forward and claim a mean nation:—

SINGULAR ATTEMPT AT MARRIAGE.—A man named John Hayden, came to the city from New Albany, accompanied by a young lady, and stopped at the Louisville Hotel. The man soon after arriving made a application to a gentleman, who came up in the cars from Portland with him, to invite him and the woman in matrimony, the fact that no particular ceremony was necessary, but that he only wanted himself and the lady pronounced man and wife. The gentleman very properly refused, and Hayden then applied to another person, but unsuccessfully. He then sought the assistance of two hackmen, who likewise refused to marry him. This strange conduct of Hayden soon became noised about, and he was lodged in jail. The young woman was returned to her mother in New Albany by officer Bligh. Hayden was for several years an inmate of the Kentucky Penitentiary, having killed a woman at Frankfort. He has a wife living in New Albany—Louisville Journal.

THE MORMONS.—The proclamation of Brigham Young against the United States army reduces the Mormon question to a narrow compass. They are to resist rebellion against the government, and should they be able to repulse the small military force now in the midst of their mountain passes, they must know that with the return of spring an army will march against them sufficient to reduce them to submission upon a very short notice, if they remain in Utah. But we adhere to our first impression that the early evacuation of Utah by the Saints is the ultimatum which lies at the bottom of this rebellion. Brigham Young has too much shrewdness to entertain the idea for a moment that he can, by force of arms, maintain his territorial dictatorship against the military resources of the United States. His sole object, in this present war is doubtless to keep back the government troops from Salt Lake City during the winter; for with the removal of the snows next summer, he will most probably, with his whole community, bag and bag page, wives, concubines and children, be off for the British possessions. His northern exploring tour of the last summer, we dare say, had reference to this movement. At all events, stay or go, this Mormon rupture brings the Mormon question to a speedy solution.—N Y Herald

HOFFATT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share - - -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total - - - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years - - - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endorsements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma, Bilious Complaints, Coughs, Colds, Chest Diseases, Constiveness, Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Dropsy, Debility, Fever and Ague, Female Complaints, Headaches, Indigestion, Influenza, Inflammation, Inward Weakness, Liver Complaints, Lowness of Spirits, Piles, Stone and Gravel, Secondary Symptoms, Venereal Affections, Worms of all kinds.

* * Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable druggists and dealers throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Agriculture and Science.

Preparation of Soil.

In the cultivation of the garden, as of the farm, the first thing is to select the locality for a particular crop, or for a permanent object, as that of a garden, for instance, and to prepare the soil.

After all the divisions of soils that have been made, they may for all practical purposes be reduced to three, sandy, clayey and loamy, in the first of which sand predominates, and in the second clay, while in the third sand and clay are happily blended in about those proportions which render them desirable to the cultivator.

A loamy soil is to be preferred for garden ing purposes. Choose such a soil if you have it on your farm, and in a location suitable for the garden. But remember that the garden is a part of the homestead; it is to be beautiful as well as profitable; its elegancies and luxuries are to be on hand and not far off, it is to adorn your dwelling, as your dwelling is to adorn it; it is to be the rendezvous for many a social enjoyment, earlier in the morning than you go to the broad field, and later in the evening than you return from its weary labors.

If, then, your buildings are already erected, or even if the ground for them is chosen, you have no great range for the choice of a "garden spot." If the soil, where as a matter of taste and convenience you want to meet your wife and children and friends, among flowers and fruits and esculents, is not a feasible loam with a porous subsoil, one that will stand the drouth and drink in excessive rains as readily as not to keep the surface long flooded, you must make it such. The expense will be considerable, but it will pay, and you cannot enjoy the pleasures and profits without.

An expense may be necessary which might well alarm you, if it were to be applied to your whole farm. But what is it for an acre, or half an acre? Nothing compared with the substantial benefits promised, to say nothing of the exquisite pleasure. If the soil is so exceedingly refractory that it cannot be made deep and mellow and rich, without a very great expense, it might be well to content yourself with a smaller garden than you would otherwise cultivate, though as a general rule we believe the gardens of our country had, as a rule, rather should be enlarged rather than diminished. If the mechanic or the professional man has but the sixth-tenth of an acre, it is worth a great deal, and we would advise him to make the most of it. But why should not the farmer, who has land enough, take a generous piece for a garden? Of all that the garden produces, there is scarcely an item which he can not dispose of advantageously, if he have a surplus, either by sale, or by giving it away, or feeding it to stock. A garden is particularly to the purpose because if the enclosure is too large, it may fail of getting cultivated so well as to be ornamental and highly productive; and half an acre is certainly better than less, because the person who but half appreciates the economical and ornamental value of a garden cannot do all he would desire on that ground. An acre, with fruit borders occupying one-half and leaving an oblong or square half acre for the garden proper, would be to our mind, and that whether the farm of which it were a part were thirty acres or one hundred.

If your soil is a medium loam, and have a porous subsoil, you have nothing to do in the way of preparing the soil but to plough ten or fifteen inches deep, harrow, grade, plough again, and work in a plenty of good barn manure, so incorporating it with the soil that it shall pervade every inch, and you are ready to set your trees and make your garden. But suppose it to be a still instead of a medium loam, a few loads of sand in addition to the manure will effect the requisite amendment. Or if it is a light sandy loam, then a few loads of clay will make it just what you want. And the cost in either case will hardly be worth naming. If instead of being a loam, a little too stiff or rather too light, it is a sandy soil, then clay in addition to manure is all you want to make it just what you would have it. The more sandy the more clay will be required. Or if your soil is the stiffest clay, sand enough with manure will make it as good a loam as you can desire. Where clay is used as an amendment, it should always be exposed to the frosts of winter before ploughing in, and should be thoroughly incorporated with the soil: and even when sand is used the soil should be ploughed more than once, harrowed many times, and the new ingredient evenly mixed. And where sand or clay, as one or the other may be required, can not be obtained with in a reasonable distance, swamp mud, long cut and well warmed in the sun, and washed with rains, will go far towards producing the same amendments—will readily produce, only less permanently, both the effect of clay on sand, and of sand on clay, rendering a compact soil lighter, and a light soil more compact. The difference is that this application would need to be repeated every few years, whereas the amendment of a soil by applying its opposite, is a permanent amendment.

The above is all on the supposition that the subsoil is porous, such that water passes downward freely, neither floods the surface nor stops and becomes stagnant one, two, nor even three feet below. If there is any doubt about this, dig holes, like post holes, one, two, three, and three and a half feet deep, and if water stands more than a very few minutes in them after even the hardest showers, that ground requires draining, in order to be fit for a garden. You then have to preface your other amendments, whatever may be required, by underdraining. Of course, you would not have an open drain in your garden or anywhere near your house. A tidy farmer will hardly have one there anywhere. Go to work then, and lay down the under drains. For a garden where you expect to do a good deal of work, and would deem it bad economy to render your labour less satisfactory by any defect in the soil, the drains should be near each other. In some cases one very deep drain running through the centre, and side drains falling in from opposite directions, not quite as deep, and near to each other, would be advisable. But we all know that water runs down hill, and the owner can decide where to lay his drains better than somebody a thousand miles off.

We will only add, that the autumn is the best to prepare the ground for a garden. Winter even used not be lost, in case of large amounts of heavy earth to be drawn from a distance. How we wish that those of us our farms, now showing only a little, stingy, miserable apology for a garden, set the most beautiful nor always the most profitable spots on those farms, could show next spring, as the snow leaves them, grounds already prepared for gardens beautiful enough and fruitful enough to tempt the angels to come down and walk in them in the cool of the morning and evening.

Mirth and Wit.

OUR NATIONAL DEFENCES.—Some public-house patriot was repeating the old national boast that an "English man's house is his Castle." "I am not so positive about that," said a critic of the Westminster Review; "but I am sure that an English woman's dress is her castle; for it is of such an enormous size now that it is morally and physically impossible for any one, friend or enemy, to come near her!"—Punch.

An old lady on Long Island, said her idea of a nice man was: "A man what's keerful of his clothes, don't drink no spirits, kin read the Bible without spellin' the words, and eat a cold dinner on wash day to save the wimmin folks from cookin."

USURIOUS.—An old usurer, in his walks, found a fox in his trap: the mercy cost him nothing, so he released poor reynard. For many days afterwards the fox stole a goose, and escaped it at the usurer's threshold. "What a good may I must be," said the usurer, who wouldn't see the fox's bite in the poultry —"how good, when heaven thus rains geese at my door step!"

An epitaph which graces the churchyard of Moreton-in-the Marsh, runs thus:

"Here lies the bones of Richard Sawton,
Whose death, alas, was strangely brought on;
Trying one day his corns to mow off,
The razor slipped, and cut his toe off.
His toe—or rather, what it grew to—
An inflammation quickly flew to;
Which took also, to mortifying,
And was the cause of Richard's dying."

WHICH IS BEST?—"I love you, surely Ruth, you have been able to discern it? My love is ardent and sincere. O, say that you will return it!"

"Return it, Paul? No—no, not I. I've striven hard to gain it; and now I've got it, by your leave, I'd rather far retain it,"

An auctioneer was selling a lot of land for agricultural purposes,—

"Gentlemen," said he, "this is the most delightful land. It is the easiest land to cultivate—it is so light. Mr. Parker, here, will corroborate my statement; he owns the next patch and he will tell you how easy it is worked." "Yes, gentlemen," said Mr. Parker, "it is very easy to work, but it is a plaguy sight easier to gather the crops."

A teacher of one of the Sunday schools was lecturing a class of little girls on the influence of pious instruction in the formation of youthful character "Ah, Miss Caroline," said he to one of the class, "what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?" "I suppose, sir," answered Miss Caroline, "I should have been an orphan."

My friend, the foreigner, called on me to bid farewell before he quitted the town, and on his departure, he said,—

"I'm going to the country."

I ventured to correct his phraseology, by saying that we were accustomed to say, "going into the country."

He thanked me for this correction, said he profited by my lesons, and added:

"I will knock into your door on my return."

"Mr Jones, don't you think marriage is a means of grace?" "Certainly, anything is a means of grace that leads us to repentance Exit Jones, walking in lead of a broomhandle.

A man with one eye laid a wager with another person that he (the one-eyed person) saw more than the other. The wager was accepted. "You have lost," says the first; "I can see the two eyes in your face, and you can see only one in mine."

EXIT STILTUS.—An extremely foolish conductor whom we have sometimes employed when his betters were gone bathing, lecturing, pheasant-shooting and the like, says that the lying messages brought by the electric wire make it perfectly proper to call a dispatch a Tell-a-gram. He is discharged.

LEGAL.—Two weasels found an egg. 'Let us not fight for it," said the elder weasel, "but enter into partnership." "A very good," said weasel the youngest, "so taking the egg between them, each sucks the either end. "My children," said Reltapes, the attorney, "though you have but one client between you, make the most of him."

OUTWITTED.—A clergyman was censuring a young lady for tight lacing. "Why," replied the fair Miss, "you would not recommend "loose habits' to your parishioners!" The clergyman, thus outwitted, smiled thoughtfully.

A doctor up town gave the following prescription for a sick lady a few days since: —"A new bonnet, a cashmere shawl, and gutter boots!" The lady recovered immediately,

SIGNIFICANT.—"Look here, ma!" said a young lady just commencing to take lessons in painting, "see my painting—can you tell what it is?" Ma, after looking at it some time, answered, "well it is either a cow or a rose bud, I'm sure I can't tell which."

"Good morning Jones. How does the world use you?"

"It uses me up, thank you."

Why is a lady putting on her cor ets like a man who drinks to drown his grief?

Because in so lacing herself she is getting tight.

It has been satisfactorily ascertained, that ducks enter the water for diversion reasons and come out for sun dry motives.

AGRICULTURAL.—A man in clover marrying a woman in weeds.

Hope.—A sentiment exhibited in a dog's tail, when waiting for a bone.

RUSSELL & RICHARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Thalberg, Dreyschock, Jewell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quire of 56 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a descriptive index to the ideas of over 600 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of his work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to persons interested in music, and we will PRE-PAY THE POSTAGE.

N. B—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. The work will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

WANTED!!!

500 CORDS of WOOD wanted at the Sandwich STEAM MILL

Michigan Central Railroad Co.
1857. 1857.
North Shore Line of Steamboats
DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line on the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequaled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.
Detroit, April, 1857.

NORTH WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

1857. 1857.
Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY,	Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE,	" Amos Pratt,
BENGAL,	" A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC,	" M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ,	" W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY,
(New Propeller.)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and the Upper Cabins afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad
on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with the Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

Select Poetry.

Childhood's Sunny Days.

BY WINNY WOODBINE.

Oh, for the sunny days
Of childhood's smiles and tears,
Ere time had brought the weight
Of other years!

Life was all beautiful,
And bright its op'ning hours,
Era blighted care had touched
Its blooming flow'rs.

Now life flies quickly by,
Its hopes and all its fears,
And I have often wept
With bitter tears!

Oh, would that I had lain
My youthful careless head,
In childish innocence,
On earth's green bed,

Where violets sconest blow,
And where the pale rose
Would twine a blooming shade
O'er my repose!

Methinks it were most meet
To gentle drop and die,
In childhood's sunny days,
Ere sin come nigh.

The heart that knows no care,
No bitter grief nor guile;
To fly away and be
At rest, the while!

Maggie Moore.

BY FRANCES HENRIETTA SHEFFIELD.

Oh! Maggie Moore, but that I'm poor,
And you, my love, not worth a penny,
Three ten years sped, we have been wed,
And lived as gay a life as any.

Oh! Maggie dear, 'tis very queer
How some folks all the good are getting,
While you and I work hard, and try
Our patient souls with constant waiting.

But, Maggie sweet, we yet will beat
Grim Fortune, and in chains we'll lead her;
To spirits brave she's but a slave,
And when she loses none will heed her.

Oh! Maggie Moore, of this I'm sure,
You're worthy brightest gifts she's giving;
Not queenly brow, but heart hast thou
That throbs with love for all things living.

The Management of Love Affairs.

I've heern folks say that the wimmin was contrary. Well, they is a little so;—but if you manage 'em right—haw! in here—and let 'em out there—you can drive 'em along without whip or spur, just which way you want 'em to go.

When I lived down at Elton, thar was a good many fust rate gals down thar, but I did not take a liken to any of 'em till Squire Cummins cum down thar to live. The Squire had a mighty purty darter. I said some of the gals was fust rate, and a leetle more. There was many who dressed finer and looked grander, but thar was somethin' an about Nance, that they couldn't hold a candle to.—If a feller seed her once, he couldn't look at another gal for a week. I tuk a liken to her right off, and we got as thick as thieves. We used to go to the same meeting, and set in the same pew. It took me to find sams and hims for her; and we'd swell 'em out in a manner shockin' to a hardened sluner; and then we'd mosey hum together, while the gals ann fellers kept a lookin on as though they'd like to wix in.

I'd always stay to supper; and the way she could make injin cakes, and the way I could stick 'em with molasses and put 'em away, was nothin' to nobody. She was dreadful civil, tew, always guttin' somethin nice for me. I was up to the bub in love, and was goin in for it like a locomotive.—Well, things went on in this way for a spell, till she had me tight enuff. Then she begun to show off kinder independent. When I'd go to the meetin', there was no room in the pew; then she'd come and streak off with another chap, and leave me sucken my fingers at the door. Instead of stickin' to me as she used to do, she got to suttin' around with all the other fellers, jist as if she cared nothin about me no more—none whatever.

I got considerably riled, and tho't I mite as well cum to the cut of it at once; so down I went to have it out of her. Thar was a whole grist o' fellers thar. They seemed to be mighty quiet till I went in; then she got to talkin' all manner of nonsense—sed nothin' to me, and darned little of that. I tried to keep my dander down, but it warn't any use. I kept movin' about as if I had a pin in my trowsers; or as if I'd had a thrashin'. My collar hung down as if it had been hung over my stock to dry. I couldn't stand it; so I cleered out as quickly as I could, for I sed that it was no use to say nothin' to her.

I went strate to bed and tho't the matter over a spell. Thinks I that gal is tryin' of me, tain't one use of her playin' possum: I'll take the kink out of her; if I don't fetch her out of that grass, use me for sausage meat.

I heard tell of a boy wunse that got skeer rather into one Monday morn; the teacher sez:

'You tarned sleepin' critter, what has kept you so late?'

'Why,' sez the boy, 'tis so everlastin' slippery out, I could not get along, no how; every step that I took forward, I went two steps backward; and could never have got there at all, if I hadn't turned back to go t'other way.'

Now that's jest my case. I have been a puttin' after that gal a considerable time.—Now thinks I, I'll go t'other way; she's bin a slighten me, and now I'll slight her.—What's sass for the goose is sass for the gander.

Wall, I went no more to Nancy's. Next Sabbath day, I slicked myself up, and I dew say, when I got my fixins' on, I took the shine clear off of any specimen of human natur in our parts. About meetin' time, off I put to Eithum Dodge's. Patience was as nice a gal as you'd see twixt here and yonder, any more than she wasn't jest like Nancy Cummins. Ephram Mussey had used to go and see her; he was a clever feller, but he was dreadful jelus. Well, I went to meetin' with Patience, and set rite afore Nancy; I didn't set my eyes on her till after meetin'; she had a feller with her, who had a blazen red head, and legs like a pair of compasses; she had a face as long as thanksgivin' dinner. I knowed who she was a thinkin' about, and 'twan't the chap with the red head neither. Wall, I got to doin' Patience about a spell. Kept my eyes on Nance, seed how the cat was jumpin'; she didn't cut about like she did, and looked rather solemnly; she'd grin her tew eyes to kiss and make up! I kept it up till I like to have got in a muss about Patience. The critter tho't I was goin' after her for good, and got as proud as a tame turkey.

One day Ephe cum down to our place lookin as wrathy as a militious cesifer on a trainin' day.

'Look here,' says he, 'Seth Stokes,' as loud as a small clap of thunder, 'I'll be darned ——'

'Hallo!' says I, 'what's broke?'

'Why,' says he, 'I come down to have satisfaction about Patience Dodge. Here I've been a courtin' ever since last year, and she was just as good as mine, till you cum a goin' after her, and now I can't touch her with a forty foot pole.'

'Why,' says I, 'what on airth are you a talkin' about? I ain't got nothin' to do with your gal; but spose I had, there's nothin' for you to get wolfy about. If she's a leetle in likin' to me 'taint my fault; if I have taken a likin' to her, 'taint her fault; and if we have taken a liken to each other, 'taint your fault; and I ain't so almighty taken with her, and you may get her for all me; so you hadn't ought to get so savage all at once about nothin'.

'Well,' says he, rather cooled down, 'I am the unluckiest thing in the world. I went tother day to a place where there was an old woman died of the bots or some other such a disease, and they were a sellin' out her things. Well, there was a thunderin' big chist of drawers full of all sorts of truck; so I bo't it and tho't I had made a spec; but when I cum to look at 'em, thar warn't nothin' in it with a cent, except an old silver tumble, and that was all rusted up, so I sold it for less than I gave for it. Well, when the chap that bo't it took it hum, he heard somethin rattle—broke the old chist and found lots of gold in it, in a false bottom I had not seen! Now, if I had tuk the chist hum, I'd never a found that money; or, if I did, it would have all been counterfeit, and I'd be tuk up for passing on 'em. Well I jist got Patience about it, and she right up and called me a darned fool!!'

'Well,' sez I, 'Ephe, that is hard! but never mind that, jest go on, you can get her; and when you do get her you can file rough edges off jest as you please.'

That tickled him, and away he went a little better pleased.

Now, thinks I, is time to look after Nancy. Next day down I went; Nancy was all alone. I axed her if I'd a Squire was in? She said he wasn't.

'Cause,' said I, 'makin' believe I wanted him,' cour colt sprained his foot, and I cum to see if the Squire won't lend me his mare to go to town.'

She said she guessed he would—better sit down till he comes in. Down I sot; she looked sort o' strange, and my heart felt a leetle queer all round the edges. After a bit I sez:

'Air you a goin' down to Betsey Masin's quiltin'?

Sed she, 'I don't know for sartin; are you a goin'?

Sed I, 'reckoned I would.'

Sed she, 'I spose you'll take Patience Dodge?'

Sed I, 'mout and agin mout not.'

Sed she, 'I heard you were a goin' to get married.'

Sed I, 'shouldn't wonder a bit—Patience is a nice gal.'

I looked at her—I seed the big tears a comin'.

Sez I, 'maybe she'll ax you to be bride's maid.'

She riz up, she did, her face as red as a boiled beet.

'Seth Stokes,' sez she, and she couldn't say any more, she was so full.

'Wouldn't you not like to be bride's maid?' sez I.

'No,' sez she, and she burst rite out a crying.

'Well, then,' sez I, 'if you will not be the bride's maid, will you not be the bride then?'

She looked up at me—I swan to man I never seed anything so awfully purty—I tuk rite hold of her hand.

'Yes or no, rite off,' sez I.

'Yes,' sez she.

'That's your sort,' sez I, and I gave her a buss and a hug. I soon fixed matters with the Squire. We soon hitched traces to trot in double harness for life, and I never have had cause to repent my bargain.

The French in India.

We read that Louis Napoleon is taking precautions for the better securing his Indian possessions, now that those of his ally are troubled: but we mistake greatly if some of our readers are not rather puzzled to know where the possessions of France in Hindostan really are. We hear so little of them that we are ready to wonder if an allusion to their existance is not a hoax. There is, however, no mistake; they exist. Were we to recite the history of French doings in India, we would rehearse the early connection of Europeans with that country. We shall begin with the era of Louis XIV. The famous Colbert induced his royal master to create the French East India Company, in 1664, which soon afterwards founded a factory at Surat, 140 miles north of Bombay, and which was at that date a very prosperous city. There, however, they were in too close neighbourhood to the English, who about the same time put down their foot at the latter place, in the resolute fashion which they have ever been used to do so. They accordingly departed for Pondicherry, in Ceylon, in 1672. Out of this quarter they were soon driven by the Dutch, whereupon they sailed for the Carnatic, and took by assault Meliapoor, a Portugese settlement near Madras. There, however, they were once more too near English friends, who had already been at Madras for nearly forty years, so they once more made off in 1674. They even made a visit to Siam, but Siam suited them as little as any of their former locations, so that, after a little more cruising about, their ark at last grounded at Pondicherry. This was about 1683. They were still near enough to the English, but they intrenched themselves strongly. Quiet possession was nevertheless denied them, for in 1693 Mynheer took the place and kept it until the peace of Ryswick, in 1697.

In the beginning of the eighteenth century, Dumas, an able man, and then Governor of Pondicherry, obtained the cession of Carrical, a town about a hundred miles south of his government.—About the same time, Dupleix settled at Chandernagore, on the Hooghly, about 16 miles above Calcutta.

In 1742, Dupleix was made Governor of all the French dependencies in that quarter, and forthwith the power of his nation grew rapidly, and Pondicherry became a very prosperous place. In 1746, he, with the help of a squadron from home, took Madras from the English, who, under the celebrated Boscawen, attempted to take Pondicherry, but were repulsed.

He was a consummately able man, and the British star in Hindostan paled while he ruled there. He extended the authority of his master, not only over the greater part of the Carnatic, but over the Northern Circans. Dupleix was succeeded by the Count de Lally, who, in 1758, arrived at Pondicherry with a powerful armament. He at once attacked Fort St. David, a British fort sixteen miles from his capital, for Britain, though not advancing, still retained her military and trading posts. De Lally succeeded. Madras, which the English had lost in 1746, was now once more in their hands; and De Lally next assailed it and Arcot, and took both; the fort of St. George, however, defied him, and in 1759 it was relieved by an English fleet, and De Lally forced back on Pondicherry. Britain now advanced in turn, and retaking Arcot in 1760, besieged Pondicherry, and took it in 1761. The war between France and Britain now raged in all quarters of the world. While British heroes struggled in the Carnatic, they triumphed on the plains of Abraham. Then came the peace of Paris in 1763, and while Canada remained British, Pondicherry was restored to its old masters.

British influence was now dominant, and when in 1783, Britain was again at war with France, Pondicherry was taken by Sir Hector Munro. So were also the other France-Indian dominions, and they remained under the British crown till the peace of 1783. We now draw near our own day.—In 1793 Britain was again at war, and France once more lost her Indian territories, to hold them after the peace of Amiens, and again to lose them for a time in 1803. In 1814 they were once more restored, and as they were then so are they still.

At the present day the Indian possessions of the French are as follows:—Pondicherry, Carrical and Yanaon, with the factory of Masulipatam to the northward; Chandernagore and Goretti on the river Hooghly; these are her ports on the east coast. On the west, she holds Surat, Mahe and Calicut; and this is the whole statement. It seems to us an amazing act of stupidity, that Britain should have restored them in 1814, when she had it in her power to dictate what terms she pleased, and to exclude France from the Indian continent forever and ever, truly.

Pondicherry is a healthy place, with from 50,000 to 60,000 inhabitants. It has no harbor, but a good roadstead. Trade is dull, for England allows no traffic with the interior, and all that can be grown in the vicinity is but a trifle. It is a mere post, and as all the fortifications are long since destroyed, and cannot by treaty be rebuilt, it is of no avail to France for either business or military purposes. Chandernagore is beautifully situated, and was at one time an important shipping town, but it is now in a very dilapidated condition. Carrical makes a good deal of cloth, and so does Yanaon. At Calicut and Chandernagore there are fortifications, but their value is small, when we are informed that inexorable treaty limits the garrison of any French Port in India to 1,200 Sepoys.

The insignificance of these possessions; the absence of all military power connected with them; the poverty of trade these facts show how it is that we hear so little of France in the East. Save in name, her flag is unknown there. We fancy, however, that even to this extent she should have been excluded. Now that she is there, all that can be done is to watch her, and we imagine that there is not any chance of this duty being neglected.

Miscellany.

The Philadelphia Evening Post contains the following wonderful and interesting story:—

As a man was walking in his garden he discovered two clothes-horses. He took them into his stable, where he soon broke them. He then put the yolk of an egg on their heads, attached them to a cart with the bonds of friendship, and covered them with sheet lightning to protect them from the flies. He then leaped upon the cart, sat upon a seat of government, took the whip of a top in one hand, and the reigns of several kings in the other, and drove off; passing through the gate of a bushel, over the ground coffee, for three miles; but in crossing the track of a snail, he was run into by a train of thought, and dashed heels over head into a stream of eloquence, where his cart was broken to pieces by the rock of a cradle. By industry and frugality he soon gained the shore, where he formed a boat from the bark of a prairie wolf, which he fitted with a mast made of the north pole, and two auction sales. He then sailed down the river to its mouth, and landed upon a tongue of land where he was seized by a savage sensation and conveyed to a cell, where he was secured by chain lightning fastened by a thunder-bolt. The jailor gave him his liberty for a Christmas present, and read to him the report of a cannon.

TELEGRAPHING BY STEAM.—The London Times notices a plan for telegraphing by steam invented by Mr. Boggs, a well known electrician. Mr. Boggs' invention proposes to work the Electric Telegraph by steam, and so get over the great obstacle which now exists against its general use, namely its slowness. The invention is generally as follows: A series of gutta percha bands, about six inches wide and a quarter of an inch thick, are coiled on wheels or drums arranged for the purpose. These bands are studded down on both sides with a single row of holes at short intervals apart. When a message is to be sent the clerks wind off these bands, inserting in the holes small brass pins, which according to their combination in these rows, with blank holes between, represent certain words or letters. In this manner the message is, as it were, "set up" in the bands with great rapidity, and if the number of hands employed was sufficiently large—say as numerous as the compositors employed in a large printing office—a message equal in length to five or six columns of a newspaper could be set up and ready for transmission in the course of a single hour. Of course this operation in no case interferes with the telegraphic service which continues free as fast until the bands of messages are actually being dispatched. The gutta percha bands when full, are removed to the instrument room by a simple appliance, preventing any derangement or falling out of the pins while being moved about. In the instrument rooms the bands are connected with ordinary steam machinery, by which they are drawn in regular order with the utmost rapidity between the charged poles of an electrical machine in such a manner that during the moment of each pin's passage, it forms electrical communication between the instrument and the telegraph, and a signal is transmitted to the other end of the wire, where a spark perforates the paper and records the message.

INDUSTRY IN INDIA.—The London Economist gives some statistics respecting the trade with India that, if true, indicate a remarkable progress in that country. It is true that India and China annually absorb an immense amount of the precious metals; it is equally true that the nations who enjoy most of the trade with these countries have from time immemorial become greatly enriched thereby. Whatever may be the turbulence of some classes of Indians, and indolence of others, it is certain that there are in India persevering and industrious laborers. Within the twenty years the amount of the products of other countries consumed in India has increased from $20,000,000 to $85,000,000 and her native productions have more than doubled. Every year she is from trading with her becomes her debtor. In 1852, the surplus produces of India was $40,000,000; in 1855 it exceeded $125,000,000. Last year the balance due India for the excess of the exports was $41,000,000. These are the computations, which may be regarded as a sure indication of the balance of trade have increased from $14,000,000 in 1846 to $61,000,000 in 1856. Such statistics show that there is progressive industry in India, which the mutiny must affect disastrously."

Ten months ago, a youth of about seventeen autumns, came to St. Louis from Muscantine, Iowa, and became enamoured of a nice young lady the cherished daughter of highly respected parents, living in Fifteenth street. Briefly, he won her, and they were married, and lived happily till the other day, when the father of the youthful husband arrived from Muscatine, and took his son home to learn a trade!

ETYMOLOGY OF ANTIMONY.—It is said that Basil Valentine, a monk of Erfurth, while engaged in his alchemical labors, threw some of the preparations of antimony where pigs had access to the mixture with their food; and having observed that after becoming sick they rapidly fattened, he thought that his friends might profit by the same treatment, and so he fed them in like manner with the swine; but to his disappointment found that what was good for the pigs was bad for the monks, for they died: and so the metal obtained the name of antomoine, antimonii, antimony.

HOW TO LIVE.—There is no luxury that costs so much, and yet in Paris a man may dine for twopence. According to a contemporary, there is in the neighbourhood of the Marche des Innocents a certain enterprising Madame Robert, who daily feeds a sure six thousand workmen in the open air, yet sheltered from the weather. Her daily bill of fare is cabbage soup, a slice of bouilli (beef), a piece of bread, and a glass of wine. The six thousand dine, pay twopence each, and are refreshed.

ZINC CASTS.—As zinc becomes fluid at a very low temperature, it has been found to be exceedingly well adapted for making casts of statues and statuettes, as it takes a sharp impression from the filling up of every outline, therefore leaving but little labour for the chaser: In France, the production of statuettes in zinc has become an important business; and beautiful works of art are now becoming attainable, through this branch of industry by individuals whose disposition to cultivate a taste for the fine arts has hitherto been curtailed by the limited means at their disposal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Armed with this great antidote, the traveller is prepared to encounter all varieties of climate, for he has the means of eradicating nearly every species of internal disease. The endemics of the alluvial districts of the West, and the miasmatic swamps of the South, and the epidemics which at particular seasons decimate the population of our crowded cities, are susceptible of being controlled by the purifying, disinfecting action of the pills upon the animal fluids; while external diseases and injuries are rapidly and thoroughly cured by the anti inflammatory and healing agency of the Ointment.

The New York Times says that the New Collins steamer Adriatic, during her trial trip ran 18 nautical or 20 statute miles in one hour and four minutes, which is her speed for her provisions and all the coal for her first voyage on board. The highest rate of speed she attained was between 17 and 18 knots an hour.

John Flood, a denizen of Hardscrabble was taken before the Mayor, on Saturday, charged with committing an act which is disgraceful to humanity. He had a quarrel with one of his neighbors, and seeing the little daughter of the latter afterwards, out of spite he induced the child to take hold of the hot end of a poker which he had just taken out of the fire, which burned her hand badly. The Mayor committed him for ten days to prison.

There is a curious story about the late Mr. Morrison, who has recently died worth four millions of money. It is said that during the last two years of his life he was the victim of a singular mental hallucination in imagining that he was in the greatest poverty, and that but by daily labor could he get daily bread. His friends accordingly used to place a spade in his hands, and set him to work for a short time in the garden, paying him weekly wages of a few shillings, and in this way alone would he be quieted.

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS IN JAMES I.'s TIME.—Mr. Green's catalogue of State papers contains the following extract from a letter written by Sir Dudley Carleton in 1604, describing the marriage of Philip Herbert Earl of Montgomery, to Susan Vere; "She bridled and bridaled it as handsomely, and, indeed, became herself so well, that the king said, if he were not married, he would not give her, but keep her for himself. There was none of our accustomed Jeans omitted—of bride-cake, sops in wine, gloving of gloves, laces, and prints; casting of the bride's left shoe, and twenty other pretty sorceries. They were married in the chapel, feasted in the great chamber, and lodged in the council chamber."

WHERE DID THAT MAN GO TO.—In a certain hotel in a city, there is employed a bar tender, who is in the habit of taking his "tod" pretty freely, but always makes it a point never to drink in presence of his employer. A few days ago, while he was in the act of drawing his "tod" preparatory to taking a drink, the employer came into the bar-room rather unexpectedly. Finding himself caught in the act, he set the tumbler and its contents on the counter, and casting his eyes around with a look of surprise, exclaimed. "Where in thunder did the man that ordered that drink go to."

A New York company is engaged in the manufacture of seamless garments. They are made of felt, and by the same process by which hats are made. The articles are coarse and universal fits, but are cheap, strong and exceedingly durable.

'Please sir,' said a little girl, who was sweeping the crossing for a living, 'you have given me a bad penny.' 'Oh, no consequence at all,' replied the benevolent giver, 'keep it for your botsey.'

REQUISITION

TO JOHN McLEOD, ESQ.

SIR:

Having been credibly informed that the House of Assembly is on the eve of Dissolution, and having the utmost confidence in your honesty and ability to serve the County of Essex as a Member of Parliament, we request that you will allow yourself to be put in Nomination as a Candidate for our next Representative in the Provincial Legislative Assembly; and we promise you our votes, and will use all honorable means in our power to secure your Election

REPLY

To THOMAS PAXTON, Esq., and upwards of One Thousand other Electors of the County.

GENTLEMEN,

Although it is much against my own inclination to enter into Public Life, I cannot refuse to comply with the request of so large and influential a body of Electors, that I should allow myself to be put in nomination as a Candidate for the Representation of this County.

At the outset, I frankly avow to you that I shall be prepared to support a liberal Conservative Government.

In the present lull in our political affairs, it is not difficult to perceive, that ere long, certain great measures, as yet indistinctly presenting themselves to our view, and of most vital importance to the future of our Country, such as the establishing of a permanent Seat of Government; the extension of the boundaries of Canada; the confederation of all the British North American Provinces; and a new organization of our Colonial Government; will exercise the Public mind. To any new Measures as they are brought forward, I shall give the earnest, liberal, and patriotic consideration.

There is one Question, however, that in my judgment, must immediately engage the attention of our Legislature, and which deeply concerns us—I mean the Question in regard to the Hudson's Bay Company. On that question I must unequivocally declare my opinion to be, that the exclusive monopoly enjoyed by the Hudson's Bay Company, should be abolished, and that the vast territory under their sway, should be added to Canada, and thrown open to colonization, and the benefits of civilization.

In regard to our Educational System I shall be ready to advocate and support a General Law conferring equal rights, and making similar provisions in respect to Separate Schools, both for Upper and Lower Canada.

In Railway matters, I shall ever have regard to the welfare of the County at large. I am in favor of an independent line of Railway being constructed through this Peninsula, having a Terminus at Sandwich as well as at Amherstburg.

With the assurance that my best efforts will be given to promote the interests of the County, should I be elected as your Representative,

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient and faithful Servant
JOHN MACLEOD.

Sandwich, December 8th, 1857.

SANDWICH, DECEMBER 10, 1857.

COUNTY MEETING AT SANDWICH

A number of the friends of both Mr. McLeod and Mr. Rankin, being desirous of having an opportunity of hearing both candidates face to face, presented them with the following requisition:

To Messrs. McLeod and Rankin :

We, the undersigned electors of Essex, understanding that you are Candidates for the Representation of this County in Parliament, and desirous of knowing your views on various political questions, and more especially desirous of having a full explanation on both sides, of the arrange ments recently effected in regard to the Great South-Western Railway, request that you will appoint Tuesday next, at One o'Clock, noon of that day, at the Old Court House, in the Town of Sandwich.

The object of this requisition was, on the part of Mr. Rankin's friends, to give him an opportunity to clear away the many and black imputations that had been laid to his charge, in connection with the Southern Railway, and if possible to prove to the electors that he had their interests at heart. And that of Mr. McLeod's, to give such a history of the proceedings in connection with railway matters, as would enable them to judge of the respective merits of the two candidates.

It having been decided that the Meeting should take place at the old Court House, on Tuesday last, there was a tremendous assemblage brought together. We think ourselves within bounds, when we say that there were over a thousand present. A number of these came from the lower Townships and Amherstburg in the steamer Windsor, to escort Mr MacLeod to this place, and made a formidable array, led by the Amherstburg Band.

Apropos of the steamer "Windsor," it may not be out of place to mention here that Rankin's harlequins in their election-eering paspuinade termed an extra, had the temerity to assert, that "The Great Western Railway Company's ferry boat Windsor has been given to MacLeod to convey his friends to Sandwich." Such an unmitigated falsehood is worthy the foul source from whence it emanates; but really if Rankin and party hope to carry the County by such palpable dodges, they are much mistaken—the deception is too gross, quem Deus vult perdere prius dementat.

At one o'clock, Mr. MacLeod and his supporters proceeded to the Court House, but upon his arrival there it was found that the room was already filled with Mr. Rankin's supporters, he having crowded them in. This was no doubt a very sharp dodge, as he knew that the room could not hold more than two hundred and fifty or three hundred at most. The consequence was, that Mr. McLeod's friends were compelled to remain in the street below. A Chairman was appointed in the confusion that followed, in the person of Mr. Bartlett, who had distinguished himself before, as the Chairman of a Rankin Meeting at Windsor. Mr. MacLeod requested that the meeting would be adjourned to the open air, as it must be the desire of all parties present to have fair play, and give an opportunity to both parties for open and free discussion.—A tremendous uproar ensued which was more like the bellowing of wild animals than anything else that we can imagine.—And knowing that they had the ground, they appeared determined to keep it; upon which, Mr. MacLeod stated, that unless they removed to the open air, and gave his supporters an opportunity of hearing the discussion, he would not speak at all.

It was finally agreed upon, greatly to the annoyance of the Rankin party, after much screeching and yelling, that the meeting should adjourn to the street in front of the new Court House, where, as we said before, there were upwards of a thousand present.

At this stage of the proceedings, Mr. Rankin, as a bystander appropriately remarked, was afraid to face the music and refused to address the audience until Mr. MacLeod had done so. Mr. MacLeod on the other hand contended, that as the ex member of Essex, it was his duty to give an account of his stewardship, and insisted that it would be out of place for him, a new man, to take the stand before Mr. Rankin had had an opportunity of proving away the many accusations that had been made against him. Mr. Rankin thereupon rose and stated that he had been accused of very serious crimes, and stood as a criminal before them, and wished to be judged by them as if he were before a jury of his country; that if he were guilty of one tittle of the crimes that had been laid to his charge, he should be spurned from society; that as he had been accused, it therefore was necessary that the charges should be proved against him; showing clearly that he was determined to place himself on the defensive only, as it would be far easier for him to defend himself against one particular charge, than to establish the fact and convince the people that he had acted for their interests. Mr. MacLeod did not consider that it was his place, as a private individual, to give an account of the part he had taken in connection with the Southern Railway, as of course, any connection that he may have had with the company, was of a strictly personal nature; but it was far different with Mr. Rankin—he was their representative, and that as such, the interests of his constituents should have been subserved instead of his own.

Mr. MacLeod finding that it was the determination of Mr. Rankin to avoid any explanation, took the stand, and spoke at some length upon the course pursued by Mr. Rankin at this meeting, as well as the former ones held by him in the lower townships, when he had attempted under the pretence of explaining the position of the Southern Railway to use the occasion as a political manœuvre.

Mr. MacLeod entered into a full history of the Southern Railway, and clearly proved that the conduct of Mr. Rankin through those meetings was of a traitor to his constituency, and produced and read to the meeting documents in substantiation of his assertions, he did not do as Mr. Rankin, has invariably done, make assertion upon assertion without any attempt at proof; again and again did McLeod expose the most glaring and damnable transactions in which Mr. Rankin had taken part; the world he had been the cause of our not having a railway at the present time. If Rankin had, when he saw that there was a prospect of going on with the road, used his energies, and had laboured as hard with them, as he had against the construction of the railway, would long since have been built.

And as to the assertion, that he had attempted to sell the Southern Line to the Great Western was another of the self slanders in which Rankin so delighted to deal in, but had never once attempted to prove, as he well knew there was no truth in it.

A number of extracts were read from the evidence taken before the railway committee, in which it was proved that Rankin had devoted himself, irrespective of all regard for the interest of his constituency, to a series of jobbing by which he hoped to realize large sums of money, and by other rascalities of which Mr. Rankin was proved to have been guilty, by Mr. MacLeod; but we will for the credit of our county, refrain from giving publicity to his vile and scandalous management, knowing that he will never again have an opportunity in his constituency as our representative in Parliament, to disgrace this Constituency with his pernicious transactions. The electors at this meeting, the largest that ever assembled in this county, showed too plainly that his race had been run, that he had even now passed away into obscurity, to never return.

A motion of confidence in Mr. McLeod was moved, and put from the chair, and declared to be carried by a large majority.

The cheering at this time was most enthusiastic for Mr. MacLeod, and what few Rankinites still remained upon the ground, seeing their own weakness, were only too anxious to retire in utter despair.

After Mr. MacLeod had concluded his very satisfactory explanations, it was thought advisable to adjourn to the new Court Room, in order to hear what Rankin had to say, when COLONEL PRINCE rose and said that the people of Essex his very good friends, expected that he should address them. He was precluded by law from doing so, on political subjects. He would be guilty of a breach of privilege, as a Legislative Councillor, if he voted or interfered in the election of a Member of the Assembly—that is settled by law. But he had a right to speak to them on railway matters, and he would avail himself of that right upon all future occasions, if any such presented themselves. He would speak freely and at all times where he found railway matters the main subject of discussion; and although he could not discuss the merits of this or that Candidate, he would not refrain from stating that his whole sympathies are with Mr. McLeod, whom he believes to be an honest man, and as such deserving of the confidence of the Electors on Railway matters.

Rankin's Speech

ON THE MEMORABLE FACE TO FACE MEETING WITH

MR. MACLEOD.

(Myself, Honesty, Courage, Chivalry!")

A whole tissue of assertions against McLeod, and not one document to substantiate them. This is the substance of the quivering speech of the ex-member—the tottering "Monument of injured innocence."

Stay! we may be wrong; he did we believe, read out of a book, some evidence to the effect, that MacLeod, Park, and Wallace were to receive five thousand pounds as a bribe; there the bold gentleman paused, unfortunately, some person acquainted with the contents of the book, requested Mr. Rankin to read on; with much reluctance this was done, when lo! and behold! Rankin's own name terminated the list!

MACLEOD TRIUMPHANT

IN THE Lower Townships!

McLeod attended Rankin's Meetings, and was enthusiastically received, while

Rankin hardly received a Cheer!

MR. RANKIN, having notified the Electors that he would hold meetings in the Lake Townships on Thursday and Friday last, in order to lay before them the results of his endeavors in connection with the Southern Railway, but with the intention, no doubt, of trying to pull the Wool over their eyes, if he found them green enough.

So favorable an opportunity could not be lost by Mr. McLeod, to meet the Railway Humbug upon his own ground, and to his face expose the many dodges and slippery manœuvres by which the ex-Member for Essex had made himself so conspicuously notorious. At the meeting called for Thursday evening last at Kingsville, Mr. McLeod made all haste, and arrived in time to attend it. Mr. Rankin entered very fully into the merits of his own case, giving an imaginary history of all kinds of magnificent schemes, in connection with the Southern Railway, which he had conceived, but had never carried out, and would have accomplished if his own private interests could have been subserved, but unfortunately for his Gain, there were just as smart, if not smarter, persons in the railway interest to check mate all his cunning dodges.

The manner in which Mr. Rankin handled the subject, clearly showed that to convince the people of his honesty, was a matter of life or death with him, for nothing was left unsaid that could in any way be twisted to his advantage. In fact, he asserted that to him alone belonged all the honor of accomplishing what has been accomplished!!! and that no Southern Railway can be built without his influence. Of the truth of these assertions, late disclosures in railway matters, we conceive to be the best refutation of their correctness.

After Mr. Rankin had concluded what he considered to be a most complete and satisfactory history of his imaginary railway schemes, Mr. McLeod was called upon to make his Explanations, which he did in a most satisfactory manner, and exposed in an exceedingly happy way the numerous dodges that had been attempted, by a set of railway sharpers, who have been attempting to prey upon the Southern Railway, and though whom the works have thus far been delayed. He also explained to the meeting, how it was attempted to make political capital out of certain new arrangements which Mr. Rankin professed were ab out to be consummated; and how a swindle had been attempted to be practised upon him, but which had fortunately been nipped in the bud. He entered fully into the subject of the correspondence published in last week's Maple Leaf. A portion of which, by the way, Mr. Rankin attempted to show had been concocted by himself and was intended as a take in, to deprive Mr. McLeod of his Stock, and of course all influence in the Company. In this it must be confessed that Mr. Rankin somewhat sold himself, for instead of injuring Mr. McLeod, he only proved himself to have been acting a most dishonest part, and was desirous of giving currency to what he knew to be untrue. If he supposed that the public would give him credit in this transaction for being clever, he has greatly deceived himself, and in his attempt to deceive the public and Mr. McLeod, he has been caught in the very trap which which he had set for others. His explanations tend most decidedly to prove that the part Mr. McLeod had taken, was honest, honourable and above board, while his, as he himself proved, was quite the reverse. This is a natural conclusion to arrive at, and was generally entertained by the meeting, as four fifths of the people assembled at Kingsville plainly indicated by their enthusiastic reception of Mr. McLeod's explanations. How different with Mr. Rankin's, when hardly one fifth of the meeting attempted to get up a feeble cheer for him.

The feelings of Mr. Rankin must have been anything but enviable at the close of the meeting, when he saw the almost unanimous feeling in favor of Mr. McLeod, and we have no doubt whatever, that if a division had been called for, there would have been five to one against Mr. Rankin.

MERSEA.

On the following day we had an opportunity of judging of the support that will be given Mr. Rankin in Mersea, having attended two meetings with Mr. McLeod, one in the rear part of the Township, where there was a large attendance, every one of whom pledged themselves to vote for Mr. McLeod, without an exception. We were informed at the meeting that there is not a single supporter of Mr. Rankin in the whole settlement.

In the evening at another meeting called by Mr. Rankin, at Mr. Leonard Wigle's, the same explanations were gone through with that he made on the former occasion, and with just the same success. And so little confidence have the people in him, that all he could say, was only so much breath wasted, so general and so justly too, is the impression, that all his attempted explanations were a dodge to injure Mr. McLeod in the minds of the Electors, and so ingratiate himself with them. These, however, were all fruitless, as no impression could be made upon the minds of those present, who evinced a strong feeling of dislike for the ex-member, and the most friendly toward Mr. McLeod. Nothing could be more pleasant to the feelings of the latter gentleman, than the frequent bursts of applause, when he commenced his address, and which were kept up during the continuance of Mr. McLeod's speech, which was cute and full of telling hits at Mr. Rankin, who was smarting under the lash, which was applied without stint. Again and again did McLeod expose the trickery of the railway sharper, with such effect, that a defence was impossible.

We have become convinced that Mr. McLeod will obtain an overwhelming majority in the Lake Townships, so strong is the feeling against the ex-member for Essex; and we fancy that the result of this canvass has convinced him that his chances of being re-elected are dark and dreary in the extreme. A Rankin supporter is almost a curiosity in that section of the country.

We were not a little surprised, yet felt amused at a flaming Extra issued by the Rankin organ the Western Mercury, containing a letter from "An Elector," in which he styled the Kingsville Meeting as a Waterloo for Mr. Rankin. Our first impression upon reading it was, that some fiend had got hold and perpetrated a cruel joke upon the credulous Mercury, which has risen far above fever heat, since the contest commenced. It must have been a joke, for no sane man would have written such stuff for truth.

How cruel to impose upon the Mercury, and how silly in them to be so gulled!!!

MEETING at AMHERSTBURG.

On Monday last, the 7th inst., a very large and influential meeting of the inhabitants of Amherstburg assembled for the purpose of listening to the explanations of John MacLeod, the future member for Essex, in the matter of the Great South Western Railway. After the meeting was organized, Mr. MacLeod being called upon, got up and in very lucid and intelligable language, exposed to view the machination of Mr. Rankin and his party, in reviving the Railway question just at this moment for electioneering purposes. He also refuted in a most satisfactory manner, all the falsehoods that have been concocted by the Rankin party, to injure him (John MacLeod) in the eyes of the Electors of Essex, and shewed the mean, contemptible trickery, descended to by the enemy, to affect the fair reputation of himself.

It is not our object here to give a detailed account of Mr. MacLeod's speech, on the occasions referred to, he will visit the constituency from one end to the other, and afford the electors in the whole county to judge for themselves, of his ability to explain the Railway difficulties, and of his capacity and fitness to represent them in Parliament, also of his disinterestedness and integrity, in railway matters. During the whole time that Mr. MacLeod was speaking he was listened with marked attention, and at the conclusion the satisfaction of his hearers was manifested by their passing an unanimous vote of thanks to Mr. MacLeod for his address. It was apparent that all present were the firm supporters of Mr. MacLeod, with the exception of one single individual, and this is George Gott, the forty eight hour director. This gentleman was very useful however, as he was often referred to, to substantiate what Mr. MacLeod said of the opposing candidate. This he did with much apparent reluctance, which made his testimony all the more valuable and truthful. Before concluding, we would remark that after MacLeod got through, he stated that he was ready to answer any questions that might be put to him. Mr. Grenier a respectable Canadian got up and said that he would avail himself of the opportunity to ask Mr. MacLeod to explain his views of the school questions. Mr. MacLeod stated that in school matters he was for extending the same privilege to all parties and sects, and allow none any advantages over the others.

Mr. Grenier expressed himself satisfied, and intimated his intention of giving Mr. MacLeod his hearty support, and called upon his friends to do the same.

☞ We propose to answer a slanderous production which has appeared in the shape of an Extra of the Rankin organ the Mercury, in a day or so; when we will endeavor to show up the vile shifts that they are put to, in order to conceal the slime that covers the ex-Member for Essex and Railway speculator.

Arrival of the Baltic.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.

The steamship Baltic, from Liverpool at 2 p.m. on the 25th of November, arrived at 11 this morning, with 70 passengers £90,000 sterling on freight. Among her passengers is Peter Parker, late U. S. Minister to China

The City of Baltimore arrived out on the morning of the 25th. The Anglo-Saxon left for Portland on the 25th.

In London, on Saturday, the re-opening of the mercantile exchange made further progress.—Notwithstanding the serious features of the bank returns, loans on government securities were readily obtainable for short periods at lower rates. About £400,000 of Australian gold was sold to the banks during the day. On Monday the tone of Improvement was more distinct than at any time since the first turn became observable. There was a continued absence of further failures, and an additional amount of bullion of £160,000 was taken to the bank. On the Stock Exchange there was an increased supply of money and loans were readily obtainable on government securities at 7 per cent. At the bank the demand was less pressing. The Times concludes that the panic has passed entirely away

Heavy failures at Hamburg are reported, including Vilberg & Ciener, in the Swedish trade, with liabilities over £1,000,000; F. Bloss & Schomburgh, liabilities not stated From Bremen the suspensions were reported of H. Overbeck and Sassenburg & Mayer, liabilities in each case only £20,000. At Smyrna, Topsee & Co. had suspended, liabilities £40,000.

The Times' city article of Tuesday evening notes a steady flow of bullion to the bank and a better feeling prevails, although some additional failures have occasioned regret. In the Stock Exchange money was readily obtainable at 6 a 7 per cent. The weekly returns of the bank are henceforth likely to show a considerable improvement. In the discount market there were signs of relaxation. The gold taken to the bank within the week amounted to £930,000. The funds were buoyant, and consols closed at 89¾ for money, and 90 a 90¼ for account. The failures of the day were Herman Tillem & Co., liabilities heavy, Carr, Josling & Co., in the north of Europe trade, liabilities £300,000; Alex. Hauzz, colonial produce dealer, liabilities large—all of London; Pennison & Marshall, American commission dealers, Liverpool, and Jonathan Bottomly, spinner, Bradford.

A dispatch from Hamburg announces the formation of the Discount Guarantee Society with ten million marks banco capital, the object of which is to relieve the commercial distress. The whole amount was subscribed in four hours.

The London papers of Wednesday report sales of Illinois Central shares on the previous day at 13¼a14 discount; do. 7 per cent Bonds 75a77; N.Y.C. shares 73; Erie 3rd Mortgage Bonds 66.

Generals Wilson and Havelock are to be raised to the dignity of Baronets.

A boiler explosion at a cotton warp factory in Huddersfield had killed nine persons and wounded many others.

FRANCE.—Mr. Bould, Minister of State, was on a visit to London, supposed to have reference to the financial crisis and the situation of the Bank of France, and to confer with Lord Palmerston in reference to the difficulties in the Danubian Principalities.

The Courrier de Lyon announces that the breeders of an English race training establishment will be opened at Strasburg on the 1st of December.

The Nord says that the conference of Paris has been put off to January

The Bank of France was gaining specie.

A meeting of Paris distillers had memorialized the government to raise the import duty on Foreign liquors, on the ground that they cannot compete with foreigners. The government replied that it would be decided by an inquiry.

SPAIN.—It is said that the Spanish Mexican question still presents danger. Lord Howden had gone to Madrid, to urge the reception of the Mexican envoy.

PORTUGAL.—The yellow fever was still ravaging Lisbon.

RUSSIA.—Prince Gagarin, Governor-General of Kutais and Mingrelia, had been assassinated by one of the sovereign princes of Mingrelia.

Letters from St. Petersburg report that the financial crisis was beginning sensibly to affect Russia. Gold has become very scarce, and exchange on London had fallen.

AUSTRIA.—Letters from Vienna report a continuance of the financial and commercial crisis. The prices of raw produce declined daily, and money was so scarce that manufactured goods found but few wholesale purchasers.

SWEDEN.—A dispatch from Stockholm announces the formation of a society of credit and mutual support, and to maintain the public credit. The subscription amounted to £4,000,000.

CHINA.—An extra mail from China had reached Suez, with Canton dates to September 27th, and Hong Kong to October 5th. A violent typhoon at Macao on the 1st had caused some damage, chiefly to the native shipping. Lord Elgin was at Hong Kong on board a man-of-war.

A jolly Hibernian, living in Portland, carried home a bottle of whiskey to aid him in suitably enjoying the sabbath. His wife gained possession of the bottle, and wishing to maintain sobriety in the head of the family, hid it in the oven of her stove. When the fire was kindled, the 'cracker' began to cook, and soon burst the bottle, blew up the stove, set the house on fire, alarmed the neighbors, called out the fire department, and seriously injured the dedout and church-going portion of portland citizens.

QUEBEC THE CAPITAL.—The Canadian of yesterday has private letters from very good sources which convey the assurance that Quebec has been definitely chosen as the Capital of Canada.—Quebec Chronicle

RECEIVER GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

TORONTO, 30th Nov., 1857

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the Municipality of each City, Town, Incorporated Village and Township in Upper Canada, that whereas under the provisions of 19th Vic., chap. 16, the Clerks of these several Municipalities are bound, under penalty, to transmit to the Receiver-General a true return, under oath, of the number of Rate-payers appearing on the Assessment Roll of each Municipality, on 1st December next, in order to enable this Department to apportion equally among the various Municipalities in Upper Canada, the monies belonging to the Upper Canada Municipalities' Fund, in proportion to the respective number of resident Rate-payers; and notwithstanding that Forms, &c., have been sent by Mail from this Department to all the Municipalities, many of the Clerks have neglected to transmit the necessary returns; the undersigned hereby calls upon those who have not already done so, to furnish the required return on or before the 31st December next, or as soon after as practicable,

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XXIII.

CO—

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

COMMERCIAL PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and progress of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most pointed religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and graphical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, (post paid) to JOHN DOUGALL, Witness Office, Montreal

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a like nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years -	96.
Total - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years - - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Saving Manure.

As the period of the year when farmers yard or stable their stock is approaching, it is all important that proper measures should be taken to preserve intact all the elements of fertility usually to be found in the manure heap. It is indisputable that a large portion of the farming community do not collect so great an amount of nutriment to return to the soil as it is in their power to do; and it is also undeniable, that a still larger number do not preserve that which they collect when they do accumulate that they ought.

The value of manure depends, in a high degree, upon the ammoniacal properties it contains. As this salt has a great affinity for water, rains and moisture will soon carry it away, and after two or three leachings the pile is rendered almost worthless. The addition to ammonia, nearly all the other components of farm yard manure, as potash, soda, &c., are likewise soluble, and are readily removed by water. When manure is thus exposed for any length of time, nothing but insoluble matter is left, and which is comparatively valueless is giveing to the soil with the vain expectation of promoting the elements of fertility.

Many experiments have been made for the purpose of testing the relative worth of manure properly cared for, and that exposed to the action of the weather. One of these, by Lord KINNAIRD, under the auspices of the Royal Ag. Society, in which potatoes was the crop grown, the yield averaged upwards of four tons in favor of covered manure, from two acres of wheat—which was fed with manure that was cared for—the produce amounted to 108 bushels 52 pounds; while upon another two acres, treated with an equal amount of uncovered manure, the yield was but 88 bushels 57 pounds. In the growth of straw the produce was very much in favor of the first, which produced 9,942 pounds, while the yield of the second was but 6,864 pounds.

Chemical analyses have also aided in giving light upon this subject. It has been substantially demonstrated that covered contained double the nitrogenized properties possessed by the unsheltered, and that while the latter contained only eight tenths per cent. of potash and soda, the former had fully two per cent. The proof of this analysis is fully "worked out" in the growth of the straw in the experiments mentioned.

These several things should serve to stir the farmer should give his attention in the care of the manure heap. Putrefaction, or decomposition, needs to be promoted; such absorbents as will prevent the dissipation of ammonia into the atmosphere ought to be employed; and the robbery, by leaching, of whatever sun and air have seen fit to leave prevented. To accomplish the first of these objects comparative dryness of situation is required. Dampness is a necessary element of decay, but we think all that is absolutely wanting for this purpose is contained by the voidings of cattle. Another requirement is the compactness of the heap. Heat is sooner generated where the manure is somewhat solid—the moisture is better preserved, and "fire fanging," or burning, is not so much to be feared. The following moda practiced by Mr. MECHI, of Tripteehill, England, is considered the most perfect in use. The whole of his cattle, sheep and pigs are kept under cover, on sparred wooden flooring, which permits their droppings to fall through the openings into cellars or chambers beneath. To accomplish the end sought more effectually, the straw is all cut up into short lengths, and saturated with liquid manure, or limed, and mixed with ground corn, and in this way his entire amount of straw is used solely as food, no bedding being required.

This system, when first brought into vogue, was assailed by many of the writers on agricultural subjects, and condemned in no measured terms, "as preposterous, expensive, unsatisfactory in its results, and contrary to the nature of animals so fed." The Cyclopedia of English Agriculture, in reply to the assertions, says: "These points might be decided not by theory, but by prolonged experience. With regard to the point which lies in the way of this article—the value of manure made by Mr. MECHI's plan—it appears a self-evident proposition, that the manure so obtained must, from any things like active fermentation, be superior to all other kinds derived from the ordinary modes pursued, just in proportion to the loss sustained from fermentation by one or the other of these." The great gain in value of manure thus made, is claimed upon the assumption that ammonia—the very base of enriching substances—is almost wholly retained, that the moda most effectually prevents the escape of this element of fertility.

In Belgium, according to SCHWERZ, manure is accumulated in the stables. The cattle are placed upon a kind of platform above the reservoir of liquid matter, and their droppings being with them from under them, are trodden down and allowed to accumulate upon the floor.

In Switzerland, BOUSSINGAULT says, the urine that is passed by the cattle flows through a gutter which communicates with a large reservoir containing water, in which not only the solid excrements diffused, but in which the litter is washed, this being changed twice a week. The reservoir is constructed under the floor of the cowhouse itself, in order to be protected from the frost. The fluid matter of a mass so attained is scarcely perceptible, and, when from leakage, there is no loss of decomposing animal matter. The liquid manure is raised by means of a pump, and carried to the meadow in tubs placed upon carts.

All farmers recognize the virtue of such action as these in securing a large amount of manure, but there are large numbers who have not made such complete and efficient preparations as they might. The present season furnishes ample opportunities for the construction of manure sheds or such other receptacles as may be deemed expedient, and we hope that all who can will perform their whole duty in this respect.—Rural New Yorker.

CHICKEN PUDDING.—For an invalid whose stomach cannot digest strong meat, condensed chicken is beneficial, and prepared in the following way is much more agreeable to a delicate person than the usual tasteless puddings of the sick room:—Tie a fowl in a bladder and boil half an hour, the flesh may be easily prepared; let it become cold, then take the flesh from the bones, and pound it finely in a mortar till you can pass it through a sieve. Boil an ounce of bread crumbs in milk, and when cold, beat it well up with an egg and a little salt and nutmeg, mix this well with the pounded chicken, put the whole into a buttered cup and bake for twenty minutes, then turn it out, and if allowed, add a little butter or gravy.

AN EXCELLENT SYRUP FOR A COUGH.—An ounce of flaxseed must be boiled for half an hour in a quart of water, after which may be added to it half a pound of sugar, two ounces of sugar-candy, an ounce of Spanish liquorice, and the peel of half a lemon. Let the simmer slowly for half an hour, then add twenty drops of ipeecuanha wine, stir it well into the syrup, and when cool bottle it. A teaspoonful may be taken occasionally when the cough is troublesome.

Mirth and Wit.

THERE is a story of an Imperial High ness waiting thrice in the same evening with an English lady at the Court of Berlin. She naturally felt, and frankly expressed, herself highly flattered by the compliment.

"I did not intend it as a compliment," was the answer.

"Then', said the lady, somewhat rebuffed,—"your highness must be very fond of dancing.'

'I detest dancing,' was the still unsatisfactory reply.

Bewildered by her ill-success, our fair country woman still prosecuted her inquiries.

'What, then, may I ask, can be your Imperial Highness' motive for dancing?'

'Madame,' was the exalted personage's reply, 'I dance to perspire.'

An Irishman addicted to telling strange stories said, he saw a man beheaded with his hands tied behind him, who directly picked up his head and put it on his shoulder the right place.

'Ha, ha, ha!' laughed a bystander, 'how could he pick up his head when his hands were tied behind him?'

'And sure, what a fool ye are?' said Pat, 'an' couldn't he pick it up with his teeth! To cold Nic.wid yer botheration?'

A TENDER REPROOF.—A very little boy had one day done wrong, and was sent, after parental correction, to ask the forgiveness of his Heavenly Father. His offence had been passion. Anxious to hear what he would say, his mother followed to the door of his room. In lisping accents she heard him ask to be made better, never to be angry again; and then, with childlike simplicity, he added, 'Lord, make Ma's temper better too.'

TELLING THE TRUTH.—My wife tells me the truth three times a day, remarked a loose old fellow; the same time casting a very mischievous glance at her. Before rising in the morning she says, 'Oh dear, I must get up, but don't want to.' After breakfast she adds, 'Well, I suppose I must go to work, but I don't want to;' and she goes to bed saying. 'There I have been fussing all the day, and I haven't done anything.'

A good old Quaker lady, after listening to the extravagant yarns of a store keeper, as long as her patience would allow, said to him—'Friend, what a pity it is a sin to lie, when it seems so necessary to thy business.

The latest case of absence of mind is that of a young lady, who on returning from a walk with her lover the other evening, rapped him on the face, and said good night to the door.

'Come here, my dear, I want to ask you all about your sister. Now tell me truly, has she got a beau?' 'No, it's the janders she's got; the doctor says so.'

Why is a hen sitting on a fence like a cent? Because head is on one side, and tail on the other.

Street Scene. Young rascal, 'say, mister!' Old gentleman turning round, says 'what,' sonny?' and is plugged in the eye with a snow ball.

DEAD AND ALIVE.—A young man meeting an acquaintance said, 'I heard that you were dead.' 'But,' says the other, 'you see me alive.' 'I do not know how that may be,' replied he, 'you are a notorious liar; but my informant was a person of credit.'

A CLEVER BOY.—A farmer's wife in speaking of the smartness, aptness, and intelligence, of her son, a lad six years old, to a lady acquaintance, said—'He can read fluently in my part of the Bible, repeat the whole catechism,' said the young Hopeful, 'and yesterday I licked Ned Rawson, throwed the cat into the well, and stole old Hickley's gimlet.'

A NICE POINT.—A letter was to be posted which weighed under an ounce. Two stamps were accordingly affixed, by which the weight of the letter was raised beyond the ounce, and it was accordingly taxed double postage for a second or fourpence.—One of the Post Office to charge fourpence for carrying two of its own stamps?

A country exchange says: As our Devil was going home with his sweet heart, a few evenings since, she said to him: 'John, I fear I shall never get to heaven!'

'Why?' asked the knight of the Ink keg.

'Because,' said she, with a 'melting look,' 'because I love the Devil so well!'

A 'tough un' is told by the Boston Traveller about 'one of our distinguished chemists,' who was so absored in his experiments that he didn't observe that his own nose was burning in the candle, till a companion told him of it!

Why is a rocking-chair like a lady's dress? Because it is sat in. Singular isn't it?

At a late political meeting an orator mounted a brandy cask and opened his speech by exclaiming 'I stand upon the platform of my party!'

A SINCERE WISH.—A lazy fellow, lying down on the grass said, 'O, how I do wish that this was called work, and well paid for.'

A QUEER FIRE BRIGADE.—A man in Pawtucket lately made application for insurance on a building situated in a village where there was no fire-engine. In answer to the question, 'What are the facilities for extinguishing fires?' he wrote, 'It rains some-times.'

To Peter Brown late of the Township of Colchester in the County of Essex.

TAKE NOTICE that on the Twenty Seventh day of June last, a writ of Attachment against the real and personal property and effects of you the said Peter Brown, as an absconding Debtor, was issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex, at the suit of Chas. J. Messer, and that it having been shown at the time the order for the said Attachment was obtained that no information could be got as to where you had fled to. - It was ordered by the Judge of the said County Court under the forty-fifth section of the Common Law Procedure Act, that a copy of said writ of Attachment be left at your last place of residence in the County; and One Months Notice, published in one of the Newspapers published in the County of Essex, of such writ having been issued, be deemed good service of such writ of Attachment upon you. You are therefore required within ten days after the publication of this order, for one month to cause special bail to be entered for you in the said County Court of the County of Essex, in an action to recover £55.15 at the suit of the said Charles J. Messer, otherwise the said Charles J. Messer may, by the leave of the Judge of the said court, proceed thereon to Judgment and execution, and may sell the property attached, under and by virtue of the said writ And take Notice that this Notice was first published on Thursday the thirtieth day of July, A. D. 1857.

G. W. LEGCATT,
Attorney for Charles J. Messer.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX.

To Amos C. Brush late of the Township of Colchester in the County of Essex.

TAKE NOTICE that on the Twenty Seventh day of June last, a writ of Attachment against the real and personal property credits and effects of you the said Amos C. Brush, as an absconding Debtor, was issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex, at the suit of William Dowler, and that it having been shown at the time the order for the said Attachment was obtained that no information could be got as to where you had fled to. It was ordered by the Judge of the said Court under the forty-fifth clause of the Common Law Procedure Act, that a copy of said writ of Attachment be left at your last place of residence in the County and One Months Notice, published in one of the Newspapers published in the County of Essex, of such writ of Attachment upon you. You are therefore required within ten days after the publication of this order, for one month to cause special bail to be entered for you in the said County Court of the County of Essex, in an action to recover one hundred and fifty nine dollars and eighty cents, at the suit of the said William Dowler, otherwise the said William Dowler may, by the leave of the Judge of the said court, proceed thereon to Judgment and execution, and may sell the property attached, under and by virtue of the said writ. And take Notice that this Notice was first published on Thursday the thirtieth day of July, A. D. 1857.

G. W. LEGGATT,
Attorney for William Dowler.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE

A Gift of One Thousand Copies.

RUSSELL & RICHARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is highly recommended by Thalberg, Dreyschock, Jewell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quarto of 64 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a descriptive index to the ideas of over 600 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of this work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to people interested in music, and we will PRE-PAY THE POSTAGE.

N. B.—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. Further copies will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

☞ You will certainly get a copy FREE of all EXPENSES, by sending your name and address to RUSSELL & RICHARDSON,
Musical Publishers, Boston.

TO EDITORS.—Russell & Richardson will send you two dollars worth of their latest Musical publications and the MUSICIAN'S GUIDE, postage paid, if you will give the above advertisement (including this offer,) one insertion in your paper.

WANTED!!!

500 CORDS of WOOD wanted at the Sandwich STEAM MILL

Michigan Central Railroad Co.
1857. 1857.
North Shore Line of Steamboats
DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are of the largest and first class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted, having recently been fitted for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements for trips between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandize with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed by any line.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSKINS, agent, Detroit.

C. D. SWAIN, Agent.
Detroit, April, 1857.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.
1857.
Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY, Capt. T. Nicholson
ARAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY,
(Steam Propeller)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities for shipping as any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and leaving Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad
on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers
Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

REPLY

To THOMAS PAXTON, Esq.,

and upwards of One Thousand other Electors of the County.

GENTLEMEN,

Although it is much against my own inclination to enter into Public Life, I cannot refuse to comply with the request of so large and influential a body of Electors, that I should allow myself to be put in nomination as a Candidate for the Representation of this County.

At the outset, I frankly avow to you that I shall be prepared to support a liberal Conservative Government.

In the present lull in our political affairs, it is not difficult to perceive, that ere long, certain great measures, as yet indistinctly presenting themselves to our view, and of most vital importance to the future of our Country, such as the establishing of a permanent Seat of Government; the extension of the boundaries of Canada; the confederation of all the British North American Provinces; and a new organization of our Colonial Government: will exercise the Public mind. To any new Measures as they are brought forward, I shall give an earnest, liberal, and patriotic consideration.

There is one Question, however, that in my judgment, must immediately engage the attention of our Legislature, and which deeply concerns us—I mean the Question in regard to the Hudson's Bay Company. On that question I must unequivocally declare my opinion to be, that the great monopoly enjoyed by the Hudson's Bay Company, should be abolished, and that the vast territory under their sway, should be thrown open to Canada, and thrown open to colonization, and the benefits of civilization.

In regard to our Educational System, I shall be ready to advocate and support a General Law conferring equal rights, and making similar provisions in respect to Separate Schools, both for Upper and Lower Canada.

In Railway matters, I shall ever have regard to the welfare of the County at large. I am in favor of an independent line of Railway being constructed through the Peninsula, having a Terminus at Sandwich as well as at Amherstburg.

With the assurance that my best efforts will be given to promote the interests of the County, should I be elected as your Representative,

I remain, Gentlemen,

Your obedient and faithful Servant

JOHN MACLEOD.

Sandwich, December 9th, 1857.

REPONSE.

A Monsieur Paxton et à plus de mille autres Electures du Comté d'Essex,

Messieurs,

Quoiqu'il soit contre mon inclination d'embrasser la vie publique, Je ne puis cependant me refuser de me rendre à la solicitation d'un si grand nombre d'Electeurs en permettant qu'on me mette en nomination comme candidat pour la representation de ce Comté

Premièrement promettez moi de vous avouer franchiment que Je suis prêt à supporter un Gouvernement Conservatif mais liberal.

Vu le calme de nos affaires politiques, il n'est pas difficile d'appercevoir qu'avant longtems certaines mesures qui ne se presentent encore que bien indistinctement à notre vue, mais de la plus haute importance pour l'avenir de notre pays; tel que l'establissment d'un siége permanent du Gouvernement, l'extention de limites du Canada, la confederation de toutes les Provinces de l'Amerique Britanique du Nord, et une nouvelle organizatson de notre Gouvernement Colonial, occuperont très vivement l'esprit public.

Je donnerai à toutes mesures nouvelles ma plus serieuse considération en même tems que libérale et patriotique.

Il y a une question cependant qui, selon moi, doit immédiatement occuper l'attention de notre Législature, et qui est d'un très grand intérêt pour nous tous. Je veux parler de la question de la Baie d'Hudson. Je vous déclare ici sans aucun équivoque, que le grand monopole dont a joui jusqu'à ce jour la compagnie de la Baie d'Hudson doit être aboli, et le vaste territoire qui se trouve sous son controle soit ajouté au Canada pour être ouvert à la colonization et à la civilization.

Pour ce qui a rapport à notre système d'éducation, je suis prêt à supporter acune loi générale, qui nous donnera des droits égaux pour les écoles séparées tans pour le Haut que le Bas-Canada.

Dans les s'aires de Chémins de fer je prendrai toujours en consideration le bien être du Comté en général. Je suis en faveur de la construction d'une ligne indépendente de chemin de fer à travers cette Péninsule, ayant son terminus à Sandwich aussi bien qu'à Arnherstburg.

Reçevez, Messieurs, l'assurance que si j'ai l'honneur d'être élu votre Representant Je ferai tout en moi pour promouvoir les interêts du Comté.

Je suis, Messieurs,

Votre fidèle et obéissant serviteur,

JOHN MACLEOD.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, DECEMBER 17, 1857.

In our Issue of Thursday we promised to notice the Extra put forth by the Western Mercury, on the 8th Instant, for the purpose of trying to injure Mr. MacLeod at the Mass Meeting held in Sandwich—although the results of that meeting undoubtedly proved that even in places where Mr. MacLeod is scarcely known, his cause at once becomes triumphant, when the contrast between his conduct and Mr. Rankin's, is shown by the inconteastable documents he produces. We have always been averse to enter into any discussion with such a paper as that which Mr. Rankin owns and wields (to the credit of the County, be it said), he has been obliged to send to a distance to find parties mean enough and disreputable enough to Ed it, at least, OSTENSIBLY. We feel sure however that, if time were allowed, the very course it pursues in order to support the cause of such a man as Rankin, must eventually do more hard than good. This fact was abundantly proved at the Election for Legislative Councillor; but now when every effort is strained on the part of the Ministry to give the people the shortest possible time to choose between the two Candidates (which is proved by their keeping back the Writs for the County while all others are out, knowing that that course will best serve Rankin—their nominee) it may be possible that the barbared falsehoods it issues will not have time to correct themselves—and therefore we must sacrifice our private feelings in order to give the public an opportunity of judging for themselves. The paper we allude to, commences with a very modest piece of information to the Electors as to the kind of person who should represent them—one who "should be possessed of the outward appearance of a gentleman." Of course, Mr. Rankin means to inform us, that he has a vast advantage over Mr. MacLeod in this respect! We are confident no one who compared the two candidates as they stood together on the table on Tuesday, would prefer the expression of Rankin's face to that of MacLeod's. Had Mr. Rankin been some poor wretch just sen enced for murder, the reporters would not have claimed for him "a gentlemanly appearance." However, we will leave that point as a matter of opinion, and content ourselves with claiming for Mr. MacLeod those attributes of a Gentleman which after all are the "guinea stamp"—namely, Honesty in business dealings, and a keen sense of Honor, and suavity of manners—qualities which have not built up Mr. R. as a "Monument" of gentlemanly appearance. While of Education is of any account, Mr. MacLeod is certainly his superior! The Mercury omits one qualification for a Member, which we think is of some account, and to which we will merely refer at this point namely a property qualification, free of all Incumbrances!

We are next informed, that there are certain kinds of businesses which unfit a man for representing this county.

"It is true that a man's occupation, may have something to do in shaping his mind, and even his morals. In old times butchers were excluded from the jury box, and men of acknowledged bad morals are not selected as the proper person for the church.

"A man's trade or calling will do more at times." It is seen even in his dress and gait.

"For instance, legal gentlemen are known by certain peculiarities. The son of St. Crispin, if he enters into a quarrel owes his subject to "the last, while the professional manufacturer of bad whiskey, and the dealer in distillery slop will partake of the coarseness of his calling, and his language and morals, will be as rotten as the staple article of his manufacture."

This paragraph names particularly Lawyers, Shoemakers, and Distillers, as being below par—men who should never aspire to Legislative honors, while it would exclude the unfortunate Butchers from exercising their rights as laymen. Now on this subject we will only say that neither McLeod, nor any other man of sense in this County, holds any such views as his Mightiness, Arthur Rankin, so it is unnecessary to combat an argument, which is only calculated to have weight with a few of the stamp of a certain gallant captain, whose military experience is at "the service of the Colonial Government," or with the Agricultural Major, who only blames himself with having been in too friendly a feeling, hitherto, with those low Amherstburg merchants. Our opinion is, that any honest calling is respectable, and that even in exhibiting Indians, there is nothing to disgrace a man, or even prevent his going to Parliament, provided they really were what they were asserted to be—but we can scarcely express our contempt for a poor Parliamentary Hack, whose trade is politics, and whose Stock in trade is Honor—one who can stand up and call God to witness, that he has no other interest, but that of his constituents to serve, when it has been clearly shown on his own testimony, that at that very time—nay for nearly a month before, he had sold his constituents for £12,000; for, as will be seen by the document given below, the balance was only to be paid if the road was completed. This brings us to that part of the precious document, which attempts to excuse Rankin's treacherous sale of that charter to Zimmerman.

"The proof is assumed to exist in the agreement made in July, 1856, with Mr. Zimmerman, in which £25,000 was to be secured to Mr. Rankin, under certain circumstances. We admit this agreement. We acknowledge the stipulated conditions. It is confined more."

Now let us see what the that agreement did contain.

"It is hereby agreed, by and between the undersigned, that they shall mutually exert themselves in endeavoring to effect amalgamation between the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway and Harbour Company, and the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, and that Arthur Rankin shall unite with Samuel Zimmerman in endeavoring to obtain the contract for building the Railway from St. Thomas to Amherstburg and Windsor, as provided by the charter of the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, with the understanding, and upon the condition that the said Rankin shall be entitled to, and receive one-fourth of the profits arising from such contract, over and above the said Zimmerman, either in his own name only, or associated with others, succeed in obtaining the same. The said Zimmerman however shall have the right at any time within twelve months (but not after the expiration of that period) from the date hereof, to acquire the interest of the said Rankin in the said contract, by paying him (said Rankin) the sum of twenty five thousand pounds in the following manner, that is to say; the sum of twelve thousand pounds down, and the remaining thirteen thousand pounds within one month after the day on which the Railway from the Thames to Amherstburg or Windsor, or any other point on the Detroit River is finished and open for traffic; Interest on the last mentioned thirteen thousand pounds shall be paid half yearly on the 1st January and 1st July, by the said Samuel Zimmerman, to the said Rankin, till the principal is paid as above stipulated.

Signed and sealed at the Clifton House, Falls of Niagara, this third day of July, 1856

(Signed,) SAMUEL ZIMMERMAN, [Seal]
" ARTHUR RANKIN, [Seal]
JOSEPH A. WOODRUFF, Witness.

The following memorandum was given by Mr. Rankin, after Mr. Zimmerman's death:

MEMO. FOR MR. VANSITTART.

If Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Street (on behalf of Mr. Wythes) will bind themselves to carry out the arrangements entered into between Mr. Zimmerman and myself, with reference to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway, and to protect my interests to the full extent to which Mr. Zimmerman had agreed, in writing over his own signature, and further, to protect the rights of all other parties, derived from the late Mr. Z., which have been refused in writing, I will sign and seal, and also abandon all opposition to their plans, and do my utmost to reconcile all conflicting interests.

A. R.

The above document speaks for itself and no remarks that we may make, can illustrate more forcibly Rankin's infamy than it does.

The next part of the statement is rather amusing, coming now as it does when so many people would be very anxious to find out Mr. Rankin's means:—

"He was to furnish a portion of the means required for the prosecution of the work, would have to share the loss which would occur from the sale of bond or other securities upon which money was to be raised."

The addition of Mr. Rankin's capital must have been of immense importance to Mr. Zimmerman in carrying out the undertaking—and the concluding portion of the paragraph which says "that it would be better that Mr. Rankin should spend the money among his neighbors, rather than that Mr. Zimmerman should spend the whole at the Falls, will meet with a hearty amen, from many interested in him!—What a contemptible apology for even Rankin, the man of many apologies to make! that he should defraud the public out of their money, in order that he might be able to go about in style—doing nothing, and looking down on them with contempt! This is the character who again and again offers himself as a candidate!

The Mercury then proceeds to charge John MacLeod with having sold himself along with some others for some there about £5,000 apiece—and says "they have the agreement, why not publish it?"—simply because what they call an agreement, is only the evidence given by Mr. Buchanan before the corruption committee, in which he states that he intended to give £25,000, to be be divided among several gentlemen, viz.—Mr. MacLeod, Park, Wallace, and as the Mercury says, "one or two others."—Now who could the reader imagine is the other! Mr Rankin did not tell the meeting at Morsea, but he was obliged to tell in Sandwich—It was Arthur Rankin!

Is this not the climax of audacity!—to attempt to inculpate MacLeod at meeting after meeting, by reading what he said, was an agreement, and within was only evidence of what Buchanan intended to do, at the same time suppressing his own intention to which being there, it was really an argument from him to be doubly a traitor!

We can well afford to pass over the remainder of the article to which we are referring—it contains a Letter from John MacLeod to F. B. Baldwin Amherstburg 24th Oct. 1857—which we published some time ago—and which expressed Mr. MacLeod's determination to have nothing, to do with Mr. Morton or any one else unless under guarantee that the Railroad should go to Amherstburg as well as Sandwich or Windsor. This document, having been published by Mr. MacLeod and altogether unassailable what does Mr. Rankin wish to make the public believe? Why, that neither Mr. Morton, Mr. Ball nor Mr. MacLeod had brains enough to dictate the Letter, that he was employed by them all three to arrange as he says, a series of Letters, which if it was really the case, was the most villainous transaction that has yet been disclosed; because the object must if Mr. MacLeod had no fortunately transferred Mr. McIlorge's stock as well as what was called the Buchanan Stock, have been the ruin of the Road and the deception of parties who had intrusted Mr. MacLeod with powers of attorney. We are rather disposed to believe that this is not the first time Mr. R. has helped on such infamous schemes. But in a case like this we would have thought he had quite enough to do in carrying out his own dirty work without boasting that he was at the call of any one requiring such depraved services; he must be convinced he can never make the County believe he is honest, and that his only course is to reduce Mr. MacLeod to his own level.

The article concludes with the Statement, that if one lie would secure Rankin's Election, neither he nor his Electors would tell it. The very next states that the Great Western Railway Ferry boat "Windsor" has been lent by the Co. to carry MacLeod's supporters to the late Meeting in Sandwich.

The lie is certainly there in this instance as well as in all others. We can not give however a better exhibition of all Rankin's Railway Rascalities than by copying the withering speech made by George Brown after the investigations before the committee of the House had taken place.

Mr. Brown—I have merely spoken of the Railway Rascalities that have been perpetrated in this country; and in going into it a little more fully I shall not deal in loose statements, I shall not even adopt the written evidence of the witnesses; I shall confine myself entirely strictly and exclusively to the hon. gentleman's own evidence, prepared and dictated with the greatest care and deliberation. The Committee will see that the Watrous job will appear that the Bill before the House is an independent scheme, framed to get quit of all the parties charged with corrupt practices But it is not the case. When the Amendment of this Bill who introduced it? who is the first member in this House to rise in its defence? Who, sir, but the hon. member for Essex! Surely there is this remarkable fact when connected with this Bill, that the man who thus promotes it, is the President at this moment of the very charter he asks us to repeal! We cannot look at this bill apart from the interested associations that are the unhappily attached to it; we cannot vote in favour of it without endorsing all its antecedents. A fierce battle has been waging for several days in our committee room—the eyes of our people have been steadily watching its progress—it is known that persons charged with the most corrupt proceedings have been trying to get control of the Amherstburg Road through this charter—and if we pass it assuredly we will be held, and justly held, to have endorsed all the past proceeding of those persons, and sent them back to society to repeat their operations. I do trust the House will never record a vote charged as it will be with inferences so unmistakable—and I do earnestly call upon the hon. gentleman to say one word while I lay before it a few points in the evidence of hon. member for Essex very certain am I that no such vote will be given. Mr. Rankin, Mr. Speaker, has acted as a witness on behalf of his own Bill; and he begins his evidence with this statement, that in 1855, HE introduced a bill to incorporate the company called the Woodstock and St. Thomas Railway Company, that during the same session a bill was introduced "authorizing the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway and Harbour Company to make extensions southwardly to the Suspension Bridge, and westwardly to St. Thomas," and that power was given to amalgamate the two lines with the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Company. Now, Sir, the House will observe that here the proceeding commenced which have eventuated in the present struggle and the bill before the House. I need hardly say, Sir, that this bill, of 1855, Mr. Rankin duly installed himself a Corporator and Provisional Director, with confidants, far from opposed to the present interests of the hon. gentleman. Well, sir, what was the next step? "In February, 1856," says Mr. Rankin, "finding that the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway Company had not yet made any progress in action whatever towards obtaining subscriptions"—"I introduced a bill to amend and extend the charter of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company by authorizing among other things, "the extension of the road to the Suspension Bridge, independent of the Woodstock and Lake Erie Line." Now, sir, he tells us this extension was not granted, and he had to fall back on the Woodstock and Lake Erie. His bill received the Royal assent on the 1st July, 1856, and on the 3rd, two days after, the hon. gentleman goes to work. Let me read from his evidence:—"I entered into a written agreement with Mr. Zimmerman, dated at the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, on the 3rd July, 1856, by which I agreed to unite with Mr. Zimmerman." Now, let us see the terms of their agreement—and here is the document itself—[Hear.]

"AGREEMENT BETWEEN S. ZIMMERMAN AND A. RANKIN.

This is no loose statement of the hon. gentleman's memory—we have a written paper, and this under his own hand and seal—(hear, hear) and we learn that this first step, though at that very moment a provisional director of the road, though at that very moment standing in a fiduciary capacity between the stock holders and future contractors was to make a secret agreement that a pecuniary benefit was to influence at the Board and in this House, should have the contract for the road; and for the exertion of that influence, he himself should have two hundred thousand dollars! (sensation.) Well, sir, the plot is laid, the treachery matured, developing it are arranged, let us mark its progress. "On the 5th July, 1856," Mr. Rankin proceeds, "a meeting of the Provisional Committee was held at Sandwich" at which "nine of the members of that Committee were present. Mr. Zimmerman appeared at that meeting and proposed to the gentlemen present as stated in the agreement "of certain friends of his, for a sufficient amount of stock to form the company under the amended Act, on the following conditions" to the House and Provisional Directors conditions:—"First, that the should be "permitted to deposit the amount of the first "call upon the stock, viz: ten per cent, to the Zimmerman fund"—in Mr. Zimmerman's own Bank—in the Bank of Mr. Rankin's secret partner—and secondly, "that after he, Mr. Zimmermah, had subscribed "the requisite amount he should retain the bonds and thereby secure the contract in the hands of Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) There were five gentlemen present at the meeting besides the member for Essex—three of them members of this House, Mr. Southwick, Mr. Larwill and Mr. Maybeth. These gentlemen were indigned by Mr. Rankin to do all this, they consented to give Mr. Zimmerman entire control of the road. Now, will any one of these gentlemen get up here now and state that Mr. Rankin then told them, or that they had the slightest suspicion that at that very moment Mr. Rankin had an agreement in his pocket from Mr. Zimmerman to share the profits of the contract their proceedings of that day were intended to secure him? (Hear hear.) No, sir; not one of them can deny that were kept in utter ignorance of this disgraceful fact. And yet, sir, the hon. member for Waterloo expects me to assist him in passing a Bill tainted with transaction had it all. But, sir, let us follow up the plot. The hon. gentleman's evidence goes on to narrate that he and his brother Directors called a public meeting of the shareholders to organize the Company, to be held at Amherstburg on the 7th August, and what happened at that meeting. Up to this time, Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin had it all their own way; but now Mr. Buchanan came on the field, and by subscribing books at Amherstburg claimed, like Mr. Zimmerman, to have the control of the stock. Mr. Rankin goes on: "I met Mr. Greer in the street at Amherstburg—" Mr. Greer requested me to afford him a private interview and I accordingly met him at my adjoining office," where, IN A PRIVATE ROOM, Mr. Greer "communicated to me the fact, that he had "called upon me as agent for Mr. Buchanan, "and that Mr. Buchanan was particularly "anxious that I should join his party. Now, sir, will the House listen to what follows: "I at once resolved to adopt such a course "with Mr. Greer as would lead him to suppose that for a consideration, I would consent to act with Mr. Buchanan !" (Loud cries of, hear, hear.) Sir, I ask the House if they ever read anything more scandalous than this—deliberately to lead on a man to insult himself—decoy him on the offer of a bribe by the suggestion that he stood ready to betray the trust reposed in Mr. Rankin as that we are to entrust the negotiation and expenditure of nine millions of dollars? But mark what follows: "I gave Mr. Greer to understand that I shall confirm my intention of putting "myself in a position to make something "out of the Railway." And again: "Mr. "Greer left me under the impression that "there would be no difficulty in arranging "with me." And this man and his nominee must have this bill, in order to stamp with disapprobation the misconduct of the Woodstock Company—(hear, hear). Sir, if there is one thing more revolting than a person in a position of trust accepting a bribe, it is the spectacle of a man willing to be supposed capable of that baseness, painting himself as open to corruption, and tempting the tempter to assail his integrity, without the intent to consummate the deed! We may comprehend a man being led away by his avarices or his necessities to accept a bribe, but who can understand the working of that man's mind who puts himself in the position of a villain without the intent to pocket the reward of his baseness! (Sensation.)

(The remainder will be given in our next.)

RANKIN'S FALSEHOODS IN THE "MERCURY."

If we ever, for one moment had any fears as to the result of the coming Election, in relation to the success of Mr. MacLeod, they have now all vanished. The palpable falsehoods, and contemptible machinations that are being resorted to, by Rankin in his filthy sheet the Mercury, are enough to convince any one, of ordinary perception that the cause must be desperate indeed, when it is attempted to keep up the tottering Monument, with such infamous and damnable untruths. It is impossible for us to parricipate, for there is one great falsehood from beginning to end, and not a word of truth in the whole issue of last week. We would direct the attention however of our readers to two or three of the most glaring and contemptible, and if convicted of these, we may be safe in saying that little credit will be given to the remainder of his filthy trash.

The first is in the Mercury's report of the Sandwich Meeting where they would attempt to make it appear that Mr. MacLeod in his address had said 'that as he had the right to speak first and as he intended to keep it, he should do so, by Jews."

This is a falsehood as black and contemptible as it is its author, for whoever could conceive such a blasphemy, must be a wretch only fitted to be ranked among the lowest and most depraved members in society. Alas! poor Rankin it is sad indeed, that you should be driven to such an extremity, that an imported hireling must be brought into the county, for the purpose of trying to reduce the character of Mr. MacLeod, to the same level as your own. When any man or set of men can sit down, and concoct such a barefaced tissue of falsehoods and then raise them to the public where they are known to be such, must be depraved in the extreme, for only those whose minds are polluted could descend themselves to such infamous and contemptible depths.

The most glaring of all the misstatements of the truth-loving Mercury, is that wherein it is asserted, that a resolution was passed at the Sandwich Meeting to the following effect: "That this meeting has no confidence in J. MacLeod, but that it has full and renewed confidence in Arthur Rankin." They have also the audacity to attach the signature of the chairman to it, when they knew that there was no such resolution adopted. The only one that was put to the meeting at all, was one of confidence in Mr. MacLeod, which was carried by a large majority upon a division, and declared to be so by the chairman. However, we can hardly wonder that such untruths are published where they are known to be such, after the many that have already been told so barefacedly.

But we had hoped that there yet remained a shade of truth and honesty in the Mercury, for the credit of the profession, that all sense of honor had not flown—but we fear that we are deceived, when such bold and unblushing untruths are published by a journalist when they are known to be such.

A STALE TRICK.—Mr. Rankin's friends have circulated an old Requisition, supposed to have been presented to him, when contesting the Counties of Essex and Kent, to try and make the French Canadians believe that it was now presented. They should have erased Kent and 1850.

ELECTORS
OF THE TOWN AND TOWNSHIP OF SANDWICH.

GENTLEMEN,

For many years you have been pleased to place your confidence in me; you have chosen me as one of your Councillors and your Reave. It would ill become me, therefore, at this critical moment, to be silent on the subject of the coming election. You are now called upon to choose a man for your Representative in Parliament for a period of four years. Two candidates are in the field,—one of the two who solicits your votes has misrepresented you for three years. What has he done for you? His first step was to call you together to ask you for Fifty Thousand Pounds for the Southern Rail Road. Gentlemen, I met him with you and he was defeated. His next move, electors, was to get placed at every few rods a Custom House Officer, to take from your boat, your basket, or even your handkerchief, if they contained an ounce of snuff or a pound of tobacco, or tea, or candles, or a pair of boots for yourself, or wife, or child. That's what Arthur Rankin has done. And those very men, contrary to Law, are secretly working to keep him in power. Electors, as your friend I appeal to the whole county, as well as my own Township, and ask you if I have not always watched over your public interest? Then I say, trust to my judgement now, and do not vote for Arthur Rankin, whose only object is his own aggrandisement, and not your interest. John Mac Leod is an honest man, and will endeavor to sweep away that heavy burthen of Taxes with which you are now encumbered:—Electors, I have now discharged my duty.

THOMAS WOODBRIDGE.

Qualification for Voters.

The only persons entitled to vote in Essex, at the Legislative Assembly Elections are as follows, under 18 Vic., chap. 16, section 2:—

1 Owners of real property worth £50, or worth yearly £5, who have their deeds six months before voting.

2 Lessees of real property of same value, whose lease (or a verbal or written) were originally for at least a year, and who have held their leases for six months before voting.

3 Occupants of real property of same value, who occupy, with the consent of the Crown or of the owner, and who have occupied for six months before voting, and who have a verbal or written lease from the owners, that is, under some agreement to purchase or acquire the property.

Several persons may vote on one property, if their shares be sufficient, except members, of a corporate body, who cannot—see 3.

Purchasers of Crown Lands, any of whose payments are overdue and unpaid, cannot vote.—section 5.

Voters must be 21 years old, and British subjects, either by Birth or naturalized.

The following persons may be naturalized on taking the oath of allegiance, which (by 12 Vic., chap 27, section 73,) may be taken before the returning officer.

1 Aliens resident in the Province before 10th February, 1841, and their children.—12 Vic., chap, 197, section 2.

2 Aliens who have for five years been resident in the Province—12 Vic., chapter 197, sec. 4; amended by 18 Vic., chap 6.

Of course all qualifications must be bona fide, and not obtained for the purpose of voting alone.

Windsor Meeting.

GREAT TRIUMPH FOR

MACLEOD!

THE END OF RANKIN'S POWER!

On Friday evening last, the friends of Mr. MacLeod had a large gathering in the Town Hall, Windsor, the meeting having been called for the purpose of addressing the non-residence and opposition of explaining his views to the Electors. The assembly consisted of upwards of 700 men, independent of a number of boys who had been invited to attend by the friends of Mr. Rankin.

Mr. S. S. MACDONNELL, Reeve of Windsor, was unanimously voted to the chair, and introduced Mr. MacLeod to the meeting. The chairman stated that Mr. MacLeod was not as well known in the Upper Townships as he was in those townships which fronted Lake Erie; but a requisition had been very numerously signed by the inhabitants of the County for Mr. MacLeod to address them, and this is the cause of the present meeting.

Mr. CHARLES ELLIOT, jun. asked "are you speaking for Mr. MacLeod?"

The chairman answered, this is a MacLeod meeting, and it has been called together by Mr. MacLeod and his friends with the understanding that he will explain himself as to the course he intends pursuing, if elected by us as a representative in Parliament. Many great questions now agitated the public mind. The Hudson's Bay monopoly was one of them, and also another question, perhaps of greater importance regarding the powers possessed by Members of Parliament to forward their own interest without regard to the rights of those whom they represented. A patient hearing was required for all; but they must be aware that the meeting had been called by the friends of Mr. MacLeod, and if any one felt indisposed to listen to that gentleman they could leave the assembly and give those who wished to hear him, a chance of doing so.

Mr. O'CONNOR having suggested that a given time should be awarded to each speaker, Mr. MacLeod, in coming forward said,

Mr. O'Connor's request was very absurd, as he (MacLeod) had not solicited the pleasure of coming out to address the people—he had been asked to do so by a very large body of the electors, and that was the only ground on which he claimed a right to express their attention. If called out to speak, he conceived he had full liberty to do so, if this was not allowed he might as well be under the dominion of an autocrat. He had been frustrated partly in Sandwich, although he had gained and given a fair hearing to his opponent—Mr. Rankin. He hoped that a like courtesy would be awarded to himself in the present instance, as he intended to speak calmly the truth.

Mr. MacLeod then alluded to the diffidence experienced by an unpractised public speaker in addressing an audience, and to the "congenial obscurity" he had enjoyed in Amhersburg, which had been referred to as his most fitting position. Upon emerging from that obscurity he felt himself strangely circumstanced. Rankin's paper designed him a Yankee Loafer, and also defined what constituted the gentleman. He had discovered, a few years ago, what really made a gentleman, and that was, if a man did not visit at Judge Elliot's he was not a gentleman at all. (Mr. MacLeod then showed that as a private individual he had, in the matter of the Railway stock, looked closely after the interests of the county, while Mr. Rankin had stuffed his own employment first. He (M. MacLeod) had simply done what any other person would do who had invested money in an undertaking which might result profitably; but charges had been recently made against him that would not have been made if he had not come forward for the suffrages of the Electors; his opponent stood in a different position, for no two or three occasions in times past he had failed to witness a vote which he had no interest to serve but that of his own friends, and on one memorable occasion at Amhersburg stated that he would "sooner be torn to pieces by wild horses" than betray the trust reposed in him. If, under the supposition that my own interests were to be sold at first, a private individual, I have to be condemned, to what position is Mr. Rankin placed, who while making the above statement had a bond in his pocket for £25,000 for which the whole constituency were to be sold!

[Mr. MacLeod then read extracts of the evidence from the report given of the proceedings before the "Committee on Railroads in relation to the Great Southern Railway."] This portion of the business being now familiar to all, it is unnecessary to repeat it; but the contrast was shown between the man who should enjoy his "congenial obscurity," and the man who had thrown himself prominently before the public as a representative of the County of Essex. It was evident by the arrangement, with Zimmerman that no guarantee existed where the road would terminate, as it had to go to Zimmerman pleased—either given into the hands of the Great Western or any other Company, which, perhaps, might leave the County of Essex out of the line altogether. Mr. Rankin now endeavors to show that he has full possession of the Road with means at hand to construct it; he can be shown to have no power to act in the matter, as £75,000 now remain in the Bank as stock subscribed for the Amhersburg and St. Thomas Railway, and this fact shows that he cannot exercise the power which he pretends to hold over its future destiny.

JOHN O'CONNOR, Esq., denied the truth of the Speaker's statement, and created thereby a slight interruption of Mr. MacLeod's speech.

The chairman restored order by a few sensible remarks,—stating that every speaker was entitled to a hearing, and that all would be heard in turn—if what MacLeod had said could be controverted the same facility would be awarded to his opponent which was now given to himself.

MacLeod proceeded to say that the heavy incumbrances on the Southern Railway had acted most detrimentally in England, as those who were disposed to invest capital in an undertaking of this kind, were careful in ascertaining that it was not fettered,—as this road evidently was, with a weight of prior claims which would absorb at least one fourth of the means invested in the working operation.

The arrangement with Buchanan was then alluded to, and the new Board of Directors recently formed at London. Much secrecy had attended the proceedings—and it was evident a dodge was meant, as the Directors which Mr. MacLeod required for the purpose of forming his new Board were carefully collected from various parts of the County, and no information given to those who really were directors and held stock in the Southern Railway. One man—Mr. George Gott—was taken to London, and remained there several hours before he knew for what object he had been conveyed to that city; but at last he discovered that he was a Railway Director! The letters informing the original directors, residing in Amhersburg, of the intended meeting were mailed (according to the post-mark) in time to reach their destination after the meeting was over.

Proof was then given that in Rankin's statements at Mersea he had garbled the truth—leaving his own name out in all documentary reading, whenever he was implicated in any transaction relating to the road.

The speaker now sat down, and Albert Prince was loudly called for; upon which Alex. Bartlett desired to ask MacLeod to explain his political views to the meeting.

MacLeod answered by saying that he was both a full blooded Reformer, but he was a Reformer; he wished to see reform progress gradually. He was entirely opposed to the Hudson's Bay monopoly. In taxation, he did not conceive it necessary that fifteen per cent should be paid on all we eat, drink and wear,—he was for reciprocity in trade; he would abolish duties forth as upon Population (comparing Niagara with Essex —one a fraction—the other a community, and yet each bearing the same weight in the Legislative Assembly); with respect to schools, the present Act is voluminous in detail, and it is difficult to carry out all its provisions,—it requires amending; he was an advocate of freedom in religion, freedom in religious education—for equal rights independent of religious bias.

Mr. MacLeod then read a letter which he received from Wm. Bartlett a few days before, and which strongly condemned Rankin's past conduct,—holding him forth as utterly unworthy to represent the County again.

MacLeod's speech was heard with attention and he received many a hearty round of applause.

Mr. ALBERT PRINCE expressed the pleasure he experienced in being at full liberty to address his old friends, and at the same time acknowledged that he owed a debt of gratitude to all those who had complimented him by expressing a wish that he should become a candidate in the ensuing election. He was not a candidate, however, and he entertained no doubt as to the termination of the present contest. Wm. Bartlet's letter, which had just been read, was sufficient proof of the illumination in which Rankin was held, and he considered that the county would never subject itself to the disgrace which must entail upon it, if Arthur Rankin was again elected. Every word in that letter found an echo in his own heart, and he felt no doubt it was responded to by the great majority of those composing the meeting.

He, as an elector, supported J. MacLeod, because he knew that he was worthy of support; he did not give him his countenance on Railway matters alone, as he, like others had been asking for enlightenment on that intricate subject for some time —now they had more information on it than they wished to hear, but this has not been derived from Rankin voluntarily—but has been obtained by the oaths and affidavits of honest men, and wrung from our representative by evidence which had compelled him to make an open confession of his own disgrace. Essex by its late representative, now stood in a position which directed all eyes to its movements, and it was probable that the decision of this county might have an effect upon other constituencies. (He (Prince) might be sneered at by a few who were present for the remarks he made, or was about to make—those who thus acted were simply blinded by their affection for Rankin. If John MacLeod was elected—and of his election we had no doubt—it would be a proof that the people of Essex had awakened to their own interests and to the welfare of the country.

Mr. Prince then read certain passages from the journals of the House, corroborative of all that has been said by this paper, the Globe, the Leader and the Colonist, in reference to Rankin's connection with the road.

After which, Mr. Eliot denied that the bargain with Zimmerman for £25,000 as a railway contract had anything to do with Rankin's Parliamentary obligations as he was not b und to vote in accordance with the contract, it being merely a private transaction.

Albert Prince then asked Mr. Eliot to say whether he would have acted the part who Rankin had done in the Railway business, had he been a representative and not a private individual?

Mr. Eliot great discretion an answer was declined.

"Well," said Mr. Prince, "I am glad to know that there is still a love of truth left among my old associates; my old friend Mr. Eliot, (as silence gives consent), admits that he would not have done so." Had Rankin acted with honesty he would not the peculiarity of his position as an ex use for the course which he pursued—had he said that his necessities compelled him to seek first his own interest, and then the interest of th se whom he represented, it is probable that he might have been returned by a large majority, but he had not the nerve to come out in that position He entered the arena as a Hercules—a Jupiter—and resuscitated a "Mercury" in Sandwich to be the messenger of his dictates to all portions of the county; the Mercury, however, appears not to have quicksilver enough in the body to have given the same effect as the first upper works, and as a messenger it will now fail him. The paper slumbers while Parliament is sitting, and bursts into existence during an election—no one knows where it comes from—and no one cares to ask where it goes to—when the election is over; but those months which rottenness engenders, and fluids its vitality when the essential feed is ready to enable it to burst round and then die.

Mr. Prince then referred to the support which Rankin was likely to receive from the present Ministry in the approaching election as it was given the case of the arrangement made, and his vote might be useful at times. He came forth as the champion of the Southern Railway, but he had cut the ground from under his feet, and John MacLeod was prepared to occupy the ground of the Directors which Mr. Rankin required if he (Rankin) persisted in his course, but the question was not entirely between MacLeod and Rankin, it was a question who involved a principle; it was a question, the answer to which would tell whether railway jobbers and speculators were fit representatives in Parliament—it would tell whether the country of his adoption had to sink lower in the estimation of the nation of the earth, or take the position which nature had destined it to occupy. The principle now pars ed in connection with railways was degrading the country. He had no wish to speak deprecatingly of those who are gone, but one fact could not be lost sight of, and that was, that the policy introduced by Zimmerman was destroying the reputation of Canada in the eyes of the world.

He said Mr. Prince, "wish to view Canada in the same net et as Great Britain; I do not wish to see her retrograde—I wish her to keep pace with her parent. Old England preserves h r courts of justice pure and her Parliament free from intrigue and bribery—it should be our ambition to say the same—to equal if not to excel. Old England lately sent John Paul & Co. to Australia, and Canada sent a Cummings to the Penitentiary: What for? He simply misused the funds of the Bank by lending them to friends—Mr. Rankin has abused the confidence of those whom he ought to have an interference in political matters was forbidden to members of the Legislative Council. When the question was brought forward for decision at Sandwich that $50,000 of stock should be taken in the projected road, his father had opposed it, stating that the money thus set apart would never find its way to the road, but would certainly cling to the pockets of the road agitators.

He opposed his father then, as he believed that he had formed a wrong conception; but since then, time has shown that the old Colonel judged correctly; and whatever may be done in future, one thing should be carefully looked after, namely, that if the road has to be built, the means should be devoted to that purpose, and not find their way into the pockets of contractors. Mr. Prince then called their attention to the fact that John MacLeod had not only prevented fraud, but he had been the main instrument in discovering it and rendering it palpable to the public, and he (MacLeod) had in consequence set a stone rolling which was gathering weight with every instant of time, and its fall would crush those who had attempted to deceive them. Mr. Prince then made a reference to Alex. Bartlet's desire to have political information from the candidate: Mr. Bartlet was, no doubt, an honest man, but at the same time an unfortunate man, as he had got a set of opinions which, theoretically, were very beautiful, but unfortunately they were impracticable, and that was the only fault attached to them—at present they could not be carried out

Mr. Bartlet—They will be.

Mr. Prince—Well, it is probable they may—in time; but we can only deal with things as they are.

Mr. Bartlet—The country is now involved in debt—what is the cause of it?

Mr. Prince said: We are all in debt, in consequence of hard times; and what had caused the hard times? Our present difficulties had their origin in sending men like Rankin to Parliament, as it was to the Parliamentary railway speculating jobbers that we ought to attribute our present embarrassments.

Great disturbance now took place at the extreme end of the Hall, and demonstrations were made for getting up a comfortable fight. The authority of the chairman soon restored order, after which

Mr. Prince proceeded, stating that no fight apparently was intended,—it was merely a railway collision which had taken place—an occurrence not uncommon at the present time. Mr. MacLeod deserved their support, not only because he was in opposition to Rankin, but because his political principles were worthy of the approval of the electors. He was an active, energetic man, and would carry the same energy with him to Parliament which had characterized his business transactions. MacLeod would do his best to introduce gradual reforms, and it was only by this kind of progress that reforms could be rendered permanent—quick revolutions always leaving a country worse than it was before they were attempted. Mr. Prince then said that he had no belief in the arrangements made with Morton of Kingston, but Mr. Rankin's intentions in regard to it were clear to the most superficial observer. Could any one believe in the stability of the new Board of Directors? It comprised a heterogeneous mass of incapables; Mr. Paul Salter, one of the few honest Directors, was appointed because he was unfortunate enough to be a friend of Rankin's; but what does he know about railways? or what do any of the others know? The object was clear to all; it was gone into for the purpose of securing Rankin's election, and the Board had been laughed to scorn wherever the names had been recited in the Province. Mr. Prince concluded by saying that it was his intention to devote a week or two for the purpose of undeceiving the electors with regard to Rankin's intentions, and to assist, as far as his humble abilities would allow, in securing the return to Parliament of John MacLeod, of the honesty of whose motives he entertained no doubt.

Arthur Rankin, Esq., (our late Representative) then came forward and said that he hoped the wish of the chairman would be respected, and that he would receive a hearing with the same attention that had been awarded to his opponents He was pleased to see so large an assembly, as it was a proof that much enlightenment existed in the community, and a general wish exhibited to obtain correct information. He would not speak to the fancy of his auditors, neither would he endavor to play upon their feelings, as he wished to be judged by his acts more than by his words. The time was drawing near when he would have an opportunity of judging his conduct, as public opinion could only be fairly ascertained at the termination of the poll. He was glad that Albert Prince was present, as he was a gentleman, and in replying to him he was not under the necessity of descending as low as he had recently been compelled to do in addressing others. Mr. Prince had deprecated his (Rankin's) immorality and his imperfections as a representative; but could he be accused of the same immoral practices as the last speaker, he would be ashamed to address any assembly. (Hisses.) He could listen to hisses as long as the parties present choose to give them; he did not intend to make a long reply, as the speech just delivered had been given over and over again eighteen months ago.

MacLeod—The facts mentioned by Albert Prince in his speech were not known eighteen months ago.

Rankin continued, saying that Colonel Prince had opposed him in his attempt to get the Southern Railway Charter because he was solicitor to the Great Western; but in spite of his opposition the Southern line was carried. (Cries of "Where to P" "The Colonel was right!")

Mr. Rankin then contended that as a member of society he was at full liberty to take part in any legitimate enterprise. He had expressed his willingness to take it up and "put it through," as the Americans would say; men of activity and energy were potent to undertake such work, and was Albert Prince prepared to say that after a man had spent his time in Parliament and served the public, he should starve, when he had a chance of doing much better for himself without injuring his neighbor. He had made no secret of his intentions when the law was passed; he had freely told all that he intended to make something, and had he caused the expenditure of a million of pounds among his constituents, would he not have benefitted them as well as himself? The taking of a contract, however, was not always a safe business, as they sometimes ruine' the contractor. He had been accused of taking a bribe; he should like to know what was meant by a bribe? He would place his whole conduct before the public, and if unable to convince them that he had maintained his integrity, he would submit to whatever might be the result.

Mr. Rankin then entered into the usual detail of his Parliamentary career, which occupied considerable time; but no new facts were elicited.

After the speeches were concluded the assembly had dwindled to one half of its original proportions, and great impatience was manifested for a division. Too much confusion however prevailed to accomplish this. Three faint cheers were got up for Mr. Rankin, and were followed by a deafening burst of applause for MacLeod, which sufficiently showed the feeling of the meeting

MACLEOD'S Greatest Triumph!

MEETINGS AT ROCHELIEU'S AND BROOKER'S TAVERNS.

Mr. MacLeod held two meetings on Saturday—one at Mr. Rocheleau's Tavern in the Cunard Settlement, and the other at Brookers. Both of these were well attended, and almost unanimous in his favor; and from the support promised him, and cordial reception of him by the older and more respectable French Canadians in that neighborhood, (such as Mr. Antoine Semandre, Messrs. Rocheleau, Laframboise, the Drouillards and others,) there can be no doubt that his share of the French Canadian support will be large. It is as we have long predicted: the French are satisfied that Rankin is all promises and no performance; that no reliance can be placed on his word; and consequently they are determined not again to elect him, but in preference to give MacLeod a trial. Every where was heard the expression, "Let us see what MacLeod will do; he cannot do worse than Rankin."

The conduct of Mr. Rankin in regard to these meetings, was most despicable. He knew that the meeting at Rocheleau's was called at two o'clock, yet he purposely delayed his arrival at it, until 4 o'clock, P. M. MacLeod and his friends had left for Brooker's, and were actually out of sight. At Brooker's, after waiting an hour for him, he appeared; and after speaking a few words on a motion to adjourn to the verandah in front of the house, (the room being crowded almost to suffocation,) he seized the opportunity to escape from the explanation of his conduct, by declaring that he would not speak at all, unless allowed to speak in the room. Of course, this caused confusion, which was his object. It was in vain that the chairman, Mr. MacLeod, Mr. Albert Prince, and many others urged him to take the stand and make any explanation he could offer; he could not be prevailed upon to open his mouth; but sheltered himself under the miserable excuse that he was afraid of a row, (one of his friends having been hurt in the confusion created by himself in the room.) He dare not face MacLeod, because he knows that the falsehoods which he utters when nobody is by to contradict him, would be immediately exposed, if spoken in MacLeod's presence.

Let us all remember our good reasons for voting for MacLeod and against Rankin:

1. Rankin has deceived and betrayed the Roman Catholics, by promising to vote for their Separate School Bill, and then voting against it. To prove this, look at the Journals of the House of Assembly. Mr. William D. Baby has them, and will shew them to any one who enquires.

2. Rankin tried to make the County land to the Southern Railway £50,000, so that he might get it for himself; and the taxes would have been doubled to pay for the interest of this money, if Col. Prince, Mr. Woodbridge the Reeve, and the French Canadians of the Township of Sandwich had not gone and voted against it at Sandwich, and defeated the By-Law. To prove this, Mr. Thomas Woodbridge will shew the records. We all remember it.

3. Rankin has always made us large promises, and has never in any case performed them; but forgotten them as soon as the election was over, and by agreeing to sell his vote and interest in the Southern Railway to Mr. Zimmerman for £25,000 and to Mr. Buchanan for £50,000. He has shewn us that he goes to Parliament for his own interest and not for ours, and he has disgraced this county in the eyes of the whole Province. Mr. W. D. Baby has a copy of the agreement between Rankin, Zimmerman and Buchanan.

Let us all therefore unite in voting for MacLeod and rejecting Rankin; because Rankin has deceived and disgraced us, and will do it again. Let us give MacLeod a chance of proving that he is worthy of our confidence, and we who know him are satisfied that he will not betray that confidence. If we do not like him we can turn him out at the next election. At all events, no one can do worse than Rankin has done. We are certain MacLeod will do better. It is only fair to give him an opportunity.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS—Provided with these remedies, a person of the most delicate physique may brave any climate. They comprehend within the circle of their curative influence all internal diseases not organic and all the varieties of outward inflamation. Be careful not to be imposed upon by a spurious article palmed upon you for genuine. The latter are known by a Water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions accompanying each pot and box: This Water-mark consists of the words 'Holloways, New York and London,' which ought to be seen in semi-transparent letters in the paper. Hold it up to the light.

PUGILISM.—An amusing scene transpired on board the Southern Michigan Railway cars, the other night. A decently dressed individual, whose appreciation of female character was rather obtuse, either from too free a use of beverages discountenanced by Father Matthew and Neal Dow, or from a defective education, reversed the seat in front of one occupied by a lady passenger, thus securing as he thought, a very desirable vis a vis. In his anxiety to secure an agreeable disposition of his limbs, the exact symetry of one of those originating at dexter his shoulder, assured a liberty of anything but agreeable to a lady of sensibility and spirit. The insulted fair one rose majestically from her seat, her dark eyes flashing in wrath, and with a commanding voice, bade the ungentlemanly intruder to change his seat to his former position. He obeyed with reluctance. When fairly seated, the indignant dame seized him by his luxuriant foretop, held his head firmly to the back of the seat, and pummelled him in a manner that would have won for her a prize champion belt—to her, and we may add to his credit be it recorded, he never attempted to resent the insult.—Toledo Comiet.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"
COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

CONTEMPORARY PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a lite rature commercial pursuing and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence of the month, with religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, each family needs a religious and general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, (post paid) to JOHN DOUGALL, Witness Office, Montreal Montreal, December 1st, 1857.

MOFFATT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities.—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent; with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share,	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.
And for three years 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of soaring in the gentle at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

MANUFACTURER OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF FANCY AND PLAIN POTTERY WARE.
The material that he uses cannot be surpassed in the Province for fineness and durability, and being an experienced hand as a manufacturer is enabled to supply an article that is inferior to none. His facilities for carrying on the business enable him to furnish ware at the most reasonable prices, at his Establishment in POTTERSVILLE adjoining Epham Cursey's Sulphur Springs, in the Township of Colchester.
Draining Tiles of superior manufacture also made, and farmers are requested to encourage home manufacture before going elsewhere, and perhaps buying an inferior article. Sugar Troughs are also manufactured at this establishment, which have been found superior to anything yet used for the same purpose.
Mr. Ferris of Colchester has used them, and will certify to their superior qualities.
Mr McGee, Merchant at Amherstburg has been appointed agent for the disposal of his wares.
Colchester, Feb. 5th, 1857.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS
CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.
The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system,
Used throughout the World!
HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.
Alarming Disorders!
Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the blood, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.
General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!
When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.
Delicate Females!
All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible Aperients. No mother who guards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.
Scientific Endorsements!
The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.
Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 624 cents, and $1 each.
There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.
N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. v1n43
CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London" are discernible as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

North Shore Line of Steamboats
DETROIT AND BUFFALO.
THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:
PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Willleave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays
These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequaled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.
For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained
For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.
Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Symons, Kinsman & Co., merchandise from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.
C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

WABASH VALLEY, (New Propeller.)
Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.
This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.
A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week, during the season, affording good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.
Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandise, via
New York & Erie Railroad
on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.
This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.
J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.
Farmers
Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.
N. B. — Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

REPLY
To THOMAS PAXTON, Esq.,
and upwards of One Thousand other Electors of the County.

GENTLEMEN,

Although it is much against my own inclination to enter into Public Life, I cannot refuse to comply with the request of so large and influential a body of Electors, that I should allow myself to be put in nomination as a Candidate for the Representation of this County.

At the outset, I frankly avow to you that I shall be prepared to support a liberal Conservative Government.

In the present lull in our political affairs, it is not difficult to perceive, that ere long, certain great measures, as yet indistinctly presenting themselves to our view, and of most vital importance to the future of our Country such as the establishing of a permanent Seat of Government; the extension of the boundaries of Canada; the confederation of all the British North American Provinces; and a new organization of our Colonial Government: will exercise the Public mind. To any new Measures as they are brought forward, I shall give an earnest, liberal, and patriotic consideration.

There is one Question, however, that in my judgment, must immediately engage the attention of our Legislature, and which deeply concerns us—I mean the Question in regard to the Hudson's Bay Company. On that question I must unequivocally declare my opinion to be, that the great monopoly enjoyed by the Hudson's Bay Company, should be abolished, and that the vast territory under their sway, should be added to Canada, and thrown open to colonization, and the benefits of civilization.

In regard to our Educational System I shall be ready to advocate and support a General Law conferring equal rights, and making similar provisions in respect to Separate Schools, both for Upper and Lower Canada.

In Railway Matters, I shall ever have regard to the welfare of the County at large. I am in favor of an independent line of Railway being constructed through this Peninsula, having a Terminus at Sandwich as well as at Amherstburg.

With the assurance that my best efforts will be given to promote the interests of the County, should I be elected as your Representative,

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient and faithful Servant
JOHN MACLEOD.
Sandwich, December 8th, 1857.

REPONSE.

A Monsieur Paxton et à plus de mille autres Electures du Comté d Essex,

Messieurs,

Quoiqu'est soit contre mon inclination d'embrasser la vie publique, Je ne puis cependant me refuser de m rendre à la solicitation d'un si grand nombre d'Electeurs en permettant qu'on me mette en no ination comme candidat pour la representation de ce Comté

Premiérement permettez moi de vous avouer franchement que Je suis près à supporter un Gouvernement Conservatif mais liberal.

Vu le calme de nos affaires politiques, il n'est pas difficile d'appercevoir qu'avant longtems certaines mesures qui ne se presentent encore que bien indistinctement à notre vue, mais de la plus haute importance pour l'avenir de notre pays; tel que Testablissement du siége permanent du Gouvernement, l'extention de bondées du Canada, la confederation de toutes les Provinces de l'Amerique Britanique du Nord, et une nouvelle organizatson de notre Gouvernement Colonial, occuperont très vivement l'esprit public.

Je donnerai à toutes mesures nouvelles ma plus serieuse considération en même tems que libérale et patriotique.

Il y a une question cependant qui, selon moi, doit immédiatement occuper l'attention de notre Législature, et qui est d'un très grand interet pour nous tous. Je veux parler de la question de la Baie d'Hudson. Je vous déclare ici sans aucun équivoque, que le grand monopole dont a jouis jusqu'a ce jour la compagnie de la Baie d'Hudson doit être aboli, et le vaste territoire qui se trouve sous son controle soit ajouté au Canada pour être ouvert à la colonization et à la civilization.

Pour ce qui a rapport à notre système d'éducation, je suis prêt à supporter acône la générale, qui nous donnera des droits égaux pour les Ecoles Séparées tans pour le Haut que le Bas-Canada.

Dans les affaires de Chémins de fer, je prendrai toujours en consideration le bien être du Comté en général. Je suis en faveur de la construction d'une ligne indépendente de chemin de fer à travers cette Péninsule, ayant son terminus à Sandwich aussi bien qu'à Amherstburg.

Recevez, Messieurs, l'assurance que si j'ai l'honneur d'être élu votre Representant Je ferai tout en moi pour promouvoir les interêts du Comté.

Je suis, Messieurs,
Votre fidèle et obéissant serviteur,
JOHN MACLEOD.

RAILWAY EXPLANATIONS!

After the return of Mr. MacLeod from his tour in the Upper Townships, he intended, being much fatigued, to go on his way home, without holding another meeting.—But being desired by a few Towns-people to meet them, and give them a quiet and plain explanation of how railway matters really stood, in reference particularly to the Southern Railway, he kindly consented to do so, and met them at Tenkle's Hotel, on Friday (yesterday) at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Bullock moved, seconded by Mr. J. B. Gauthier, that Thomas Woodbridge, Esq., act as Chairman. Carried.

The chairman took his seat. It was then moved by J. H. Wilkinson, seconded by Mr. Davis, that William Johnson, Esq., act as Secretary. Carried.

Mr. Woodbridge opened the meeting by saying, that Mr. MacLeod came before them at the request of several of the Electors of Sandwich, to give them a quiet and truthful history of the Southern Railway agitation. It was not a political meeting and would be confined strictly to railway matters.

He begged to call upon Mr. MacLeod.—Mr. MacLeod rose and said that he now addressed them as one of the selves, as an Elector, and would not allude to Mr Rankin, except as a member of Parliament, in his connections with railway transactions.

He then went on to show, in what a different position he stood, to that of Mr. Rankin. Mr. MacLeod whenever he made an assertion, produced documents to prove their correctness, and convinced his hearers, most incontestibly, that the railway move, including bogus Engineers, &c., was only another political trap to deceive the Electors. Mr. MacLeod referred to the reports that had been so industriously circulated, to the effect, that he was linked to the Great Western Railway—He denied it most empathatically—he had always been opposed to the Great Western Railway, and would never rest, until that monopoly was done away with, and an independent line built. Should he go to Parliament, he was determined to unite himself with Col. Prince to obtain that desirable object.

A letter which we subjoin from Mr. James Zimmerman, who represents the estate of his late brother S. Zimmerman, was read, to the gaping astonishment of a certain legal gentleman, who has labored so severely to gloss over the rascalities of Mr. Rankin.

After the conclusion of Mr. MacLeod's remarks, the same limb of the law, wished to be allowed to say a few words—He said that he had not heard of this meeting, and that it was a hole and corner meeting—a political dodge! dodge!! dodge!!! He then got entangled in a maze of railway explanations—was several times caught in misstatements by Mr. Woodbridge,—and was at last fairly bowled out.

A vote of confidence was moved by Mr. George Bullock, and seconded by Mr. Overton, to the effect, that the meeting was quite satisfied with Mr. MacLeod's explanations, and placed the utmost confidence in him.—Carried.

It was most gratifying to see so many respectable Townspeople present, at an unpremeditated meeting, and we feel satisfied that the plain and straightforward explanations of Mr. MacLeod have gained him more votes than if he had dwelt for hours upon his honor, honesty, and injured innocence.

LETTER.

HAMILTON, 14th December, 1857.

To JOHN MACLEOD, Esq.,

Dear Sir,

I have been asked by a friend of yours if Mr. Rankin's statement to the Electors of Essex are correct, with reference to the Southern Railway, and have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Rankin has no control over the Southern Railway. I was present at the meeting referred to by Mr. Rankin, and wish you to understand distinctly that Mr. Rankin has no right to say so, or to state that he has secured the building of the head quarters and workshops on the Detroit River. This you can use if necessary, and understand, you have my best wishes.

Yours truly,

JAS. ZIMMERMAN.

The above was the hurried account we gave in our Extra of last week, of the very satisfactory meeting held by Mr. MacLeod at this place, and we left as soon as the chairman vacated the chair. We are informed, however, that Mr. O'Connor was not satisfied with having made himself supremely ridiculous, but must needs get another chairman elected, and continued his attempted counter explanations. He stated that the railway was about to be built immediately that the amalgamation had been effected and the deed drawn on—Mr. Woodbridge—"Do you say the deed is drawn out and signed?" well it is not exactly drawn out but the heads of it are, just as a Lawyer would arrange the preliminaries for a deed he was instructed to draw out—of course, this created much laughter and Mr. O'Connor found himself fairly caught in his own trap. He went on to say however that it would be signed on the 19th of January—a voice—"The Election would be all over then." The meeting had now dwindled down to about half a dozen, no one seemed inclined to listen any longer to Mr. O'Connor's rigmarole of a story. Mr. Paul Salter attempted to say something, but as there was no one to listen to him, (the people, what few there were left, having gone into the bar room,) and finding it of no use talking to empty walls, they very quietly left the house, seeming very much dissatisfied with the result.

To prove how utterly false are the statements put forth by Mr. Rankin and his organ, we copy the following from Mr Buchanan's speech:

MR BUCHANAN was then called upon. He considered it a very distressing thing, that any had shewn the conduct in its proper light.—hear, hear. There never was such a set of lies told as had been during the election, and especially that day. It was a lie of the basest kind to affirm that the workshops of the Great Southern Railway would be on the Detroit River. Why, the contractors could not fix the location of the workshops. The shareholders would settle that, 18 months hence. A voice—Why, certainly. If the Great Western built the road the shops would probably be in Hamilton.—hear, hear. If the road should be carried through by an independent Company, the shops would probably be in Hamilton."—hear, hear.

Now at the Windsor Meeting, Mr. Rankin unequivocally declared, that all the work-shops, &c., of the Great Southern myth, were to be located at or near Windsor.

At Trudell's, he stated that he had the contracts in his pocket, and the complete control of the Southern Railway—and that after after having assigned away all his stock, and swore that he had no interest in the matter whatever—Really the audacity of this desperate man is prodigious. We must however give Rankin credit for having well played his game. Unfortunately for him, the cards (a pack of lies) were such that he could not hold a winning hand. Satisfied are we now, that all the thinking community are with us, the contradictions and deceptions have been monstrous, but the people at last see through them—the veil is torn away, and Rankin stands exposed to the public gaze, in all his naked deformity. We have before us, several sheets of the Mercury; we will not, and cannot notice that paper without degradation to ourselves, and injury to our cause; its transparent lies and pregnant beastiality, must and will recoil on itself.

Rankin's Consistency on the School Question.

As Rankin has attempted to gain the support of the Roman Catholic portion of the Electors of Essex, by professing to have worked for their interests, wholly and entirely in the School Question, and, as he boasts, "has worked to the utmost of his ability for the Catholic interest," we now propose to prove to that portion of the community, that all his professions in this respect are as false as the generality of his assertions, and that many of his actions prove them to be so

The best proof that we can produce, is, his votes in the Legislature Assembly, when Rankin voted side by side with George Brown upon the School Question, and it is only necessary to mention Rankin's name in Committee with Brown's, to prove that he was not acting the part of a friend to the Roman Catholic, when he voted upon that question.

Rankin has tried his best to deceive the Roman Catholics and to ride into Parliament upon their backs. Will they allow themselves to be made the hobby-horse of such an individual as Rankin? We certainly think not.

We copy below from the Journals of the House, a report of the various votes upon the Separate School Question in which it will be seen, that Rankin on every occasion voted against the Separate School Bill by the side of George Brown, while he boasts and swears by all that's sacred, that he always has and always will work for them. His attempts to deceive them will be fruitless,—they must by this time have seen that Rankin only wishes to use them, while the Election lasts.

Read for yourselves.

On motion of the Honorable Mr. Attorney General Macdonald, seconded by the Honorable Mr. Cayley, Ordered, That the Bill from the Legislative Council, intitule., "An act to amend the Laws relating to Separate Schools in Upper Canada," be now read for the first time.

The Bill was accordingly read the first time.

Ordered, That the Bill be printed for the use of the members of this House.

The Honorable Mr. Attorney General Macdonald moved, seconded by the Honorable Mr. Cayley, that the Bill be read a second time tomorrow;

Mr. Brown moved in amendment to the Question, seconded by Mr. Hartman, That the words "Tomorrow" be left out, and the words "This day six months" inserted instead thereof;

And the question being put on the Amendment; the House divided:—And it passed in the negative.

Then the main Question being put; the House divided: and the names being called for, they were taken down as follows:—

A scribbler in the Mercury, has attempted to smooth over the riotous conduct of Rankin and his half dozen supporters at the Cross Meeting. The conduct of those few low-bred ruffians on that occasion, should be discountenanced by every respectable elector in the county. They are only fit to accompany their patron, the ex-member for Essex, who, by the way, appears most devotedly attached (and more especially at election times) to such disorderly and disreputable characters, as he then had with him.—They are certainly a most convenient set of people, for he has only to give them the nod, to prevent a speaker being heard when anything more truthful than pleasant is being told, which he does not wish to be heard. The only salvation now, for Rankin is, to stifle open discussion, and prevent the truth being told, and for this purpose a band of rowdies and ruffians were collected at the Cross Meeting, to prevent Mr. MacLeod from addressing the electors present. Such a riot was got up, that the Chairman, and the orderly and respectable portion of the meeting, left in utter disgust at the conduct of a few drunken loafers.

This conduct alone is sufficient to prevent all well-disposed persons from giving Rankin any support, for if he dreads to hear the plain and simple truth, he is certainly not the person to represent a large and enlightened county like Essex. Will the electors, we ask, vote for a man, (?) who is afraid to have his past public conduct canvassed, and would with a band of loafers, prevent the electors from having a plain and undeniable history of his Parliamentary career? we answer most empathatically, no! If such a man should become again the choice of Essex, a dark cloud will be cast over her, that will take years to disperse; it would be a disgrace, deep and lasting.

The following is the opinion of H. C. Baker, Esq., of Hamilton as expressed at a public meeting in Hamilton, a short time since, upon the subject of the Southern Railway. We find that it is not alone in Essex, that Mr. Rankin is regarded in his true colours. He is from one end of the Province to the other, held up as a subject of contempt, for his dishonesty and vile acts.

Let the Electors consider well before they send such a man to Parliament. It would be a disgrace to the County of Essex that would for long years cast a shadow over her fair fame. "But they were willing to investigate the Great Southern Railway project fully, for a more iniquitous scheme was never brought forward. Mr. Rae had stated a fact of the most damning character, i. e., that Mr. Morton of Kingston, who was to take the place of the late Mr. Zimmerman on this continent, held a contract of the Southern line, in connection with the notorious Rankin. (Hear, hear.)—This fact if published throughout the country, would form one of the most damning facts connected with that nefarious scheme." (Cheers.)

☞ In the account given by Mr. Rankin's friends, of the Meeting at Trudell's, they state that, a resolution was passed, to the effect, that Mr. Rankin possessed the confidence of the Meeting—Mr. Todd, the Chairman, has taken our office, and authorized us to say, that such a resolution was never put.—As to the statement, that MacLeod ran away and left his supper unpaid for, we will let that go for what it may fetch. The effect this meeting at Trudell's had, is wonderful—a respected Magistrate of Rankin's creation, was actually carried off his legs by it, was biologized, and never came to himself until next morning, and found himself, where?—In a Stall, in a Stable, rolling amongst his congenial filth!

Rankin's Success on Sandwich Street.

Another meeting was called by the Ex-Member for Essex, on Monday last, at Bower's Tavern, on the Sandwich Street. He was there made to feel the weakness of his position in a most positive manner, for after attempting by mistatements to deceive the Electors, in a long and laboured discourse, which consisted of an extraordinary amount of praise of himself and abuse of Mr. MacLeod, which he supposed, no doubt, had the desired effect and had placed him high in their estimation. But when at the close of the meeting three Cheers were given for Mr. MacLeod, and one of the persons who was in Rankin's train, proposed a cheer for him, there was not a single individual to answer,—Rankin had not a single supporter at the meeting; not even one!!! Three Groans were then proposed to be given for the Ex Member, who had sold the interests of the county for the benefit of his own pocket. This was responded to, in right good earnest. Rankin was fairly groaned off the ground, and a more disconsolate and chop fallen individual than Arthur Rankin could not be found.

Messrs. Macdonell and Woodbridge followed the Parliamentary Humbug, and attended this Rankin meeting, and laid bare many of the inconsistency and dishonest transactions of the Ex-Member.

Mr. Thornton was appointed Chairman of the meeting, and at the close declared the assembly unanimously in favor of Mr. MacLeod.

This is only a begining of Rankin's unhappy career, for when he attempted the meeting at Leonard Wigle's, on the Town ship of Maidstone, on the same evening, he met with the same encouragement. He had not more than a dozen friends in a meeting of two hundred; every day his supporters are leaving him and pledging their votes to Mr. MacLeod who at least is an honest man, which is more than can be said of Arthur Rankin.

The reports from all parts of the Lower Townships are of the most encouraging description, MacLeod is gaining friends every day and Rankin losing them.

From the Northern Townships a friend reports that Rankin's great majorities there, are all bosh, that the Townships will be about equally devided.

Then we come to Sandwich where Rankin boasted of his 300 majority, we can just plainly tell him, that he will have no majority. The French Canadians are determined not to support the man of all promises. Each day of his career opens their eyes more to his treachery.

THE INGENUITY OF A FOX.—Mr. M. Butt Hewson, "Chief Engineer of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway," has addressed a letter to John Spencer, Esq., the President of the Road, stating "that has been, and what is intended to be done. The prospects, as may be expected, are very flattering. We quote a paragraph:—

"The reaction in the money market makes your board, I am quite aware, impartial to routine delay. But we must, after all, follow the formulary. Your the surveying gentleman in question so well deserves, would be freely bestowed on him. One word more and I have done—are you not the more astonished, when you find that the sympathies of this very Rev. Sir, are all enlisted on behalf of Mr. Rankin—a man so morally fallen, as to be looked down upon with contempt from all parts of the province? Verily this clergyman must have fallen in his own estimation, as he certainly has, in that of his parishioners.

VERITAS.

To the ELECTORS of Essex, and especially to those of the Town and Township of Sandwich:

GENTLEMEN,

Being a friend of the Great Southern Railway, and having had some experience in railway matters, I made a survey of the works now in progress in this town. I found that the Road was in rather a bad state and not likely to run well, as it is very uneven. I wish to call your attention to a few facts, which you all will admit are indisputable. Mr. Rankin was elected three years ago, to represent us in Parliament, on the Liberal Reform Ticket. That he has been liberal no one will deny; his first act was to increase his pay from four to six dollars per day! which is certainly a specimen of liberality; he next got the famous Railway charter, and after which, he comes post haste to Sandwich, calls the people together, and urges them to subscribe £50,000 towards building the road, which, if they did, they were all to become suddenly, rich. Fortunately for this Township, there was a certain old gentleman present, (who can see as far through a mill stone as most men,) who warned them, if they subscribed the money, that it would only find its way into the pockets of railway sharpers, instead of being used for the purpose for which it was intended. But, surely he was mistaken for the road is already in progress, and has reached Jessop's Hotel, where through the cunning of a certain individual, it is raising a dust, calculated to blind the electors. Again Rankin has dubbed the people of Sandwich a set of niggers and Frenchmen who didn't know their own interest; I will tell you when: Last Session of Parliament, a petition was sent up, signed by the most respectable and nearly all the inhabitants of Sandwich, praying that the Town might be incorporated, when he immediately opposed it, saying that they were so ignorant, that they could not write their own names!

Electors, will you support any person who will thus grossly insult you! do you think your interests can prosper under the hands of such a man! I think not. Let Mr. Rankin know, that you are not to be despised.

Vote for MacLeod.

BY TELEGRAPH FROM AMHERSTBURG.

Amherstburg, Dec. 23, 1857.

Mr. MacLeod very successful in Mersea at Rankin's own meeting on Monday night. Five hundred present, Five to one in MacLeod's favor. Tuesday night at School House, 8th Concession, two hundred present, resolution passed in favor of MacLeod, only three persons opposing.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

Dear Sir,

A report has been industriously circulated, by Mr. Rankin and his party that the Great Western Company is assisting me in this election; my answer to this is, that it is an unmitigated falsehood, I never in my life, have spoken either directly or indirectly, nor even had any correspondence with Mr. Brydges the Managing Director of that Railway, nor with any of his employees and that I always have been opposed to the parties connected with it, as it was by the combination of Mr. Brydges Mr. Rankin and Mr. Zimmerman, that Mr. Rankin twice obstructed the building of the Southern Railway, after the contract had been let and the money paid in, and it is to this effect, that both Amhersburg and Sandwich are now without a Railway.

Mr. Rankin and those connected with him have so burthened the present charter with bribes and incumbrances, that no capitalists can be found to take hold of it. It is therefore my intention, if elected, to join with Colonel Prince in endeavoring to obtain a new charter, free from all such bribes and incumbrances.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

JNO. MACLEOD.

A Political Parson.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

DEAR SIR,

There is a certain Revd. gentleman, who seems to take the greatest interest in our political affairs; this may be seen by his attending all political meetings near by, and it is quite refreshing to observe the gleeful manner in which he rubs his, not over well-washed hands, or stamps his foot, when he thinks his pet candidate has made a hit.—Now, I for one, Mr. Editor, deprecate the interference of the clergy in secular matters, and think it most undignified to see a clergyman attending meetings that are always more or less riotous, and on the outskirts of which, profanity runs loose. I have often heard the Roman Catholic Priests accused of meddling with politics, and influencing their parishioner's votes! pray tell me what would be the consequence if Father Point were to walk into the Town Hall, or to a political meeting with his soutane on, or even in plain clothes, should he be known? why sir, there would be a hue and cry from one end of the Province to the other, no name could be too bad for him, and that of meddlesome priest, which the Rev. gen-

Sir,—Will you permit me, through the columns of the Herald, to place before your readers my opinion—called forth by the force of circumstances—that the present contest between the rival candidates in Essex seems to be in a strange jumble. One might suppose, from the effusions of the Rankin organ, that railroads are the only thing about which the electors of this county ought to think. From this sentiment, however, I must differ. While I appreciate Railways as a great boon to Canada, I must, as a business man, esteem the prosperity of Canadian industry as far greater. Railroads without industry would be a dead letter; for it is very clear that industry and the wealth it has created have made railroads, and not railroads industry. Therefore, I would calmly ask the Electors of Essex to consider, in the present strife—to decide for them selves, apart from the excitement created by the appeals about railroads. The question will then narrow itself into a point, viz., whether has Mr. MacLeod or Mr. Rankin taken the broadest view of the real interests of Canada? for we all may be perfectly sure that measures which will benefit the whole country will benefit Windsor. Its position will command it. Although Mr. MacLeod is striving to secure the building of the Southern Railway to have a terminus at Amherstburg, yet his views about the general interests of the county, and especially his earnest wish to encourage the industry of the country, as expressed in his speech in the Town Hall at Windsor, are so clear and so forcible that they deserve the serious consideration of every working man, and more, the warm support of every business man; and I believe he will be supported in these views by nine tenths of the business men in Canada.

You have, Mr. Editor, repeatedly called the attention of your readers to the importance of having a reform in the laws that govern our money, and find such a confirmation of your views in Mr. MacLeod's speech, that I think every man who wishes well to himself or country, must feel it a duty he owes to his children to support that gentleman. What Mr. Rankin's views about these matters are I cannot say, for he has never furnished the people with any. From his position, I should suppose he would be averse to any measure which would alter the present state of things, as it is likely he can best benefit himself as things are. I have been reading both the Herald and Mercury, and I cannot see any information that is to be obtained of Mr Rankin's principles, which I think every elector has a right to demand. We have plenty of personal abuse of Mr. MacLeod—in short, so much of it that it is only making the wavering decide in MacLeod's favor. The sensible part of the people look beyond railroad squabbles, and are anxious to hear men's views and principles enacted that will remedy unsteady business and make work for the industrious. It may be said that on this point it matters little which man you send to Parliament, as he will only be one in the House. No doubt this is very true; but one energetic man can do a great deal provided his views are sound and he has an earnest conviction of their truth. It is the way to make him work.—Of the two candidates MacLeod has the advantage every way. He is a first-rate business man, and mixed up with the people, and is earnest withal, while Rankin is no more a business man than banks and accounts will make him, and is isolated from the combinations and wants of the people. Again I ask you to think of this subject calmly—put the railroad away and look to the country, and you will do best for our prosperity. We want men of work and plenty of business, and then you will find there will be no want of Railways. Make the country rich in work and trade, and you will then be able to build your own Railways. If you throw away your prejudices and think calmly between the candidates, I am certain, for your own interests, you will vote for Mr. MacLeod.

JUSTICE.

The following Letter will convince the public that the individual who wrote it is destitute of every feeling of honor and principle; for a man who, after writing that letter can canvass for the person he abuses in it, must be unfit for the society of any honest man, and his support must damage any cause he is associated with.

WINDSOR, 23rd Nov., 1857

JOHN MACLEOD, Esq.,

DEAR SIR,—In thinking over the chance of your successfully opposing Rankin at the forthcoming Election, I perhaps spoke too despondingly; In taking a second thought of Rankin's conduct, and the disgrace it would be to the County to re-Elect him, I think with a good active canvass you would succeed in ousting him. Politics or political principles in this county would avail nothing, neither have many of the Electors any more confidence in you than in him, but I think it altogether likely they might be more willing to trust you who are untried, and can only be accused on suspicion, whereas Rankin has sold himself over and over again for pecuniary motives as a member of Parliament.

The Railway, I think, cannot be used as a question for any advantage to you or Rankin; in fact, I think the state of the money market and the low price of Railroad Stocks and Bonds ought to be fully explained, by those whose politics are Railroads. I think if you are decided in coming forward, you must do so immediately, and not leave a stone unturned to secure your Election.

The Amherstburg Committee have always done wonders in Electioneering, and they surely cannot wish a weaker opponent than Rankin, or a man more destitute of principle.

I am sorry my circumstances will not allow me to canvass the County for you, (although I would like a full blooded Clear Grit better,) but I find myself unable to go round the County with you, for if people do not wait for me I cannot pay ten cents on the Dollar. I will see you on Friday if all's well, and will see you at Bow.

I am, Dear Sir,

Yours Truly,

(Signed.) WM. BARTLET.

Canada Directory.

Lovell's Canada Directory has been placed upon our table, and a more thorough and complete work of the kind has never been published; it contains statistical information of a most valuable description relating to every Village, Town and City, in the Province.

The work is of the largest size, containing 1544 pages; and is published by John Lovell, Esq., Montreal, at Five Dollars a vol.

The agent for this work is now travelling through this County and will supply them to subscribers.

VERY THICK BOOTS.—Frederic the Great was very fond of disputation; but as he generally terminated the discussion by collaring his antagonist and kicking his shins, few of his guests were disposed to enter into the arena against him. One day when he was more than usually disposed for an argument, he asked one of his suite why he did not venture to give his opinion on some particular question. "It is impossible, your majesty," was the reply, "to express an opinion before a sovereign who has such very strong convictions, and who wears such very thick boots!"

'It is very hard, my Lord,' said a convicted felon at the bar to Judge Burnet, 'to hang a poor man for stealing a horse.' You are not to be hanged sir,' answed the judge, for sterling a horse, but you are to be hanged that horses may not be stolen.

Birth.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

COMMERCIAL PRICES AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most powerful religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, [post paid] to JOHN DOUGALL, Witness Office, Montreal Montreal, December 1st, 1857.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities.—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a limited nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $2.58.

For seven years at the same rate 2.85.
And for three years - 6.35.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, as with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Rankin Chastised!

His Railway Trickery Analized in Parliament by George Brown, M. P.

(From the Globe of June 9.)

Mr. Brown—I have merely spoken of the scheme the hon. gentlemen has before the country; and in going into it a little more fully I shall not deal in loose statements, I shall not even adopt the written evidence of other parties. I shall confine my comments strictly and exclusively to the hon. gentleman's own evidence, prepared and dictated with the greatest care and deliberation. The hon. member for Waterloo would have it appear that the Bill before the House is an independent scheme, framed to get quit of all the parties charged with corrupt practices But in this the case? Who was the framer of this Bill? who introduced it? who is the first member in this House to rise in its defence? Who, sir, but the hon. member for Essex? And there is this remarkable fact connected with this Bill, that the very party who thus promotes it, is the President at this moment of the very charter he asks us to repeal! We cannot look at this bill apart from the historical associations that are now unhappily attached to it; we cannot vote in favour of it without endorsing all its antecedents. A fierce battle has been waging for weeks past in our committee rooms—the eyes of our people have been steadily watching its progress—it is known that persons charged with the most corrupt proceedings are seeking to get control of the Southern Road through this charter—and if we pass it assuredly we will be held, and justly held, to have endorsed all the past proceeding of these persons, and sent them broad on society to repeat their operations. I do trust the House will never record a vote charged as it will be with inferences so lamentable—and if I can command its attention for a brief space while I lay before it a few points in the evidence of hon. member for Essex very certain am I that no such vote will be given. Mr. Rankin, Mr. Speaker, was called as a witness on behalf of his own Bill; and he begins his evidence with this statement, that in 1855, HE introduced a bill to incorporate a company called the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, that during the same session a bill was introduced "authorizing the Woodstock and Lake Erie *R*ailway and *H*arbour Campany to make extensions eastwardly to the Suspension Bridge, and westwardly to St. Thomas," and that power was given to amalgamate the said line with the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Company. Now, Sir, the House will observe that here the proceeding commenced which have eventuated in the present struggle and the bill before the House. I need hardly say, that in this bill, of 1855, Mr. Rankin duly installed himself a Corporator and Provisional Director, with coadjutors, far from opposed to the views and interests of the hon. gentleman. Well, sir, what was the next step? "In February, 1856," says Mr. Rankin, "finding that the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway Company had not as yet made any exertion whatever towards obtaining subscriptions"—"I introduced a bill to amend and extend the charter of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company," by authorising among other things, "the extension of the road to the Suspension Bridge, independent of the Woodstock and Lake Erie Line.' Well, sir, he tells us this extension was not granted, and he had to fall back on the Woodstock and Lake Erie. His bill received the Royal assent on the 1st July, 1856, and on the 3rd, two days after, the hon. gentleman goes to work. Let me read from his evidence:—"I entered into a written agreement with Mr. Zimmerman, dated at the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, on the 3rd July, 1856, by which I agreed to unite with Mr. Zimmerman!" Now, let us see the terms of their agreement - and here is the document itself—[hear.]

"Agreement Between S. Zimmerman and A. Rankin.

"It is hereby agreed, by and between the undersigned, that they shall mutually exert themselves in endeavoring to effect amalgamation between the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway and Harbour Company, and the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, and that Arthur Rankin shall unite with Samuel Zimmerman in endeavoring to obtain the contract for building the Railway from St. Thomas to Amherstburg and Windsor, as provided by the charter of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, with the understanding, and upon the condition that the said Rankin shall be entitled to, and receive one-fourth of the profits arising from such contract; should the said Zimmerman, either in his own name only, or associated with others, succeed in obtaining the same. The said Zimmerman however, shall have the right at any time within twelve months (but not after the expiration of that period) from the date hereof, to acquire the interest of the said Rankin in the above mentioned contract, on paying him (said Rankin) the sum of twenty five thousand pounds in the following manner, that is to say: the sum of twelve thousand pounds down, and the remaining thirteen thousand pounds within one month after the day on which the Railway from St. Thomas to Amherstburg or Windsor, or any other point on the Detroit River is finished and open for traffic; Interest on the last mentioned thirteen thousand pounds shall be paid half yearly on the 1ts January and 1st July, by the said Samuel Zimmerman, to the said Rankin, till the principal is paid as above stipulated.

Signed and sealed at the Clifton House, Falls of Niagara, this third day of July, 1856

(Signed,) Samuel Zimmerman, [Seal]
" Arthur Rankin, [Seal]
Joseph A. Woodruff, Witness.

The following memorandum was given by Mr. Rankin, after Mr. Zimmerman's death:

MEMO. FOR MR. VANSITTART.

If Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Street (on behalf of Mr. Wythes) will bind themselves to carry out the arrangements entered into between Mr. Zimmerman and myself, with reference to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway, and to protect my interests to the full extent to which Mr. Zimmerman had agreed, in writing over his own signature, and further, to protect the rights of all other parties, derived from the late Mr. Z., which have been reduced to writing and signed, I will at once abandon all opposition to their plans, and do my utmost to reconcile all conflicting interests. A. R.

This is no loose statement of the hon. gentleman's proceedings—we have every word of this under his own hand and seal—(hear, hear) and we learn that his first step, though at that very moment a provisional director of the road, though at that very moment standing in a fiduciary capacity between the stock holders and future contractors was to make a secret agreement that a certain party by his influence at the Board and in this House, should have the contract for the road; and for the exertion of that influence, he himself should have one hundred thousand dollars! (sensation.) Well, sir, the plot is laid, the plans for developing it are arranged, let us mark its progress. "On the 5th July, 1856," Mr Rankin goes on, "a meeting of the Provisional Committee was held at St. Thomas, at "which five of the members of that Com-"mittee were present. Mr. Zimmerman "appeared at that meeting and proposed to "subscribe, in his own name, and in the names "of certain friends of his, for a sufficient "amount of stock to form the company under "the amended Act, on the following condi "tions," and I pray the House to mark the conditions: "First, that he should be "permitted to deposit the amount of the first "call upon the stock, viz: ten per cent, in the "Zimmerman Bank"—in Mr. Zimmerman's own Bank—in the Bank of Mr. Rankin's secret partner—and secondly, "that after he, Mr. Zimmerman, had subscribed 'the Provisional Committee should close the books'" and thereby secure the contract in the hands of Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) There were five gentlemen present at the meeting besides the member for Essex—three of them members of this House, Mr. Southwick, Mr. Larwill and Mr. Macbeth. These gentlemen were induced by Mr. Rankin to do all this, they consented to give Mr. Zimmerman entire control of the road. Now, will any one of these gentlemen get up here now and state that Mr. Rankin then told them, or that they had the slightest suspicion that at that very moment Mr. Rankin had an agreement in his pocket from Mr. Zimmerman to share the profits of the contract, their proceedings of that day were intended to secure him? (hear hear.) No, sir; not one of them can deny they were kept in utter ignorance of this disgraceful fact. And yet, sir, the hon. member for Waterloo expects me to assist him in passing a Bill allied with transactions such as this! But, sir, let us follow up the plot. The hon. gentleman's evidence goes on to narrate that he and his brother Directors called a public meeting of the shareholders to organize the Company, to be held at Amherstburg on the 7th August, and what happened at that meeting. Up to this time, Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin had it all their own way; but now Mr. Buchanan came on the field, and by subscribing books at Amherstburg claimed, like Mr. Zimmerman, to have the control of the stock. Mr. Rankin goes on: "I met Mr. Greer in the street at Amherstburg—"Mr. Greer requested me "to afford him a private interview" and I "accompanied him to an adjoining hotel, "where, IN A PRIVATE ROOM, Mr. Greer "communicated to me the fact that he had "called upon me as agent for Mr. Buchanan, "and that Mr. Buchanan was particularly "anxious that I should join his party. Now, "sir, will the *H*ouse listen to what follows: "I at once resolved to adopt such a course "with Mr. Greer as would lead him to sup- "pose that for a consideration, I would con- "sent to act with Mr. Buchanan!" (Loud cries of hear, hear.) Sir, I ask the House if they ever read anything more scandalous than this—deliberately to lead on a man to insult himself—decoy him on the offer of a bribe by the suggestion that he stood ready to be bribed? And is it to such men as this that we are to entrust the negotiation and expenditure of nine millions of dollars? But mark what follows: "I gave Mr. Greer to understand that I was desirous of putting "myself in a position to make something "out of the Railway." And again: "Mr. "Greer left me under the impression that "there would be no difficulty in arranging "with me." And this man and his nominees must have this bill, in order to stamp with disapprobation the misconduct of the Woodstock Company!—hear, hear. Sir, if there is one thing more revolting than a person in a position of trust accepting a bribe, it is the spectacle of a man willing to be supposed capable of that baseness, painting himself as open to corruption, leading on the tempter to assail his integrity, without the intent to consummate the deed! We may comprehend a man being led away by his avarice or his necessities, to accept a bribe, but who can understand the working of that man's mind who puts himself in the position of a villain without the intent to pocket the reward of his baseness! (Sensation.)

But I ask the House to pass with me to the next scene. "Mr. Greer again came from "*H*amilton to see me. He dwelt largely "upon the practical advantages that I might "expect to derive, and went more fully into "the pecuniary inducements, so expressing "himself without stating it in so many words, "as to lead me to suppose that I might re- "alize at least £30,000, and that I could ob- "tain a cheque for £5,000 at once!" Only think, Mr. Speaker, of a member of this house—a representative of the people of Canada, sitting composedly listening while a scoundrel tried to bribe him! Sir, do you comprehend the matter?—the man went there purposely to bribe a member of this house, and the honourable gentleman heard his proposals coolly! Nay, sir, listen to this: "I told Mr. Greer that there was an "unsettled dispute between the Great West-"ern Railway Company and myself, about "the value of a piece of property of mine, "occupied by them; that if Mr. Buchanan"—who had then the controul of the Great Western Railroad—would induce the Com- "pany to consent to a new arbitration, it "would remove the feeling of hostility from "my mind which rendered me averse to act-"ing with Mr. Buchanan!"—Will the house notice the infamy of this proposal. If Mr. Buchanan will defend the Great Western Railway Company, the honourable gentleman will sell him his influence over the Amherstburg Company!!—hear, hear. Was the hon. gentleman serious this time, or was he only "leading on" Greer to further attempts on his virtue? Did he mean to consummate the fraud on the Great Western, or was he only trying to satisfy Greer that he stood ready to descend to the very depths of baseness? Sir, if a member of this house can act this, and blazen it to the world with impunity—how shall we appear in the eyes of our constituents? Aye, sir, and how will we appear, if, in the face of all this, we were to forget our own and our country's honour, and to charter the very men who figure in these scenes, with new power to prey upon the public!—Cheers. But there is yet another scene. "I telegraphed to Mr. Greer" that "if he chose to come up, I would talk to him"—Mr. Greer did come up, and we had another fruitless interview!" Mark, Mr Speaker, the grief that this interview was "fruitless!" What sort of "fruit" did the hon. gentlemen expect?—Laughter. Was he now prepared to touch the cash, or was it only further offers or bribes, more insults he was in search of? Greer offered £30,000 last time—did he now want the offer of £50-000, without the remotest intention of accepting?—was it the height of his ambition to have the offer of a bribe, that he might boast he had refused it at future public meetings? And will the House keep this in mind, that all this while—during all these interviews, all these attempts at extracting a bribe from Mr. Buchanan to sell Mr. Zimmerman, the hon. gentleman had snugly in his pocket his secret treaty with Zimmerman for $100,000 to unite against Buchanan!—hear, hear.

But we are not done yet —let us follow the witness a little further:—"At length on the '6th of August, 1856, Mr. Buchanan him-"self, accompanied by a son of the hon. Mr. "Merritt called at my house, and after re-"maining for some time he and his friend "rose to take their departure. I accompanied "them to the door"—will the house observe the gusto with which the tale of infamy is narrated?—"I accompanied them to the door, "when Mr. Merritt walked to the road in "front of the house, and got into a coach "which was waiting, while Mr. Buchanan "lingered behind, and under the shade of "the trees in the lawn, commenced his busi-"ness proposals."—Yes, sir, under the shade of the trees Mr. Buchanan commenced to bribe the hon. member! And the hon. member sat under the shade of the trees that he might enjoy the luxury of being tampered with in the most fragrant and delightful manner that Asiatic fancy could depict!—(Laughter.) Mr. Buchanan stated—"that "he was now in a position to make me the "following distinct and positive proposals, "viz:—That if I would surrender the Stock "Book, recognise the legality of his position, "and act with him at Amherstburg on the "following day, and thus enable him to "defeat Mr. Zimmerman, he was in a posi-"tion to offer me a contract, or an interest "in a contract to be given to Mr. Vanvoor-"his and others, with a guaranteed profit to "me of £50,000" Only fancy such a picture! Mr. Buchanan, this honourable gentleman tells us, dared to come to him with the distinct intention of bribing him—dared to violate the sanctity of his roof—dared, on his own hearth floor, to offer him money to sell his trust—and the hon. member for Essex laid not violent hands on his insulter, expelled him not indignantly from his home—but led him under the fragrant shade of his vinetree, that he might fully enjoy the luxury! Was the hon member for Essex serious this time—did he mean to take the bribe, if the sum were ample and detection difficult? -or was he merely "leading on" Mr. Buchanan, like Mr. Greer, to believe him capable of any baseness? (hear hear.) Whatever the object, no bargain seems to have been struck at this interview; but we have this statement to wind up the horrid picture: —"Mr. Zimmerman, with whom I "had kept up a correspondence and invaria-"bly informed of the repeated advances "made to me," Think of that Sir!—inviting corrupt proposals, leading on the seducer, and running off to market with each new crop of "fruit!" Mr, Speaker, had not these scenes become matter of history—were they not historically connected with the Bill under discussion—believe me, I had not now dragged them into light, to the discredit of this house. But the scenes I am extracting from the evidence of the member for Essex are the consecutive events from the bill before us resulted.—hear hear.

The measure before us is the consumation of it all. But the plot proceeds. Mr. Zimmerman had one board of Directors, and contended that it was the only true Board. Mr. Buchanan had another Board, and he held it equally certain that his was alone legal. Both gentlemen sail for England to carry out their schemes on the English Exchange; both fail in their attempts; they compromise their differences—return to Canada, and lay their heads together to carry out one scheme! And what scheme was that? Why, the scheme of Mr. Buchanan—the Woodstock scheme—the scheme now in existence! (hear hear.) And what said the member for Essex to that? Why, Sir, he agreed to it; he accepted it, with all its corruption on its head; he went thoroughly with the confederation—he joined hands in the compact! (hear hear.) The hon. gentleman had his secret bond from Zimmerman in his pocket; he had one-fourth the profits, or $100,000 safely secured: and not a whisper of objection was heard from him! And what changed the picture? Let him tell it himself:—"I next "saw Mr. Zimmerman, on the morning of "the 12th March, the day on which he was "killed, when, to my surprise, he informed "me that new difficulties had arisen." Difficulties had arisen to prevent the carrying out of the scheme—the very Woodstock scheme now so assailed—and all Mr. Rankin's regret was that it could not be carried out quick enough! He wished to enjoy his $100,000 without an hour's delay; and the "new difficulties" filled him with alarm!—Aye, Sir, and we have indisputable evidence that, long after the commencement of the present session, the member for Essex and his friends were perfectly satisfied with the charter now in existence—with the Woodstock charter—that they found no fault with the route—that they were not shocked by the corrupt proceedings attached to it—but were on the contrary anxious for its success. On the 1st April, 1857, a notice was placed on our notice paper, and stood on it for weeks after, that a bill would be introduced "to ratify and confirm the proceedings of the Provisional Directors of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Co., in certain instances, and for other purposes." This Bill, Sir, I am assured, was intended to legalize the arrangements for the settlement of all difficulties between the Zimmerman and Buchanan interests, and to place the *W*oodstock scheme in the best position before the public. And who Sir, think you, was the member who placed this notice on the paper—who was the member to introduce this Bill? No other, Sir, than Mr. Authur Rankin! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) Now, Sir, what turned the hon. gentleman's love into hatred? How came he, from an earnest advocate of the *Wood*stock scheme, to be the patriotic denunciator of its scandulous abuses, and the advocate of an opposition line to sweep it from existence? We have it here in the hon. gentleman's own words:—"Finding that "the executors of Mr. Zimmerman were "negotiating with other parties without "consulting me, I at once felt relieved from "any obligation to them!" (hear hear.) Yes, Sir, the executors of Mr. Zimmerman knowing nothing of the hon. gentleman's secret agreement—not believing it possible that the statutory Director and chairman of a public work could be base enough to hold a secret contract for executing that work—not believing that a representative of the people, a member of Parliament, could forget the commonest claims of integrity—proceeded to "negotiate with other parties," and forthwith the hon. member for Essex turned patriot; he "felt relieved from any obligation."

I have quoted not the loose statements of hostile parties, but the written evidence of the hon. member for Essex himself, deliberately submitted under the advice of the hon. member for Carleton. And there are the parties, forsooth, who now ask us to repeal the Woodstock Bill as so outrageously corrupt to remain another hour on the Statute Book! These are the parties who have dared to denounce hon. gentlemen as actuated by improper motives because they hesitate to repeal a charter they themselves urged upon us but a few days ago, and transfer all its powers to their pure hands! (hear, hear.) And these, too, are the men, and this the Bill, I am told by the hon. member for Waterloo, I must support with all its iniquity, because he and others are interested in its passage and we have acted together as political allies! Sir, rather than give such a vote—rather far rather, would I quit this House to-night, and never enter it again. (Loud cheers.) I read again from Mr. Rankin's evidence: "Mr Vansittart of Woodstock called upon me, and volunteered his services with a view to effecting a satisfactory arrangement between myself and the Buchanan party . . . . I at once saw through the real character of the man, and decided how to treat him. I accordingly began by telling him that before he could reasonably expect me to promise him any particular amount for his services," leading him too, on—more bribes wanted!"—"desiring still further to draw him out, I gave him the memorandum which he has since published, and by way of encouraging him to renewed exertions, I told him if he could get the parties he was negociating with to pay me £50 000 for my interest in the contract, I would allow him £10,000 for his trouble." (Cries of Shame.) Will the House observe that it was not Mr. Vansittart who made this proposal, but the hon gentleman himself, and that he sent Mr. Vansittart with a written proposition to get the other parties to agree to it. True, Sir, he may say again that he but wished to draw them out; that he did not make the proposal with any idea of pocketing the plunder. I care not on which horn of the dilemma the hon gentleman impales himself—sincere or insincere, his conduct was equally disgraceful. And we have the identical document which he gave to Mr. Vansittart, with his own signature attached to it:—"If Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Street (on behalf of Mr. Wythes,) will bind themselves to carry out the arrangements entered into between Mr. Zimmerman and myself, with reference to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway, AND TO PROTECT MY INTEREST TO THE FULL EXTENT OF WHICH MR ZIMMERMAN HAD AGREED IN WRITING OVER HIS OWN SIGNATURE, and further to protect the rights of all other parties derived from the late Zimmerman, which have been reduced to writing and signed, I will at once abandon all opposition to their plans, and do my utmost to reconcile all conflicting interests. A. R." What were those plans to which the hon. gentleman was to abandon all opposition? The very Bill now in operation! The *W*oodstock scheme charged with all its corruption!—The very same charter that he now tells us must be swept away as putrid in the eyes of the public! But there is yet another scene put before us in this evidence. The next name mentioned as tampering with the integrity of this hon. gentleman, is the Receiver General of the Province. "The last of these offers" says Mr. Rankin, "was from the Receiver General, in a memorandum in his own writing." How did the hon. gentleman get possession of the document? It is true that he decoyed the Receiver General to his own private room? Is it true that he himself made the proposition for a settlement? Is it true that he obtained the paper under a pledge of confidence as between gentlemen? Are these things true, or are they not? The hon. Receiver General is here to answer, and I hope he will do so. But let us look to the document; here is one of its conditions: "Mr. Rankin to have secured to him his share in the contract as agreed with Mr. Zimmerman in July, 1856, by Messrs. Wythes and Buchanan." Now will the House mark that this transaction occurred but the other day—subsequent to the introduction of the Bill now before us—while the recent battle was being waged in our Committee rooms. And will any one believe that the hon. gentleman had no intention of perpetrating this fraud—that he received the Receiver General in his rooms, and cooly allowed him to offer him this bribe, without thought of accepting it, and simply to enjoy the luxury of being treated as a hireling? No one will believe it. And let me call the attention of the House to the conclusion of this evidence. The hon. gentleman was testifying to destroy the Wood stock scheme, and one of his strong points against it, was, that the future shareholders would be burthened with all the bribes and extravagances of its former management.—After stating the sums thus spent, he goes on, "The whole of the large sum would be drawn from the pockets of the shareholders in England, and expended as above, before a single spadeful of earth would be turned, or an hour's work done towards the building of the road." The hon. gentleman was then filled with compassion for the poor English shareholders—he could not think of their being burdened with the bribery money of the Woodstock jobbers. But how changed is he now! Both sides have made common cause against the public—they have agreed on a new division of the plunder—and they are here to-day asking us to pass this Bill, with all the bribery and corruption formally recognized and secured, that last week so excited the indignation of the hon. member for Essex! (Loud cries of hear, hear) Yes, Sir, at the very end of the fight, the very moment before bringing the Bill down here from the Railway Committee, clauses were stuck into his Bill providing for the payment of those very sums, the hon. gentleman when giving his evidence, was so fearful would be "drawn from the pockets of stockholders in England;" and he has now the assurance to ask us to accept and endorse all he condemned before the Railroad Committee as corrupt and disgraceful. (Hear hear.)

SANDWICH, DECEMBER 28, 1857.

THE NOMINATION.

ANOTHER VICTORY GAINED.

MACLEOD TRIUMPHANT!

Over 400 Majority for MacLeod at the Nomination.

RANKIN DEMANDED A POLL!

HURRAH FOR MACLEOD!!!

On Thursday last, the day appointed for the Nomination, a large concourse of people from all parts of the County commenced to assemble at an early hour in Sandwich, to take part in the Glorious Victory that was to be achieved over RANKIN, the Railway Speculator. At about eleven o'clock a steamer load of Rankin's men landed at our dock, from Amherstburg, with some where in the neighborhood of three hundred and forty or fifty, (composed mostly of Pensioners—led by Major Donaldson—and colored people. They were met by perhaps an equal number from Sandwich and the back Townships. As the nomination was looked upon by Rankin as of the greatest importance, he had mustered all his forces from every part of the County, determined as he was, to gain the nomination at least, if he could not gain the election. In this, however, he was sorely disappointed, for the electors fought shy of the speculating ex M. P. P.

In half an hour after the arrival of the Rankin men, the steamers Ploughboy and Windsor, arrived from Amherstburg, crowded to their fullest capacity, and when they arrived at the dock, poured forth a living stream of respectable yeomen, the bone and sinew of the land—men who were not forced by a stuck-up Mojor, to attend the nomination—but men who came forward to exercise their rights as British Freemen. These are the supporters of John MacLe.d.

We should judge that at least twelve hundred persons landed from the MacLeod boats, and were met by nearly four hundred persons from the neighborhood of Sandwich and the back Townships. They all formed in procession, and made a most formidable display of the best men in the County of Essex

On their arrival at the stand erected for the purpose, and the Sheriff having gone through the necessary formula—

Mr. Henry McKenney, of Amherstburg, proposed ARTHUR RANKIN as a fit and proper person to represent the County of Essex in the next Parliament. Mr. McKenney, we must say, adopted a very judicious course, and said not a word beyond the mere form of proposition, for as he could not conscientiously say any thing in his favor, he deemed it advisable to say nothing at all. Thus it was that Rankin was proposed, without the proposer being able to mention one single redeeming quality in his favor. He was seconded by Messrs. Marentette and O'Connor. The former, regretted that his party would be beaten at the nomination—he at least had the honesty to admit the truth, &c., &c. The latter whose vanity had to be gratified, was permitted to reap the honor of being the other seconder. He felt proud of having the honor of seconding his dearest friend Arthur who was co-laborer with him in many a nice lot of little jobs, such as that of Ouellette's Farm, (upon which, by the way, we are informed, Rankin intends to qualify, if elected) A feeble attempt was then made to say something in favor of his friend, [now patronizing!] but it being all up-hill work, was found both severe to himself and tedious to the assembly. A few hats were thrown into the air, and a little screeching and yelling followed. Two or three of the pensioners, at a wink from their Major, stood upon their heads, from excessive enthusiasm in the cause. A few of Rankin's colored friends attempted a break down, when the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne" This scene was quite amusing, with black and white mixed up in general confusion.

Rankin, be it remembered has never dared to put forth an address to the electors, containing the principles which he intended to advocate,—this he could not do, as there is little principle left in him—nor was one word said by either his Mover or Seconders about what measures he intended to advocate if elected. This was no doubt a matter of policy, for he felt that the more he said, the nearer would the net be drawn upon him; he dared not speak upon upon the School Question, for he has already deceived the French Canadians,—having once broken faith with them, it would be a dangerous question to touch upon;—Representation according to Population, he dared not disturb, for he is bound neck and heels, to oppose it.—Upon the Seat of Government Question, his mind is quite composed,—Upon the Question of uniting the British North American Provinces into one, he once introduced a series of high toned resolutions into Parliament upon the subject, but his mind being too contracted to deal with a subject of such vast importance, they were left through a whole Session, without once being brought before the House, for if he had, his ignorance and lack of ability, would have made him supremely ridiculous. Thus for effect, he placed upon the orders of the day, a question, which he had not the ability to carry out.

The next Candidate proposed was John MacLeod, and Mr. Thomas Paxton in doing so, referred to the parliamentary career of the late Member, in an able and straightforward speech. He referred to the Railway Excitement which Mr. Rankin had got up for election purposes, and proved their many statements which had been made about the immediate construction of the road, were all else; that the money market at the present time was not in a position to admit of any great work being undertaken, and more particularly under the direction of Mr. Rankin.

In refering to Major Donaldson and his band of Pensioners, he said that it was the privilege of every British freeman to use the franchise with the utmost freedom, and they would not allow Mr. Rankin to take possession of the polls at the point of the bayonet We regret that we are not able to report his speech fully, as many points were touched upon that were particulary pertinent.

Mr. Caron then seconded the nomination in an eloquent speech in French. He appeared to touch the feelings of the French Canadians, in a particularly happy manner. He also referred to the two imported sputterers brought into the County by Rankin, to patch up his broken down cause, and to try and lead away, by all sorts of subterfuge, the honest Canadian—this, he said, should open their eyes to Rankin's misconduct, for if he had, while in Parliament, acted honestly, there would have been no necessity for Government Clerks being brought all the way from Toronto, to mislead them

There being no other Candidate to propose, the Sheriff called for a division, those in favor of Rankin, to stand on the left, and those for Mr. MacLeod, on the right. After the parties had divided, it was apparent to all that there was a very large majority for Mr. MacLeod, and the Sheriff accordingly declared him elected. Mr. Rankin then demanded a poll, which was granted, and the returning officer appointed the thirty-first day of December next, as the first day of polling, and the second day of January as the second day.

When the sheriff declared Mr. MacLeod Elected, there arose a cheer from the assembled multitude, that was quiet deafening, the whole mass of the MacLeod supporters who were at the least calculation; three-fourths of all those assembled, made the welkin ring again with their enthusiastic shouts, again and again was the cheer continued, by the fifteen hundred supporters of MacLeod who represent the inteligence, and respectibly of the County of Essex.

An attempt was then made to get up a cheer for Rankin, the Defeated Candidate but alas! what a farce; It was highly amusing to view the grim visages of his few supporters become suddenly elongated to beyond their usual length. They knew it was a bitter pill—but it had to be swallowed, and many a wry face could be seen in his mixed crowd of followers.

Mr. Rankin came forward to speak to the multitude, but there did not appear any disposition to listen to him.

Mr. MacLeod finding that no opportunity would be afforded the candidates to address the electors, left the stand, and was triumphantly carried to the Hennell House, followed by the immense crowd of his supporters; he then addressed them for over an hour in a truly eloquent speech.

Everything passed off quietly until late in the afternoon, when a few fights took place. Among the number we must not pass over two or three, that were of a most shameful nature, and are only in keeping with the majority of the Rankin followers, and cannot be surpassed in cowardice and brutality. A fight commenced between two or three parties, when Mr. Baptiste Gautier while down, was kicked just over the eye, by a ruffian, by the name of Finn, a Rankinite, and received a most severe injury, and we fear may affect the sight of one of his eyes.

Another was an assault made upon Mr. John McKee, a most respectable farmer of this Township; he had got into an altercation with some parties, when John O'CONNOR, the seconder of Authur Rankin stole up behind him, and without any provocation whatever, inflicted a severe wound upon McKee's head, with a heavy cane, This is certainly one of the most dastardly assaults that we ever heard of.—McKee's head was badly cut, though fortunately the wound was not serious.

The other was an assault made upon a person from one of the lower Townships, whose name we did not hear, was walking quietly along the street, when three or four Rankinites set upon him in a most ruffianly manner.

We have great satisfaction in saying that every fight that was got up, was through the disorderly conduct of some of the Rankin party.

Among the casualties of the day, we may as well here mention the fall of Arthur Rankin, late Member for Essex. He fell from his seat in Parliament, and appears to be greatly injured in person and character, and is, we regret to say, not likely to recover.

The Last Speech AND DYING CONFESSION OF ARTHUR RANKIN,

Late Member for Essex, the Railway Criminal and Traitor to his Constituents, who was tried by a Jury of the Electors of Essex, found Guilty and Politically Executed by the High-Sheriff, as Returning Officer, in front of the Old Barracks, in Sandwich, on the 24th day of December, 1857.

Great preparations were made, and the scene was enabled in thousands, to witness it's execution.

Mr. Rankin, with considerable reluctance, ascended the scaffold which had been erected, and begged that, before his just sentence was carried into effect, he might be allowed to say a few words to the people he had so cruelly wronged. Permission being granted, he began by saying, "While I was your member I always tried to define my position; but never succeeded till this moment, when my humiliation is patent to every one. I hope the people now listening to me will take warning by my sad fate In my youth I had no fixed principles, and when discharged from the volunteers, after the rebellion, instead of returning to the respectable profession of surveyor which I had partly learned, I turned showman and took to England a few half starved, painted Ojibbeway Indians and exhibited them at a shilling a sight. One thing connected with that affair weighs on my mind; and that is the treachery and deceit I practised on poor Mrs Cadotte. She was a fine, young, romantic English girl, and in going from my description that Cadotte (who was a brutal, drunken, half breed Indian) was really an Indian prince, she was persuaded to marry him. I per suited her in this, thinking she would add eclat to my show; but, when I discovered her pure English mind revolted at the idea of exhibiting herself I persecuted her. Many of you may remember that Blackwood's magazine gave me a severe castigation for my conduct, and gave me a name which has stuck to me ever since— Rankin the showman.' The poor girl came to this country with her miserable husband, and ultimately died of a broken heart, from illusage and neglect, while I, who had made money out of the transactions, never lent her a helping hand. The conduct of mine now weighs heavy upon my repentant soul, and I trust that their fathers and mothers who now listen to me, will pray for me. I need it much, but I fear they never will, as I only know I could have done the same to their daughters to serve my unworthy objects. The poor Indians had a great many presents made them, which I, of course, bought from them for a song. They were in my power, and what did they know about the value of these things! I bartered them for some jewelry and plates, silver ware, and when I returned to this country, I opened house and turned my parlor into a show room, and exhibited my wealth, in these trinkets, to the admiring gaze of the rustics of this county, and added vastly to my reputation as a rich man. That was my first false step, and it laid the foundation for the arrogance and self-conceit which has, as you all know, distinguished me ever since. I then got hold (by very unworthy means, as some of my supporters know) of some mining ground, on Lake Huron, an I started the Bruce Mines Company. I might have done well, but I cheated my partners in that concern, and after forcing the stock to a high price, I sold out and have caused the ruin of hundreds, and given thereby cause to widows and orphans to curse the day I was born. What cared I then? I made money, which was necessary to uphold my consequent importance. A certain place began to talk of me as a "smart man" and I basked loudly of "Honor," "Honesty," "Integrity of purpose," &c., which, as you all know, was humbug

"I next thought of getting into Parliament, and found it necessary to link myself with Dan O'Connor a petti-fogging attorney in Windsor, a person whose reputation and forbidding countenance is a true index to the qualities of his mind. I would have recoiled from association with such a man but I was led to believe he had some influence in the townships of Sandwich and Malden. That association has proved fatal to me, for he has an itching palm. He has led me into many disgraceful transactions and always secured the Lion's share.

"I had to leave for Detroit once, for being engaged in a conspiracy to cheat an honest farmer out of his farm, and at this moment a bill has been filed in chancery against both him and myself, for cheating and defrauding a respectable Canadian at Windsor, out of his farm. If that bill is followed up he will have the gown stripped off his back and a criminal action will be brought against us both. But one thing I must say for him —he has never refused to do anything I want him to, however unscrupulous.

With a high assumption of chivalry, high-mindedness, gentlemanly, conduct, &c., I succeeded in cajoling many honest farmers and tradesmen, who thought me a demi-god, and returned me to Parliament last election. That has proved my ruin, for I then gave way to my gambling propensities and evil motives, and betrayed the trust you reposed in me. Then you began to see through the thin veil I had drawn over your eyes, and that is the reason why I am now the contempt of every honest man. I thought I had discovered another Bruce Mine in the Southern Railway, and sold the interests of my constituents to one Zimmerman, for the enormous sum of one hundred thousand dollars. The fiend in the Evil One himself, in the person of one Buchanan, who offered me double that amount, which I would have taken and betrayed my first purchaser, but that it was not offered to me in the right shape, and I had been foolish enough to bind myself in writing to Zimmerman. Judas like, I was willing to sell every one; and, had I been in partnership with Judas, I would have sold both our master and him. You must all recollect the castigation I received in Parliament from George Brown—the worst any man ever got, and which nearly led to my being expelled from the House. Indeed, it would have done so but for one John A. Mcdonald (nearly as bad as myself, for birds of a feather flock together), who came to my rescue and called it a grave mistake. It was a grave mistake, for it nearly proved a political grave, at the time, to both him and me. Petitions were numerously signed and sent to Parliament by you to have me tried and I regretfully excluded: but I pulled them from the archives of Parliament, and now they cannot be found.

"Having failed to obtain those bribes, which would have made my fortune, I obtained the location of the Southern Bay Railway twice, although Buchanan, MacLeod and others who had $300,000 in the bank, had let the contract, and had actually commenced the works—because they would not pay me the $20,000, I demanded as a bribe.

"I stopped the works going on, by my influence as a member of Parliament, which was truly exposed before the Parliamentary committee by the evidence of the Receiver General. I feel sorry and repentant now, that I did not, for had I looked after your interests as much as I did my own, and had the cute old Yankee not after mammon not been possessed of the Southern Railway would have been built and I would have had the confidence, love and respect of the County of Essex, and the community at large, and would have been returned by you last fall to the Legislative Council; instead of which, I now stand in the ruined position of a gambler, and you now see me—the finger of scorn pointed at me, and my name a by-word in all the money marts of the world. Well did the Attorney General express it when he said my name would ruin any settlement I might be connected with. I still hoped against hope, and with the assistance of one McClenaghan, a political hack, reduced by dissipation, but who has still the gambling appetite, and who is of a kindred spirit to myself, concocted another scheme and got one Mattin, a distiller, of Kingston, to combine with us, and by one of those tricks known only to Rankin sharpers, we managed to appoint a new Board of Directors, and put in my own creatures to make you believe that I had now got possession of the Railway; but, like all other schemes conceived in treachery and fraud, the whole arrangement was illegal and we soon found it out. It was merely done as an Electioneering ruse, but it was woefully failed.

"I feel sorry for one friend of mine who, naturally, is an honest man. I was anxious to have one man of honesty to lean on, but as a general will not preserve faithful men, and will ill-off get spoiled by the contact, so in connection with friend Salter has not improved my, but injured him. I blame the gold watch I presented a member of his family for blinding his eyes. Oh! that golden calf! how it blinds people when held up before their eyes.

"My Railway dodge proved a complete failure and has made me the laughing stock of the whole county. I also hired a sort of 'Tom Carlyle' engineer, to write a letter in my "Mercury," which only made matters worse. It is unintelligible, even to the man who wrote it; but you can readily extract from it that the whole thing is a bubble and a farce.

"I give you credit for having seen through the unprincipled scheme which I invented to deceive you, and the plausible arguments I adduced. It is evident that a watchful Providence was protecting you, for I have not neglected your interests and sold myself for a consideration.

"The appropriation of £5,000 which I pretended to have got to build piers in Gosfield and Mersea, was another of my attempts at deceiving you. That money was all spent in clearing out the bar in front of one Pat Barwell, and the letters I have published lately for the purpose of securing my election, was the correspondence which took place in the spring, and was only intended as a blind.

"Although I was paid six dollars a day for my services, I have never done anything for your benefit, I did not oppose the insertion of the clause in the Great Western Railway Charter, although I was in my place in the House when it passed, and it injures the farmers along the Railway very much, for if their cattle stray within one mile, they are liable to be impounded; and if killed, their owners can get no compensation for them. I also voted sixteen millions of dollars to the Grad Trunk Railway, which has increased your taxes fifteen per cent, so that for every dollar you now spend, you only get as much as you used to get for eighty five cents."

"I voted against the Seat of Government being in Toronto, which was much against the interest of Upper Canada; and I have appointed a host of Custom House Officers along the shores of the County from Mersea to the River Thames, who receive from two hundred to five hundred dollars a year, which has to be paid out of your pockets, and who have nothing to do but go about with their hands in their pockets and help me at election time. Again, I went to Parliament pledged to support separate schools, and other measures to benefit the Catholics; but, as it suited my interest at the time, I joined George Brown in opposing these measures and voted against them a three different times, and it was only because the majority of the House was against me that they were carried; and, it almost makes me smile to see that, after all I have done, I can still get support from those I have so deceived.

"I have never scrupled to turn my coat to suit my interest. You all recollect how, when I ran as Candidate at Kent, I came out as a Clear Grit, and wrote a letter for political effect, saying, that I had discovered that the Tories in which I had been nurtured was all wrong, and that I had changed my politics. That change did not have the effect I expected, so I came back to you pretending to be a stifler Tory than ever.

"The Sheriff now warns me that the term of my political existence in this county is up. I must bid you all farewell, and I beg of you to take warning by my fate, eschew bad company, and pray that your end may not be like mine Farewell!"

The high-Sheriff here drew the bolt and the political remains of the late member for Essex were buried within the precints of the gaol yard, amid the sighs and sobbing of a few interested followers, headed by the political parson of Sandwich and Windsor, whose spectacles burst through excess of grief, and who chaunted the celebrated lament " All our expectations are gone,'—Ochone, oh hone!!!

Rankin's Consistency on the School Question.

As Rankin has attempted to gain the support of the Roman Catholic portion of the Electors of Essex, by professing to have worked for their interests, wholly and entirely in the School Question, and, as he has so, "has worked to the utmost of his ability for the Catholic interest," we now propose to prove to that portion of the community, that all his professions in this respect are as false as the generality of his assertions, and that many of his acts in prove them to be so

The best proof that we can produce, is, his votes in the Legislature Assembly, when Rankin voted side by side with George Brown upon the School Question, and it is only necessary to mention Rankin's name in Committee with Brown's, to prove that he was no acting the part of a friend to the Roman Catholic, when he voted upon that question.

Rankin has tried his best to deceive the Roman Catholics and to ride into Parliament upon their backs. Will they allow themselves to be made the hobby-horse of such an individual as Rankin? We certainly think not.

We copy below from the Journals of the House, a report of the various votes upon the Separate School Question in which it will be seen, that Rankin on every occasion voted against the Separate School Bill by the side of George Brown, while he boasts and swears by all that's sacred, that he always has and always will work for them. His attempts to deceive them will be fruitless,—they must by this time have seen that Rankin only wishes to use them, while the Election lasts.

Read for yourselves.

A CUNNING CAT.—One day the cook in a monastery, when he had laid the dinner, found one brother's meat missing. He supposed that he had miscalculated, made good the deficiency, and thought of it no more till the next day, when he had again too little at dinner time by one monk's commons. He suspected knavery and resolved to watch for the thief. On a third day he was quite sure that he had meat cut into the right number of portions, and was about to dish up, when he was called off by a ring at the outer gate. When he came back there was again a monk's allowance gone. Next day he again paid special heed to his calculations; and when he was on the point of dishing up again there was a ring at the gate to draw him from the kitchen. He went no further than the outside of the kitchen door, when he saw that the cat jumped in at the kitchen window, and was out again in an instant with a piece of meat. Another day's watching showed that it was the cat also, who, by leaping up at it, set the bell ringing with her paws; and thus having, as she supposed, put the cook out of his kitchen, had the coast clear for her own particular proceedings. The monks then settled it in conclave that the cat should be left thus to earn for the remainder of her days double rations, while they spread abroad the story of her cunning. So they obtained many visitors, who paid money for good dishes, and for which to see the little comedy; and they grew richer for the thief they had among them.—Household Words.

FRIENDS OF JOHN MACLEOD,

SECOND JANUARY 1858.

HURRAH FOR MACLEOD

AMHERSTBURG EXTRA.

AMHERSTBURG (CANADA WEST), DECMBER 30, 1857.

THE NOMINATION.

On Thursday last, according to proclamation, the electors of the county met in front of the Old Barracks, in Sandwich, for the purpose of nominating a Representative for this county.

It is always considered a matter of importance to gain the nomination; consequently every effort was made by the two candidates to get their supporters to the meeting. This was much easier done by Mr. Rankin than by Mr. MacLeod. Mr. R.'s supporters resided in the immediate vicinity of Sandwich, or along the line of the Great Western Railway, whereas, the southern townships, which will give MacLeod an overwhelming majority, were prevented from showing their strength, the roads being almost impassable, and, as it unfortunately happened, a gale of wind rendered it impossible for the steamer "Ploughboy" to take on board the hundreds who awaited her at Gosfield, Mersea, and Colchester. We therefore expected that if there was the least particle of truth in the assertions made by Rankin's friends, as to his strength in the northern townships, he would, under these circumstances, gain the nomination. There can be no doubt that every supporter Mr. Rankin had was at his post, and when we reached the place of meeting, we were agreeably surprised to find that we were, beyond all doubt, the strongest party; and when, shortly afterwards, a steamer arrived from Windsor with the friends of Mr. MacLeod from that place, the certainty of his election, by the largest majority ever known in the county, was at once established.

The Sheriff having read the writ, Mr. H. McKinney came forward and proposed Mr. Arthur Rankin as a fit and proper person to represent the county, and was seconded by P. Marrantette, and John O'Connor. Major Paxton then proposed John MacLeod as representative, which was seconded by Francois Caron, Esq., in a most eloquent speech; whereupon a division was called by the Returning officer, which was declared in Mr. McLeod's favor by a large majority, amidst the most enthusiastic cheers the Town of Sandwich ever heard. This victory is all the more creditable to our cause seeing that McLeod had only present on the ground men belonging to the county who had an interest in the election; whereas, it is a fact that Mr. Rankin had hired a band of colored men from Detroit who knew nothing about our interests and who only acted according to their instructions; and further, Major Donaldson, of Amherstburg, had the audacity to call out the Pensioners, aye even order the guard to leave their stations and go to support Mr. Rankin. This conduct ought to be strictly looked into and severely punished. A Government officer daring to interfere! and by the authority of his office to drag men who cannot well disobey orders (accustomed as they are to discipline), and who have no votes, who pay no taxes, and should not interfere. To drag them away from their homes to assist any Candidate, is disgraceful; and when we find a whole staff of officers of customs brought down to take part with the Government candidate, we can easily see that the interference of an unprincipled Government is active here as much as it was in Montreal where they actually attempted to buy off Darcy McGee. It is true, we can afford to laugh at all their paltry attempts. The people of Essex will no more allow themselves to be mislead now than they would at the election for the Legislative Council, when the same machinery was brought into play without effect. But we think it would be a grave mistake to pass unpunished such an insult to the electors of the county.

Before closing this article, we must allude to the manner in which Rankin's frauntic followers behaved themselves in Sandwich and Windsor after the nomination. Their rage knew no bounds, and whenever they could with safety attack any one who supported McLeod, they made a point of doing so. Mr. John O'Connor (remember he seconded Rankin's nomination) headed a band, and he himself committed a most dastardly assault on Mr. McKie, of Sandwich Township, striking him over the head with a stick. Thus leading a riot and exciting his infuriated followers to imitate his example. It was well for him and them that Mr. McLeod's friends were determined to conduct themselves with propriety, and it must now be apparent to the whole county that the infamous calumnies circulated in order to stamp McLeod's friends as rowdies are totally devoid of truth, and that Mr. Rankin has on his side few, except the offscourings of the county.

Rally to the Polls.

Friends of McLeod, remember the polling commences Thursday, the 31st. Come early.

MACLEOD'S TRIUMPHS!

AT

RANKIN'S MEETINGS.

Mr. Rankin having advertised to hold a series of meetings in Gosfield and Mersea, Mr. MacLeod resolved to attend those meetings for the purpose of giving the electors an opportunity of hearing Mr. R.'s explanations refuted in his presence; and, the result of those meetings has been everything Mr. MacLeod's warmest supporters could wish. Indeed, we heard one influential gentleman in Gosfield say, that if Rankin would only make one more tour, followed by MacLeod, there would not be a single vote left for our late Member.

The first of these meetings was held at Bower's, on Sandwich street, on Monday, at 11 o'clock, Mr. Thornton in the chair. Mr. MacLeod was unable to get there in time, but the meeting was addressed in his behalf by S. S. McDonell, Esq., Reeve of Windsor, Ex-Warden of the county, and by Thomas Woodbridge, Esq., Reeve of Sandwich.

It is, we presume, quite unnecessary to give Mr. Rankin's speech. It was just the same old whine about the Railway. He has nothing to say on the great leading questions of the day, and dares not refer to his conduct and votes since he went to Parliament. His speech made not the least impression on the audience. He was evidently not believed, and, at the conclusion of his speech, a vote of confidence in MacLeod, which was proposed by Mr. Woodbridge, was triumphantly carried.

The next meeting was held at Leonard Weigh's, in Mersea, on Monday evening.—There was about 500 present, and MacLeod brought such clear and convincing proofs of of the disgraceful conduct of Mr. Rankin, in the Railway transactions, and so thoroughly cleared himself from the bare-faced and malicious charges Rankin had circulated, that he carried the whole meeting with him. A resolution, in favor of MacLeod, proposed by Thomas Wyper, and seconded by F. A. Ambridge, Esq., was handed to the chairman Charles Stewart, an ardent supporter of Rankin, who refused to divide the meeting. The meeting, however, took the matter into their own hands and carried it by acclamation.

On Tuesday forenoon, a meeting of over 200 was held in the school house on the Eighth Concession, in Mersea, which was, if it could be possible, a greater triumph for MacLeod—only three hands were held up against the resolution in his favor.

On the same evening another meeting was held at Middleton's, with like results, (which was addressed by Mayor Paxton, and Thomas Woodbridge,) were unanimous in MacLeod's favor.

What object Rankin's miserable hireling, Wm. Bartlett, had for stating that Mersea would give a majority against MacLeod, we can scarcely conceive, as there can be no doubt that he will get as large a majority there, in proportion to the population, as in any of the southern townships.

The last meeting before the nomination took place, was in the Town Hall, in Kingsville, on Wednesday forenoon. The Hall was crowded to excess. Mr. Rankin spoke upwards of an hour, and did his best to retain the confidence of those who, in that township, have always supported him; but, when Mr. MacLeod, in a speech of an hour and a-half, exposed the whole schemes Mr. R. had been connected with, and produced the clear and incontestable proofs, Rankin's fate was sealed. When he attempted to reply, he was left to speak to bare walls, the audience having retired with MacLeod.

THE ELECTION TOUR.

The contrast between the parties who accompany Rankin in his tour, and the gentlemen who accompany Mr. MacLeod, is of itself enough to destroy all Rankin's chances of success. Only think—here is the list.—John O'Connor! Joe Mercer! Charles Eliot! Charles Askin! Marcon! William Bartlett!!! The first his lawyer, the second a lawyer's clerk, the third (Charles Eliot), is the foolish young man who, by his insolent language at the meeting at Brooker's, got the blow on the lip, which has been turned, as much as possible, into political capital, and whose martyrdom actually succeeded in causing a faint ray of hope to spring up in the heart of the desperate and despairing Rankin. We do feel sorry at the conduct of this young man. Since the commencement of this election, he has distinguished himself by the most contemptible conduct at every meeting, and ought to thank the man who stopped his shameful behavior, even if the means adopted was rather severe. No man of principle can hold him in estimation, who was at the Windsor meeting, and saw him stand by and hear Rankin make the mean, cowardly, brutal attack against the character of Mr. Albert Prince. Eliot, be it recollected, being Prince's partner, and always a welcome guest a Prince's fireside, to see him, we say, stand as he did, while that torrent of abuse was poured out against those to whom he is indebted for everything, without knocking down the vile calumniator—nay, actually applauding him—is of itself enough to deprive him of the respect of every honest, right thinking man: Mr. Eliot should remember that people who live in glass houses should never throw stones.

Wm. Bartlett, last on the list, is the man who wrote the letter to Mr. MacLeod, which is given elsewhere, and we cannot find words to express the contempt we feel for a character who would canvass for a man he had formed so correct an opinion of.

Is there one man among them who has any interest in the county, or who can influence a single vote in it? On the other hand, look who accompany Mr. MacLeod. S. S. McDonell, Reeve of Windsor and Ex-Warden of the county, Theodore Malotte, Reeve of Mersea for twelve years; Warden of the county; Thos. Woodbridge, Reeve of Sandwich, G. W. Leggett, Reeve of Amhertsburg, Major Paxton, Thomas Boyles, Esq., Thomas Wright, Esq., F. Caron, Esq., Albert Prince, J. G. Kolfage, Esq., and a host of others, all men of the first rank in the county, who have the interests of the county at heart, and who understand what is best for those interests.

ALARMING RIOT.

RANKIN DESPERATE.

Mr. Rankin took down to the meeting at the Town Hall, Colchester, yesterday a large force of ruffians for the purpose of attacking McLeod, and with the deliberate intention of breaking the peace. McLeod's friends were too strong for them in that township, so he contented himself with running off to Bisconnais Tavern, on the town line between Malden and Colchester, where he got every thing in readiness for a riot. His party were armed with pistols, knives and staves. Finding a strong party of McLeod's friends there and becoming desperate, he instigated an attack on them, and a fight took place. Rankin's party shot and stabbed several persons, but were driven off the ground and retreated to town where they again organized, procured additional weapons and marched to the outskirts of the town and attacked Mr. McLeod and his party as they were returning from the meeting. Knives and pistols were freely used and several parties severely injured. McLeod's party who had no arms of any kind, broke up fence-rails and used them with so much effect, that the ruffians were forced to retreat, and McLeod entered the town in triumph. Johnson, Wilson, Papps and another yellow man from Windsor led Rankin's party. Among the casualties we learn that George Gott had his head laid open by a blow aimed by Wilson at one of McLeod's party, and John Gostage was stabbed on the arm by Johnson; several others received flesh wounds from pistol shots.

This is the most daring outrage ever perpetrated in Canada, and should stamp for ever Rankin as an infamous cowardly scoundrel.

Electors, can you vote for such a man?

The Mercury.

The last number of Rankin's paper, the Mercury, (a paper without exception, the most blackguard ever printed in Canada) contains the greatest amount of abuse, and the greatest number of lies that could possibly be contained in the same space. Not content with lying in editorials, there are letters from various parties which are equally destitute of truth. We are not surprised to find John O'Connor, John A. Ray, M. Batt Hewson and William Bartlett lending their names to such articles. They are all known to be characters possessed of neither honor, principle, nor truth, and have earned for themselves unenviable distinction in transactions of the most discreditable kind; but we confess we were not prepared to find Paul John Salter descend from the respectability he has previously enjoyed to assist Rankin by publishing a statement he formerly made as to Mr. Kolfage having transfered his stock to Morton. Mr. Kolfage publicly, at the meeting in Sandwich, denied ever having said so. Both Mr. Rankin and Mr. Salter know that it is not so, that Mr. Kolfage never has transfered his stock to Morton, and, therefore, could not say so. And yet, in the face of all this, Mr. Salter, for the most contemptible purpose, repeats the statement. The very position of respectability he formerly enjoyed, only makes his present degradation the greater. He is now fitly associated with the gang of miserable hirelings employed by the most unprincipled politician Essex ever saw. We only hope that the Mercury has been sufficiently circulated, as it must assist McLeod's election.

Amhersturg Meeting.

In consequence of the exasperated feelings of the McLeod party at the assault committed upon them last night, the Reeve threw the responsibility of any meeting to-day upon Rankin, who did not proceed. McLeod addressed the electors and every thing passed off quietly.

A Talk about the Election.

Farmer A., (Colchester). Well, Mr. B., there's great excitement about this election, in our lower townships; what do the people in your quarter think of it? Who are you going to support?

Farmer B., (Maidstone). The folks out our way, don't take very great interest in the matter. In fact, they don't know much about the great dispute between Rankin and McLeod, on the Railway question. Neither do they know John McLeod. For my part, I am going to vote for Rankin; he gives me a very fine explanation of his conduct.

A. Have you got only his private explanation, or have you heard both sides, or examined for yourself the evidence before the Railway Committee?

B. I have only heard his own account.

A. If you have time I should like to show you that the statements he makes on the subject are false, and that not only on the Railway question, but on every other he has proved a traitor to the interests of Essex.

B. If you can do so, I will be glad to hear you. From all I have heard, McLeod is quite as much at fault on the Railway question as Rankin can be, and I never heard anything against Rankin on other subjects.

A. All the reports against McLeod are unsupported by proof; whereas, when we come to examine into his conduct, we will find good reason to believe that he has acted for the interests of the county—all the more reasonable ones seeing that his interests are the same. He has land all over the county and every improvement must benefit him; whereas, Rankin's whole interests are confined to one locality. Let us see what Rankin says for himself, in his evidence before the Corruption Committee. Here is the book (reads contract with Zimmerman). Now don't you see that Rankin has here sold himself to Zimmerman, and that without any guarantee that the road shall be built at all? The proof is that while he was to get £25,000, if the road was finished, yet, Zimmerman could get rid of this bond by paying him at any time £12,000 if it suited his purpose not to go on with it, or to carry it to some point of junction with the Great Western.

B. It does look something like it, I must confess; but then, Rankin says McLeod, Park and Wallace also sold themselves to Buchanan, and read it to me out of the book.

A. Ah! that is one of the contemptible things I find in Rankin. I have get that book also, and will show how he deceived you. He told you it was no agreement, did he not?

B. Yes.

A. Well, read for yourself. There, now don't you see that what he called an agreement was only Buchanan's evidence before the Woodstock and Lake Erie Committee, and is only what Mr. Buchanan intended to do. And, worse than that, you see Buchanan also meant to give Rankin himself an equal sum with the rest. Now, is that not most contemptible? We all know that Buchanan tried to cheat McLeod out of the Railway, and get back the money he had paid; and, when he entered a suit in Chancery against McLeod, would he not (if such a proof existed against McLeod) have produced it?

B. I would think so, certainly because it would have convinced every one that McLeod was selling our interests.

A. Well, if you are now convinced on that point, that is one of the charges against McLeod disposed of; and it is a sample of all the rest. Now read what the Receiver General says about Rankin obstructing the Railway.

"Quss. 80. When and under what circumstances did you become acquainted with the fact that Mr. Rankin claimed to be interested in the contract with the late Mr. Zimmerman; and what was the nature of such claim?—Ans. I think I first heard it from Mr. Rankin himself. The first knowledge I had of it, arose from my communicating to Mr. Rankin, that Mr. Buchanan, Mr. O'Keefy, representing the Municipalities, and Mr. Street, the representative of the English Contractors, all agreeing to amalgamate the three Boards of Directors, and agreeing to protect all interests of the Municipalities and the Zimmerman Estate, and the repayment of advances made on account of the Roads. Upon communicating this to Mr. Rankin, he informed me upon speaking of the contract entered into by the Amherstburgh Board and Mr. Wythes, and that the Zimmerman Estate had consented to give up their claim in that Contract, that he (Mr. Rankin) had an interest of one fourth in the Contract, but immediately wrote to the Trustees for a copy, if they had one, which I received by mail. I communicated this information to the parties concerned. The day after I received the copy, Mr. Vansittart, as the friend or Agent of Mr. Rankin, called upon me, as representing the Zimmerman Estate for the purpose, and did state the claim of Mr. Rankin, as being £50,000, which he required to be secured before any amalgamation or settlement should take place. I told Mr. Vansittart that I had a copy of the Contract, and it had a condition of only £25,000, which I would press upon the Executors and all concerned to have secured to Mr. Rankin, it being Mr. Zimmerman's agreement under his own hand. Mr. Vansittart said that Mr. Rankin claimed under some other arrangement, which would secure a further sum of $50,000 at least. I told Mr. Vansittart that it was totally out of the question. I had several other interviews with him. This claim so advanced was considered by all the parties so extravagant, that negotiations were broken off, and nothing more took place until Mr. Rankin gave notice of his Bill, which closed all chance of a settlement."

You see from that how rascally has been his course; and, further, how he tried to get Zimmerman's executors to give him £250,000 to withdraw his opposition.

There is surely enough shown you now to convince you that he has only been trying to benefit himself all through the matter, whereas McLeod, before he would allow Buchanan to have any thing to do with the road, compelled him to sign a bond pledging himself that it should be a provison, if he should even sell his interest, that whoever bought it should be bound to carry the road to Amherstburg as well as Sandwich. What more could McLeod do? Only one thing, and that he did, namely to give out the contract, and the works were actually commenced when the member for Essex, with the assistance of the Government, stepped in and stopped everything.

B. You show matters in a very different light from what I have before seen them, and as you show me documents for all you say, I believe you, and am now satisfied that Rankin has been false in the Railroad, and I cannot vote for him. But you said you could show me that every thing else he has done has been against our interests. If you can do that I will give my support to McLeod, provided he will go for such measures as will benefit the county.

A. I think I can satisfy you on every thing. Let us commence with his conduct on the School question. You may recollect that he pledged himself when he was last elected, to assist the Catholics in getting a law passed to allow them to have separate schools.

B. Yes, perfectly well. Indeed, it was on that ground he got the votes in our Township.

A. Well, see how he acted when the question came before the House. He joined George Brown (a Clear Grit, who is dead opposed to any favors being granted to Catholics; who would not even allow them to live in the country if he could help it) and actually voted three times against those schools. Fortunately, he and Brown were out-voted, otherwise the Catholics could not at present enjoy even the small measure of justice they have. That is the reason you find such influential Catholics as F. Caron, S. S. McDonell, and the Maisonvilles going dead against him; he broke a solemn promise and they will never trust him again.

B. This is something I never understood before, and I am glad you have pointed it out to me.

A. Well, take his next vote. When the question of where the seat of Government should be came before the House, he voted against its being in Toronto and supported its being in Quebec. Now, you must admit that he was doing as much as he could to injure not only Essex, but the whole Province of Upper Canada; and, surely, that was acting the part of a traitor to his constituents.

B. No doubt of it. I begin to think he is utterly destitute of principle.

A. The worst has yet to come. He voted for a grant of sixteen million dollars to the Grand Trunk Railway, which was just putting that amount in the hands of English contractors, who had engaged to build the Road for a certain sum, which was quite enough to build it, had the money subscribed been properly spent, and the consequence of that vote has been, that for every dollar you lay out for goods you only get eighty-five cents worth, the other fifteen cents goes to the interest on this sixteen millions we have been robbed of. Only think what immense good might have been done in this county in draining, road making, &c., if, instead of giving that to the Grand Trunk it had been divided among the counties.

B. Yes, that is true, we can scarcely make a living in our township on account of the want of drains, and have scarcely any roads.

A. Well, there is only one vote more I will show you, and that was when the Great Western Railway applied for an extension of their charter. He allowed them to insert a clause compelling farmers along its line to prevent their cattle going within one mile of the Road, under penalty of having them put in pound, and prevents any compensation being claimed from the Railway in case any cattle should be killed on the track. Now, is that not fine conduct on the part of our member? Does it not look as if he had taken a bribe from the Railway before he could possibly allow our interests to be so sacrificed?

B. Yes, it does, and the farmers out our way are very indignant at the law, but they don't know Rankin had any hand in it.

A. Well, you can tell them now.

B. I certainly will, and I think he will not get much support from them. At least, I will do what I can to prevent them.

A. Now, McLeod, in his address, distinctly promises to do what he can to secure equal rights for Catholics, as well as Protestants, which is all any true Catholic desires. Further, he will go for a reduction of taxes; he will endeavor to secure Government assistance to complete a line of Roads through our county,—especially to get the Road completed from Muidstone Cross to Amherstburg, which is very much wanted, and if Mr. Rankin had made the least effort, it could have been finished long ago; it is very much wanted.

B. Yes, I know that to my cost. I have to travel thirty miles instead of fourteen, and great inconvenience is felt by many of my neighbors who go in the summer to work in the Southern Townships.

A. On the seat of Government question, Mr. McLeod is strongly in favor of its being in Upper Canada, and he will do what he can to throw the Hudson's Bay Territory open for trade and emigration. These are the principles on which he asks our votes, and I for one will do all I can to get him elected.

B. You have thoroughly convinced me and I will go with you. It is a pity you could not go into our Township, you might convince a great many of the intelligent voters there. However, as the time is so short, I must do what I can. I was very nearly misled, but now my eyes are opened. Three cheers for McLeod!

What Rankin has Done for Esex

He sold the Southern Railway to Zimmerman.

He prevented McLeod from building the Railway, because he could not get £50,000 from Zimmerman's Executor.

He assisted Brydges and Zimmerman to write a letter to the English shareholders, describing the County of Essex as a swamp, and that the Railway should not go farther west than Chatham.

He voted with George Brown against equal rights being given to Catholics and Protestants, on the school question, which, had he succeeded, would have had the effect of preventing the Catholics from having schools in the Southern Townships, and the Protestants from having schools in the Northern Townships.

He supported the amendment to the Great Western Railway Charter, which prevents farmers along the line of that Railway having their cattle at large, under penalty of their being impounded.

He voted for the removal of the seat of Government to Quebec to the injury of the whole Province of Upper Canada.

He voted for a grant of sixteen millions of dollars to the grand Trunk Railway, which caused a duty of fifteen per cent. to be added on all imports.

He appointed a host of Custom House officers along the coast, at large salaries, which have to be paid out of the people's pockets.

He appointed a number of his most unprincipled supporters, magistrates, to the annoyance of the respectable portion of the community.

MACLEOD'S PRINCIPLES.

Liberal Conservatism.

Improvement of the County of Essex.

Confederation of the British Provinces.

Establishment of A Permanent Seat of Government.

Abolition of the Hudson Bay Monopoly.

Equal Rights to both Upper and Lower Canada in regard to Education.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR—I observe in an Extra issued by you on Friday, an account of the manner in which Mc Leod was received at Maidstone Cross on Thursday, and where he was refused a hearing. I was present at that meeting and can corroborate the chairman's statement; but at the same time I wish to state that in my opinion the row was made by parties imported by Rankin for the purpose, headed by a few residents such as O'Conner, sen., Devlin, Lundy, McFarlane, Joe Miller from Sandwich, and last, but not least in rowdy notoriety Rankin's son "George," who you may recollect struck W. D. Baby at the meeting in Windsor, and I do not wish it to be supposed that the respectable inhabitants at the Cross in any way approved of the proceedings. Such men as the Halfords, the Cavanahs, the McCanns, were all on the side of order, and in several instances overawed the bullies Rankin had brought to the meeting. In fact, I believe that to their conduct must be attributed the fact that MacLeod and his party were not seriously injured, and that the threats made by old O'Connor the previous evening, were not carried out. Although Rankin made him a magistrate he could not make him either respectable or respected, and I feel sure that when Rankin made O'Connor, Devlin and McFarlane magistrates, he did himself a very great injury in that part of the County.

JUSTICE.

Letter from Theo. M. Kalchthaller.

AMHERSTBURG, Dec. 27, 1857.

To John McLeod, Esq.

SIR,—Having been at one time a supporter of Mr. Rankin, but having since chosen to support you, I deem it of importance to you to know that I have been called on to-day by the Grand Master of the Orange Lodge in Canada, from Toronto, who is here electioneering for Mr. Rankin. He came to me as I am still County Grand Master of the Orange Lodges in Essex, Kent and Lambton, and insisted as my superior in the order, that I should support and vote for Mr. Rankin. I refused to do so, and among other arguments he used, he said that the Governor General was an Orangeman, and the Premier, meaning Hon. J. A. McDonald, and others of the ministry were Orangemen, and as Mr. Rankin was an out and out supporter of them, that if I was a true hearted Orangeman, I ought to support and vote for Mr. Rankin. Now, I merely tell you this to show you the double game Rankin is playing. He has once played the Catholics false, and, no doubt, intends to do so again. Else, why fetch the Grand Master here all the way from Totonto? Treachery of this kind I do not like. I like an open enemy, but this kind of working I do not like, for he must either prove treacherous to the Orangemen or the Catholics. If this can do you any good, you may use it as I know you to be above any double dealing, and it is for that reason I support you.

Yours truly,

THEO. M. KALCHTHALLER.

REPLY

To THOMAS PAXTON, Esq.,

and upwards of One Thousand other Electors of the County.

GENTLEMEN,

Although it is much against my own inclination to enter into Public Life, I cannot refuse to comply with the request of so large and influential a body of Electors, that I should allow myself to be put in nomination as a Candidate for the Representation of this County.

At the outset, I frankly avow to you that I shall be prepared to support a liberal Conservative Government.

In the present lull in our political affairs, it is not difficult to perceive, that ere long, certain great measures, as yet indistinctly presenting themselves to our view, and of most vital importance to the future of our Country, such as the establishing of a permanent Seat of Government; the extension of the boundaries of Canada; the confederation of all the British North American Provinces; and a new organization of our Colonial Government it will exercise the Public mind. To any new Measures as they are brought forward, I shall give an earnest, liberal, and patriotic consideration.

There is one Question, however, that in my judgment, must immediately engage the attention of our Legislature, and which deeply concerns us—I mean the Question in regard to the Hudson's Bay Company. On that question I must unequivocally declare my opinion to be, that the great monopoly enjoyed by the Hudson's Bay Company, should be abolished, and that the vast territory under their sway, should be added to Canada, and thrown open to colonization, and the benefits of civilization.

In regard to our Educational System, I shall be ready to advocate and support a General Law conferring equal rights, and making similar provisions in respect to Separate Schools, both for Upper and Lower Canada.

In Railway Matters, I shall ever have regard to the welfare of the County at large. I am in favor of an independent line of Railway being constructed through this Peninsula, having a Terminus at Sandwich as well as at Amherstburg.

With the assurance that my best efforts will be given to promote the interests of the County, should I be elected as your Representative,

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient and faithful Servant
JOHN MACLEOD.

Sandwich, December 8th, 1857.

REPONSE.

A Monsieur Paxton et à plus de mille autres Electures du Comté d'Essex,

Messieurs,

Quoi'qui soit contre mon inclination d'embrasser la vie publique, Je ne puis cependant me refuser à me rendre à la solicitation d'un si grand nombre d'Electeurs en permettant qu'on me mette en nomination comme candidat pour la representation de ce Comté

Premièrement promettez moi de vous avouer franchement que Je suis prêt à supporter un Gouvernement Conservatif mais liberal.

Vu le calme de nos affaires politiques, il n'est pas difficile d'appercevoir qu'avant longtems certaines mesures qui ne se presentent encore que bien indistinctement à notre vue, mais de la plus haute importance pour l'avenir de notre pays; tel que l'establissment d'un siége permanent du Gouvernement, l'extention de limites du Canada, la confederation de toutes les Provinces de l'Amerique Britannique du Nord, et une nouvelle organizatson de notre Gouvernement Colonial, occuperont très vivement l'esprit public.

Je donnerai à toutes mesures nouvelles ma plus serieuse considération en même tems que liberale et patriotique.

Il y a une question cependant qui, selon moi, doit immédiatement occuper l'attention de notre Législature, et qui est d'un très grand intérêt pour nous tous. Je veux parler de la question de la Baie d'Hudson. Je vous déclare ici sans aucun équivoque, que le grand monopole dont a joui jusqu'a ce jour la compagnie de la Baie d'Hudson doit être aboli, et le vaste territoire qui se trouve sous son controle soit ajouté au Canada pour être ouvert à la colonization et à la civilization.

Pour ce qui a rapport à notre système d'éducation, je suis prêt à supporter acune loi générale, qui nous donnera des droits égaux pour les écoles séparées tans pour le Haut que le Bas-Canada.

Dans les affaires de Chémins de fer je prendrai toujours en consideration le bien être du Comté en général. Je suis en faveur de la construction d'une ligne indépendente de chemin de fer à travers cette Péninsule, ayant son terminus à Sandwich aussi bien qu'à Amherstburg.

Recevez, Messieurs, l'assurance que si j'ai l'honneur d'être élu votre Representant Je ferai tout en moi pour promouvoir les interêts du Comté.

Je suis, Messieurs,
Votre fidèle et obéissant serviteur,
JOHN MACLEOD.

THE NOMINATION.

ANOTHER VICTORY GAINED.

MACLEOD TRIUMPHANT!

Over 400 Majority for MacLeod at the Nomination.

RANKIN DEMANDED A POLL!

HURRAH FOR MACLEOD!!!

On Thursday last, the day appointed for the Nomination, a large concourse of people from all parts of the County commenced to assemble at an early hour in Sandwich, to take part in the Glorious Victory that was to be achieved over RANKIN, the Railway Speculator. At about eleven o'clock a steamer load of Rankin's men landed at our dock, from Amherstburg, with some where in the neighborhood of three hundred and forty or fifty, (composed mostly of Pensioners—led by Major Donaldson—and colored people. They were met by perhaps an equal number from Sandwich and the back Townships. As the nomination was looked upon by Rankin as of the greatest importance, he had mustered all his forces from every part of the County, determined as he was, to gain the nomination at least, if he could not gain the election. In this, however, he was sorely disappointed, for the electors fought shy of the speculating ex M. P. P.

In half an hour after the arrival of the Rankin men, the steamers Ploughboy and Windsor, arrived from Amherstburg, crowded to their fullest capacity, and when they arrived at the dock, poured forth a living stream of respectable yeomen, the bone and sinews of the land—men who were not forced by a stuck up Major, to attend the nomination—but men who came forward to exercise their rights as British Freemen. These are the supporters of John MacLeod.

We should judge that at least twelve hundred persons landed from the MacLeod boats, and were met by nearly four hundred persons from the neighborhood of Sandwich and the back Townships. They all formed in procession, and made a most formidable display of the best men in the County of Essex.

On their arrival at the stand erected for the purpose, and the Sheriff having gone through the necessary formula—

Mr. Henry McKenney, of Amherstburg, proposed ARTHUR RANKIN as a fit and proper person to represent the County of Essex in the next Parliament. Mr. McKenney, we must say, adopted a very judicious course, and said not a word beyond the mere form of proposition, for as he could not conscientiously say any thing in his favor, he deemed it advisable to say nothing at all. Thus it was that Rankin was proposed, without the proposer being able to mention one single redeeming quality in his favor. He was seconded by Messrs. Macintette and O'Connor. The former, regretted that his party would be beaten at the nomination—he at least had the honesty to admit the truth, &c. &c. The latter whose vanity had to be gratified, was permitted to reap the honor of being the other seconder. He felt proud of having the honor of seconding his dearest friend Arthur who was co-laborer with him in many a nice lot of little jobs, such as that of Ouellette's Farm, (upon which, by the way, we are informed, Rankin intends to qualify, if elected.) A feeble attempt was then made to say something in favor of his friend, [how patronizing!] but it being all up-hill work, was found both severe to himself and tedious to the assembly. A few hats were thrown into the air, and a little screeching and yelling followed. Two or three of the pensioners, at a wink from their Major, stood upon their heads, from excessive enthusiasm in the cause. A few of Rankin's colored friends attempted a break down, when the band struck up "Auld Lang Syne." The scene was quite amusing, with black and white mixed up in general confusion.

Rankin, be it remembered has never dared to put forth an address to the electors, containing the principles which he intended to advocate,—this he could not do, as there is little principle left in him—nor was one word said by either his Mover or Seconders about what measures he intended to advocate if elected. This was no doubt a matter of policy, for he felt that the more he said, the nearer would the net be drawn upon him; he dared not speak upon upon the School Question, for he has already deceived the French Canadians,—having once broken faith with them, it would be a dangerous question to touch upon;—Representation according to Population, he dared not disturb, for he is bound neck and heels, to oppose it.—Upon the Seat of Government Question, his mind is quite composed.—Upon the Question of uniting the British North American Provinces into one, he once introduced a series of high-toned resolutions into Parliament upon the subject, but his mind being too contracted to deal with a subject of such vast importance, they were left through a whole Session, without once being brought before the House, for if he had, his ignorance and lack of ability, would have made him supremely ridiculous. Thus for effect, he placed upon the orders of the day, a question, which he had not the ability to carry out.

The next Candidate proposed was John MacLeod, and Mr. Thomas Paxton in doing so, referred to the parliamentary career of the late Member, in an able and straightforward speech. He referred to the Railway Excitement which Mr. Rankin had got up for election purposes, and proved their many statements which had been made about the immediate construction of the road, were all false; that the money market at the present time was not in a position to admit of any great work being undertaken, and more particularly under the direction of Mr. Rankin.

In refering to Major Donaldson and his band of Pensioners, he said that it was the privilege of every British freeman to use the franchise with the utmost freedom, and they would not allow Mr. Rankin to take possession of the polls at the point of the bayonet. We regret that we are not able to report his speech fully, as many points were touched upon that were particulary pertinent.

Mr. Caron then seconded the nomination in an eloquent speech in French. He appeared to touch the feelings of the French Canadians, in a particularly happy manner. He also referred to the two imported spouters brought into the County, by Rankin, to patch up his broken down cause, and to try and lead away, by all sorts of subterfuge, the honest Canadian—this, he said, should open their eyes to Rankin's miss-conduct, for if he had, while in Parliament, acted honestly, there would have been no necessity for Government Clerks being brought all the way from Toronto, to mislead them.

There being no other Candidate to propose, the Sheriff called for a division, those in favor of Rankin, to stand on the left, and those for Mr. MacLeod, on the right. After the parties had divided, it was apparent to all that there was a very large majority for Mr. MacLeod, and the Sheriff accordingly declared him elected. Mr. Rankin then demanded a poll, which was granted, and the returning officer appointed the thirty-first day of December next, as the first day of polling, and the second day of January as the second day.

When the sheriff declared Mr. MacLeod Elected, there arose a cheer from the assembled multitude, that was quiet deafning. the whole mass of the MacLeod supporters, who were at the least calculation; three fourths of all those assembled, made the welkin ring again with their enthusiastic shouts, again and again was the cheer continued, by the fifteen hundred supporters of MacLeod who represent the intelligence, and respectibly of the County of Essex.

An attempt was then made to get up a cheer for Rankin, the Defeated Candidate but alas! what a failure; It was highly amusing to view the grim visages of his few supporters become suddenly elongated far beyond their usual length. They knew it was a bitter pill—but it had to be swallowed, and many a wry face could be seen in his mixed croud of followers.

Mr. Rankin came forward to speak to the multitude, but there did not appear any disposition to listen to him.

Mr. MacLeod finding that no opportunity would be afforded the candidates to address the electors, left the stand, and was triumphantly carried to the Hennell House, followed by the immense crowd of his supporters; he then addressed them for over an hour in a truly eloquent speech.

Everything passed off quietly until late in the afternoon, when a few fights took place. Among the number we must not pass over two or three, that were of a most shameful nature, and are only in keeping with the majority of the Rankin followers, and cannot be surpassed in cowardice and brutality. A fight commenced between two or three parties, when Mr. Baptiste Gauthier while down, was kicked just over the eye, by a ruffian, by the name of Finn, a Rankinite, and received a most severe injury, and we fear may affect the sight of one of his eyes.

Another was an assault made upon Mr. John McKee, a most respectable farmer of this Township; he had got into an altercation with some parties, when John O'CONNOR, the accomplice of Author Rankin stole up behind him, and without any provocation whatever, inflicted a severe wound upon McKee's head, with a heavy cane. This is certainly one of the most distinctly assaults that we ever heard of.—McKee's head was badly cut, though fortunately the wound was not serious.

The other was an assault made upon a person from one of the lower Townships, whose name we did not hear, was walking quietly along the street, when three or four Rankinites set upon him in a most ruffianly manner.

We have great satisfaction in saying that that every fight that was got up, was through the disorderly conduct of some of the Rankin party.

Among the casualties of the day, we may as well here mention the fall of Arthur Rankin, late Member for Essex. He fell from his seat in Parliament, and appears to be greatly injured in person and character, and is, we regret to say, not likely to recover.

The Autobiography of Arthur Rankin.

Converted Reform Candidate for Kent.

The following, which we put before our readers, will show them, the first of Mr. Rankin's political shifts; that he he been shifting ever since, is patent to every person who has not been too much disgusted to take the trouble of tracing his political career; that he will be shiftless after this Election is over, is by this time, we think pretty patent to himself. The article in question, which was copied by most of the leading journals of the day, is taken from the Canada Oth, and shews the opinion of the Press, about Mr. Rankin at that time.

To the Editor of the Kent Advertiser.

"DEAR SIR,—I have just read an article in the Patriot, for which I thank the writer, as it has induced me to do that which, perhaps, I ought to have done before, and which I have not done, only from an unwillingness to appear egotistical.

"Permit me, Mr. Editor, to give you a brief account of myself for the last fourteen years. When the rebellion broke out in 1837, I was a MERE BOY, only in my 20th year. I had been brought up in strict principles of loyalty, and without pausing one moment to reflect upon the justice of the demands of the discontented party, I volunteered my services in the support of my country; and from December, 1838 till May, 1843, I continued to serve in the Incorporated Militia of the Province. During the whole of that time (nearly six years), I, of course took no part in politics. My impression was that REFORM WAS ONLY ANOTHER WORD FOR REBELLION. From the period of the disbanding of the said Militia till the autumn of 1843, I was ACTUALLY ENGAGED IN PURSUITS WHICH LEFT ME HARDLY A MOMENTS LEISURE TO READ THE PAPERS, MUCH LESS TO STUDY POLITICS; and on the only two occasions in my life, viz. in 1844 and 1848, on which I have voted for a Conservative candidate; but for the last two years I have had more leisure to read, to inform myself on the political subjects than I ever had before, and have taken more pains to do so, and the consequence is, that I come to the conclusion that any man who has any real estate in the country, and who can divest himself of prejudice, must see that the PROGRESSIVE PARTY ARE THE REFORMERS; THE OBSTRUCTIVES ARE THE CONSERVATIVES. As to LOYALTY to my Sovereign, I have as much proof of that as it is in the power of man to give; but Canada is my native land, and I earnestly wish to see it prosper, and as I firmly believe (and I have come to the conclusion after much reflection,) that the views of the Reformers are better calculated to advance the interests of the country than those of the Tories, I am resolved in future to give my support to the former, and to oppose the latter. I have always been opposed to Church endowments, on religious grounds, Independent of politics altogether. I wish to see all on a perfect equality, and allowed it to stand on its own merits; and I am, and always have been, in favor of representation based on population. I wish it to be clearly understood, however, that I will never allow myself to become a partizan, merely to support a party, for what it may, of the party to which I belong; but I will give them a uniform, steady and consistent support on all the main questions of principle which divide the parties. Trusting you will be good enough to excuse its length, and give it a better place in your next paper, I remain, dear sir,"

Yours, very truly,
A. RANKIN.

Chatham, Sept. 16, 1851.

As this important work is not very voluminous, and as the copyright has not yet been secured, we have eagerly seized upon the opportunity of the privilege to publish it entire.

The world at large, as well as Mr. Rankin, may well thank the Plane, for having induced him to do that which, as he very properly observes, he ought to have done before—namely, publish his memoirs. It is really too bad that a man so eagerly sought after by individual should so long have been hidden from public ken. The excitement the work will cause in all circles, and the resentment and despair of leading publishers in London and New York, at finding the Kent Advertiser has stolen a march upon them by obtaining the original manuscript, may be more easily imagined than described.

We cannot but regret that the memoirs are not complete, but only reach back fourteen years; whereas, it would have been highly gratifying to learn the cradlography and childhood of this illustrious person—to watch the gradual developement of that mighty mind—the increasing and expanding corruscations of that transcendant genius.

It is also to be deplored that the memoirs are not more full; but this is owing to the author's extreme modesty, as may be readily proved by the Spartan brevity with which he dismisses all his brilliant campaigns and unexampled sufferings in the cause of his Queen: "As to loyalty to my Sovereign," he exclaims, with the lofty dignity of a Wellington, "I have given as much proof of that, as it is in the power of man to give!" Think how much is contained in those brief words. Men have ere now, cheerfully laid their heads on the block, without reward, amidst popular execrations, for their loyalty. A wounded gentleman has given his horse to a defeated king, and throwing himself among the pursuing foe, died rejoicing that he had helped, though but for a moment, his monarch's escape.—Think of such things, and then learn to appreciate the self sacrifice of Mr. Rankin, who has done equal, at least to all these, and yet forbears to recount his exploits!

But let us come to the principal points of Mr. Rankin's letter. His excusing himself for having been loyal in his younger days, is one of the most singular instances of perverted ideas we ever met with. What means he by "the justice of the demands of the discontented party! the gentleman has lately become a dealer in innuendos. Does he intend by this one that the revolt of 1837 was justifiable?

Nay, man, never hide your meaning in doubtful sentences. Look up, look up, and in the face of the world proclaim yourself what you are.

And has this new Coriolanus indeed gone over to the enemy? Have Papineau, Baby and Rankin met together—sedition and humbug kissed each other!

Oh holy Mackenzie! Father of rebels! graciously receive this penitent convert! Lount and Matthews! martyrs of treason! look benignly on your new worshipper! You unto him be imputed the crime of loyalty, but to the impressibility of extreme youth, and the errors of a perverted education.

Alas! for the fading glories of Canada loyalty!

"We've fallen upon gloomy days,
Star after star goes out."

One month we kiss Mr. Aimer O, Morton, and in the next Mr. Arthur Rankin!

Mr. Rankin says, that, up to his 26 year, he believed reform to be only another name for rebellion. Such sentiments held by a man of talent, show either enormous and wilful ignorance, or confirmed, hopeless bigotry. What could Mr. Rankin, at the age of 26, have supposed that all our laws were perfect, and would remain so through every change of circumstances, till the "crack of doom;" and that therefore no reform could be needed, and all attempts at it were rebellion! The educated man who could hold those principles, can be no loss to the party he deserts; no credit to that which may consent to enlist him.

But hear him further. From 1843 to 1848 he had not a moment's leisure to read the papers much less to study politics; so that it is inferred that he continued this state of mind for the whole of the abandonment, even to his thirty-first year. Were his statement consistent with fact, Mr. Rankin would be an object of pity. But even the plea of ignorance will not avail him. From the spring of 1845 to that of 1846, Mr. R edited the Western Standard newspaper published in Hamilton, and had no other occupation to fill his time. So much for his of "a moment's leisure to read the papers!"

As to his having always been opposed to church endowments, we are well assured that but a very short time ago he argued strongly in favor of them.

He would lead the men of Kent to believe that his conversion has been gradual since 1848. But we know, that not a month past, he expressed himself as a strong conservative.

Reformers of Kent, do you wish to be gulled once more? If so, elect Mr. Rankin, and we wish you joy of your new representative.

ORANGEISM!!

Amherstburg, 27. Dec. 1857.

TO JOHN MACLEOD, Esq.

SIR,—Having been at one time a supporter of Mr. Rankin, but having since chosen to support you, I deem it of importance to you to know that I have been called on to-day by the Grand Master of the Orange Lodge in Canada from Toronto, who is here electioneering for Mr. Rankin, he came to me as I am still County Grand Master of the Orange Lodges in Essex, Kent and Lambton, and insisted as my superior in the order, to give my full support and vote for Mr. Rankin. I refused to do so, and among other arguments he used, he said that the Governor General was an Orangeman, and the Premier, meaning Hon. J. A. McDonald, and others of the ministry were Orangemen, and as Mr. Rankin was an out and out supporter of them, that if I was a true hearted Orangeman, I ought to support and vote for Mr. Rankin. Now, I might tell you this to show you the double game Rankin is playing. He has once played the Catholics false and, no doubt, intends to do so again. Else, why fetch the Grand Master here all the way from Toronto? Treachery of this kind I do not like. I like an open enemy, but this kind of working I do not like, for he must either prove treacherous to the Orangemen or the Catholics. If this can do you any good, you may use it as I know you to be above any double dealing, and it is for that reason I support you.

Yours truly,
THEO. M. KALCHTHALER.

ORANGEISME!!!

Lettre de M. KALCHTHALLER, Président des Orangistes des Comtés d' Essex, Kent et Lambton.

AMHERSTBURG, le 27 Decr., 1857.

A Monsieur J. MACLEOD,

J'ai été, autrefois, supporteur de M. Rankin mais comme je me suis decidé après avoir reflechi de vous donner mon soutien, il me semble qu'il est d'importance de vous faire connaitre que j'ai reçu une visite aujourdhui du GRAND MAITRE des ORANGISTES de Canada, qui est venu de Toronto, exprès pour solliciter des voix pour Mr. Rankin. Il est venu me voir, puisque je suis encore Président des loges Orangistes des Comtés d'Essex, Kent et Lambton, et il a voulu, comme mon officier supérieur dans les rangs de l'orangisme, me faire donner ma voix et mon soutien à Mr. Rankin. J'ai refusé de faire cela. Puis, entr'autres raisonnemens dont il s'est servi, il a dit que le Gouverneur-General était Orangiste, que le chef, (Hon. J. A. McDonald,) et autres membres du Ministère étaient aussi Orangistes—et comme Mr. Rankin s'était decidé a les supporter à tort et a travers, il me fallait, comme bon Orangiste, donner ma voix et mon soutien à Rankin. Je ne vous dis ceci que pour vous faire voir la duplicité de Rankin. Il a déja trompé les Catholiques, et il est prêt à le faire le même jeu. Si ce n'était pas ainsi, pourquoi irait il chercher le GRAND MAITRE depuis Toronto? Je n'aime pas une trahison pareille Je n'ai pas peur d'un ennemi qui avance à découvert, mais je déteste de telles supercheries car il faut que Rankin se prouve frère ou ami des Orangistes ou aux Catholiques.

Si cette lettre vous pourra être utile, elle est à votre service. Je sais que vous êtes au dessus de toute duplicité, et c'est pour cela que je vous offre mon soutien.

THEO. M. KALCHTHALER.

Maintenant, Candidates, que pensez vous de la lettre Ci-dessus? N'est il pas evident que M. Rankin est un miserable outil dans les mains de vos ennemis. Je plus invétérés, dont on se sert pour vous tromper et completer votre ruine? Nouvrirez vous pas vos yeux à la lumière! Consentirez vous plus longtems à être ses dupes de même que ses victimes! La lettre ci-dessus vous fait voir assez clair que le jour que Rankin a toutes les sympathies des Orangistes, puisque le Grand Maitre de cette Association dans le Haut Canada, est aujourd'hui dans le Comté a cabaler en sa faveur.—Lisez cette lettre, méditez là sérieusement et certainement vous devez en conclure que Arthur Rankin est indigne de votre support de même que votre confiance. Un traitre, ne peut pas être l'homme qui vous convient.

The last Kick of a Dying Man.

Mr Rankin, through the columns of that truth loving paper, the Mercury, has attempted to lay the blame of his defeat, upon the Returning Officer; and in the audacity to state, that he acted with partiality, towards Mr. MacLeod at the division, when it was quite apparent to any reasonable minded man, that MacLeod had an overwhelming majority at the nomination. If there had been the least room for a doubt as to who in reality had the majority, Rankin then might have had some color to his assertion, but this, there was not; the majority for MacLeod was too apparent to admit of a doubt, and Rankin knows it right well.—But something must be said by this desperate man in excuse for his defeat, and this he supposed to be the only one which would receive credit abroad.

In making these assertions, the unfortunate Rankin party forget the speech of Mr. Marantette, the elaborate seconder of their nominee. Before the decision took place he said: "My friends, I see we are defeated in the nomination, but I hope we shall make up for it at the polls;"—and more than this, the irate O'Connor actually demanded a poll for Mr. Rankin, before the decision was given. Can any stronger evidence be required, that they acknowledged themselves beaten!—we think not.

A Few Words to the "Mercury."

Mr. Mercury,—I am at a loss to know from what source you have learned such a large amount of low, vulgar language—language that is not to be found, except in the lowest grades of society. You appear to be a stranger to all decency, both in word and deed; you have rendered your self so contemptible, that I would not have noticed you, had you not, in your last issue of the Mercury, alluded to me as a lick Spittle, who would do any dirty work for a stipend. Now, Sir, I hurl back the insinuation, as only applicable to yourself. You know you are a young sapling here, so I will tell you what happened before you came. Mr. Arthur Rankin, your present master, set up for a Member of Parliament. He (Rankin) took me round the County with him to canvass. We went in a double carriage, also a single one with friends. I had more spare cash then than I have now. So I, out of my own pocket, paid all the bills—partly to save the exposure of his treating, and partly for convenience. Of course, this cost a great deal of money; and had in a great measure to conduct the proceedings, and some [illegible] and messengers to carry bills, notify [illegible], &c. I trusted, as I hoped, to a man of honor, and advanced money to the parties, and furnished a good deal of my own story stock. Now, Sir, I assure can prove—altogether amounting to a heavy sum, which James Woodbridge, jun., the secretary of that committee, can prove; and not one shilling have I ever received, although asked by others as well as myself. That's not half! The very carriages that [illegible] and all his friends about the County, I with two others were sued for, and we had to pay that also. Mr. Albert Prince can prove this by the County Court records. A part of the last sum was repaid me afterwards, but the balance and all costs still remain unpaid. These matters caused hard feelings between Mr. Rankin and myself, and in order to get rid of my importunities for the large sums paid by me, there seemed to him only one way to do so, namely, to pick a quarrel with me, and get me dismissed from the Commission of the Peace; and now, because I won't support him, he says you, Mr. Mercury, to chastise me, but it will all fall on his own head, this side of Parliament. That is one stipend. I have one more left, which I will tell you, if you will stop lying for Rankin. But get your pay first.

THOMAS WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, December 26th, 1857.

We have received this day by telegraph another proof of the cowardice and ruffianism of Rankin's party. Read this.

By Telegraph.—Rankin's Party went to the Meeting at Biscomay's last night, armed. A fight took place, and 5 or 6 were shot—none killed. Rankin fled, as usual. His party, in mistake, shot some of their own men.

Colchester, 29 Dec., 1857.

The Semi-Annual examination of the scholars of the Protestant Separate School, took place on Saturday last in the presence of the trustees, Messrs. Bullock, Teakle, Davis, and several other Ladies and Gentlemen. It would by no means be sufficient to say that the examination was most satisfactory, it was more than that. It was marvelous to see how the scholars had improved under Mr. Stewart's tuition, within the last four months. The lower classes of small children that a few months ago scarcely knew their letters, now read fluently and spell well, while the proficiency of the fifth class, composed of boys of the ages of from twelve to fourteen, in Ancient History, Geography, and Arithmetic, was quite surprising. Mr. Stewart deserves the greatest credit for his method of teaching, and has the thanks of the trustees for the admirable manner in which he has brought on the school.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf,

Dear Sir,

On Thursday evening last, I attended a meeting at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, in this place, for the purpose of hearing the Sunday School children recite their Christmas selections, consisting of pieces both Moral and Religious. It is with great pleasure that I state, that they were spoken in a manner deserving the greatest praise. Some of the elder children in particular, performed their pieces with a correctness, truly surprising, and which displayed, on the part of the Pastor and Teachers, an energy and zeal, which reflects the greatest credit upon them. Even the youngest children in the school, were not neglected, for they each had their separate task. It was on the whole instructive and amusing, and general pleasure and astonishment, was manifested by all present.

I am, Dear Sir,
A WELL-WISHER.

The Old Year to which we now bid farewell is about to take its rank amongst the past.—a year rife with bloodshed, bank failures and misery,—and with the New Year, come elections, and we hope a better state of affairs—In wishing our friends a happy new year, we pray God that the now brightening prospects may not be overclouded, but that the coming one may add to the happiness and prosperity of our country.

☞ We would advise those of our readers, who wish for a good education, either for themselves or their children, to read the advertisement, of the Fort Edward Institute, which will be found in another column.

Further by the Adriatic.

In both Houses of Parliament on Monday the 17th, a royal message was received from the Queen, recommending the bestowal of a pension of £1,000 a year upon Gen. Havelock, as a signal mark of favor and approbation for his brilliant services in India.

In the House of Lords on the same evening, Lord Ellenborough brought forward his movement for information in regard to the Arms act, and the restrictions placed upon the press in India, and after some debate, in which Lord Grenville objected the government of India from the attacks of Lord Ellenborough, the motion was agreed to.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Labouchere announced that the Government had determined to give a fair trial to the scheme for procuring guano from the Kooria Mooria Islands, and had sent a ship-of-war for that purpose.

Lord Palmerston, upon further information, modified his statement that the two English engineers imprisoned at Naples had nothing to complain of in their treatment, by stating that such was the case now, but that when they were first imprisoned their treatment was most disgraceful. He said that as the men were accused of violating Neapolitan law, they would have to undergo a public trial, for which the means of defence would be afforded them.

The Bank of England Indemnity bill was debated and read a second time.

On Tuesday the 8th, the pension of Sir H. Havelock was agreed to in both Houses after eulogistic speeches, and complaints by some members that the reward was not near large enough.

In the House of Commons a resolution was offered "that the unlimited liability of shareholders in joint stock Banks gives rise to a species of credit injurious to the interests of the public, and that the present law enforcing the adoption of this principle requires alteration." After some debate, in which Government opposed the resolution as being of too positive a nature, the motion was negatived.

The Bank Indemnity bill was ordered in Committee to be reported without amendment, and to be read a third time on the 9th inst.

The London Post, (Ministerial) understands that if the debate on the Bank Charter Committe should not be adjourned, there would be nothing to prevent Parliament from rising for the holidays on the 14th December, as it was believed to be the intention of Ministers not to entertain any business beyond that before the House.—When Parliament adjourned it would be till the period at which it usually meets.

A decision had been rendered in the Vice Chancellor's Court, which in effect will invalidate all marriages by British subjects with a deceased wife's sister, not only in Britain, but in all foreign States.

One of the parties implicated in the recent robbery in London of a trunk containing jewelry, &c., belonging to Lady Ellesmere, had made a confession. The trunk was boldly taken from the top of a cab as it was passing along the street, and its contents valued at about £15,000, disposed of for a few pounds among the receivers of stolen goods.

It is stated that Sir Gaspard le Marchant, at present Governor of Nova Scotia, is to succeed Sir W. R. Reed as Governor of Malta, and that Lord Mulgrave is to be appointed Governor of Nova Scotia.

The London Sunday Times says it is stated to be the intention of the Government to raise several regiments of Africans for service in India—the staff to be composed of non-commissioned officers of the West India Regiments.

The marriage of the Princess Royal and Prince Frederick William of Prussia, is set down for the 25th of January.

The work of launching the "Leviathan" was progressing slowly but surely. She was moved a few feet forward every day. Operations were suspended on the 8th by a dense fog.

Among the matters of political importance may be mentioned the case of an American citizen, Mr. Maillard, whose property, purchased at public auction at a place called Moyne, in Queen's County, Ireland, was taken possession of and is still withheld from him by a lawless mob. Mr. Maillard, lately in command of a regiment in the British Government for the assistance of the civil power to enable him to obtain the cattle he had bought.

Having failed in this by the adroit use on the other side of superior personal influence and official circumlocution, he applied to the American Consul at Dublin (Mr. James Arrott), who, on inquiry into Mr. Maillard's complaint, was sufficiently satisfied that he had been treated with great injustice and oppression as to justify the application (in his official capacity as Consul to the Irish Executive) to obtain or rescue Mr. Maillard's property from the hands of the mob.

This application of the Consul was refused, as it is alleged, on the most shallow and insufficient pretexts. Mr. Maillard is therefore about to submit the history of this affair, together with the official correspondence of the Consul with the British Government, to Congress, and to petition both houses for an official enquiry into the whole of the circumstances of this affair and such relief and protection as Congress may think him entitled to.

A CUNNING CAT.—One day the cook in a monastery, when he laid the dinner, found one brother's meat missing. He supposed that he had miscalculated, made good the deficiency, and thought of it no more till the next day, when he had again too little at dinner time by one monk's commons. He suspected knavery and resolved to watch for the thief. On a third day he was quite sure that he had meat cut into the right number of portions, and was about to dish up, when he was called off by a ring at the outer gate. When he came back there was again a monk's allowance gone. Next day he again paid special heed to his calculations; and when he was on the point of dishing up again there was a ring at the gate to draw him from the kitchen. He went no further than the outside of the kitchen door, when he saw that the cat jumped in at the kitchen window, and was out again in an instant with a piece of meat. Another day's watching showed that it was the cat also, who, by leaping up at it, set the bell ringing with her paws; and thus having, as she supposed, put the cook out of the kitchen, made the coast clear for her own particular proceedings. The monks then settled it in conclave that the cat should be left thus to earn for the remainder of her days double rations, while they spread abroad the story of her cunning. So they obtained many visitors, who paid money for good places, from which to see the little comedy; and they grew richer for the thief they had among them.—Household Words.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

CONTEMPORARY PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most pointed religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We request and ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and their heirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is published.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a limited nature.

The Loans required in the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate Giltedge within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall cease at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members. The basis upon which it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:—

A sum of $200 is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share - - -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years -	96.
Total - - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.
And for three years - - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Rankin Chastised!

His Railway Trickery Analized in Parliament by George Brown, M. P.

(From the Globe of June 9.)

Mr. Brown—I have merely spoken of the scheme the hon. gentlemen has before the country; and in going into it a little more fully I shall not deal in loose statements, I shall not even adopt the written evidence of other parties. I shall confine my comments strictly and exclusively to the hon. gentleman's own evidence, prepared and dictated with the greatest care and deliberation. The hon. member for Waterloo would have it appear that the Bill before the House is an independent scheme, framed to get quit of all the parties charged with corrupt practices But in this the case? Who was the framer of this Bill? who introduced it? who is the first member in this House to rise in its defence? Who, sir, but the hon. member for Essex? And there is this remarkable fact connected with this Bill, that the very party who thus promotes it, is the President at this moment of the very charter he asks us to repeal! We cannot look at this bill apart from the historical associations that are now unhappily attached to it; we cannot vote in favour of it without endorsing all its antecedents. A fierce battle has been waging for weeks past in our committee rooms—the eyes of our people have been steadily watching its progress—it is known that persons charged with the most corrupt proceedings are seeking to get control of the Southern Road through this charter—and if we pass it assuredly we will be held, and justly held, to have endorsed all the past proceeding of these persons, and sent them broad on society to repeat their operations. I do trust the House will never record a vote charged as it will be with inferences so lamentable—and if I can command its attention for a brief space while I lay before it a few points in the evidence of hon. member for Essex very certain am I that no such vote will be given. Mr. Rankin, Mr. Speaker, was called as a witness on behalf of his own Bill; and he begins his evidence with this statement, that in 1855, HE introduced a bill to incorporate a company called the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, that during the same session a bill was introduced "authorizing the Woodstock and Lake Erie *R*ailway and *H*arbour Campany to make extensions eastwardly to the Suspension Bridge, and westwardly to St. Thomas," and that power was given to amalgamate the said line with the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Company. Now, Sir, the House will observe that here the proceeding commenced which have eventuated in the present struggle and the bill before the House. I need hardly say, that in this bill, of 1855, Mr. Rankin duly installed himself a Corporator and Provisional Director, with coadjutors, far from opposed to the views and interests of the hon. gentleman. Well, sir, what was the next step? "In February, 1856," says Mr. Rankin, "finding that the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway Company had not as yet made any exertion whatever towards obtaining subscriptions"—"I introduced a bill to amend and extend the charter of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company," by authorising among other things, "the extension of the road to the Suspension Bridge, independent of the Woodstock and Lake Erie Line.' Well, sir, he tells us this extension was not granted, and he had to fall back on the Woodstock and Lake Erie. His bill received the Royal assent on the 1st July, 1856, and on the 3rd, two days after, the hon. gentleman goes to work. Let me read from his evidence:—"I entered into a written agreement with Mr. Zimmerman, dated at the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, on the 3rd July, 1856, by which I agreed to unite with Mr. Zimmerman!" Now, let us see the terms of their agreement—and here is the document itself—[hear.]

"Agreement Between S. Zimmerman and A. Rankin.

"It is hereby agreed, by and between the undersigned, that they shall mutually exert themselves in endeavoring to effect amalgamation between the Woodstock and Lake Erie Railway and Harbour Company, and the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, and that Arthur Rankin shall unite with Samuel Zimmerman in endeavoring to obtain the contract for building the Railway from St. Thomas to Amherstburg and Windsor, as provided by the charter of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Company, with the understanding, and upon the condition that the said Rankin shall be entitled to, and receive one-fourth of the profits arising from such contract; should the said Zimmerman, either in his own name only, or associated with others, succeed in obtaining the same. The said Zimmerman however, shall have the right at any time within twelve months (but not after the expiration of that period) from the date hereof, to acquire the interest of the said Rankin in the above mentioned contract, on paying him (said Rankin) the sum of twenty five thousand pounds in the following manner, that is to say: the sum of twelve thousand pounds down, and the remaining thirteen thousand pounds within one month after the day on which the Railway from St. Thomas to Amherstburg or Windsor, or any other point on the Detroit River is finished and open for traffic; Interest on the last mentioned thirteen thousand pounds shall be paid half yearly on the 1ts January and 1st July, by the said Samuel Zimmerman, to the said Rankin, till the principal is paid as above stipulated.

Signed and sealed at the Clifton House, Falls of Niagara, this third day of July, 1856

(Signed,) Samuel Zimmerman, [Seal]
" Arthur Rankin, [Seal]
Joseph A. Woodruff, Witness.

The following memorandum was given by Mr. Rankin, after Mr.Zimmerman's death:

MEMO. FOR MR. VANSITTART.

If Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Street (on behalf of Mr. Wythes) will bind themselves to carry out the arrangements entered into between Mr. Zimmerman and myself, with reference to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway. and to protect my interests to the full extent to which Mr. Zimmerman had agreed, in writing over his own signature, and further, to protect the rights of all other parties, derived from the late Mr. Z., which have been reduced to writing and signed, I will at once abandon all opposition to their plans, and do my utmost to reconcile all conflicting interests. A. R.

This is no loose statement of the hon. gentleman's proceedings—we have every word of this under his own hand and seal—(hear, hear) and we learn that his first step, though at that very moment a provisional director of the road, though at that very moment standing in a fiduciary capacity between the stock holders and future contractors was to make a secret agreement that a certain party by his influence at the Board and in this House, should have the contract for the road; and for the exertion of that influence, he himself should have one hundred thousand dollars! (sensation.) Well, sir, the plot is laid, the plans for developing it are arranged, let us mark its progress. "On the 5th July, 1856," Mr Rankin goes on, "a meeting of the Provisional Committee was held at St. Thomas, at "which five of the members of that Com"mittee were present. Mr. Zimmerman "appeared at that meeting and proposed to "subscribe, in his own name, and in the names "of certain friends of his, for a sufficient "amount of stock to form the company under "the amended Act, on the following condi "tions," and I pray the House to mark the conditions: —"First, that he should be "permitted to deposit the amount of the first "call upon the stock, viz: ten per cent, in the "Zimmerman Bank"—in Mr. Zimmerman's own Bank—in the Bank of Mr. Rankin's secret partner—and secondly, "that after he, Mr. Zimmerman, had subscribed 'the Provisional Committee should close the books'" and thereby secure the contract in the hands of Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) There were five gentlemen present at the meeting besides the member for Essex—three of them members of this House, Mr. Southwick, Mr. Larwill and Mr. Macbeth. These gentlemen were induced by Mr. Rankin to do all this, they consented to give Mr. Zimmerman entire control of the road. Now, will any one of these gentlemen get up here now and state that Mr. Rankin then told them, or that they had the slightest suspicion that at that very moment Mr. Rankin had an agreement in his pocket from Mr. Zimmerman to share the profits of the contract, their proceedings of that day were intended to secure him? (hear hear.) No, sir; not one of them can deny they were kept in utter ignorance of this disgraceful fact. And yet, sir, the hon. member for Waterloo expects me to assist him in passing a Bill allied with transactions such as this! But, sir, let us follow up the plot. The hon. gentleman's evidence goes on to narrate that he and his brother Directors called a public meeting of the shareholders to organize the Company, to be held at Amherstburg on the 7th August, and what happened at that meeting. Up to this time, Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Rankin had it all their own way; but now Mr. Buchanan came on the field, and by subscribing books at Amherstburg claimed, like Mr. Zimmerman, to have the control of the stock. Mr. Rankin goes on: "I met Mr. Greer in the street" at Amherstburg—"Mr. Greer requested me "to afford him a private interview" and I "accompanied him to an adjoining hotel, "where, IN A PRIVATE ROOM, Mr. Greer "communicated to me the fact that he had "called upon me as agent for Mr. Buchanan, "and that Mr. Buchanan was particularly "anxious that I should join his party. Now, "sir, will the House listen to what follows: "I at once resolved to adopt such a course "with Mr. Greer as would lead him to sup"pose that for a consideration, I would con"sent to act with Mr. Buchanan!" (Loud cries of hear, hear.) Sir, I ask the House if they ever read anything more scandalous than this—deliberately to lead on a man to insult himself—decoy him on the offer of a bribe by the suggestion that he stood ready to be bribed? And is it to such men as this that we are to entrust the negotiation and expenditure of nine millions of dollars? But mark what follows: "I gave Mr. Greer to understand that I was desirous of putting "myself in a position to make something "out of the Railway." And again: "Mr. "Greer left me under the impression that "there would be no difficulty in arranging "with me." And this man and his nominees must have this bill, in order to stamp with disapprobation the misconduct of the Woodstock Company!—hear, hear. Sir, if there is one thing more revolting than a person in a position of trust accepting a bribe, it is the spectacle of a man willing to be supposed capable of that baseness, painting himself as open to corruption, leading on the tempter to assail his integrity, without the intent to consummate the deed! We may comprehend a man being led away by his avarice or his necessities, to accept a bribe, but who can understand the working of that man's mind who puts himself in the position of a villain without the intent to pocket the reward of his baseness! (Sensation.)

But I ask the House to pass with me to the next scene. "Mr. Greer again came from "Hamilton to see me. He dwelt largely "upon the practical advantages that I might "expect to derive, and went more fully into "the pecuniary inducements, so expressing "himself without stating it in so many words, "as to lead me to suppose that I might re"alize at least £30,000, and that I could ob"tain a cheque for £5,000 at once!"—Only think, Mr. Speaker, of a member of this house—a representative of the people of Canada, sitting composedly listening while a scoundrel tried to bribe him! Sir, do you comprehend the matter?—the man went there purposely to bribe a member of this house, and the honourable gentleman heard his proposals coolly! Nay, sir. listen to this: "I told Mr. Greer that there was an "unsettled dispute between the Great West"ern Railway Company and myself, about "the value of a piece of property of mine, "occupied by them; that if Mr. Buchanan"—who had then the controul of the Great Western Railroad—would induce the Com"pany to consent to a new arbitration, it "would remove the feeling of hostility from "my mind which rendered me averse to act"ing with Mr. Buchanan!"—Will the house notice the infamy of this proposal. If Mr. Buchanan will defend the Great Western Railway Company, the honourable genleman will sell him his influence over the Amherstburg Company!!—hear, hear. Was the hon. gentleman serious this time, or was he only "leading on" Greer to further attempts on his virtue? Did he mean to consummate the fraud on the Great Western, or was he only trying to satisfy Greer that he stood ready to descend to the very depths of baseness? Sir, if a member of this house can act this, and blazen it to the world with impunity—how shall we appear in the eyes of our constituents? Aye, sir, and how will we appear, if, in the face of all this, we were to forget our own and our country's honour, and to charter the very men who figure in these scenes, with new power to prey upon the public!—Cheers. But there is yet another scene. "I telegraphed to Mr. Greer" that "if he chose to come up, I would talk to him"—Mr. Greer did come up, and we had another fruitless interview!" Mark, Mr Speaker, the grief that this interview was "fruitless!" What sort of "fruit" did the hon. gentlemen expect?—Laughter. Was he now prepared to touch the cash, or was it only further offers or bribes, more insults he was in search of? Greer offered £30,000 last time—did he now want the offer of £50-000, without the remotest intention of accepting?—was it the height of his ambition to have the offer of a bribe, that he might boast he had refused it at future public meetings? And will the House keep this in mind, that all this while—during all these interviews, all those attempts at extracting a bribe from Mr. Buchanan to sell Mr. Zimmerman, the hon. gentleman had snugly in his pocket his secret treaty with Zimmerman for $100,000 to unite against Buchanan!—hear, hear.

But we are not done yet—let us follow the witness a little further:—"At length on the "6th of August, 1856, Mr. Buchanan him"self, accompanied by a son of the hon. Mr. "Merritt called at my house, and after re"maining for some time he and his friend "rose to take their departure. I accompanied "them to the door"—will the house observe the gusto with which the tale of infamy is narrated?—"I accompanied them to the door, "when Mr. Merritt walked to the road in "front of the house, and got into a coach "which was waiting, while Mr. Buchanan "lingered behind, and under the shade of "the trees in the lawn, commenced his busi"ness proposals."—Yes, sir, under the shade of the trees Mr. Buchanan commenced to bribe the hon. member! And the hon. member sat under the shade of the trees that he might enjoy the luxury of being tampered with in the most fragrant and delightful manner that Asiatic fancy could depict!—(Laughter.) Mr. Buchanan stated—"that "he was now in a position to make me the "following distinct and positive proposals, "viz:—That if I would surrender the Stock "Book, recognise the legality of his position, "and act with him at Amherstburg on the "following day, and thus enable him to "defeat Mr. Zimmerman, he was in a posi"tion to offer me a contract, or an interest "in a contract to be given to Mr. Vanvoor"his and others, with a guaranteed profit to "me of £50,000." Only fancy such a picture! Mr. Buchanan, this honourable gentleman tells us, dared to come to him with the distinct intention of bribing him—dared to violate the sanctity of his roof—dared, on his own hearth floor, to offer him money to sell his trust—and the hon. member for Essex laid not violent hands on his insulter, expelled him not indignantly from his home—but led him under the fragrant shade of his vinetree, that he might fully enjoy the luxury! Was the hon. member for Essex serious this time—did he mean to take the bribe, if the sum were ample and detection difficult?—or was he merely "leading on" Mr. Buchanan, like Mr. Greer, to believe him capable of any baseness? (hear hear.) Whatever the object, no bargain seems to have been struck at this interview; but we have this statement to wind up the horrid picture:—"Mr. Zimmerman, with whom I "had kept up a correspondence and invaria"bly informed of the repeated advances "made to me," Think of that Sir!—inviting corrupt proposals, leading on the seducer, and running off to market with each new crop of "fruit!" Mr, Speaker, had not these scenes become matter of history—were they not historically connected with the Bill under discussion—believe me, I had not now dragged them into light, to the discredit of this house. But the scenes I am extracting from the evidence of the member for Essex are the consecutive events from the bill before us resulted.—hear hear.

The measure before us is the consumation of it all. But the plot proceeds. Mr. Zimmerman had one board of Directors, and contended that it was the only true Board. Mr. Buchanan had another Board, and he held it equally certain that his was alone legal. Both gentlemen sail for England to carry out their schemes on the English Exchange; both fail in their attempts; they compromise their differences—return to Canada, and lay their heads together to carry out one scheme! And what scheme was that? Why, the scheme of Mr. Buchanan—the Woodstock scheme—the scheme now in existence! (hear hear.) And what said the member for Essex to that? Why, Sir, he agreed to it; he accepted it, with all its corruption on its head; he went thoroughly with the confederation—he joined hands in the compact! (hear hear.) The hon. gentleman had his secret bond from Zimmerman in his pocket; he had one-fourth the profits, or $100,000 safely secured; and not a whisper of objection was heard from him! And what changed the picture? Let him tell it himself:—"I next "saw Mr. Zimmerman, on the morning of "the 12th March, the day on which he was "killed, when, to my surprise, he informed "me that new difficulties had arisen." Difficulties had arisen to prevent the carrying out of the scheme—the very Woodstock scheme now so assailed—and all Mr. Rankin's regret was that it could not be carried out quick enough! He wished to enjoy his $100,000 without an hour's delay; and the "new difficulties" filled him with alarm!—Aye, Sir, and we have indisputable evidence that, long after the commencement of the present session, the member for Essex and his friends were perfectly satisfied with the charter now in existence—with the Woodstock charter—that they found no fault with the route—that they were not shocked by the corrupt proceedings attached to it—but were on the contrary anxious for its success. On the 1st April, 1857, a notice was placed on our notice paper, and stood on it for weeks after, that a bill would be introduced "to ratify and confirm the proceedings of the Provisional Directors of the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway Co., in certain instances, and for other purposes." This Bill, Sir, I am assured, was intended to legalize the arrangements for the settlement of all difficulties between the Zimmerman and Buchanan interests, and to place the Woodstock scheme in the best position before the public. And who Sir, think you, was the member who placed this notice on the paper—who was the member to introduce this Bill? No other, Sir, than Mr. Authur Rankin! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) Now, Sir, what turned the hon. gentleman's love into hatred? How came he, from an earnest advocate of the Woodstock scheme, to be the patriotic denunciator of its scandulous abuses, and the advocate of an opposition line to sweep it from existence? We have it here in the hon. gentleman's own words:—"Finding that "the executors of Mr. Zimmerman were "negotiating with other parties without "consulting me, I at once felt relieved from "any obligation to them!" (hear hear.) Yes, Sir, the executors of Mr. Zimmerman knowing nothing of the hon. gentleman's secret agreement—not believing it possible that the statutory Director and chairman of a public work could be base enough to hold a secret contract for executing that work—not believing that a representative of the people, a member of Parliament, could forget the commonest claims of integrity—proceeded to "negotiate with other parties," and forthwith the hon. member for Essex turned patriot; he "felt relieved from any obligation."

I have quoted, not the loose statements of hostile parties, but the written evidence of the hon. member for Essex himself, deliberately submitted under the advice of the hon. member for Carleton. And there are the parties, forsooth, who now ask us to repeal the Woodstock Bill as so outrageously corrupt to remain another hour on the Statute Book! These are the parties who have dared to denounce hon. gentlemen as actuated by improper motives because they hesitate to repeal a charter they themselves urged upon us but a few days ago, and transfer all its powers to their pure hands! (bear, hear.) And these, too, are the men, and this the Bill, I am told by the hon. member for Waterloo, I must support with all its iniquity, because he and others are interested in its passage and we have acted together as political allies! Sir, rather than give such a vote—rather far rather, would I quit this House to-night, and never enter it again. (Loud cheers.) I read again from Mr. Rankin's evidence: "Mr. Vansittant of Woodstock called upon me, and volunteered his services with a view to effecting a satisfactory arrangement between myself and the Buchanan party . . . . . I at once saw through the real character of the man, and decided how to treat him. I accordingly began by telling him that before he could reasonably expect me to promise him any particular amount for his services," leading him too, on—more bribes wanted!"—"desiring still further to draw him out, I gave him the memorandum which he has since published, and by way of encouraging him to renewed exertions, I told him if he could get the parties he was negociating with to pay me £50.000 for my interest in the contract, I would allow him £10,000 for his trouble." (Cries of Shame.) Will the House observe that it was not Mr. Vansittart who made this proposal, but the hon gentleman himself, and that he sent Mr. Vansittart with a written proposition to get the other parties to agree to it. True, Sir, he may say again that he but wished to draw them out; that he did not make the proposal with any idea of pocketing the plunder. I care not on which horn of the dilemma the hon. gentleman impales himself—sincere or insincere, his conduct was equally disgraceful. And we have the identical document which he gave to Mr, Vansittart, with his own signature attached to it:—"If Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Street (on behalf of Mr. Wythes,) will bind themselves to carry out the arrangements entered into between Mr. Zimmerman and myself, with reference to the Amherstburg and St. Thomas Railway, AND TO PROTECT MY INTEREST TO THE FULL EXTENT OF WHICH MR ZIMMERMAN HAD AGREED IN WRITING OVER HIS OWN SIGNATURE, and further to protect the rights of all other parties derived from the late Zimmerman, which have been reduced to writing and signed, I will at once abandon all opposition to their plans, and do my utmost to reconcile all conflicting interests. A. R." What were those plans to which the hon. gentleman was to abandon all opposition? The very Bill now in operation! The Woodstock scheme charged with all its corruption!—The very same charter that he now tells us must be swept away as putrid in the eyes of the public! But there is yet another scene put before us in this evidence. The next name mentioned as tampering with the integrity of this hon. gentleman, is the Receiver General of the Province. "The last of these offers" says Mr. Rankin, "was from the Receiver General, in a memorandum in his own writing." How did the hon. gentleman get possession of the document? It is true that he decoyed the Receiver General to his own private room? Is it true that he himself made the proposition for a settlement? Is it true that he obtained the paper under a pledge of confidence as between gentlemen? Are these things true, or are they not? The hon. Receiver General is here to answer, and I hope he will do so. But let us look to the document; here is one of its conditions: "Mr. Rankin to have secured to him his share in the contract as agreed with Mr. Zimmerman in July, 1856, by Messrs. Wythes and Buchanan." Now will the House mark that this transaction occurred but the other day—subsequent to the introduction of the Bill now before us—while the recent battle was being waged in our Committee rooms. And will any one believe that the hon. gentleman had no intention of perpetrating this fraud—that he received the Receiver General in his rooms, and cooly allowed him to offer him this bribe, without thought of accepting it, and simply to enjoy the luxury of being treated as a hireling? No one will believe it. And let me call the attention of the House to the conclusion of this evidence. The hon. gentleman was testifying to destroy the *Wood*stock scheme, and one of his strong points against it, was, that the future shareholders would be burthened with all the bribes and extravagances of its former management.—After stating the sums thus spent, he goes on, "The whole of the large sum would be drawn from the pockets of the shareholders in England, and expended as above, before a single spadeful of earth would be turned, or an hour's work done towards the building of the road." The hon. gentleman was then filled with compassion for the poor English shareholders—he could not think of their being burdened with the bribery money of the Woodstock jobbers. But how changed is he now! Both sides have made common cause against the public—they have agreed on a new division of the plunder—and they are here to-day asking us to pass this Bill, with all the bribery and corruption formally recognized and secured, that last week so excited the indignation of the hon. member for Essex! (Loud cries of hear, hear.) Yes, Sir, at the very end of the fight, the very moment before bringing the Bill down here from the Railway Committee, clauses were stuck into his Bill providing for the payment of those very sums, the hon. gentleman when giving his evidence, was so fearful would be "drawn from the pockets of stockholders in England;" and he has now the assurance to ask us to accept and endorse all he condemned before the Railroad Committee as corrupt and disgraceful. (Hear hear.)

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

The Old North Wind.

BY G. W. B. MASSINGER.

List to the sound of the old North Wind,
Singing his song so free,
With a cheerful tone, and a glad some shout,
Listen what tales tells he.
He sings of the North, of the stormy North,
Where the ice-king ever reigns,
'Tis then that he issues his mandates forth;
That fetters the earth in chains.

A gay old chap is this same North Wind,
A frolicsome fellow is he—
He scatters the leaves of the forest wind,
As he passes in fun and glee.
He brightens the flush on the maiden's cheek,
And kisses her lips as he goes,
But this same old wind, his breath is so cold,
That in kissing, he freezes her nose.

But the midnight hour is the chosen time,
For his frolics and revelings gay,
As madly he dashes o'er mountain and dale,
As he speeds on his airy way;
When his revels are over, away—away,
To the realms of the ice-king once more—
To repose, 'mid the frost-diamonds, sparkling so bright,
For his frolicsome journey is o'er.

Marion Lee.

Marion Lee was a fairy sprite
As ever trod our earth;
Her blue eyes had a roguish glance
So full of careless mirth

Dancing hither and thither; like
Some unwinged seraph child;
Her floating curls of golden hue,
Toss'd by the breezes wild.

Her flute like voice oft humming o'er,
Some quaint, sweet ballad old,
Her wee small hands of lilly white,
Her feet of fairy mould.

Such was the Marion Lee I knew
In years long passed away;
She's fairer to me now than then;
Though her hair is tinged with grey.

Her form is not so fairy like,
He lip was not so full,
Her cheek has lost its rich peach bloom,
To me she's beautiful.

We played together on the green,
She [illegible]
Together since we're over been Together we'll be above

Di Ashly's Wager.

BY CARRY STANLEY.

CHAPTER I.

'I tell you, cousin Jack, that it's all nonsense. Talk about simplicity in dress, and beauty unadorned, and intelligence and amiability always being appreciated, and the dozen other flippant, stereotyped phrases, which you gentlemen always have ready to quote to the benefit of our sex; I say tals about them as much as you please, but I know that of two girls of the same merit and beauty, the best-dressed one would be courted, and the other unnoticed.'

Di Ashly had commenced this long sentence calmly enough; but her eyes were flashing, and her cheeks flushed, as she ended it, almost breathless.

'Women who despise all this finery make the best wives,' do they?' she continued, as she turned from the mirror, before which she had been adjusting a wreath of pond lilies

The paper knife, with which Jack Summers had been cutting a review, during all this tirade, suddenly stopped, as he looked up and said.

'Yes, Di, I tell you a man marries a woman for what heaven, and not what the milliner, makes her. It's heart and intellect, and not silk and crinoline, that a fellow wants in a wife. We sensible men despise the walking advertisement of a dry-goods store; a waltzing, polking figure, that the dress-makers used for the benefit of their pockets.'

'We sensible men' despise them, do you?' asked Diana Ashly, starting from her seat, and tossing on a table the wreath, that had already suffered under her impatient fingers, as she listened to her cousin. 'I'll tell you, John Summers, what kind of sensible men' despise them; those who have no eyes for either color or form, but see more beauty in a metaphysical disquisite, that will benefit no one, than in a volume of Shakspeare or Milton. And, cousin John, I'm quoted the girl, you mocking his chair, 'I've always noticed that venerable Methusehs, who are too old to waltz, or stumbling young gentlemen who are too awkward, are exceedingly rigid in their notions of propriety. What a pity, cousin John, that other people's morals should so much upon our own deficiencies! There's a point in metaphysics for you. And the women, too, who are the most rabidly virtuous, and encase themselves like mummies, you may be sure have neck and arms like lobsters. I'm an observer of human nature, and know that it's true,' she said, as she glanced at the reflection of her own beautiful neck in the mirror.

Diana's thrust about "awkward young gentlemen" had gone home; and John Summers sat uncomfortably enough, under the consciousness that he had repeatedly taken private dancing lessons, which had been of no use, except to make his awkwardness more palpable to himself.

His cousin walked about the parlor, absently, fingering the elegant knick-knacks, for a new train of thought had been suddenly started. She had a warm heart and highly cultivated mind, and she wanted to be loved and appreciated. Wealth was carrying her on the tide of life through pleasant, sun-shiny places, and she had never before stopped to think whether any one of those who were now accompanying her, would extend a helping hand or sheltering heart if the clouds should gather around and storms broke over her. She went from one pretty toy to another, shifting vases and statuettes, till she startled her cousin, who was again reading, by exclaiming, "I have it, Jack, I have it!"

'Have what? a fit of insanity?' asked the bewildered student, looking up.

'No, no, an idea!'

'Keep it, Di, it is something new for you,' was the answer.

'Pshaw! don't try to be witty, but do listen. I'm going to put your theory to a test, sapient cousin, and of course will help me to demonstrate a pet principle of your own.'

'I am your 'servant to command,' except to marry you. I don't want bales of silk and tons of crinoline.'

'Marry me! Good gracious, I would as soon ask one of Agassiz' fossils to do me that honor, as you,' replied Diana, as she threw herself on a sofa opposite her cousin.

'Well, but your idea?'

'Oh! it is so good. When I go home with you, I'll ignore crinoline and waltzing, wear my last year's dresses, and a bonnet that covers my head instead of my neck.—Won't it be fun? Shan't I have all the sensible men,' of your acquaintance, cousin Jack,' she spoke ironically, 'at my feet before the end of a fortnight? Ah! for myself alone! Only think of it! for I am to be neither rich nor fashionable.'

Mr. Summers looked grave for some time. In fact, he was very fond of theorizing about abstract beauty, and railing at the fashionable belles of the day; felt he was very proud of his lovely cousin, and not at all prepared to part with the eclat which would accrue to himself, from the relationship and chaperonship of so stylish and elegant a girl. He was forced to acknowledge, mentally, that dress might make a difference that 'one's eye got so accustomed to certain things.'

'It will not do,' he said at last. 'Elise has announced to all her friends that Di Ashly, the belle and heiress, is going to make her a visit, and promised gay times. Your name will never succeed.'

'Bosh! and contemptible!' Diana, clapping her hands gaily. 'I'll demonstrate the theory of John Summers, versus the theory of Di Ashley. Come on, try cousin against the belle. I'll be sensible and well-bred, but unfashionable, for two weeks; to be flouted by ladies, unnoticed or stumbled over by beaux in white kids, and occasionally patronized by bald-headed, imbecile aged, sensible gentlemen. Shan't I have sport! Then, Queen of Hearts, have mercy! Goddard's saloon shall have miniature dimensions compared with my crinoline. My bonnet shall only be a thought, a dream of blonde and flowers; I will dazzle with the magnificence of my jewels and the whiteness of my neck! I will waltz till my partner is dizzy, and the rest of the gentlemen are expiring of envy;—and before the end of another fortnight my toilet table will be covered with bouquets and billet-doux, and I shall have had the opportunity of refusing some of the most sensible men of your acquaintance.' 'Eh! cousin Jack.'

Jack Summers was beginning to enter into the spirit of his cousin's plot. He was willing to endure the ignominy of gallanting a 'country cousin' for two weeks, determining to indemnify himself in her after career.

'Write to Elsie,' said he, 'and prepare her for the plot. Tell her to announce a visit from a cousin of the same name residing in the country, (as you do in summer time, you know) and that Di Ashley will be there a few weeks later.'

'Good! We shall see how much attention the former will receive. I will leave it to uncle Cyrus to decide, by my experience, whether your theory is correct; and cousin Jack, I wager a dozen of Jouvin's best kids against a Watteau fan, that the verdict will be against you.'

CHAPTER II.

Elsie Summers watched the unpacking of Diana Ashly's trunk, with a most dissatisfied look; and said,

'I declare, you are going to make yourself a perfect fright, Di. I do wish you had tried your Quixotic experiments some where else. Dresses grow out two old, and only second rate at that! I suppose I shall see you twisting your thumbs, the next thing if any one speaks to you.'

Her cousin gave a gay laugh, as she answered,

'That's not my plan at all, Elsie. I am to be as agreeable as possible; and no matter about this little trunk, for that immense one in the corner contains the latest styles.'

One, two, three days of Di Ashly's visit elapsed. Every morning at the breakfast table she would count up the attentions which she had not received. How Tom Curtis, who was fat, had passed her with a stare, after making a profound bow to Elsie. How Harry Smith had fondled his mustache with his lavender kids, when he joined them on the street, and 'truthpoled' Di's position already destined her. How sons Mr. Di Scott profoundly observed that she must notice a great difference between the atmosphere of the city and country. How elegant ladies only bent their swan-like necks in acknowledgment of her presence. In short, how sure she was of winning her wager.

There was a brilliant party at Mr. Sumers'. Diana herself was almost sorry for the part she had taken, the temptation was so great to array herself in airy tulle and pearls, instead of in a plain white organdy and natural flowers. And then the music! Her impatient feet would keep time to the waving measure of the Varsovienne and the gliding step of the Esmeralda, as she sat unnoticed in the gay throng. Unconsciously to herself, her figure was swaying to and fro in time with the waltzers, as her eyes followed couple after couple around the room.

Suddenly, her glance was arrested by the figure of a gentleman leaning against the mantle piece. An amused smile was playing over his features as he watched her.—Diana's face colored, for a moment, as she flushed on him a haughty, surprised look; and then, in spite of herself, she broke into a gay laugh.

'I must have looked like a fool,' she soliloquised, 'my body swaying about like a conductor's baton. He's very handsome,—I wonder who he is.'

But by the time she had extricated her dress from under the feet of a fat dowager, and looked again in the same direction, the gentleman had disappeared. Di, strange to say, no longer felt the same interest in the waltzers. Her eyes were wandering around the room, in search of the missing cavalier.

A tap on her shoulder from Jack Summers made her start.

'Mr. Howard, Miss Ashly,' he said, introducing the gentleman who had so attracted her attention. 'A very sensible man, Di,' he whispered, as he left her.

She glanced up, and saw that the remark had been overheard. Di Ashley was a girl who always plunged through awkward places, as the quickest way of getting out of them.

'My cousin says you are a sensible man, Mr. Howard; pray prove it by beginning the conversation without telling me that it has been a fine day.'

A quick light flashed from the gray eyes of the gentleman Michael Howard thought the country girl a rara avis.

'Pon my word, you are a most charming and original young lady,' was the answer.

'I am convinced that you are sensible of my attractions. Further the deponent saith not,' was the reply.

'I assure you that I am more than sensible—I'm a genius, for I've discovered a star of the 3 magnitude.'

'Astronomer and astronomer Diana, clapping her hands gaily. 'I'll demonstrate the theory of John Summers, versus the theory of Di Ashley. Come on try cousin against the belle. I'll be sensible and well-bred, but unfashionable, for two weeks; to be flouted by ladies, unnoticed or stumbled over by beaux in white kids, and occasionally patronized by bald-headed, imbecile aged, sensible gentlemen. CHAPTER III.

'Do you know, Howard, that my unsophisticated country cousin has left?' asked Jack Summers, as he met his friend on the street, one night at the end of a fortnight.

'Left!' was the surprised answer. 'Why she said nothing about it to me, last evening, when I saw her.'

'It was rather sudden. She did not expect to go herself,' said Jack. 'But no matter, old fellow. Though you seem rather sweet on her, and she is a fine girl, I will show you one more stylish and fascinating, in a day or two.'

'I don't particularly admire stylish and fascinating women,' was the reply.

'This is a new relation to Miss Ashley—to Di Ashly, one of the belles of B——. She is coming to make Elsie a visit.'

Mr. Howard bowed himself off, mentally resolving that he would not seek the lady's acquaintance, any that he would find an excuse for following Miss Ashley to her country home.

'A dozen of Jouvin's best kids, if you please, my conquered cousin,' exclaimed Jack Summers, as he entered the parlor one evening. 'That sensible man' Michael Howard, is undistinguishable among the throng where. A sudden passion for potatoes and cabbage, Di! Won't he look rather astonished when he goes to 'The Cedars,' and finds instead of a homely, comfortable, well-stocked farm, as he expects, a splendid country seat with all its appurtenances. Hurrah, Di! 'A dozen of Jouvin's best kids against a Watteau fan;' and the decision will be in your favor, will it?'

'I will willingly pay the dozen Jouvin's kids, Jack, in order to have the character of your sex redeemed, said the cousin, still you have not won them yet: my trial has not been finished. Seven just men did not save Sodom, and one sensible one will not disprove my theory.'

Di Ashly, the belle and heiress, had been introduced into society. A few who had observed her at all, as the country cousin, saw a striking likeness to the young lady who had recently visited Elsie; but this girl had so much more style,' and was so brilliant and self-possessed, with some of the nonchalance haute of a person that had been mingled in society, that although many were puzzled at the likeness for the first few days, they never suspected that the gay young lady who appeared in the latest styles and most elegant of wardrobes, could be capable of so insulting Japonicalism.

As Diana had predicted, bouquets and billet-doux were numerous on her table. Her hand was the first to be asked for the waltz; her company was in constant demand for the opera. At last, through Jack, who had enjoyed the whole thing immensely, Di's ruse began to be whispered abroad. The few, who had condescended to notice her at all, plumed themselves on their disinterestedness or knowledge of character, whilst the rest avowed they liked a girl of such spirit and originality, and were more attentive than ever. Japonicalism is not easily abashed!

Di Ashley was now dressing and waltzing and flirting as usual, but there was a larger experience, and a greater contempt, for human nature in her heart than heretofore.

Miss Ashley was on the top of the wave of fashionable favor, when Michael Howard came back. He lounged into the opera on the evening of his return, and to judge from the expression of his face, he was not entirely satisfied with his 'ruscicating.' During his survey of the boxes, his eyes fell upon the Summers party. Di was leaning forward perfectly absorbed in the gipsey song in 'Trovatore,' unconscious of the interest which she was being watched. In spite of the French coiffure, in spite of the magnificent dress and jewels, Howard at once knew that elegant face. The box was crowded, and he could not approach her, but he was rewarded by a bright smile, and gay nod of the head, when Di spied him.

A few months after this, Miss Ashley was drawing on her travelling gloves, for she was going home, and Mr. Howard was to accompany her.

'A dozen of Jouvin's best kids, Di,' exclaimed Jack, as he caught sight of one of her gloves which had fallen on the floor.

'A Watteau fan, Jack,' said his cousin.—'I intend to rest satisfied with my conquest

'Of Michael Howard,' put in Jack.

'Pshaw! no, I mean my victory in argument,' replied Di. Uncle Cyrus, you know about our wager, and you were to decide. It was on general facts, and not on an isolated one.

Uncle Cyrus' eyes twinkled behind his glasses. 'Yes, yes,' said he, 'I have heard the argument on both sides, and decide that John Summers pay a fine of one Watteau fan, but that Diana Ashley, spinster, pay for the fun of the thing, Michael Howard.'

And so Di Ashley won both a husband and her wager.

Miscellany.

The Boston Journal tells of a gentleman who was badly sold a few days since. He was sitting in the parlor with his friends and family, when the bell called him to the door. He there found a child in a basket with a note, charging him with being its father, and imploring him to take care of it. A rich scene ensued between the injured wife and indignant husband, the latter utterly denying all knowledge of the little one and asserting his innocence. The friends interfered, and at last the wife was induced to forgive the husband, although he stood to it that Tom that he had always been a faithful husband. Finally the lady very roguishly told her husband that it was strange that he should not know his own child, for it was their mutual offspring, which had just been taken from its cradle up stairs by the nurse, for the purpose of playing the joke.

A LESSON IN GRAMMAR.—"Jake did you ever study grammar?" "I did, Sir." "What case is Mr. I——?" "He's an object case." "How so?" "Because he objected to paying his subscription that's been owing for three years and a half." "Right." "What is a noun?" "Don't know, but I know what rennets is." "Well, what's it?" "Running off without paying the printer, and getting the blues lest you're arrested." "Good, what is a conjunction?" "A method of collecting outstanding subscriptions in conjunction with the constable—never employed by printers until the last extremity." "That's right! Go to your seat, and quit shooting paper wads at the girls."

LAWYERS.—When Peter the Great was in England, he expressed a desire to visit the Old Bailey, and witness a criminal trial. Seeing a large number of gentlemen with powdered wigs and silk gowns, the Czar asked his interpreter who they were. 'Lawyers,' was the reply. 'Lawyers?' My God! I have only two in all my dominions, and I intend to hang one of them as soon as I get home.'

How to Grow Rich.—The only way by which capital can increase is by saving. If you spend as much as you get, you will never be richer than you are. It is as hard a man gets, but what he saves, that constitutes his wealth. Go learn the first two rules of arithmetic; learn addition and subtraction. Add to your present capital any amount you please, substract the sum which you need, and tell us if the best amount will not be the same as the first. Every merchant should, in every year of his life, make some addition to his capital. You say you get but little—never mind, spend less than little; and the next year you will get more, for you will have the profit upon the sum you save. There is no royal road to wealth any more than to geometry. The man who goes on spending all he gets, and expects that by some lucky hit he shall be raised to wealth, will most likely sink into poverty; for in case of adverse fortune, he has then no resource; whereas, by economy he may lay by a stock that may serve as a provision in care of adversity. You may say that the times are bad, the seasons are bad, the seasons are bad, the laws are bad. Be it so; but were the case reversed, it would make no difference to you. Look at home; you spend more than you get. How then, can you be otherwise than poor? How many a respectable family has fallen from a high station, which they worthily and honorably filled merely because neither the gentleman nor the lady had been familiar with the first four rules of arithmetic.

VERY LIKELY.—An Indiana paper says that during a trial in a Lawrence county, a lad who was called as a witness was asked if he knew where he would go if he told a lie. He said he supposed he should go where all the lawyers went.

A KNOWING BEGGAR.—A beggar posted himself at the door of the Chancery Court, and kept saying, 'A penny, please, Sir! Only one penny, sir, before you go in!' 'And why, my man?' inquired an old country gentleman; 'Because, sir, the chances are, you will not have one when you come out,' was the beggar's reply.'

A RUSSIAN INVENTION.—At Moscow lately great curiosity was excited by an experiment being made with a new description of locomotive running along the streets, and so constructed as to cause the wheels to lay down a sort of wooden rails as they advanced. The locomotive dragged after it a number of carts, heavily laden. The experiment, though the first made, had perfectly succeded. The author of the invention is a trader of Moscow named [illegible]

SOER LOOKS.—A certain old lady, who had been famed for sour looks, and not very sweet words, touching the accidents of life, was observed to have become very amiable. 'What a happy change has come over you,' said a neighbor. 'Why,' said the transformed, 'to tell you the truth, I have been all my life striving for a contented mind, and have finally concluded to sit down contented without it.'

AN END TO KISSING.—A short while since the affectionate public was astonished by the story of a young lady whose neck was dislocated in consequence of the ill-advised resistance which she offered to the amiable salute of an admirer more ardent than discreet. Our last exchanges from Europe now match this tale with another of an inquest held at Leeds on the body of a young man of 21, who fell down stairs and killed himself in the course of an attempt to snatch a kiss from the unwilling lips of a girl of fifteen. Some of our contemporaries deduced from the first of these occurences the wholesome moral that young ladies should never oppose advances of their admirers. In common fairness we are now bound to infer from the second accident that no man should ever attempt to take a kiss until it is offered to him.—Between the two lessons there is reason to fear that an ancient and not altogether disagreeable custom may be summarily abolished.

HUMAN NATURE.—Whoever wrote the following had read the page of the book of the human heart to some purpose:—There is after all, something in those trifles that freely bestow upon each other which is an infallible indication of the place the giver holds in the affections. I would believe that one who preserves lock of hair, a samples flower, or any trifle of my bestowing, loved me, though no show was made of it; while all the protestions in the world would not sell my confidence in one who set no value on such little things. Trifles they may be but it is by such that the character and disposition are oftnest revealed.'

The individual who perperated the following choice stanza was a genius and a man of observation. He grew up some distance off towards the setting sun,—Hear him:

Men scorn to kiss among themselves,
And scarce will kiss a brother;
Women ort want a kiss so bad,
They kiss and smack each other.

'Pa,' simpered a young hoarling school piece of eedish, "Pa, are you going to have a coat of arms painted on the panne's of our new carriage?' 'Yes, my child,' replied the sober-minded—"a saw and a saw-buck; for with that I earned my first money." The under-chopper of the young aspirant miss fell, as she muttered to herself—'La me, what a boor!'

'What, my friends, is money?' asked a preacher, in a sermon lately. 'Two per cent, a month,' said a State Street broker, suddenly awaking from a doze.

A lady was requested to ride behind a buck who was somewhat advanced in years, to take a seat on his lap while in a covered sleigh.—'No thank you,' said she, 'I'm afraid such an old seat would break down with me.'—Old bachelor looked funny.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL HAVELOCK TO THE CHIEF OF THE STAFF TO THE COMMANDER-IN CHIEF, RECEIVED BY TELEGRAPH FROM CAWNPORE.

Lucknow Residency, Sept. 30, 1857.

Major General Sir James Outram having with characteristic generosity of feeling, declared that the command of the force should remain in my hands, and that he would accompany it as Civil Commissioner I hold a junction could be effected with the gallant and enduring garrison of this place. I have to request that you will inform his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief that this purpose was effected on the evening of the 25th instant. But I must first refer to antecedent events. I crossed the Sye on the 22nd instant, the bridge at Bunnee not having been broken. On the 23rd I found myself in the presence of the enemy, who had taken a strong position, his left posted in the inclosure of the Alum Bagh, and his centre and right on low heights.

The head of my column at first suffered from the fire of his guns, as it was compelled to pass along the Trunk road, between morasses; but as soon as my regiment could be deployed along his front, and his right enveloped by my left, victory decided for us, and we captured five guns. Sir J. Outram, with his accustomed gallantry, pressed both advance close down to the canal; but as the enemy fired with his artillery and with guns from the city, it was not possible to maintain this or a less advanced position for a time, but to become necessary to throw our right in the Alum Bagh, and restore our left, and even there we were incessantly cannonaded through the 24 hours, and the cavalry, 1,500 strong, swept round through lofty cultivation, and the sudden interruption upon our baggage massed in our rear (sic in orig.)

The soldiers of the 90th Regiment, forming baggage guard, received the charge with gallantry, and lost some brave officers and men, shooting down, however, 25 of the troops, and putting the whole body to flight.

They were finally driven off by two guns of Capt. Olpharts' battery. The troops had been marching three days under a perfect deluge of rain, irregularly fed, and badly housed in villages it was thought necessary to pitch tents, and permit them to halt on the 24th. The assault on the city was deferred until the 25th. On that morning our baggage and tents were deposited in the Alum Bagh, under an escort, and we advanced. The First Brigade, under Sir J. Outram's personal leading, drove the enemy from a succession of gardens and walled inclosures, supported by the two brigades which I accompanied. Both Brigades were established on the canal, at the bridge of the Char Bagh. From this point the direct road to the Residency is a little less than two miles, but it was known to have been cut by trenches, and crossed by palisades at short intervals, the houses also being all loop holed. Progress in this direction was opposed, so the united column pushed and fought along the narrow road which skirts the left bank of the canal, which was not seriously interrupted until it came opposite the King's Palace, or Kaisrah Bagh, where two guns and a body of mercenary troops were entrenched. From this entrenchment a fire of grape and musketry was poured, under which nothing could live. The artillery and troops had to pass a bridge partially under its influence, but were then shrouded by the buildings adjacent to the palace of Fhureed Bukish.

Darkness was coming, and it was proposed to halt within the court of this Mehal for the night; but I esteemed it to be of such importance, not to leave this beleaguered garrison, knowing that succour was at hand that I ordered the main body of the 78th Highland and a regiment of Berozepore to advance.

The word was passed, and the latter being wounded soldiers, and, I regret to say, have fallen into the hands of a merciless foe—amount to 464 officers and men. Brigadier General Neill, commanding 1st Brigade; Major ——, commanding Artillery, Lieutenant Colonel Bazely, a volunteer with the force, are killed. Colonel Campbell, commanding 90th Infantry; Lieutenant Colonel Tytler; my Deputy Assistant Quartermaster General, and Lieutenant Havelock, my Deputy Assistant Adjutant General, are severely, but not dangerously, wounded.

Sir James Outram received a flesh wound in the early part of the action, near Char Bagh, but nothing would subdue his spirit; and though faint from loss of blood, he continued to the end of the operation to sit on his horse, which he only dismounted at the gate of the Residency. As he has now assumed the command, I leave to him the narrative of all events subsequent to the 25th instant.

H. HAVELOCK, Brigadier Gen.

* Note made at Calcutta: "Query I—It became necessary to throw our right, &c., and retire our left."

Thrilling Account of the Relief of Lucknow.

From Le Puys of Paris.)

Calcutta, Thursday, Oct. 3, 1857

I give you the following account of the relief of Lucknow, as described by a lady, one of the rescued party. On every side death stared us in the face; no human skill could avert it any longer We saw the moment approach when we must bid farewell to earth, yet without feeling that unutterable horror which must have been experienced by the unhappy victims at Cawnpore. We were resolved rather to die than to yield, and were fully persuaded that in twenty four hours all would be over. The engineers had said so, and all knew the worst. We women strove to encourage each other, and perform the light duties which had been assigned to us, such as conveying orders to the batteries and supplying the men with provisions, especially cups of coffee, which we prepared day and night. I had gone out to try and make myself useful, in company with Jessie Brown, the wife of a corporal in my husband's regiment. Poor Jessie had been in a state of restless excitement all through the siege, and had fallen away visibly within the last few days; as she said, she rather should return from the plowing" She fell at length into a profound slumber, motionless and apparent ly breathless, her head resting in my lap. I myself could no longer resist the inclination to sleep, in spite of the continual roar of the cannon. Suddenly I was aroused by a wild unearthly scream close to my ear; my companion stood upright beside me, her arms raised, and her head bent forward in the attitude of li tening. A look of intense delight broke over countenance, she grasped my hand, drew me towards her, and exclaimed, "Dinna ye hear it? dinna ye hear it? Ay I'm no dreamin,' it's the slogan o' the Highladers! We're saved, we're saved! Then flinging herself on her knees she thanked God with passionate fervor. I felt utter ly bewildered: my English ears heard only the roar of artillery, and I thought my poor Jessie was still raving, but she started to the batteries, and I hear her cry incessantly to the men. "Courage! courage; hark to the slogan—to the Magregor, the grandest of them a.' Here's help at last!"

To describe the effect of these words upon the soldiers would be impossible. For a moment they ceased firing, and every soul listened in intense anxiety. Gradually, however, there crose a murmur of bitter disappointment, and the wailing of the women who had flocked to the spot burst out anew as the Colonel shook his head.— Our dull lowland ears heard nothing but the rattle of the musketry. A few moments more of this death-like suspense, of this agonising hope, and Jessie who had sank on the ground, sprang to her feet, and cried in a voice so clear and piercing that it was heard along the whole line—"Will ye no believe it now? The slogan has ceased indeed, but the Campbells are comin'! Do ye hear, d've hear?" At that moment we seemed indeed to hear the voice of God in the distance, when the pibroch of the Highlanders brought us tidings of deliverance, for now there was no longer any doubt of the fact. That shrill, unceasing, ceaseless sound, could come neither from the advance of the enemy, nor from the work of the Scottish bagpipes, now shrill and harsh, as threatening vengeance on the foe, then in softer tones seeming to promise succor to their friends in need. Never surely was there such a scene as that which followed. Not a heart in the Residency of Lucknow bowed itself before God. All were filled with one simultaneous impulse, fell upon their knees, and nothing was heard but bursting sobs and the murmured voice of prayer. Then all arose, and there rang out from a thousand lips a great shout of joy which resounded far and wide, and lent new vigor to the blood pibroch. To our cheer of "God save the Queen," they replied by the well-known strain that moves every Scot to tears, "Should auld acquaintance be forgot, &c." After that nothing made any impression on me. I scarcely remember what followed, how I was pressed to the heart of his wife, entrance into the fort, and at the officers' banquet her health was drunk by all present, while the pipers marched around the table playing once more the familiar air of "Auld lang syne."

Interesting from China.

Lord Elgin is here, and it is probable he will not leave the place till the results of the demonstration against Canton are known.

We understand as soon as the whole force of Marines arrive operations will commence. The first detachment arrived on the 28th inst., in the steamer Imperador.

The dispatch gunboat Cormorant and Banterer arrived from Manilla yesterday.

An expedition under Commodore Elliot, consisting of the gunboats Starling, Opposum and Scourge, with some ship's boats left Tiger Island on the 14th instant. After a cruise of several days they came out near the junction of the great west and north rivers, and arrived at Macao on the 19th inst. During the cruise several Mandarin junks and some fishing boats were taken, the private property was not interfered with.— The people of the towns which were passed, willingly assisted in pointing out the Mandarin boats, understanding, apparently, the object of the expedition.

The British ship Cathaya which left this on the 14th inst., for Foochow, was lost on the Prata shoal on the 20th inst. The captain and crew arrived here in the ships boats, and brought with them about $10,000 worth of the treasure which was on the ship.

At Hong Kong all remains quiet. There is little change to notice in imports, the market being almost clear of stocks.

Shanghae, Oct. 23, Cor. of the Times. The American has come over the policy of the authorities in the South. The French Ambassador has arrived in the mouth of the Canton River. The projected northern voyage is definitely abandoned. It is report ed that the order has gone forth that Canton shall be taken, and I must return to my post of observation.

When we have settled our differences with the Cantonese, the scene of action will be remo ed to these northern ports.

Hong Kong, Oct. 38, Cor. London News.

The Imperial Government is using extraordinary exertions to raise contributions both of money and rice. Many of the Chinese rice shops in Shanghae have been close in consequence of the oppressive tax on rice levied on them by the authorities. Heavy money taxes are being imposed everywhere. The court of Pekin cannot feel itself secure. For months back every nerve has been strained to gather supplies from all the provinces to Pekin. It reminds one of the old story of dame Alice Kiteler, the Kilkenny witch, sweeping all the dirt of "Kilkenny Town" to the house of William her son. Whether the Pekin Admin stration are trying to gather stores and treasure to appease a hungry, distressed, discontented and dangerous city mob, and to stave off the insurgents they are badly fed and worse paid. The complaint is universal of arrears of pay and scarcity of provisions. It is true that some treasure has been sent to Canton for anti-barbarian purposes, but that was specially raised, and is only a drop in the ocean of the Canton expenditure. Every quarter (through our servants and employees, and the tradespeople here), are paying by far the greater portion of Yey's expenses. There is not a catty of food consumed by us that does not pay its contribution to keep us away from Canton. Such is the condition in which the Imperial Government is.

What prospects can the future hold out to the unhappy Hien Fung! A hitherto successful and still flourishing insurrection in the heart of his dominions; a deficient treasure; distress and scarcity of food in the provinces; isolated rebellions in almost every quarter; organized bands of robbers spreading terrors through his metripolian province; a discontented and disaffected city mob; Russia insulted; France only waiting to pick a quarrel, and England in open arms against that city and district which is the very concentrated essence of China, whether you take it politically, physically or etymologically—truly if these be not the shadows of coming events I know not what are. And all that the effete Manchurian dynasty can accomplish to meet these threatenings of futurity is to keep from month to month decreeing new honors and titles to some deceased ancestors whom they imagine to be powerful in driving away locusts or vanquishing their enemies.

It is said that the letter sent by the Russian Ambassador to the Court of Pekin contained an offer on the part of the Emperor of Russia to put down the Chinese rebellion "in consideration" of the seaboard province of Kirin, and the inland province of Helung Kiang or Tsitsihar, between Kirin and the now eastern frontier of the Russians, being ceded by China to Russia. Did the Russians succeed in this, it would only add eleven degrees to their coast line on the east of Asia; and if the statement be true, we have reason to congratulate them on this instance of Chinese bigotry.

Fighting in Kansas

(Cor. of Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.)

LAWRENCE, K. T., Dec. 19, 1857.

Dr. Little, known as one of the most ra dical and dangerous Pro Slavery leaders, in company with G. W. Clark, was arrested this morning by a party of Barber, residents of Fort Scott, have been doing all in their power to annoy the Free State citizens in that vicinity. Dr. Little has been acting as Deputy U. S. Marshall, and with a posse would sally out to collect claims, but his demands were not complied with promptly, he would distrain property and sell it to Missourians from the adjoining Missouri counties for a mere trifle. They had made arrests under the rebellion act, now repealed by the late Legislature. In attempting to make arrests at the Little Osage River, 16 miles from Fort Scott, they were resisted. They then re-raced their posse to 100, and surrounded the Free State men, numbering 35, who confined themselves in a log cabin. On refusing to surrender, Dr. Little said, "if you do not surrender, we will burn you to hell." "Blow away," replied Captain Abbott, which was answered by a volley of bullets. Capt. Abbott returned the fire, killing three Missourians and wounding Dr. Little.— Both parties then sent for reinforcements. This occurred at three o'clo k Wednesday last day last. Gen. Lane had ordered Captain Abbott to maintain his position at all hazards. The Missourians have seve al prisoners. Among them is Rev. Mr. Stewart, of Wakarusa, well known as the "fighting parson" Small companies from most of the free states towns have gone to the relief of their friends. A company of riflemen, with a brass howitzer, will leave this place to morrow morning at 3 o'clock. General Lane will accompany them. Acting Governor Stanton has sent a company of 100 Dragoons as a posse comitatus. General Whitman left this morning for Lawrence, to demand of Governor Stanton the arms—of which there are over 200 stand—taken by Governor Geary from emigrants. General W. acts as agent of the National Kansas Committee. The coolest, wisest, richest, as well as the poorest men in the Territory, see no hope for peace, if they cannot have it till the usurpers are out of the way.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30th, 1857.

Kansas advices of the 24th instant, just received by the Democrat, say that civil war is raging in Bourbon county. Several conflicts have taken place between free state and pro slavery parties, and a number of prisoners been taken on both sides. The United States Marshal, with a force of 80 men, demanded the surrender of a free state party, and the demand was answered by a volley of musket balls. The fire was returned, and the fight lasted an hour, when the pro slavery men retreated with loss of one man killed and two mortally wounded. The United States Marshal was dangerously wounded.

General Lane was entrenched at Sugar Mound, and determined to fight the slaveocrats if they should molest him. A battle was regarded as inevitable.

The election returns come in slowly.— Johnson county gives 2,000 majority for slavery. Thirteen hundred votes were cast at Oxford. Wyandotte gives 14 majority against slavery.

Governor Denver had given up the Territorial arms to the militia.

Various rumors were in circulation relative to affairs at Fort Scott, but none of them are of an authoritative character.

Outrages by the Mormons--Shocking sights.

Mr. D. C. Hall, who went to California from Ozark, Ark., last Summer, writes a letter to the Little Rock Democrat, describing his journey, and the outrage to which he and his party were subjected by the Mormons. We make the following extracts:—

On reaching Salt Lake City, we found them the most restless and excited beings on earth. Women would run after emigrant waggons, and endeavor to purchase guns and ammunition. On leaving the city, and passing through their village, they treated us as though we were highway robbers or murderers. They threatened our lives with the Indians. True to their threats, the Indians did indeed come upon us—some twenty-five in number, together with eight or ten Mormons. The Indians attempted to drive off our stock; the Mormons at the same time cursing, and telling us "to give up some of our fat cattle, or some of our cattle would murder us." We then succeeded in driving them back, but they followed on in pursuit of us. Near the City Rock they came upon another train, and at night stole eighteen head of cattle, and shot one of the guards through the head.

On the following day the emigrants trailed the cattle seven or eight miles into mountains. As they were ascending a narrow pass, all of a sudden the Indians and Mormons commenced firing upon them. The allies—Indians and Mormons—numbered about 50—the emigrants 8. The latter retreated.

Jackson Nicholas was mortally wounded, and died in a few days. A young man from Texas, named McCarley, was wounded and probably killed. The last that was seen of him six or eight Indians were running him into the City Rock. Young Daniel Abbott was shot through the thigh. We then sorrowfully wended our way to the Humboldt near the upper canon. There we were shocked by the lifeless bodies of three unfortunate emigrants, murdered by the savages and halfdeserving followers of Joe Smith. Near Grave's ford we found six more in one grave; buried by other emigrants. Their blood and hair were strewed around the spot that marked their destruction.

Mr. Woods and his wife were just ahea l of their train, riding in a two horse carriage. The allies came upon them. Woods put whip to his mules; one of his carriage wheels came off; he then cut off the harness of his team, put his wife and child upon one of the mules, and took the other himself. The wife, child and mules were all cap tured and massacred. Mr. W. got his arm broken, yet succeeded in making his escape.

We found graves daily, and sometimes the brains of persons who had just been murdered. On reaching Carson River, we met some two hundred waggons and flies of hundred Mormons on their way to the New Jerusalem. Brigham Young has ordered them all home, to assist in fighting the United States Army that they are constantly expecting.

During my stay in Salt Lake City, one of the resident officers was very desirous to ascertain what I knew concerning Col. Harney, and the movement of our government in relation to them. I expressed myself so emphatically in favor of the saints, that he hesitated not to reveal to me all their plans, and I discern by all their strength and power. He then exhibited to me their batteries, and informed me that they had three or four Indian tribes in readiness to attack Colonel Harney as he came into their country, through the deep, narrow ravines of the mountains. He also said that if Harney did persist in attacking them, that they should hoist the British flag, and that would so stimulate their English resident brethren, that they would only yield in death. He farther stated that the English Government —with whom they were in constant secret communication—had confidently assured them that she would come to their rescue if she could find any possible avenue

THE CONTEST AND THE TRIUMPH!!!

A victory has been won for Essex which will for years to come resound to her praise —a victory which can only be, appreciated by a true Briton and a Loyalist. This victory has been won in the face of bribery, and corruption, and violence of a most dastardly kind, and such as would only be used by a man of Arthur Rankin's standing —a man who is lost to all feelings of honor and respect for himself. Essex has proved herself true to her interests and honor, by casting a large majority for John MacLeod, the People's Candidate.

Truth, and the Right will prevail; and Arthur Rankin has even now retired into obscurity, from whence he will never again rise, to misrepresent the good old county of Essex. It will never be again said that Essex has sent a man to disgrace her in the Legislative halls of the country, in the person of Arthur Rankin.

On Thursday, (to day,) being the day appointed for the declaration, a large number were expected in Town, and particularly as Rankin has boasted that if the Sheriff dared to declare John MacLeod Elected, he would have an armed band upon the ground who would, as on former occasions at the polls, drive every thing before them; that he would slaughter the Sheriff and every person else with his fierce band. At an early hour, it might have been supposed that he intended to carry out his threats, as large bands of men, screeching and yelling like beasts of the forest, came into town armed with clubs and other weapons; these ruffians later in the day made an attack upon the Sheriff in the Court House, with the intention of securing the poll books to destroy them, and if possible to prevent the declaration of John MacLeod as the Member for Essex. The Sheriff was surrounded in his office, and fierce and brutal threats were made to him—AND RANKIN MIGHT BE SEEN URGING ON THE MOB TO VIOLENCE, AND LIKE A DEMON, THROWING FIRE BRANDS AMONG HIS IMPS, TO EXCITE THEM TO FURY. The mob at this time was ready for any violence, and it is impossible to say what would have been the result—had it not been for the timely arrival of Mr. MacLeod in the steamer Windsor, with about eight hundred picked men. This formidable band marched up from the steamer, like a wall of Iron and spread dismay through the before violent and riotous followers of Rankin.

We are glad to be able to record, that not a single blow was struck during the whole day; although in the morning, one might have supposed that all creation would have been ground to atoms, by the arch-demon Rankin; but, poor fellow, he was made to lick the very soil that he had prepared for his opponent.

Mr. W. D. Baby, the authorized Election Clerk of the Returning Officer, DECLARED JOHN MacLEOD DULY ELECTED to represent the County of Essex in Parliament, by a MAJORITY of TWO HUNDRED and TWENTY-TWO OVER ARTHUR RANKIN, the late Member for Essex.

This announcement cannot be made without spreading joy throughout the County of Essex, and many a prayer will be offered up to God in thanks living for his interposition in saving Essex again from the baneful influence of such a man as Rankin. We say that there is every reason to thank God for his interference in our behalf.

We believe we are safe in saying that there is not on record an election that has been attended with such disgraceful consequences, as the one that has just passed. Rankin has resorted to every foul means that the most degraded mind could conceive, in order to effect his purpose, and would no doubt have even done so at the sacrifice of life and property, if it could not be obtained by any other means; his every action has proved it, and the fact of his inducing by false statements, a large number of the back settlers to come into town on the day of declaration arm ed, puts it beyond all doubt—For we feel confident that if the most despicable falsehoods had not been circulated, many of those that came into Town armed, would never have done so.— But Rankin is mean enough to resort to any expedient in order to gain his ends.

We hope that to day's proceedings at the Court House, will be sufficient to convince the most ardent of the Rankin supporters that they have put their trust in a broken reed; that he has deceived them again and proved himself a traitor to good order.

We cannot close this article without saying something in regard to the disgraceful conduct of Rankin and his hirelings at some of the polling places.

The most disgraceful and scandalous conduct of all, was in the township of Maidstone at the polls, where the agents and scrutineers of Mr. MacLeod were driven from their posts by a band of low drunken rowdies; they cannot be called by any milder term, for when people professing to live in a civilized community, resort to such despicable means to gain their purpose, they prove themselves to be by their conduct little removed from the wild savage. Revolvers, and clubs were used most freely, in order to give their brute arguments more weight, and to prevent the supporters of Mr. MacLeod from recording their votes. This is no idle tale, as many are prepared to come forward to prove the correctness of the above statement. Even the Returning Officer himself, it is said, stood guard over the polls with a revolver, to prevent the friends of MacLeod from exercising their rights as freemen and British subjects. Such have been the means resorted to by Rankin to gain his unholy purposes, but thank heaven, all his hellish designs have been frustrated, all his cunning, violence, rowdyism, and drunken brutalities, have availed him nothing. The true British Lion has been roused, and the miserable desperado has been made to quail before the right. No one but a consummate villain would sacrifice his character, as the late member for Essex has done to again misrepresent this constituency by bribery and corruption. Again in the Township of Sandwich, did he with a band of armed ruffians, attempt to take possession of the polls, and by threats to drive from the hustings the respectable voters, who wished to rid the County of Essex of a foul disgrace—who wished to prove to the world that Rankin the Railway gambler should never again disgrace the Legislative halls of this country with his presence.— And had it not been for the promptness and energy of our worthy sheriff, the same disgraceful scenes would have been enacted in the Township of Sandwich, that were in Maidstone. As it was, Rankin headed a band of ruffianly bullies, armed for the occasion, made an attack upon the more respectable electors to drive them from the stand. The scrutineers of Mr. MacLeod and his check clerk were attacked with clubs and severely beaten. This conduct should brand Rankin forever as a villain of the blackest dye.

All Rankin's foul and dastardly attempts have been defeated—and John MacLeod has been Elected by a large majority, we can therefore congratulate the Electors upon their success.

MONTREAL—The Quebec Mercury says all the papers we have seen from that city, save and except the New Era of course, concur in the opinion that 'the head of the salt water navigation' has made no great bargain of it in returning that jewel, Thomas D'Arcy McGee. The Pilot says that his access is no doubt, a disgrace to that community,' and that 'the event' is to be regarded as 'a mischievous joke.' The Montrealers had better take care not to repeat such jokes too often, or they might be the last to run them. A joke may be a joke; but to return Thomas D'Arcy McGee to Parliament may yet turn out to be no joke.

Arrival of the Niagara.

Halifax, Jan. 2, 1858.

The Steamship Niagara, captain Wickham from Liverpool on Saturday the 19th ult, arrived at this port at an early hour this morning, en route for Boston, where she will be due at an early hour on Sunday afternoon.

The Collins steamship Atlantic, from New York on the 5th ult., arrived at Liverpool on the 16th.

The News by this arrival, except in the commercial way, is of little importance.

There is nothing later from India.

The Bank of France had reduced its rates to the uniform figure of 6 per cent.

The commercial crisis continued very severe in the north of Europe, but at Hamburg affairs had begun to improve. Powell & Son, of London and Manchester, warehousemen, had failed; their liabilities are heavy. The English money market, however, is gradually getting easier, particularly among the discount houses. The applications at the Bank were light. Financial difficulties had arisen amongst the woolen manufacturers. Cheesborough & Sons, one of the largest firms in that line in Yorkshire, had suspended, and many others were reported to be involved.

The French Government has imposed a duty on foreign bandies.

Further attempts had been made to launch the Leviathan, but without success.

The American Submarine Company has abandoned the attempt to raise the sunken ships at Sebastopol.

ENGLAND.—In the 1st, there was a further dendent tendency towards relaxation in the London money market.

The failures were announced of E. Smith woolstapler, of London, with large liabilities and Sanfield Brothers wollen manufacturers, of Leeds; liabilities £200,000.

On the 17th, confidence was more apparent, influenced by Atlantic's news and specie.

Besides the failure of Cheeselvorough & Son, of Bradford, that of the Dartmouth and Gravesend Bank was announced.

The launch of the Leviathan has been postponed sine die.

A memorial, very influentially signed, had been presented to Lord Palmerston, in favor of representation in Parliament of the educated classes.

FRANCE.—It was rumored that a general amnesty for newspaper offences, would be proclaimed on New Year's Day, and that the decrees of exile against General Bedeau and Chagranier are to be repealed.

BELGIUM.—The Secret Chamber had passed a resolution in favor of a repeal of the usury law.

SPAIN.—An amnesty for political offences in the Transatlantic possessions of Spain has been proclaimed.

PRUSSIA.—It is stated that diplomatic relations will soon be resumed between Prussia and Switzerland.

RUSSIA.—An important victory over the Circassians is announced. A great number of them were killed, and many of their villages burned.

SWEDEN.—A number of new and important failures are announced.

Government proposed to borrow 12,000, 000 thalers to assist the merchants.

Latest.

LONDON, Saturday.

The Times City article notes an advance of 1 per cent in the funds.

Bank returns show an increase in bullion of £1,381,366.

In Stock Exchange the supply of money is abundant, and in the discount market the best paper can be negotiated at 3½ to 10 per cent.

A reduction of the medium rate at the Bank seems probable before Thursday next.

At Hamburg the crisis seems partial, subsiding. The rate of discount for short paper having fallen to 6 x per cent.

Yesterday the bills were returned to Dray & Co, engineers and agricultural implement makers.

The brokers circular reports the sales of the week as 28,000 bales, of which 3,000 bales were on speculation, and 1,200 for export. Price were ¼d per lb lower on all qualities, and particularly for new crop, holders of which were pressing on the market.

McHenry not Townsend!

(From the London Prototype.)

In October last, Mr. Rose, of this office, wrote to the Sons of Temperance, in Sierra county, California, for the purpose of ascertaining if the documents published by McHenry's friends were really authentic, considerable doubt having been expressed by the Sons here with regard to one of them. Yesterday the following reply was received:

SONS OF TEMPERANCE HALL,
Sierra Division, No. 78 S. of T.
Sierra Co. Cal., Nov. 27th, 1857.

GEO. MACLEAN ROSE, Esq,
WORTHY BRO.,

Your letter, bearing date October 19th enclosing copies of affidavits and certificate signed by citizens and Sons of Temperance of Chips Flat, Sierra Co., Cal. came duly to hand, 21st instant. You ask if the documents produced are genuine. They undoubtedly are genuine, and if necessary a hundred others can be forwarded by prominent citizens, who knew Robert McHenry to be a resident of Chipp's Flat, Sierra Co., Cal., during the fall of 1853 and spring of 1855. Robert McHenry's letter to this division was directed to James Anderson, Recording Scribe, at the time he (McHenry) was a member, and Anderson being absent at the time, the contents of the letter were not known to the division until August 30th, and they were immediately acted upon.—Learning that Messrs. Hugh Aikin, (our W. A.) and Thomas Waters, were soon to leave for the States, we hastened their departure, in order that they should be in time, not doubting but their arrival would set every thing right.

The writer of this was a partner of Robert McHenry in the fall of 1854, worked together in getting timbers for our tunnel, known as the Oregon. By referring to our records, we find Robert McHenry was admitted a member of Sierra Division No. 78, S. of T., on the 8th day of December, 1854, and was a member in good and regular standing up to the time of leaving the Flat, which took place some time in February or March following. The parties whose names appear signed to the affidavits and certificate are all well known here a prominent business men, and knew McHenry well, from having done business with him on the Flat. S. B. Davidson's description of McHenry answers well, and I am satisfied the Robert McHenry now confined in Cayuga Jail is the same Robert McHenry who was on Chips Flat in the Fall of 1854.—Let us hear from you on receipt of this.

Fraternally yours in L. P. F.,
(SEAL) JONAS C. YOUNG, R. S.

UTAH NEWS.—From late advices from Utah, intelligence is received with regard to reverses met with by two companies of the 5th infantry, and the threatened attack on Fort Lamarie came unofficial y by an express messenger some days ago. Gen. Harney, whilst considering it within range of probability did not place very great reliance upon it. Fort Lamarie was but slightly guarded. The troops would not attempt to enter Salt Lake before Spring, it was affirmed, but would go into quarters some forty miles beyond Fort Bidger, if they succeeded in getting so far. Large numbers of the animals had perished and they were under the necessity of sending back and doubling teams to make any progress at all with their trains.

We learn from the St. Mary's Argus that a woman in man's attire committed suicide by poisoning herself at McKay's Island, in that village, on Tuesday evening last. She was arrested the same evening on the information of a Mr. Woods, for horse stealing, S.on after her arrest she was observed to put her handkerchief to her face—for the purpose, it was thought at the time, of hiding her emotion but really for the purpose of swallowing a portion of strychnine and chloroform which she had prepared, and concealed for that or some other purpose in a vial. She was instantly seized with spasms and a physician was immediately sent for. Dr. Smith arrived about half an hour after the poor victim had swallowed the poison, but found it impossible from the extreme rigidity of the dying woman to administer the proper antidotes, and she soon after expired. Dr. Coleman held an inquest upon the body. Her name was Margaret Cook, and she is said to have been respectably connected in the Town of Woodstock, where some of her friends live.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN A. MACDONALD.—We regret to learn that the wife of the Hon. John A. Macdonald, died on Monday at Kingston. Mr. Macdonald, who was suddenly called away to the sick beds of his wife, mother and only child, was present on the said occasion.

TAKE NOTICE:

THE subscribers to J. A. Ford's Raffle of Pictures are hereby informed that the same will take place at the Billiard Saloon, in Windsor, on Saturday evening 26th Dec. at 7 o'clock. A few tickets yet remain unsold, but as the Raffle will surely come off those desirous of trying their luck had better be in time. Tickets $1 00.

MAIL CONTRACT.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Post-master-General, and marked "Tenders for Mail Service," will be received at Toronto, until 12 o'clock, Noon, on Saturday, the 23rd January next—for the conveyance of Her Majesty's Mails twice per week each way between Chatham and Sandwich, on and from the 16th February next.

The conveyance to be made on horseback, or in a Buggy, Waggon or Sleigh. The computed distance between Chatham and Sandwich, is about 63 miles.

The rate of travel to be not less than four miles per hour, including stoppages for all purposes.

The days and hours of Arrival and Departure to be as follows, subject to right of the Post Master-General to alter the same, should he consider it advisable so to do. To leave Chatham every Monday and Thursday—and Sandwich every Wednesday and Saturday, proceeding to Chatham and Sandwich respectively, directly serving the Way Offices each way, at Baxton—Tilbury East—Comber—Edgeworth and Maidstone, at such hours as may be required.

The Contract, if satisfactorily executed, will continue in force for a term not exceeding four years: the Postmaster General reserving the right to terminate the agreement at any time previous to the expiration of the four years, should the public interest require it, upon giving the Contractor three months previous notice of his intention.

All expenses on this Route for Tolls, Ferries, &c., must be defrayed by the Contractor.

Each Tender to state the price asked in words at length, and to be accompanied by the written guarantee of two responsible parties undertaking that in the event of the Tender being accepted the Contract shall be duly executed, by the party tendering, for the price demanded:—undertaking also to become bound with the Contractor in the sum of Two-five hundred dollars for the due performance of the Service.

Blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices at Chatham, Sandwich and Maidstone, and at the Office.

HEALTH OR SICKNES

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, nothing as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Ne vous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own nor her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma
Bowel Complaints
Coughs,
Colt's,
Chest Diseases,
Contractions,
Dyspepsia,
Diarrhœa
Dropsy,
Debility,
Fever and Ague,
Female Complaints,
Headaches,
Indigestion
Influenza,
Inflammation,
Inward Weakness
Liver Complaints,
Lowness of Spirits
Piles.
Stone and Gravel,
Secondary Symptoms,
Venereal Affections,
Worms of all kinds,

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionally divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share	$200.
Six per cent thereon for 8 years	96.
Total	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38,
And for three years 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the dissolution of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

Solitude.

BY R. BENNETT.

In shady nook, by rippling brook,
Alone, alone I dwell:
Full well I love the leafy grove
And every forest dell.
In cavern deep I love to sleep,
Or brood o'er moss and ten,
Or hover o'er the wild sea shore,
Far from the haunts of men.

In distant lands, on burning sands,
Or 'mid storms snowy,
Where all around is calm profound,
I find a sure repose.
In darkling mine, where jewels shine,
Beyond the glare of day,
Or 'neath the wave, in coral cave,
I lurk where sea nymphs play.

Ere time began, or mortal man
In Eden first drew breath,
I held alone my solemn throne,
And all was hushed as death.
But though I fly from every eye,
To each I'll come at last;
For I dwell with all, both great and small,
When life's brief hour is past.

A Runaway Couple.

A runaway couple, true "lovyers," of the fervent Yankee stamp, arrived at a small inn near Boston and wanted the Landlord to send for a minister to splice them, and to be 'quick about it.'

The landlord complied, and the licensed minister came.

'Be you the minister,' asked the bridegroom.

'I am,' replied he.

'O, ye be, eh! What's your name?'

'Stiggins.'

'Wall neow, Stiggins,' said the yankee, 'du it up brown, and your money is ready'; and 'twixt the Reverend gentleman commenced:—

'You will please join hands.'

The Yankee stood up with lady-love, and seized her fervently by the hand.

'You promise Mr. A——,' said the parson, to take the woman,—'

'Yaas,' said the bridegroom.

'To be your lawful and wedded wife.'

'Yaas, yaas.'

'That you will love and honour her in all things?'

'Sartin yaas I tell ye!'

'That you will cling to her, and her only as long as you both shall live?'

'Yaas indeed, nothin else!' continued the Yankee, in the most delighted and earnest manner.

But here the reverend gentleman stopped, much to the surprise of all present, and to the special annoyance and discomfort of the ardent bridegroom.

'One moment, my friend,' responded the mitister, slowly; for it occurred to him that the laws of the State did not permit this performance without the 'publishment' of the 'bands' for a certain length of time.

'What—what—what in tune is the matter? Don't stop here! Put her thru! What's split parson? Anything gin out?'

'Just at this moment, my friend, I have remembered that you cannot be married in Massachusetts as the law—'

'Can't do, in natur—is the reason, I like her—she likes me—what's to hender?'

'You have not been published, Sir, I suspect.'

'That's a fact; ain't a-goin to be nother. that's the reason why we crossed over into your little Rhody (the scene was on the border of Rhode Island) 'on the sly, ye see parson.'

'I—really—Sir'—said the minister.

'R-e-a-l-l-y I—wal, never mind, go ahead.

'Taint fair. Don't you see it ain't? You've married me and haint teched her! Now don't stop here! Taint the fair thing; by gracious 'taint, now, and yoou know it.

'I will consult,' said the minister hesitatingly.

'No you won't, no, you d n't! You don't consult nothin or nobody, until this ere business is concluded!' And with this he turned the key, and put it (amidst the tittering of the witnesses whom the landlord had called in) in his pocket.

Seizing the hand of his trembling bride he said:

'Go on now from where you left off, put us through and no dodging. It'll be all right; if it ain't right, we'd make it right in the morning, as the saying is.'

After reflecting for a moment, the parson concluded to run the risk of the informality; so he continued:

'You promise, Madam, to take this man to be your lawful husband?'

'Yaas,' said the Yankee as the lady bowed.

'That you will love, honour and obey him?'

'Them's 'em,' said Jonathan, as the lady bowed again.

'And that you will cling to him so long as you both shall live.

'That's the talk!—stick to one an other allers,'—and the lady said yes again.

'Then, in the presence of these witnesses I pronounce you man and wife.'

'Hoorah!' shouted Jonathan, leaping half way to the ceiling with joy.

'And what God has joined together let no man put asunder.'

'Hoorah!' continued Jonathan.—'What's the price?' (The parson seemed to hesitate.) How much? spit it out!—Don't be afeered. You did it like a book. Here's a V. Never mind the change—Send for a hack, Landlord give us your bill. I've got her! Hail Conlumby!'

The poor fellow semed to be entirely unable to control his joy; and ten minutes afterward he was on his way to the railway station with his wife, 'the happiest man out of jail,' said the eye witnesses who describe the scence.

The Clarksville (Tenn.) Chronicle says that two rough men of that place were courting the same lady, when one of them proposed to the other to give or take five hundred dollars for his pretensions. The gentleman to whom the proposition was made paid the money and the rival withdrew. Here is an idea for some young bucks up this way, not a few of whom, we imagine, would sell at a low figure.

A Warning to Young Ladies.—Miss Hester A Burgess sued N. F. Woon in Kenawha county, Va., last week, for damages for breach of promise. It was proved in evidence, says the Tully Star, that the young lady was a flirt, and the jury accordingly awarded her one cent damages.

Saying and Doing.

THE ENERGY OF A HUMANITARIAN.

It was remarked of Pope Alexander that he never did what he said, and of his successor Borgia that he never said what he did—Professor Holloway, the great physician and philanthropist, reverses both these maxims. He does what he says, and in order that all the sick may know what his remedies will accomplish, he tells them through the press what they have already done. This, it appears to us, is a course that every friend of humanity must approve. The physician who makes a grand discovery in his art—who in fact fathoms the very sources of disease, and draws from nature the means of its extermination—is morally bound to extend the blessed boon to the utmost of his ability. So believing, Professor Holloway has availed himself of every channel of information and intercourse that could facilitate the diffusion of his Pills and Ointment in all quarters of the globe. His energy and enterprise, stimulated by a noble desire to heal and save and stre gthen the martyrs of disease in every land, have carried these hygeian preparations over shore and sea to the ends of the earth. There is no motive so powerful in the heart of a genuine philanthropist, as the wish to ameiorate suffering, and better the condition of mankind.—What impediments will it not overcome! It nerves the heart of the patriot to save his country, it lights the lamp of the philosopher to amend man, it invigorates if it does not inspire the Christian physician in his combats with the destroying angel. Success, great reform and universal has crowned the efforts of this great humanitarian. In all climates his medicines have curtailed the census of mortality. The attention of governments, institutions, men of science, the press, the masses, has everywhere been attracted to them. And this is but the beginning of the end. Should their sale and dissemination continue to increase for ten years more in the ratio of the last five years, there will not probably be a square league on the accessible portion of the globe unincluded in the area of their usefulness. Onward, ever onward! is the motto of their indefatigable inventor, as he directs the vast system of transit and correspondence, whose centre is in it is city, and whose ramifications extend to the utmost limits of the circle of trade.—London "Mark Lane Express."

An exchange says that a man who would systememetically and willfully set about cheating a printer, would commit a highway robbery on a crying baby and rob it of its ginger bread—rob a church of its counterfeit pennies—lick the butter off a blind nigger's last 'frter'—pawn his grandmother's specks for a drink of whiskey—steals acorns from a blind pig—and take cloths from a scarecrow, that he may make a respectable appearance in society.

Free Lovers in Trouble Again.—In the break up of the Free Love Association at Berlin it was agreed that their organs, The Social Revolutionist should be discontinued. The agreement was disregarded, another number was printed, and while printing conveyed to the office, the edition was seized by the ladies of Berlin and made a public bonfire of. Barry, the scamp who had charge of the Revolutionist, escaped lynching by flight.

"Couldn't Stand That."—A young gentleman of our acquaintance, who has been paying his devoirs (as Mrs. Partington would say) to a young lady for some time, suddenly left her. We asked him the reason, and he told us in the following words:—"I had been with her, you know, a good while, and noticed that she was rather cool in her remarks, and thinks that she would rather go home alone than have me with her; but I didn't mind that you know. Well, one night when we got to the door, says she—Mr. ——, I do not wish your company any longer, and I'll thank you to keep in your place, and away from me.' That was a little too hard, and I wouldn't stand it. I sacked her that very night."—Lynn News.

Studies on Poisons.—M. Bernard always endeavours to discover the mechanism by which the various poisons produce death. Indeed, his point of view is always physiological—he studies poisons in their effects on the organs, or rather on the system. Among his explanations, there is one of the impunity with which certain poisons may be taken internally, which if breathed, or injected into the arteries, cause certain death. It is this—a poison admitted into the stomach is still outside the organism, as much as if it were lying on the hand, and can only penetrate inside by means of the absorbent vessels. Once absorbed, it will be carried by the veins through the lungs, and there it will be eliminated; whereas, if it enters the organism through the arteries, no elimination is possible, and the tissues are attacked.—Saturday Review.

Unpleasant.—There is a good joke of an old Doctor, that, being on a visit to a village where he had spent the earlier part of his life in practice, he one morning before breakfast went into a churchyard near the house where he was stopping. Breakfast being placed upon the table, the doctor was inquired for. "I believe," said the servant, who had seen where he went, "that he has gone to pay a visit to some of his old patients."

"Cape Cod is a 'place.' Has plenty of sand, the prettiest girls, plenty of fish, and regular preaching three times every Sunday. Besides, not a lawyer, constable or jail in the town. Are all fishing—out of the way—during the summer, leaving calico to preside!

"Dear pa, what relation to you is the lit tle baby that was left on the steps of our door?" "He is my step-son, child."

When Alexander Gunn was dismissed from the Customs of Edinburg, the entry made against his name in the book was "A. Gunn, discharged for making a false report."

"Did you ever go to a military ball?" inquired a lively girl of an old soldier. "No my dear, replied the old warrior; "in my days the military balls always came to us."

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running regularly upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Thursdays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesday & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and with all points east of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandize with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should ask particularly for the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of John Hosmer, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

1857.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY, Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE, " Amos Pratt,
ONTONAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY, " —
(New Propeller.)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over Five Thousand Tons Burthen, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transportation of Property.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to produce the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to envy their money to Detroit, for which they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot Store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

Meditation on a Railroad Bond.

It is a very pretty thing,
And charmingly engraved;
As neatly gotten up a cheat
As ever broker shaved,
And I have quite a lot of them
All safe and snug at home,
Enough to make a picture book
As large as Gibbon's Rome.

I know I bought them very cheap,
At only eighty-three—
Indeed, we higgled quite a time
Before we could agree;
What! eighty-three for ten per cent,
Dear sir, you must be crazed—
Yes, I shall have to let them go,
For money must be raised."

Before that very week was out
I thought I smelt a rat;
For I was told that I could buy
For even less than that.
My neighbor bought at seventy-six,
I never liked him how;
But I am very glad to learn
That he has got them now.

Those thousand dollar promises
Are printed by the ream!
And being secured by mortgages,
How very safe they seem.
Moreover, I reserved the right
To change them into shares,
Whose income by and by would be
A fortune for my heirs.

The Coupons—these delicious things!
How tomptingly they look,
As beautifully lithographed
As Cluny or Copp Book.
Yes, there they are—not one cut off—
The ranks are perfect yet,
And like to be, for all that I
For them shall ever get.

The boy that shows for half a dime
Six rat-less kakes alive,
The other day was urging me
To view his precious hive,
"I say, sir—want to see the snakes?
One of 'em's eat a toad;
I'll let you see 'em for a bond
Of that 'ere western road!"

Ah, well—the dream is over now,
And so I sit and sigh,
And curse the day when oily tongues
Persuaded me to buy;
I spend my time with tearful eyes,
Or their delusive shams,
In singing and lugubrious hymns,
And penitential rhyme.

The Champagne Cork.

BY E. W. DEWERS.

A half a dozen young men sat chatting over their champagne, after a lively supper, with Harry Beaumont, at his mother's country-seat, in the vicinity of Philadelphia. As the hour grew late, and the guests re luctantly ordered departure, the young host called on them to drink one more glass to the lovers of their hearts' at parting.

'And especially,' added Frank Treverton, the gayest of the party, 'especially to your mother's charming guests, Grace and Mary Bloomwood!' And he bowed to Harry.

'Why do you omit their cousin Blanche?' asked Harry. 'She is worth both the beauties put together. For any man who could put up with the plain setting, she's a jewel!'

'Is she?' returned Frank, carelessly. 'Well, I've thought so once or twice myself. But it's a pity, for she's confoundedly plain, and will never get a husband unless by chance.'

'The more fools they that overlook her,' retured Harry.

'Why the mischief don't you appropriate her yourself then?' asked two or three voices.

'I? Oh! I'm in love with a beauty myself, and could not think of such a thing—but that only proves I'm a fool like the rest of you.'

'I declare Harry, you almost persuade me to take her,' cried Frank. 'At all events I'd be willing to run the risk of having happiness 'thrust upon me.' Besides it's a shame such a fine girl should not have one chance for a husband. What say you, boys? Suppose we agree that the fellow that is hit by the cork Harry is going to let fly, shall offer himself to Miss Blanche, and thus be made happy for life in spite of himself?'

'Agreed,' cried some voices. Others, however, demurred. At last, after some debate, the resolution was carried, with the proviso that a prior engagement should be an exemption from the decree.

Harry cut the wire, and the cork, after vaulting almost to the ceiling, descended plump on the head of the originator of the proposal.

'Disloyal!' by thunder,' cried that luckless hero, indignantly, when he felt the fatal tap on his crown; while roars of laughter from his unsympathizing companions attested their enjoyment of the humor and justice of the fiat, as well perhaps their sense of personal relief at their own escape.

'Well, I'm in for it,' cried Frank, after a great gasp. 'I'll stand by my bargain. I'll offer myself, as per agreement, and trust to my lucky stars for a refusal.'

A desperate cer, and the universal exclamation, 'No hopes of that—no hopes of that!' damped his rising spirits at view of this mode of escape

'Why not?' he asked, rather faintly.

'She, plain and poor—you, handsome and rich,' returned one of the party, laconically.

Frank sighed; he felt the force of circumstances.

And now, reader, it is time for me to let you into a secret. The whole of the strange conversation I have described, was overheard by the person most int rested in it—namely, Blanche Bloomwood herself.

For, with the other young ladies, Grace and Mary, she had gone into the conservatory adjoining the dining-room, and there, in consequence of the raised voices of the young men at their supper, had recognized her name. The result added one more confirmation to the truth of the everlastingly true proverb, about 'listeners hearing no good of themselves.'

It is needless to say that Blanche's feelings of mortification and annoyance, on this occasion, were severely painful. The reader may well imagin that as the conversation progressed she blushed—she hid her face—she tried to stop her ears, and being prevented from making her escape by her companions, who regularly held her still, fearing any movement might betray them, she finally sat, pale, and quiet, while tears of real agony rolled down her cheeks.

But what of that? What if another, and yet keener pang, mingled with the mortification she felt at hearing her name so disrespectfully mentioned! What if, like a silly, susceptible girl as she was, she had been foolish enough to look too often and too kindly on Frank Treverton's open face, till a warm and tender feeling for him had almost unconsciously sprung up in her too prudent heart? We are not going to accord her any sympathy on that account—she had no business to look—no business to feel. She was plain as a pike staff; and what business have plain women to do looking about, and feeling, especially as nobody is likely to look at, or feel anything for them? No, it was most reprehensible, in our hero ine, and she has got to take the consequences—to receive her punishment, which is coming.

On the following day, Frank, who was one of those persons who like to remove the pressure of a disgreeable impending duty by instantly performing it, called on Blanche to get through the task his folly had imposed on him. Besides, he shrewdly calculated that by making his offer suddenly, without any preliminary advances, he greatly increased his chances of a refusal.

As for poor Blanche, she had passed a sleepless night. She had been harassed by distressing thoughts. Surely hers was a trial of a peculiar kind. She felt that she loved Frank—and felt as plainly that he had never even given her a thought. Yet, by a strange chance, she saw him about to put himself in her power. She had but to accept his offer, and honor would bind him to her. Afterward—to the tempter whispered she—what was his heart—she would then have opportunity which was now denied her; and if, after all, she found this hope vain, she could then release him, and be no worse off than she was now. But opposed to this special pleading came her woman's pride—her woman's delicacy, which forbade her to accept a feigned suit, or to force herself on any man.

It was some relief to her, after such a disturbed night, during which every distressing thought visited her with exaggerated horrors, to find that by broad daylight she could scarcely regard the agreement of the night before as any thing but a jest. Notwithstanding this conviction, however, she dressed herself with particular care, (for a plain woman is more regardful of such things than a pretty one) and the silly child could not help thinking of possibilities.

Therefore, when Frank was announced, as he was shortly, she went down to the drawing-room, perfectly sure of his errand, and perfectly sure, too, of her answer.

Frank, the elegant, and perhaps too confident man of the world, was evidently not himself on this occasion. He was manifestly confused and embarrassed. He spoke hurriedly of a thousand things, passing abruptly from one subject to another. The composure of his companion gradually restored his tranquility, in a measure; but his agitation returned as often as he thought of offending her dignity by the blow he meditated. There was something, too, of sensibility and tenderness in her face, which made him shrink from wounding her feelings.—He procrastinated, and the longer he delayed, the more impossible seemed his task; for the more he conversed with Blanche, the higher she was obliged to estimate her character. More than once, charmed by the brilliancy of her conversation, and the grace of her manner, he half determined to defer his offer till he knew her better, feeling that it might possibly, one day, be made in a very different spirit.

The morning was already far spent, ere he called up resolution to say,

'Miss Blanche, I have called here to-day on a most disagreeable—I mean—most agreeable, though—extraordinary—errand —'

A warm blush rushed to Blanche's face; she trembled visibly. Frank went on with forced bravery.

'Miss Blanche, I am here to offer you my hand——' He stopped abruptly, at a loss how to finish his periods.

Poor Blanche's heart palpitated so that she could not speak. During the silence which followed, Frank recovered from his embarrassment enough to notice and wonder at hers; but Blanche soon composed herself.

'Mr. Treverton,' she said, in a low, distinct voice, 'I shall not ask what has impelled you to make your strange offer. It is enough for me to be sure that you do not love me, and poor and plain though I am, I cannot forgo affection in a husband. I feel, too, that it was not kind in you to——' She could get no farther. The coming flood of tears threatened to wash away all her dignity. She made for the door.

Frank, well nigh melted to tears himself, at the sight of her impassioned sorrow, followed her, and caught her hand at the door to detain her.

There was something within the hand he seized, which she left within his as she escaped from him, just managing to say, with a convulsive smile.

'A keepsake.'

Frank clenched his hand upon the trifle, without thinking to look at it till after he had taken two or three returns up and down the room, during which he heartily berated himself for his folly and unkindness, and as heartily pitied poor Blanche. When he unclosed his hand, he saw something carefully wrapped in a silver paper. He unfolded it, and found—a champagne cork.

It would be a difficult matter to describe Frank's feelings as he left the house and walked homeward. He had made his escape; met with the refusal he hoped for, yet he did not seem the light hearted fellow one might have expected. In fact, Blanche's intelligence, gentleness and refinement of manners, still more, her dignified rejection of his suit, had made a deep impression on him. Perhaps, too, with man's ready intuition on such points, he divined the state of her feelings toward him; for men are vain creatures, and quick enough to see, or if necessary to imagine, what flatters them.

At all events, her keepsake proved that she was cognizant of the motives which induced him to make his unlucky offer; and her feelings under such singular circumstances offered a curious subject for his speculations, especially if his surmise as to her states of mind was correct.

He felt himself called upon, if as a mere matter of curiosity, to investigate the latter point.

Philosophic investigations, however well intended, are dangerous under certain circumstances. This truth Frank discovered long before his course of study was complete. He fell so deeply in love as even to satisfy the requirements of a plain woman on that point.

Some superficial observers may think that this is not saying much. I tell them it is saying a great deal—since in addition to the love which would satisfy a handsome woman, a plain one demands as much more as shall quiet her doubts of her own personal attractions.

But, as I have said, poor Frank's infatuation was complete. He was even heard to say, that the happiest moment of his life was that in which Blanche confessed to him, that, though she did not choose that her fate for life should be decided by the popping of a champagne cork, she had loved him then and ever since.

Asiatic Cunning and Treachery.

It is only in Thuggee, as revealed before Indian judges and magistrates, that we can find a counterpart of the insidiousness and treachery exhibited by the sepoys. Colonel Sleeman who has long been a resident in Oude, recounts the history of a Mogul officer, who in travelling from the Punjaub to Oude, by way of Meerut and Bareilly, accompanied by his personal servant and groom, was accosted by six respectable men, who saluted him most respectfully, wishing to enter conversation. The officer supposing Thuggee, laid his hand on his sword and warned the fellows off. The next day he met the same number of men dressed as Musulmans. They spoke of the dangers of the road, and claimed the officer's protection. But the wily old man, brandishing his sabre, bade them be off. The fellows disappeared like those of the previous day. Towards evening of the same day, the wayfarer's servants met a third party of travellers, six in number, and entered into conversation with them. But the Mogul officer ordered the travellers to fall into the rear, and requested his servants to have no conversation with them. On the third day, the officer continuing his journey, arrived on a desert plain. His servants were some way behind, when all at once he found himself in the presence of six poor Musulmans, who were weeping over the body of their comrade, who had, they said, died on the roadside. The men described themselves as soldiers of Lahore, returning after a long absence to their wives and children. Their fellow-soldier, they alleged, with seeming sorrow, had sunk under the fatigue of the journey, and they were then about to deposit him in the newly-made grave freshly dug with their own hands. But alas! poor and penniless as they were, there was not one of them capable of reading the prayers of the Koran. Would the Mogul officer eternally oblige them by so doing, and perform a beneficent act, for which he would be rewarded in this world, and in the world that was to come? He, distrustful hitherto, could not resist the appeal made to his religious feelings, and dismounted from his noble steed. The body, meanwhile, had been already placed in the grave after the manner prescribed in the Koran, with the head turned toward Mecca. A carpet was immediately spread before the Mogul officer. He disburdened himself of all his arms—of his sword and of his pisto's, which were laid aside. Having washed his face and hands to purify himself, the officer commenced, on bended knees, the prayers, which were for a moment sobbingly followed by two of the friends of the supposed deceased. Meanwhile the four others, on a signal, attacked the officer, cutting him down at a stroke. The two servants were easily mastered, tied to their master's dead body, and buried alive in the grave which had been prepared for the purpose. It is needless to say that the six travellers of the three days were identical—were one and the same men. They all belonged to a band of Thugs, of the kingdom of Oude. Finding it impossible to gain the confidence of the wary traveller by honied speech, they appealed to his religious feelings, having prepared the corpse for the purpose. By this stratagem they obtained money, jewels, and valuable arms, and under guise of religion, accomplished their diabolical purpose with a refinement of cunning and treachery known only in the East. Such are the vile, degraded and hypocritical races, false to the core—with whom the Europeans have to deal in the East.—Morning Post.

A Jolly Temperance Family.

Joe Harris was a whole-souled merry fellow, and very fond of a glass After living in New Orleans many years, he came to the conclusion of visiting an uncle in Massachusetts whom he had not seen for many years. Now, there is a difference between New Orleans and Massachusetts, in regard to the use of ardent spirits, and when Joe arrived he found the people running mad about temperance; he felt bad, thinking with the old song that keeping the spirits up, by pouring spirits down, was one of the best ways to make time pass, and began to fear that he was in a pickle. But on the morning after his arrival, the old lady came to him and said:

"Joe, you have been living at the south, and no doubt are in the habit of taking some thing to drink about eleven o'clock. Now, I keep some for medical purposes, but let no one know it, as my husband wishes to set the boys a good example."

Joe promised, and thinking he would not get any more that day, took as he expressed, 'a buster.'

After he had walked out to the stable, who should he meet but his uncle.

'Well, Joe,' says he 'I expect you are accustomed to drinking in New Orleans, but you find us temperance men here, and for the sake of my sons, I don't let them know I have any brandy; but I keep a little for my rheumatism; will you accept some?'

Joe signified his consent and took another good horn. Then continuing his walk, he came to where their boys were hauling rails. After conversing a time, one of his cousin's said:

'Joe, I expect you would like to have something to drink, and as our folks are down on liquor, we keep some here to help us on with our work.'

Out came the bottle and down they sat, and he said by the time he got home to dinner, he was as tight as he could be, and all from visiting a temperance family.'

Miscellany.

A MACCLESFIELD HERO.—A soldier of the 64th at Cawnpore, named Samuel Shaw, a mill lad only four years since, but now one of the band of Havelock's heroes, though not yet twenty years old, when in Macclesfield was rather of a restless disposition, not liking the restraint of factory hours. The embodiment of the militia and general enlistment for the war, were attractions he could not resist. After six months drill and attention to school, he volunteered for the Crimea, and his regiment was engaged in the attack on the Redan, but he escaped unscathed. At the termination of the war, he volunteered for India, and his regiment was among those chosen to engage in the Persian war, and he shared in the several battles in Persia. No sooner was this war ended than the 64th returned to India, and became part of Havelock's division on the breaking out of the sepoy mutiny. He has been in all in twelve battles, and when he wrote to his mother, he had not received a scratch, and was sharing in the preparation to march to the relief of Lucknow. To his credit it may be added, that he has repeatedly sent his mother (a poor woman), money; telling her, if she wants more, not to be backward, for he has plenty, and adds, that after the last battle he became possessed of a valuable diamond ring from the mutineers.

MINISTERS MUST NOT PLAY AT TEN-PINS.—Two Methodist Ministers in North Carolina, Messrs. Edwards and Rosser, have been "disciplined" for indulgence in the game of ten-pins at the Virginia Springs last summer. They pleaded guilty, expressed regret for the act, stated that they were not conscious of intention to do wrong, and promised not to do so any more. The Conference which tried them, in session at Hillsborough City, accepted the acknowledgment, and permitted them to continue their functions.

CHRISTMAS SUPPER TO THE PRINTERS AT MESSRS. LOVELL AND GIBSON'S.—On New Year's eve, according to annual custom, the hands engaged in the printing establishment of Messrs. Lovell and Gibson, of Yonge street, in this city, were entertained at supper in the private residence of Mr. James Lovell in Bond street. Upwards of 40 sat down to the table, which was abundantly supplied with all the delicacies peculiar to this festive season, and was of the most recherche description. Mr. Lovell occupied the chair, and other worthy veterans of the establishment—Mr. James Hamilton—the vice chair. The usual loyal, patriotic, and complimentary toasts were given and responded to, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. The party broke up shortly after 12 o'clock, each one being highly delighted at the kindness they had experienced at the hands of their respected employers on this and on many other previous occasions.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Mishter! Mishter! what have you done?' said a little news-boy with protruding eyes to a greenhorn who had just tied his horse, as he supposed, to a spruce pole on Broadway. 'Done!' said the fellow, 'what do you mean? I hain't been doin' nothin' as I known on.' 'Why yeth you have, thir; you have been and hitched you both to a Magnetic Telegraph, and you'll be in Boston in leth than two mineth if you don't look out.' The man untied his horse with nervous anxiety, and jumping into his wagon, drove hastily down the street.

The Right Reverend Benjamin Cronyn, Bishop of Huron, arrived in London on Thursday evening, after an absence in England for the past few months. He was welcomed to the city by a merry peal from the bells of St. Paul's Church.

A report is in circulation that Mr. Scott Russell, the builder of the Leviathan, offered to launch her for £50,000. This was thought extravagant, and Mr. Brunel undertook to perform the task for £10,000. It is said that the unsuccessful efforts to set her afloat have already cost upwards of £70,000.—Literary Gazette.

Some laborers boring an artesian well in the yard of the United States Marine Hospital in San Francisco, when the auger had penetrated to a depth of 275 feet, struck an auriferous stratum, which was found to be pretty rich in precious metal Some dirt brought up by the auger was washed out and found to contain about five cents worth of gold.

Quebec papers notice the progress of direct trade between that city and the Far West. A few days since a hundred barrels of flour were received direct from Ottawa, Ill., having gone over a distance of 2,000 miles by railroad. The route was as follows: via Rock Island Railroad, Central Michigan, Great Western, and the Grand Trunk to Point Levi.

The Picton Gazette says, that shop-lifting and forgery are committed there with impunity, and states the last case of forgery as that of a young man, whose name is not mentioned, who forged the name of Mr. P. G. Yarwood, to an order for $50 worth of clothes, which being accepted, the youth decamped with the plunder. He was subsequently arrested, and is said to have been considered respectable.

LAYING TELEGRAPH CABLE.—A gentleman of this city, Mr. William C. Davidson, has discovered a plan for laying telegraph cable and wire, to any depth of water, at any time, and with perfect success. He has applied for a patent for his discovery, and has caveatted it. He starts for New York this afternoon, to lay his plan before the directors of the Atlantic Telegraph Association. We hope he and his plan will be entirely successful.—Buffalo Republic.

The Missouri Democrat has news from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, that the corn is rotting to a disastrous extent, and that which is on the stalks and in the cribs.—This, says the Democrat, is a matter of grave importance.

CHANG AND ENG.—The Siamese twins were taken down to Louisville, the other day, to be shown there. The showman who had charge of them gave the conductor one ticket for the two persons. He replied they had never bought more than one. Conductor must have another. Said the showman, 'I bought the ticket for Eng, Chang can take care of himself; you can put him off the cars.' As Chang could not go off without Eng, whose ticket was paid for, the conductor submitted with as good grace as he could.—Cin. Gaz.

THE SWELL MOB OF THE LONDON OMNIBUS.—An American gentleman having seated himself in a London omnibus, saw and heard what a little amused him. A man, bearing no peculiar marks of authority, looked in at the door, took a professional view of the passengers, and called out to the driver, without any pretence at modest concealment, 'You can't go on, there's two of the swell mob in here.' The coach waited till at length, a pursy, well looking old man rose and stepped out, saying as he did so, 'I've too much money to ride with pickpockets.' In a moment more a spruce young person said, as he decamped, 'I'll follow that old gentleman's lead.' 'Go on now,' said the detective policeman 'the swells have got out, and all's right.'

SMALL POX PATIENTS IN PRUSSIA.—A curious lawsuit is going on just now in Berlin. A rich banker of that city, who is ill of the small pox, has had two actions brought against him, one by his barber and the other by his upholsterer, who claim damages because he communicated the malady to them. They demand compensation for the doctor's expenses and the time they have lost. According to the Prussian law, the banker was bound to hang up outside his door a notice with the words "There is a person here ill of the small pox."

A very deplorable affair occurred in Clark Co., Indiana, recently. A Miss Prather was married to a cousin at her father's residence. Some of the young men, acquaintances of the bride and bridegroom, came to the bride's house for the purpose of charivaring the parties. The fathers of the parties asked them to desist, and they complied with this request. But shortly after they returned, and the bride being on horseback for the purpose of going to the home of the bridegroom, the animal became frightened, threw the bride off, and she had her neck broken, causing instant death.

Registration of Voters.

Adverting to the wholesale manufacture of votes which has distinguished more than one constituency, in both sections of the Province, the Montreal Commercial Advertiser remarks:—

"One great step towards the prevention of the wholesale manufacture of votes which has characterised several of the late elections is the passage of a Law for the Registration of Voters. In the heat and excitement of an election, where the Deputy Returning Officers are almost necessarily partizans of one candidate or the other, there are wanting both the time for investigating, and the impartiality necessary to decide correctly upon the qualifications of the electors presenting themselves at the Polls. The ordinary rules of honesty which regulate the actions of the majority of men on other occasions, appear to be considered in interregnum at an election, and persons who at other times would scorn a dishonorable act, do not hesitate to palm themselves off as legal voters—or to take other equally disgraceful and illegal means to swell the list of the candidate they favor. If every voter were required to have his position defined and all disqualifications removed, a certain time before the issue of the writ of election, while men's minds were yet cool and unbiased; the number of unqualified, and even totally fictitious votes which disgrace our poll books would never appear there; and the greater part of the temptation to violence and disorder would be removed."

On the same subject, the Montreal Herald some days ago said:—

"It is a misfortune that there should be any doubt of the genuineness of the votes by which those who are to govern the country have been placed in that position. The means for ascertaining the truth ought therefore, to be as simple as possible; and the mere fact that one candidate has succeeded in foisting on to the poll book a sufficient number of names to constitute a majority in his favor, should not be allowed to give him a seat in the Legislature, for a longer space than is absolutely required to go through some formal homo ogation of a report which has been previously made by ex officio and impartial judges. The Bill of Mr. McKenzie, which passed the House last session, was intended to give a greater speed to the scrutiny of votes, in order that the whole might be effected after each election before the meeting of Parliament. But the scrutiny could be and ought to be, facilitated by the right of each person being ascertained before hand. The only question then would be one of identity, and this would render the business of taking the votes at the polls, and of scrutinizing them afterwards an extremely simple one. We hope that Messrs. Dorion and Rose will set themselves fairly to work in carrying out their very laudable design. There can be no difficulty in ascertaining who are the authorized voters, and of thus putting an end to frauds effected by personation, double voting, and so forth."

We can conceive of nothing more simple than the system suggested, and certainly no single thing could be more efficacious in securing the presence at the polling booth only of persons legally entitled to the exercise of the elective franchise. It would be a reform well calculated to work wonders in the direction of honest voting.—Such a system has long prevailed in England, and is carried on easily—involving no expensive machinery, and perilling no man's electoral rights. In one country after another, it is in operation in several of the neighboring States; and in others, there is at the present moment a strong demand for its adoption.

We join our cotemporaries in urging this reform all the more earnestly, because none can justly claim for it exclusively party affinities. It has been advocated at different periods by men of different parties; and now that experience has demonstrated the need of it, we trust the best men from all sides will be found ready to perfect a measure that will have the effect of preventing a repetition of the disgraceful frauds that have been perpetrated in many places during the contest now drawing to a close.

Purity of election must be obtained, if possible, at any cost of means and trouble. A judicious scheme for the registration of voters appears to us of all means most likely to operate advantageously. Else where, we know it is effectual; it perils no rights, involves no essential wrongs; and there cannot be any difficulty in adapting it to the peculiarities and exigencies of this Province.—Colonist.

Much Truth in a Small Compass.

We are a free people, a great people, an enterprising people; but it must be admitted, also, that we are also a dyspeptic people. Our stomachs are by no means as sound as our political constitution; and many of us, if addressed in the language of Macbeth—

"Let good digestion wait on appetite,

And health on both"

would assuredly require by what means the wish could be realized. That question, thanks to THOMAS HOLLOWAY, can be triumphantly answered. The unequalled stomachic, known throughout the world as HOLLOWAY'S PILLS is a specific for the complaint. Imperfect digestion results from a diminished solution of the gastric juice—the fluid which dissolves the food in the stomach, and fits it for application to the purposes of life, in the form of blood. If the organ which secretes this solvent is in a state of morbid irritation, the fluid will be deficient in quality and quantity, and the appointed office in the internal economy of the system will be inefficiently performed. The stomach being disordered the whole vital machinery to which it furnishes sustenance and strength will be weakened, and the animal spirits, sympathizing with the bodily debility, will become greatly depressed. This is DYSPEPSIA; and its victims, when it has assumed the chronic form, are the most miserable of mankind.—It is generally accompanied by loss of appetite, attenuation, oppression after eating, irregularity of the bowels, low nervous fever, great debility, palpitation of the heart, broken sleep, pain in the right side and between the shoulders, and profound melancholy. All these symptoms, and every other variety in the manifestations of this distressing malady, are rapidly removed by a course of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Putting the testimony of others out of the question, we have full warrant from personal observation for this broad and positive statement.

It is not to be marvelled at, then, that Dr. Holloway has acquired such universal fame. Very seldom do the crowned heads of Europe condescend to invite private citizens to their palaces, but there is scarcely a regal palace in Europe where the Doctor is not a welcome visitor, and whose sovereign has not honored him with some rich present as a testimonial of his esteem. Nor does his renown rest here. He is as well known in China and Hindostan, in Cairo and in Sydney, as he is in London, Paris, St. Petersburg, Rome, Madrid, Berlin, Vienna or New York; and in each of these cities he is honored; and in some instances revered as a benefactor. If he had appeared in a former age of the world, his success would have been attributed to magic. We have even heard that the ignorant peasantry of England and Germany, at the present day, endow him, in their imaginations, with supernatural gifts.

In these remarks upon a man who is distinguished from all physicians whatsoever by the speed, simplicity, and certainty, of his cures, we wish to discharge a duty which we owed, or thought we owed, to the public. It is for them to act upon our suggestion as they think fit.—N. Y. "Sunday Mercury."

MURDERS IN NEW YORK FOR 1857.—The National Police Gazette publishes a list of sixty murders which have been committed in New York since January 1st, 1857. But one execution has taken place, that of the colored man Dorsey. Three persons convicted of capital crimes are now under sentence of death—Michael Canceni for the murder of policeman Anderson; James Rogers, for the murder of John Swansen; and James Shepherd, for arson in the first degree. A remarkable feature in this appalling list of crime is the fact, that in a large majority of cases no circumstances have pointed with certainty to the criminal. Suspicions have, indeed, rested upon parties in most cases; but these have been in some instances unfounded, and in others too vague to warrant the finding of an indictment, and up to the present moment there is a long catalogue shrouded in mystery.—Another and most alarming feature in these cases is the apparent absence of any motive for assassinations. Many murders have seemingly been committed for the mere love of killing. Thus a colored man, named Francis Salters, was deliberately shot in Thomas Street, without the slightest provocation or any motive of cupidity. The assassins, upon committing the deed, jumped into their carriage and drove off, probably without even knowing the name of their victim.

STREET OUTRAGES IN QUEBEC.—We regret to record that Saturday evening furnished no exception to the daily list of street outrages that we were compelled to mention last week. Mr. S. J. Shaw, hard ware merchant, of the Lower Town, was driving along St. Paul street, just at the Queen's Wood Yard, when he was assailed by several French Canadians with heavy sticks. Mr. Shaw stooped as low as he could in the sleigh, and thus escaped the blows, some of which actually broke the back of the carriole. The carter who drove him put his horse to a gallop, and soon escaped from the ruffians. An hour or two later, one of the employees of the Mercury office—being the second that has suffered at the hands of the rowdies—was proceeding homeward, when he was attacked near the site of Prince John's Ward. Poll No. 1. It appears that he was unexpectedly accosted by two Irish men, saying "here's one of them," when he was struck two or three violent blows with sticks. Having in vain endeavored to defend himself, he at last took to his heels, when he received a parting blow on the foot, which has disabled him more than any of the others.—Quebec Mercury.

STRENGTH OF DELHI.—In reference to the fall of Delhi, the Harkaru observes: "That to judge from the accounts of the siege, during a year, we be able to form a position of the enemy, and our want of appliances and means—the overwhelming numbers and inexhaustible resources on the one side, and the small meagre battalions which melted away almost as fast as they were reinforced on the other, we be also to form an opinion, not Delhi was so long in being taken, but that it was ever taken at all. Large as it is, it required only 20,000 men to defend it, the rebels had double that number to do the work; and so far from having wanted ammunition our contemporary has the best authority for stating that after the siege was at an end, the victors found lace at caps, barrels of gunpowder without end, shot and shell enough to last for two years' siege, and a city as well supplied with grain as Calcutta—nor had money become scarce, for every Sepoy was found with coin upon him.

THE QUEENS OF FRANCE.—The Dublin University Magazine, commenting upon the lives of the royal and imperial wives of France, states that there are but thirteen out of sixty-seven on whose memory there is no dark stain of sorrow or of sin. A contemporary in summing up the statement says:—"Of the others, seven were divorced; two died by the executioner; nine died very young; seven were soon widowed; three were cruelly traduced; three were exiles; three were bad in different degrees of evil; the prisoners and the heart broken made up the remainder. Twenty who were buried at St. Denis since the time of Charlemagne, were denied even rest in the grave. Their remains were dragged from the tomb, exposed to the insults of the revolutionary populace, and then flung into a trench and covered with quick lime."

LOSSES BY FIRE IN THE UNITED STATES.—A tabular statement of the fires in the United States, where the value of the property destroyed exceeded $20,000,000, shows that up to the 25th of December there had been 230 of these fires, and the aggregate loss was $15,792,000. In 1856 there were 227 fires, aggregate loss $23,139,000. The loss in December thus far has been much less than in any month, namely, $435,000. Add to the above the amount of property destroyed by fires where in each instance the loss was less than twenty thousand dollars, and the aggregate would be increased to probably twenty seven millions in 1856 and to twenty millions in 1857. The number of lives lost in these fires was 158 in 1857 and 183 in 1856.—Washington Intelligencer.

RANKIN is dead politically, and we hope also buried decently, so that the carcass of the giant may not, as was feared by the Lilliputians, create a plague. Nothing about the dead, is the ancient saying, unless good —yet a few words about the past election, may not be amiss, and if Mr. Rankin's name is mentioned, it will only be through necessity. The Cameleon like hues, the papers have taken during the different phases of this contest, have been most amusing—here we have one day that pious firebrand, the Catholic Citizen claiming for the good Catholic (because he sends his sons to a jesuit College, and tickles the palms of the priests,) Rankin, a victory, and ridiculing the Globe—the Globe retorts, and as justly, claiming MacLeod as a Clear Grit. When all is settled, and it is positively ascertained that MacLeod is elected, out comes the oily Ministerial paper, the Colonist, softly telling us that MacLeod is in their ranks. We should be sorry to see him oppose the Ministry when right, as sorry to seehim support them when wrong; but God forbid he should be a Clear Crit. The different influences which have been brought to bear at this election, are most marvelous, and when, and how Rankin obtained the power to bring them into a tion, is beyond our ken; for though cunning and unscrupulous, he has little real talent, and generally, as in this instance, overreaches himself. Plausibility of manner, Mr. Rankin possesses to a degree rarely excelled, and this must we suppose, have been the secret of his success with strangers. The description of his speeches is most aptly described in four lines of Swift's

"Of loud unmeaning sounds, a rapid flood
Rolls from his mouth, in pienteous streams of mud;
With these, the Town and country round he plies,
Made up of noise, and impudence, and lies."

But to return, here we have Mr. Allen, Grand Master of the Orange Lodge, lending himself to further Mr. Rankin's interests, luckily without effect. Shame on him, we say.—Then the Bishop's mandate; next the bogus engineers; and lastly, the villainous looking, editor of the most rascally, violent, rebel and seditious paper in the Provi ce—the Catholic Citizen. Oh Monstrous! Heaven forfend that Essex should again be sullied with another such election. Did the Premier assist Mr. Rankin in this election? It looks like it very much—nevertheless we feel convinced that he chuckles at having got rid of such an excretion.

On Tuesday last, the distribution of the prizes awarded to the several children of the P. S. School, took place—Messrs. Teakle and Davis, trustees, were present. Mr Davis addressed she children as follows:—

"CHILDREN.—The purpose for which we have met here to-day, is a most gratifying one. The object of our calling you together is, to reward merit and diligence, in those of you who have obtained prizes, and I trust, also, not to excite envy, but a good and wholesome emulation in those of you who have not been as successful as your fellow schoolmates. You must remember, that, although credit is due to those who by their application, have obtained the prizes about to be distributed, yet no disgrace is attached to those who receive none, for at school, as in after life, prizes do not fall to the share of all. Be not, therefore, any of you, deterred from diligently pursuing your studies, —make the best use of the present time—seek knowledge for itself, for it will elevate your minds and morals—and in the struggle of life which awaits you all, more or less, you will find it a powerful auxiliary to your advancement, and what is still better, a happy and contented mind."

The children then dispersed, with faces beaming with joy.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY

Number three, of this grateful visitor, has arrived, and brings with it a rare feast of intellectual reading.

The "Atlantic" may be truly styled the Prince of Monthlies, and while its articles are solid and instructive, they are also written in a manner that is particularly pleasing and interesting.

Published by Phillips, Simpson & Co. Boston, and Trubner & Co, London.

☞ The Annual Meeting, for the election of School Trustees, takes place on Monday, the eighteenth January.

The Echo has commenced a new volume and has been greatly enlarged, and otherwise improved, so that it will now bear comparison with any other weekly in the Province.

As a journal devoted to religious evangelica teaching, according to the Church of England, it has no equal; its articles are pure and charitable, and display a christian feeling, that is truly refreshing. Nothing is said, that can give offence to any other creed, yet it is firm and unflinching in its duty.

As a family newspaper, we can heartily recommend it to all.

☞ In another column will be found an advertisement of the meeting of the Agricultural Society, of the County of Essex. Let all who take an interest in this association attend, on the day named. We hope to see a large attendance from the back Townships.

☞ Mr. O. A. Gould, has set up for our Office, a lamp of extraordinary simplicity, in which is used a fluid, called "Silver Oil." The light is a mellow light, and is particularly pleasant, having no disagreeable smell issuing from the lamp, as in most cases of the new patent.

We feel safe in recommending this lamp both for the parlour, as well as for the counting house; it has given entire satisfaction since we have used it.

☞ We wish it to be distinctly understood, that hereafter, no communication whatever, will be inserted in the Maple Leaf, unless the author sends us his name therewith.

We have always given room in our columns to correspondents, and will do so still, upon the above condition, provided there is nothing improper therein.

We are therefore not responsible for any opinions that may be entertained by correspondents; if any person is aggrieved by what may appear in a communication, our columns are open for his repy.

Majority for MacLeod, 222.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,

Our annual Township Meeting came off on Monday, the 4th instant, much to the dissatisfaction of the inhabitants, very few of whom were present, on account of the Meeting being held at one corner of the Township, instead of being held at the centre, where we have a comfortable Town Hall. As it is well known and much to be regretted, our Township has made very little progress, as regards public improvement, until the last two years, when by the influence and indefatigable perseverence of one of our late councillors, Joseph Mark, a man of good abilities and sound principles, and a man highly respected by all classes. But because he would not sell his opinions and influence over to the cause of Mr. Rankin and his hirelings, Messrs. Trembly and Desjardins, (two of Mr. Rankin's tools,) raised the cry of "turn him out," and as there was scarcely any there, but a few French, they succeeded in an unguarded moment to turn some of Mr. Mark's best supporters against him; and much do they now regret the step they have taken, as expectation run high, that he would be elected as Reeve of this Township, and I believe him to be the best qualified person in the Township, as he is very prudent, honest and persevering, often to his own disadvantage. But we are again under the controlling power of a French Council, as we have been before, until the last two years, and must expect to droop again, as some of them are as ignorant as the horses they ride, and not on the heavy side of the scale of honesty. But such as they are, we must put up with for the present, hoping that we may do better for time to come. We have been taught by bitter experience before, but the prosperity of the last two years has banished that from our minds, and we must go to school again.

I might have mentioned, that had Mr. Mark been on the ground at the time of Election, I firmly believe, that not one of the French would have voted against him, notwithstanding all that Messrs. Trembly and Desjardins could have said against him as he was highly respected by that people. But from family affliction he was unable to attend.

LIBERTY.

Tilbury West, Jan. 7th, 1858.

Look out for bills on the "New England Bank of Maine," at Fairmount; E. J. Rittenhouse, President; N. A. H. Martin, Cashier. They are worthless.

Orders have been received at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, to fit out the Niagara with all convenient dispatch, to be ready to sail for England early in March, to assist in laying the Atlantic cable.

International Copyright.

The New York Daily Times says that there is some prospect of an International Copyright arrangement being come to between the United States and Great Britain upon a basis proposed by Mr. Goderich, as follows:—

1. An Author, being a citizen of Great Britain, shall have copyright in the United States for a period not exceeding fourteen years, on the following conditions:—

2. He shall give due notice in the United States of his intention to secure his copyright in this country three months before the publication of his book, and this shall be issued in the United States within thirty days after its publication in Great Britain.

3. His work shall be published by an American citizen, who shall lodge a certificate in the office of the Clerk of the Court of the district where he resides, stating in whose behalf the copyright is taken, and this shall be printed on the back of the title-page.

4. The work shall be printed on American paper, and the binding shall be wholly executed in the United States.

5. This privilege shall be extended only to books, and not to periodicals.

6. The arrangement thus made in behalf or the British authors in America to be extended to American authors in Great Britain, and upon similar conditions.

Arrival of the African.

New York, Jan. 11.

The Africa arrived at this port this morning, with Three days later advices from Europe.

There is highly important news from India.

Our Commercial Intelligence is brief, owing to no business being done during Christmas holidays.

London money market much easier. Bank of England had reduced its rate of interest to 8 per cent. Consols closed on the 24th at 93¾, a slight advance on previous quotations.

The failures of M. C. Haig, Woolen trader of Brandford; Hands, Marsher & Co., Dry merchants of Hill. Stevenson, Vernuche in & Scott, of Newcastle is reported.

The flour and Pressure was much lighter in Hamburg, and had stated in Austria, Sweeden and Norway, while Warsaw was still suffering from its influence.

The news from India is dated at Bombay on the 4th of December.

The English garrison in Lucknow was released by the troops under Commander Sir Colin Campbell on the 19th of November. The sick and wounded and women and children were sent in safety to Cownpore. The British Commander in Chief reached the Alumbagh on the 12th of November and engaged the Sepoy army next in rising.

The rebel forces fought with such energy and determination that the conflicts or series lasted for six days when the mutineers were routed, and General Havelock with his command saved.

During these engagements Sir Colin Campbell was wounded slightly, and had four of his officers killed and forty others wounded.

It was stated that Sir Collin Campbell had 22,000 men under his command, with which force he went march to the conquest of Oude.

English reinforcements were pouring in daily. The Sepoys had been disposed at Masserabad, Mehidpun, Maiwa and Tobel amel. Twenty four members of the Royal family of Delhi, with a powerful rebel chief, had been executed near Delhi.

The Punjab was quiet, but there was a slight rising in the Southern Mahratta country. The rebellion however was considered ended.

The political intelligence from the Continent of Europe, by this arrival, is unimportant.

The ship Wallace from Quebec for Glasgow, was lost at sea. The crew remained on the waterlogged ship for eleven days with nothing but the body of a dog to subsist upon. Three of them died.

THE COAL FIELDS OF NORTH AMERICA.—According to a statement made by Professor Rogers, the number of coal seams in Nova Scotia is about fifty, though only five of them are of workable thickness, being equivalent to about twenty feet of coal. The great anthracite basin of Pennsylvania, that of the Schuylkill, contains also about fifty coal seams, and twenty five of these have a thickness each of more than three feet, and are available for mining. Further west, the great Appalachian, or the Pennsylvania coal field, contains about twenty beds in all, ten of which are thick enough to be mined. Still further onward, the broad basin of Indiana and Illinois shows apparently not more than ten to twelve beds, and it is believed that only seven of these are thick enough and near enough to the surface for mining. Northward, in the Michigan coal field, there are only two or three layers, and these lie so low that the expense of draining mines by pumping will long forbid successful, coal mining in that locality. Still further westward, the coal field of Iowa and Missouri contains, it is believed, but three or four beds of profitable size, and the total number, thick and thin, does not exceed six or seven. A similar gradation characterizes the general size of the individual coal seams, by far the thickest being in the anthracite basin of Eastern Pennsylvania.

HIGHLAND DEPOPULATION.—The depopulation of a Highland glen, within the bounds of a neighboring country, is surprising. About fifty years ago, it contained, it upwards of thirty six families, all of whom lived free and happy, and were then sending many men, who, as officers and privates, shone conspicuous in the foremost line of battle, shedding their blood for the security of our throne and the happiness of our land. There are now, within the same limits, if we are not mistaken, only six! Elgin Courant

The San Francisco Herald has a very remarkable article expressing its expectations of a Mormon war: "From the Mormon war great advantages will be reaped by the people of this State. It will take much more money than is now lying in the Treasury to subdue the Mormons. If Brigham Young should gain even the most trifling successes over the troops sent out against him in the commencement, a ten years's war at least is before us."

A WAIF FROM THE SEA.—A note of which the following is a copy, was found in a sealed bottle, which was picked up a few days since on Scoutieut Neck beach, in this vicinity, by Mr. Allen Durfee:

Ship Ian Brown, }
Off coast of Africa, July 20, 1849. }

"Every man sick except three. Blew very hard last night. Provisions all given out, and water also. Three feet of water in the hold.

PETER RUSH."

The bottle was a Bigalow ale bottle, entirely covered with sea moss, its "ancient fish-like appearance" well attesting the authenticity, at least, of the date of the note. The paper on which the note is penned is much worn, evidently from chafing against the sides of the bottle, and the ink is much faded. When, and under what circumstances it commenced its evidently protracted voyage, and how it came into our waters, we leave for those better versed than ourselves in maritime affairs.—New Bedford Mercury.

The Oswego Palladium says:—A case which has passed through all the lower courts, has just been decided by the U. S. Circuit Court at Detroit. It was a simple case of assault and battery. The offence was plainly proved, but being committed on board a boat while lying at the dock on the Canada side, the jurisdiction of the American Courts was denied. The Court found the defendant guilty and fined him ten dollars, holding the offence having been perpetrated on American bottom, the jurisdiction was good.

The Albany Transcript thinks that Commodore Paulding showed such decision and determination in arresting Walker and his filibuster, that he is entitled to the gratitude of the nation, and that he is the best man they could find for President, The Transcript says: "We want an Andrew Jackson in the chair once more, and turn to Commodore Paulding, who was bold enough to act without instructions from his superiors, when he found the honor of his country at stake."

It appears that one Englishman at Delhi, having been captured by the mutineers let them impress him as assistance in artillery man, to save his life. Four others also, at Moradab, turned Mussulmans for the same purpose. But when we reflect that out of 5,000 Christians, exposed to death and still more horrible tortures, only five yielded their faith to their foes, we cannot but rejoice in unswerving fidelity to religious faith not exceled even in the more noisy era of the crusaders.—Colonist.

DISCOURAGING.—The steamer Atlantic, which arrived at New York on Wednesday only landed 22 passengers. Our American cousins boasted so much of their vessels in the outset, that many of the fools they were destined to run the stanch old Cunarders off the trick; but a little experience has proved them far inferior to the English ships; and the result is that they can get no passengers. We are sorry they are so poor by reward; but we presume the New Yorkers will hereafter be content to learn from older and more experience persons.—Hamilton Times.

This forenoon, says the Albany Advertiser of the 30th, five convicts attempted to break out of the prison at the State Prison, under a desperate attempt to escape. Keeping their eyes upon the waggon gate on the north west corner, they waited until a waggon was passing out and then made a grand rush; ran swiftly by the keeper in charge of the gate, and, reckless. Their fate was not known at the several entries, nor took after and captured them without much trouble, and returned them to him to their quarters. The whole affair, from their return, did not occupy over thirty minutes.

The Virginia Legislature have passed the following resolution:—That the recent armed invasion of the territory of Nicaragua and subsequent seizure of Gen. Wm. Walker and the forces under his command, by Commodore Paulding, of the United States Navy, was an assumption of authority not warranted by the laws of the United States, in contravention of the principles of international laws, an insult to the independent republic of Nicaragua, and a flagrant outrage upon the character of the American Government. That the said acts of usurpation and outrage, by Commodore Paulding should receive prompt rebuke and exemplary punishment from the Government of the United States."

The Washington correspondent of the New York Courier says:—The treasury continues loaded with orders of Congress can get no money. The Secretary appropriated a fund of $80,000 for the Senate and $140,000 for the House, at the beginning of the session, which was equal to the amount usually disbursed for mileage, and the members pay in addition. Two weeks ago the joint resolution was passed relative to the nine months back pay, calling for $675-000, and on this amount a dividend of only $50,000 was declared at the close of last week, in dribbets of $200 to each of the most needy members. The whole treasury order this band of account is half a million of dollars.

The cattle trade of New York city is immense. The value of beeves that arrived during the past year is upon calculation found to reach about $11,000,000. New York has, it is estimated, paid the country for animals slaughtered in the city, a sum but little short of $17,000,000.

The Quebec Chronicle of yesterday says: "We are sorry to perceive in the latest list of casualties among the officers of the army, the name of Lieutenant Edmund Henry Jolly, H. M. 32nd Regiment, son of C. Jolly, Esq., of Quebec. This brave young officer was in our city on leave of absence, about a year ago, and, on hearing of the revolt of the Sepoys, hastened to join his corps. He has fallen, we believe, of wounds received at the relief of Lucknow. Lieut. Jolly is second native of Quebec who has fallen in service of his country since the outbreak of this mutiny.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health in every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Constipation,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

AND

PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and tired from all impurities—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The offitted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate situate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $230 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share - -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years	96.
Total - - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3.08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years - - - 6.25.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1.00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

He Comes not Yet.

BY SYLVIA SPRAY.

He comes not yet—and still I wait;
Plague take the man, he's always late—
I soon shall have him quite;
He said he'd come at half past seven,
No doubt it will be near eleven—
'Twas so the other night.

I'm in a rage he trents me so,
He cares no t if I'm pa-sed on no,
'Tis all the same to him;
Oh! if he knew how sad am I,
As each lone hour is passing by,
My eyes with tears grow dim.

I will not love him any more—
Ah! what was that—he's at the door—
Oh! how my heart does beat;
I'll scold him well when he comes in:
No, 'tis not he, 'twas but a din
I heard upon the street.

O lagging hours, where are your wings?
Fly swiftly till the hour that brings
My husband to his wife;
Ah! there he is at last, and I
With joy upon his breast could die—
I love him more than life.

Mirth and Wit.

'Madam,' said a very polite traveller to a testy old landlady, 'if I see proper to help myself to this milk, is there any impropriety in it?'

'I don't know what you mean; but if you mean to insinuate that there is anything in that milk, I'll give you to under stand that you have struck the wrong house! Thar is not the first har in it, for as soon as Darthy Ann had told me that the cat was drowned in the milk, I went right straight and strained it over!'

The young man fainted.

Mr. Kidwell was preaching to a large audience in a wild part of Illinois, and announced for his text, 'In my father's house there are many mansions.' He has hardly read the words when an old man looked up and said, 'I tell you folks, that's a lie! I know his father well. He lives about fifteen miles from Lexington, in an old cabin, and there ain't but one room in the house.' The meeting adjourned.

ALMOST A GAL ON OF PUNS.—A chap was asked what kind of a 'gal' he preferred for a wife. He replied. 'One that is not a prodi-gal, but a fru gal and tru gal, and one that suited his comp-gal taste.' He's right.

Dr. Johnson once dined with a Scottish lady who had hotch potch for dinner. After the doctor had tasted it, she asked him if it was good? 'It is good for hogs, ma'am,' said the doctor. 'Then pray,' said the lady, 'let me help you to some more.' Served him right.

WHAT IS WANTED.—We remember being at a conference meeting once, in the Yankee land, when one of the deacons came around asking the people if they wanted salvation.

Near us sat a butcher's boy, nineteen years old, about as amenable to salvation as a lamb in the hands would be to mercy.

"Don't you want salvation?" asked the deacon, looking into his brutal face.

"No darn yer—I want Sal Skinner, and the sexton won't let me take her out till the meetin's over."

TWO-LIPS.—' Wonderful things are done now-a-days,' said Mr. Timmins; 'the doctor has given Flack's boy a new lip from his cheek.'

'Ah,' said the lady, 'many's the time I have known a pair taken from mine, and no very painful operation either.'

NICKING NAMES.—The facetious Mr. Peacroft told his friend Mr Vansittart, 'Your name is such a long one, I shall drop the 'sittart and call you Van for the future.'

'With all my heart,' said he, 'but, by the same rule, I shall drop the croft,' and call you Bear.'

An editor who was very short of travelling funds, sat upon a saw horse for an imaginary journey in the country, and wrote letters home for his paper.

A celebrated physician, boasting at dinner that he cured his own hams, one of his guests observed, 'Doctor, I would sooner be your ham than your patient.'

A particular form of test, that succeeds perfectly well in one instance, may not do at all in others. We must be careful not to fall into mistakes as the simple country girl, who, having seen a laundress spit upon a flat iron to ascertain if it was hot, spit in her smoking porrge to see if it would burn her mouth.

Which can travel the fastest—heat or cold!—Why heat, you dunce! can't anybody catch cold!

A man was lately sent to Worcester Lunatic Asylum, for persisting in planting horse chesnuts in expectation of raising sorrel colts.

If a cigar makes a man ill, will a cheroot make a Man-ila? This is a very serious question

TECHNICAL.—Articles commonly known as bowie knives, we see styled in an Arkansas paper, 'protective cutlery.'

At a recent exhibition of a menagerie, an elephant was seen to pick the loose hay with his trunk, when an Irishman exclaimed, 'An what sort of bast is that sittin' hay with his tail?'

'Borrowed horses and your own spurs make short miles,' is a Danish rendering of a rather universal practice.

The man who would 'take no note of time short of three per cent, a month,' lately asked for an extension.

In these hard times men should be especially careful in their selection of their wives. It is much better to choose one of small waste, than of small waist.

Associate yourselves only with men of good quality, if you esteem your reputation, for it is better to be alone in bad company.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"
COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XXIII.

The Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided in to the following departments:—

CONTEMPORARY PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and the ultimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most pointed religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensible, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

North Shore Line of Steamboats
DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequaled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs SAYBOUR, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to cross the money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers
Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the B. of and Shoe trade to suit you.

Select Poetry.

The Bride's Farewell.

BY E. P. JAYCOX.

Nay, chide me not because I weep,
My husband loved and kind;
For O these things are dear to me,
That now I leave behind:
My childhood's bright and happy home,
Where sorrows never did dwell;
Now, none can ever speak the pain
I feel to say "Farewell."

Happy my future home will be,
With Henry's smile I know;
Yet memory oft will linger here,
Wherever I may go.
My Henry's smile—here let me pause,
And here a truth proclaim,
A woman's soul it seeks but this,
Since heaven manied her name.

It is her all of happiness,
Almost her only pride;
To love and then be loved again,
And a cherished bride.
But now you willows meet my gaze—
Again I breathe a sigh:
To think that I must leave them all,
And breathe a sad good-bye.

O, there I've wandered many an hour,
Beneath these great shade trees;
It's there my Henry first I saw,
There first he saw Louise!
And there beneath yon sloping hill,
A rippling stream doth glide by—
Bright flowers oft I've gathered there,
Often wandered by its side

O yes, this is a hallowed spot,
No wonder I should weep;
To say "Farewell" that rashly now
Through all my heart-strings sweep.
These flowers that I have reared with care,
Perhaps they'll be forgot;
And other hands will cultivate
My own forget-me-not.

And now the last but not the least,
I leave a Father's care,
A Mother's love I also leave,
But not a Mother's prayer!
For that I know will follow me,
Wherever I may go;
And daily rise to His bright throne,
To shield her child from woe!

Then do not chide me because I weep,
But thou my form as one,
And fold this heart in thine embrace,
On which these sorrows press,
For it would gladly leave them all,
If throbs alone for thee:
It loves and seeks no other joy,
Than thine own bride to be.

A Drama in Real Life.

The London Morning Post supplies us with a narrative, curious and true, of circumstances elicited in one of the English law courts, which shows some of the workings of the matrimonial system in the old country, and really reads more like the plot of an amusing comedy than a chapter in real life. A gentleman of limited means applies to a Matrimonial Agency office, entered his name, paid his fee, stated his desire—to obtain "a wife with money"—was shown a number of ladies' portraits, and, after minute inquiries, presented himself received with one, the original of which had $30,000 in her own right—he was told. A correspondence between the parties was the result—unfortunately the letters have not been published—and at last, on paying $75 to $100 more to the hymeneal go between, the agent for persons if not hearts, the wife-seeker, whose name is Allen, obtained an interview with the lady. As Allen had simply described himself as only "wanting a woman with money," it may be imagined that the wag not likely to be dissatisfied with any circulined possessor of $30,000. However, the lady whom he saw actually had youth, it not good looks, and Mr. Allen, considered himself very fortunate, pressed his suit like an ardent (money-hunting) lover, as he was, and was duly and tenderly accepted. Here ends Act I. of this life drama.

Sharp as he was (or ought to be, for he was a bill broker by profession) Mr. Allen was so completely taken in by the appearance of the demoiselle, that he omitted to satisfy himself whether or not her reputed fortune was notes of the Bank of England or the Plank of Allegiance. Dazzled by the diamond flash of her bright eyes, our hero omitted to ascertain whether or not the lady had jewels of a more earthly kind. Yet he did not take anything for granted. He learned that she resided at Cheltenham, a fashionable watering place, and further he betook himself. There he actually saw that lady riding in a private carriage, which he naturally assumed to be her own, and he came satisfied that she also possessed the luxury of a lady's maid. The course of true love never yet ran smooth, and the fair one confessed that she had made a sort of pre-contract to marry another swain; that she would surrender him for the sake of darling Mr. Allen; that it would be necessary, however, to steal a march on this to be dreaded rival, and that therefore, as she dreaded to excite suspicion by ordering the usual matrimonial trousseau, she must start on her bridal tour minus the silks and muslins, laces and feathers, velvets and moires antique, usual, we believe, on these extremely interesting occasions. Every man, we are persuaded, has some vanity in his composition—sometimes to a much larger extent than much abused womankind possesses—and what could be more flattering to Mr. Allen's amour propre than the assurance, gently confessed with half a sigh and half a smile, that the lady had fancied another, but was now willing to devote herself to himself alone!

Allen was properly tickled, no doubt, and agreed to marry the lady, even though she did not appear at the altar in white silk, a limseels veil, and a gossamer bonnet, trimmed with a flitting array of orange blossoms. He married her, and here let the curtain decorously drop on Act II., as we think.

Having made such a good hit, as he thought, Mr. Charles John Allen determined to pass the honeymoon, like a man of spirit and means, at Paris. Unfortunately, though not deficient in brass, which is part of the stock in trade of a regular bill-shaver, he wanted what is familiarly called tin. He was not making much gear by his business—as he had contrived to spend somewhat more, was certainly not very well off. However, his wife's $30,000 would set all right, and, on the strength of his being about to make such a good match, an opulent friend was so kind as to lend him $1,250. Now, of all places in the world, there is none where a "happy couple" can spend their time and their money more agreeably and rapidly than Paris, with its theatres, balls, dinners, restaurants, and above all, tempting jewelry stores on the Palais Royal, and the fascinating sublinery shops in the Boulevards. Reckoning these in their account, and stating that they were nearly five weeks in Paris the money lasted a long time. When they reached the house of Mr. Allen's mother, in London, the $1,250 had dwindled down to $20. Here, with a domestic tableau of reception, closes Act III.

Mothers are much keener than young husbands, just emerging from a honeymoon. The day after the arrival of Mr. Allen and his bride, while the fortunate and happy husband was sipping his wine and cracking his filberts after dinner, in stalked, like Mrs. Siddons as lady Macbeth, Mrs. Allen sen.—in a red turban and a tremendous passion; perturbed, in fact, as well as perturbated.—Without a moment's pause or note of preparation, she pounces down upon her unsuspicious son. "Charles John," she cried, in a deep voice, "you 've been took in. Instead o' marrying a lady, you have married a lady's maid." Starting up, Charles John exclaimed, in a melodramatic manner, "Impossible! My dear Sophiar ne er could deceive me!" How the dowager, Mrs. Allen, made the discovery is not mentioned, but she was right. The individual whom the cockney husband called "Sophiar" was a lady's maid, and was not a lady." She protested that the dowager was mistaken—that Lie was known to all her friends as an innocent people—that if she told her husband a story about the $30,000 (which was invested, not in funds, but on the security of a splendid chateau de Espagne, or of the Isle of Skye,) he had also tricked her, by declaring himself worth $5,000 a year, and that he "Kept a brougham." Finally, it appeared that she had only hired the carriage at Cheltenham, to ride a few times, while Allen was in that Town, and that he attended a waiting maid—the soubrette of this little drama, was a quick witted Abigail, a fellow servant believed, who had lent her self to pass off "Sophiar," as a lady of fortune, and thus anchor her, safely and happily, in the haven of matrimony.

Worse than this monstrous cheating, Mr. Allen found his bride behaving so improperly, after the fictitious nature of her fortune had been ascertained, that in five or six days after their return from Paris, she left his house in company with another man, against whom he brought an action for crim. con., and received $500 damages, which were not paid. So closes act IV.

Misfortune comes in battalions. Poor Mr. Allen found it so. That the $30,000 should be a myth was bad enough. This was not all. The faithless "Sophiar" had contrived, before marriage, to get into debt to the tune of $3,000 and Mr. Allen had to pay it. Wanting pecuniary means to do this, he had to retain what he had borrowed, on the strength of his lady's fortune to cut a dash with in Paris. Nor is this all. Naturally enough, he desires to break the matrimonial fetters. But marriage is a tie exclusively (especially in England) not easily to be loosed. Just when he was deliberating what to do, and how to do it—sitting in a brown study in his office—in walks "Sophiar." She, it seems, had commenced a suit against him for alimony, and actually had the effrontery to "tender herself," in legal form, to be "taken back to bosom, and there nourished and cherished, as his lawful wife, in default of his taking her back, her action for separate maintenance would lie. No doubt, also, that she would lie—to prove her case. Here, with the hero sued for his wife's debts, for common law and put into the receptacle set apart for sinners, a mildly tragic finale is arrived at. The audience, acting as jury, will give a verdict of "served him right," and the curtain drops.

Caught the Panic.

A talk, lack, Jerusalem sort of a fellow, pretty well under the influence of Mr. Alcohol, was observed swinging to a lamp post on fifth street, last night. He was taking to the aforesaid post, which a guardian of the night supposed his friend, for support.

"Come, Sir, you are making too much noise," said the watchman.

"Noisa I who's that said noise?" asked the postholder, as he showed his head and endeavored in vain to give the intruder a sober look.

"It was me," replied the watchman, as he exposed his silver numbers to full view.

"You? and who the d—l are you? It taint me that's makin' of the noise. No, sir. It's the banks that's making all the noise.—They are a breaking, a smashin' and a smashin' of things to an incredible amount. Noise? It's the bankers that are a makin' of the noise. They are a cussin', a rippin,' and a stavin' all round. It's the brokers that are a makin' of the noise. They are a hollerin' and a yelpin' and a screechin,' like wild injuns, over the times, that workers everything but themselves. No, sir, it aint me that's a makin of the noise."

"You are as tight as a brick in a new wall," said the officer, amused at the good nature of the individual.

"Me tight! who said I'm tight? No, Sir, you are mistaken. It's not me that's tight. It's money that's tight. Go down on third street and they'll tell you there that money is tight. Read the newspapers an' you'll find that it's money that's tight. Go into the workshops, an' you'll find money is tight.—Me tight! I've got nary a red but Kamehawa, an' I think I could get tight on that. No, Sir, I'm not tight."

"Then you are drunk."

"Drunk? Stranger, yer out of it again. The world's drunk. The hull community is a staggerin' round, puttin' their heads again stone walls and a skinnin' of their noses on the cobstone of adversity. Yes, Sir, we're all drunk—it at is, everybody's but me. I'm sober—sober as a police judge on a rainy day. I ain't drunk; no, sir, stranger, I ain't drunk."

"What are you making such a fool of yourself for then?"

"Fool! Sir, I'm no fool. I'm distressed. I've catched the contagion. I'm afflicted.'

"Are you sick?

"Exactly.'

"What's the matter with you?

"I've got the panics.'

"The what?

"The panics, sir; it's a going to carry off this town. I tried to escape by hard drink, but its no use. The panics have got me, sure."

The watchman, more amused than ever, tendered his sympathy, and what was more, his aid, to the panic-stricken individual. In the course of half an hour he had the pleasure of putting him into the door of his boarding house, and pointing out to him the best remedy—a soft bed and long slumber.—Cin. Times.

One of Anderson's Stories.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN.

A great Queen once reigned, in whose garden bloomed the loveliest flowers from all parts of the world; at every season of the year. But above all other flowers she loved roses; and therefore she possessed the greatest variety of these, from the wild hedgerose, with green apple scented leaves, to the beautiful roses of Provence. They grew on the castle walls, twined round the pillars and over the casement of the corridors and saloons, and the roses varied in scent, form and color.

But care and sadness dwelt in that palace; the Queen lay on her sick bed, and the physicians said she must die. "There is, however, a remedy for her," said the wisest among them. "Bring to her the fairest rose in the world,—the one that is the expression of the highest and purest love—if that comes before her eyes ere they close, she will live still."

And young and old came from all lands with roses, the loveliest that bloomed in every garden, but none was the right one. The flower must be brought from the garden of love; but what rose could be the expression of the highest and purest love? Is it?

And the poets sang of the fairest rose in the world,—each one named his own. And messengers were sent through all the countries round, to every heart that beat with love—to every rank and every age.

"No one has yet named the flower," said the wise man. "No one has shown the place from which rose it springs in its beauty.—It is one of the roses from the bier of Romeo and Juliet, or from Wallbugh's grave, though these flowers will ever bloom in legends and songs. It is not one of the roses that bloomed forth from Winfred's blood-stained lance,—from the holy blood which flowed in death from the breast of the hero for the fatherland, though no death is sweet or, no rose is redder, than the blood which then flows. It is, also, not that wonderful flower for cultivation of which man gives his fresh life away in years and days,—the magic rose of knowledge."

"I know where it blooms!" said a happy mother who came to the Queen's couch with her tender babe; "I know where the fairest rose in the world is to be found—the rose that is the expression of the highest mother love. It blooms on the blushing cheek of my sweet child, when it opens its eyes refreshed by slumber, and smiles at me with its whole love."

"Lovely is that rose, but there is yet a fairer one," said the wise man.

"Yes, a much fairer one," said one of the women. "I have seen it,—a holier rose blooms not. But it was pale, like the petals of the tea rose. I saw it on the cheek of the Queen; she had laid aside her loyal crown, and was nursing her sick child in the long, sad night. She wept and kissed it, and prayed to God for it, as a mother prays in the hour of anguish."

"Holy and wonderful is the white rose of sadness in its power; but it is not the one sought for."

"No, I saw the fairest rose in the world before the altar of the Lord," said the good old Bishop, "I saw it shine as though an angel's face had shown itself. The young maiden went to the altar of the Lord, having renewed the vow of her baptism, and roses came and went on her fresh cheeks.—The young maiden knelt there, she looked up to God with her whole soul full of purity and love. That was the expression of the purest, highest love."

"Blessed is it," said the wise man; but no one has yet named the fairest rose in the world.

Then stepped a child into the chamber, the little son of the Queen. Tears stood in his eyes, and in his delicate cheeks. He carried a large closed book, bound in velvet, with large silver clasps. "Mother!" said the little one, "oh hear what I have read."

And the child seated itself on the bed, and read out of the book of Him who gave Himself to die on the Cross, in order to save men, and even unborn generations. Greater love is there not!

And a rose-blush spread over the Queen's cheeks; her eyes became so bright, for she saw the fairest rose spring forth from the leaves of the book—the likeness of the one which bloomed from the blood of Christ on the Cross.

"I see it!" said she. "They never die who look on this rose—the fairest in the world."

The Future of Canada.

Dreamy existence is this living at spa in the summer. Perhaps my meditations on the political destinies of the region around me may be as unsubstantial; but I will nevertheless throw them. Hitherto in connection with most of my countrymen, I have thought Canada, or rather British America, a mere strip lying north of the United States, easily detachable from the parent State, but incapable of sustaining itself, and therefore ultimately, may right soon, to be "taken on" by the Federal Union, without materially changing its own condition or development. I have dropped the opinion as a national conceit. I see in British North America, extending, as it does, across the continent from the shores of Labrador and Newfoundland to the Pacific, and occupying a considerable belt of the temperate zone, traversed equally with the United States by the Lakes, and enjoying the magnificent shores of the St. Lawrence, with its thousands of islands in the river and gulf, a region grand enough for a powerful empire. In its wheat fields in the West, its broad ranges for the chase, in the North, its inexhaustible lumber lands—the most extensive now remaining on the globe—its invaluable fisheries and its yet undisturbed mineral deposits, I see the elements of wealth. I find its inhabitants vigorous, hardy, energetic, perfected by the Protestant Religion and British Constitutional Liberty. I find them jealous of the United States and Great Britain, as they ought to be; and therefore when I look at their extent and resources, I know they can neither be conquered by the former nor permanently held by the latter. They will be independent, as they are already self-maintaining. Having happily escaped the curse of slavery, they will never submit themselves to the dominion of slaveholders, which prevails in, and determines the character of the United States, which to them will be France and England. But they will be a Russia civilized and Protestant, and that will be a very different Russia from that which fills all of southern Europe with terror, and by reason of that superiority they will be the more terrible to the Czar in Southern latitudes.

The policy of the United States is to precipitate and secure the alliance of Canada, while it is yet young and incurious of its future. But on the other hand, the policy the United States actually pursues, is the infantile one of rejecting and spurning vigorous, perennial and ever growing Canada, while seeking to establish feeble States out of decaying Spanish provinces on the coast and in the Islands of the Gulf of Mexico.

I shall not live to see it, but the man is already born who shall see the United States moan over this stupendous folly, which is only preparing the way for ultimate danger and downfall. All Southern political statesmen set, though many times they rise again with an unblushed splendor. But those that illuminate the Pole remain forever shining, every increasing in splendor.—Seward.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—General Pichert, a member of the French Institute, has made a discovery, by which the explosion of gunpowder in magazines may be prevented. It consists simply in mixing the gunpowder with coal dust. When the gunpowder is required for use, it is only necessary to sift it; the coal dust falls through the sieve, and the gunpowder resumes its original qualities. The experiment has been tried on a large scale with complete success. A magazine filled with gunpowder so mixed was set on fire. "No explosion took place," says the Moniteur de l' Armee. The gunpowder burned like other combustible matters, such as pitch or tar, and then it was extinguished with common pumps."

GOOD HUMORED BUT DESERVEN REBUKE.—A certain good natured old farmer preserved his constant good nature let what would turn up. One day, while the black tongue prevailed, one of his men came in, bringing the news that one of his red oxen was dead. "Is he?" said the old man; "well, he always was a bioverky cuss. Take off his hide and carry it down to Fletcher's, it will bring the cash." An hour or two afterwards, the man came back with the news that "the buck" and his mate were both dead. "Are they?" said the old man; "well, I took them from Bill—to save a bad debt that I never expected to get. It is lucky that it ain't the bindles. Take the bides down to Fletcher's, they will bring the cash." After the lapse of an hour, the man came back again to inform him that the nigh brindle was dead, "is he?" said the old man, "well, he was a very old ox. Take off his hide, and take it to Fletcher's it is worth more than any of the two others." He upon, his wife, who was a very pious soul, taking upon herself the office of Elijah, reprimanded her husband severely, and asked him if he was not aware that his loss was a judgment from Heaven for his wickedness. "Is it?" said the old fellow; well, if they take judgment in cattle, it is the easiest way I can pay them."

A VISIT WASTED.—A lady went a considerable distance to visit an intimate friend, who had been taken suddenly and seriously ill; the alarming symptoms had, however, subsided before the humane visitor had arrived. "Oh! my dear Mrs. C., how are you?" she inquired, with the deepest sympathy depicted on her countenance. Oh! I'm quite well now, thank you," said Mrs. C. "Well," said her visitor, with the look of an injured woman, "and here am I come ten miles to see you."

DELICACY ON THE SCAFFOLD.—A woman who had been sentenced to death in France, for poisoning the children of her husband by a former wife on arriving at the scaffold, firmly ascended to the platform, and said to the executioner, "Do not, I pray you, unconcern my bosom for I am not an immodest woman;" and then allowed herself to be quietly strapped to the plank.

CASTE IN INDIA EXEMPLIFIED.—I was much amused at a story Mrs. C. related to me of one of her uncles, a civilian, who was extremely particular about high-caste servants, and, who treated them magnificently, dressed them in English broadcloth, &c. This pearl of masters once gave a supper party, and the dinner being delayed long after the guests were assembled, he proceeded at once to the kitchen to discover the reason. There he found his servants all standing in a row, each man proving his orthodoxy by solemnly spitting on a fine ham which was about to be served up to the company.—Mackenzie.

Judging from present appearances, we shall have a short winter, the present weather appears more like mild, ethereal spring, than stern Old Winter; the canal being open, and almost fit for navigation. The present genial and pleasant weather is well adapted to meet the exigencies of the poor, whom hard times and the monetary crisis, has prevented from laying in the requisite stock of fuel, food, &c. Not for some years have we had such beautiful weather as this present season, and we sincerely trust it may continue, and be the means of imparting a healthy appearance to business in general.—St. Catharine's Post.

A LONG-NAMED INDIAN.—From the sublime to the ridiculous! In the Madras papers we find a copy of a letter addressed to His Highness Sree Pulmanabha Dausa Nanee Bala Martanda Varmah Koola Shekara Perreia Pathee Bazhidhi Rami Rajah Bhuttee Chandra Sumsher Jah Bahadur Rajah Shumsheer Rajah of Travancore, and signed "Harris." His Highness Sree Itulmabha, &c., of Travancore, has, we are glad to see, subscribed 5,000 rupees to the relief fund, with his good wishes and fervent prayers for peace and tranquility. This contribution is announced in a letter, the signature of which is omitted, probably from want of room, and is acknowledged in that address and signature which we have above recorded.—Bombay Courier.

HABITS OF THE RHINOCEROS.—Wherever the foot-prints of the rhinoceros are seen, there are also marks of the animal having ploughed up the ground and bushes with his horns. This has been supposed to indicate that he is subject to "fits of ungovernable rage;" but when seen, he appears to be rather rejoicing in his strength. He acts as a bull sometimes does when he gores the earth with his horns. The rhinoceros, in addition to this, stands on a clump of bushes; bends his back down, and scrapes the ground with his feet, throwing it out backwards, as if to stretch and clean his toes, in the same way that a dog may be seen to do on a little grass; this is certainly not rage.—Dr. Livingston.

HOW TO PUT OUT A CHIMNEY ON FIRE.—Continue to sprinkle water on the fire with the hand freely, or pour water through a small tin steamer; by this means, the steam produced will gradually extinguish the burning soot. Keep the doors and windows shut while sprinkling the water on the fire.

The Cuban women have a trait of character so noble that Madame Le Vert declares the equal of which from sketching its—"They never refrain from attending to each other, but always find some palliation for the errors of their own sex." This is a tacit admission that such charity is almost peculiar to the fair and beautiful Havanese.

THE PROFESSION OF MONARCH.—The King of Wurtemburg was stopping at the Baths of Boritz, and was obliged to enter his name (an assumed one) in the books. The attendant asked him as follows:—

"What is your name?" "Count de Teck." "Whence coming?" "Wirtemburg." "Motive for Travelling?" "Health and pleasure." "What profession?" "King."

INDIA.

The Bombay mails of December 4th had reached England. Calcutta mails of the 25th November arrived at Trieste and were expected in London the day after the steamer sailed.

The news of the relief of Lucknow is confirmed. The enemy fought desperately. The rebels had not evacuated Lucknow.

Sir Colin Campbell asks for reinforcements, although his force is computed at 12,000 men.

The women, children, and sick were conveyed safely to Cawnpore.

The fighting before Lucknow was very severe. On the 16th the enemy suffered enormously. The fight that day was one of the severest ever witnessed. On the 19th, the enemy were flying in great numbers from Lucknow, and firing had nearly ceased. After the fight of the 16th, the bodies of 1000 Sepoys were counted in one place.

Accounts are not very intelligible.

Two telegraph clerks had been murdered near Alumbagh, the news being thereby stopped.

When Sir Colin Campbell left Cawnpore, on the 11th, he advanced 40 miles on a stretch. In his engagements he relied on his artillery as much as possible, thereby avoiding unnecessary loss of men.

Nena Sahib, with all his men and baggage, was said to have joined the rebels at Gwalior.

The Gwalior contingent was still at Calpa Divided Councils were said to be the cause of their inaction.

It was reported that the King of Delhi's son and two of his nephews had been tried by the Military Commission and shot.

The steamer Khiconee had arrived at Madras leaking.

The Bombay correspondent of the Daily News says that the Oude rebels have placed a boy on the throne, and keep him in state, at Fyzebad, a city of 100,000 inhabitants, defended by a large fort with a well and ditch, round towers, and new entrenchments, and here the last grand stand may be expected.

The Navigation of the Sea of Azoff is closed for the season.

The Circassian chief had sent a petition to the great European Powers, praying that the Treaty of Paris which forbids hostilities in the Black Sea and opens the commerce of Circassian ports, may be enforced against Russia.

CHINA.

Hong Kong dates are to the 15th of November.

The American Commissioner had arrived in the Minnesota.

The fleet was about to move on to the Canton river. The French fleet would cooperate with the English. Operations were expected to commence immediately.

The Russian Commissioner was at Hong Kong.

It was rumoured that Lord Canning would—as soon as transports could be procured—send 2,400 troops from India to China.

At Shanghai business was moderate in imports. Exports dull. Silk declined $10 to $15.

Latest by telegraph from London to Liverpool, December 30.

The Daily News city article says:—The funds to-day are affected by the failures of yesterday. The market is for the moment quite deranged by the event, the extent of which is supposed to be over a million. At the bank the demand for money continued very moderate, owing to the fact that good bills are readily discounted in the open market at 7 to 7½.

BURNING OF THE SARAH SANDS.

The steamer Sarah Sands, while carrying troops into India, took fire on the 11th November, and burned for fifteen hours. All the afterpart of the vessel was destroyed. She put into the Mauritius for repairs. The troops showed perfect discipline.

A letter from Captain Castle, Commander of the Sarah Sands, is published, describing the painful occurrence of the 11th. On the escape of the troops and crew. The fire was discovered at 3.45 p.m; about 9 p.m, a fearful explosion took place in the port magazine. By this time, says Captain Castle, the ship was one body of flames from the stern to the main rigging, and thinking it scarcely possible to extinguish it, called Major Pratt, in command of the troops, forward, and told him my opinion, requesting him to keep order among the troops till the last; but at the same time to use every exertion to check the fire. No person can describe the manner in which the men worked to keep the fire back. One party were below keeping the bulkheads cool, and several of them were dragged up senseless, and fresh volunteers took their places, but were soon in the same state. At 11 p.m., the maintopsail yard took fire. Mr. Welsh, the Quarter master, and four or five soldiers went aloft with wet blankets, and succeeded in extinguishing it, but not until the yard and mast were nearly burnt; though, about midnight, we appeared to have made some impression on the fire, and after that drove it back inch by inch until daylight, when it was completely got under. The ship now appeared to be in a fearful plight, merely the shell remaining. The port quarter was blown out by the explosion; 15 feet of water in the hold, and the ship rolling too heavily, and taking in large quantities of water aft.

India.

The following intelligence from Oude has been supplied by the government of India to the press of Calcutta:—

From Cawnpore, 14th Nov., 3 P.M.

From General Windham to the Governor-General.

News from the Commander in Chief's Camp at Alumbagh, 9 a. m., of the 13th; after several skirmishes in the day, ending in the capture of two guns, the fort of Jallabad was taken and blown up. The Commander in Chief has communicated with Sir James Outram.

From Cawnpore, 16th Nov., 11 A.M.

From Captain Bruce, by order of his Excellency the Commander in Chief, to the Governor-General.

The Commander in Chief occupied the Dilkhoosah and the Martiniere, after a running fight of two hours yesterday at noon. The enemy came forward to attack at 3 p.m. After a struggle of an hour he was beaten back, repulsed heavily. An advanced picquet having cleared some villages across the canal, we took post there for the night. Our loss was trifling; lieutenant Mayne, Horse Artillery, Quarter Master General's Department, and Lieutenant Wheatcroft, carbineers, killed.

From Alumbagh, 17th Nov., 9 A.M.

From Major Sipley to the Secretary to Government.

The Commander in Chief in Lucknow; heavy cannonade in the direction of the palaces. Dilkhoosah and Martiniere occupied by our troops.

Many of our readers may not understand the purport of the above despatch from Government about the cannonading in the direction of the palaces; the object of the cannonading may in consequence be quite unintelligible to them. Being, however, well acquainted with Lucknow, we (Hurkara) are enabled to explain that the palaces consist of a group of buildings called the Mahals, or the residences of Wajid Ali Shah's 300 wives. These palaces stand between the Dil Khoosa (Heart's Delight) and the Martiniere, at present in the occupation of Sir Colin Campbell, and the Ballyguard or Residency, in the occupation of Sir James Outram, is thus placed between two fires, and has to be driven from the Mahals, after which the force under Sir Colin Campbell will join that under Sir J. Outram. Though these palaces are an extensive structure of brick walls and houses, they would soon crumble under a cannonade of shell and round shot.

From Mathieran, from Lord Elphinstone.

Tuesday, Dec. 1, 9 35 a.m.

The following message was received this morning from Lord Harris at Madras, dated Nov. 30:

Alma arrived yesterday from Calcutta. Severe fighting from 15th to 19th November. Sir Colin Campbell has taken most of the important fortified posts in the town. Great slaughter of the rebels, but they had not yet been entirely beaten. Sir Colin Campben slightly wounded. The British forces were united. The women and children from the Residency were en route to Cawnpore.

The 93rd Highlanders and the Naval Brigade had suffered severely.

Gwalior Mutineers at Calpee, and Gen. Windam supposed to have left Cawnpore to attack them.

From Allahabad, Nov. 20, Friday, 12 10 pm

From Brigadier Campbell to the Private Secretary to the Governor General.

Head Quarters, Secunderbagh, Lucknow, Nov. 18, 1857.

On the 16th the Commander-in-chief advanced across the Canal straight on Secunderbagh, which was carried after a severe struggle, the enemy suffering enormously. These positions having been occupied, the Sumuch was attacked with heavy artillery for three hours. It was carried at dusk, after one of the severest fights ever witnessed. Early on the 17th communications were opened to the left rear of the barracks, towards the canal. A cannonade having been kept up all the morning in the Mess house, that very strong post on was carried by assault, at 5 p.m. The troops pushed rapidly on after carrying the Mess House, and were able to seize the Motee Mahal before dark. Sir James Outram and Sir Henry Havelock then came out to meet the Commander in chief. The Commander-in-Chief's wound is very slight, and does not interfere with his duty Practical Chivalry.

PLACE AUX DAMES.

We admire the silent chivalry which seeks to protect the fragile physique of woman from the attacks of disease, and to shield her from its consequences, much more than the boisterous bravery of the duellist who is proud to fight in her behalf. Hence we consider Professor HOLLOWAY, the great medical discoverer, whose remedies have been of such incalculable service to the sex, entitled to their warmest gratitude. It is beyond question that in all the variant and complicated forms of disease to which they are subject, Holloway's Pills may not only be administered with safety, but with a full assurance of favorable results. The murderous mineral preparations of the day, disastrous as they are to men, are still more fatal to women. Calomel and blue pill cut off in early womanhood, and in the prime of life, the fairest flowers of many a household. We say to every wife, mother and daughter, avoid them as you would a violent poison; for, although slower in their operation, they are not less deadly in the end. Holloway's Pills, on the other hand, gently stimulate the enfeebled vital organs, brace the relaxed nerves, invigorate the digestive powers, purify the blood, and regulate every internal function. There is no period in the life of the sex, from childhood to old age, no disorder, special or general, to which they are subject, that does not come within the curative scope of Holloway's specifics. If ulcers, eruptions, or exfoliations disfigure the dainty envelope on whose purity, smoothness and transparency feminine beauty so much depends, the Ointment will banish them as surely as the summer shower washes the dust from the blossoms; while the Pills, acting at once as an antiseptic and invigorant, will relieve the internal depths of every morbid taint, and give a new and healthful impulse to the living laboratory which eliminates them, and the wonderful machinery which propels, distributes and adapts them. Provided with Holloway's Pills and Ointment, the sex may discard their cosmetics, and secure the permanent enjoyment of their natural comeliness, by securing the health of which a clear complexion and sparkling eyes are the visible tokens.—*N. The Crown Jewels.

We find the following in a letter from Hanover, of Dec. 19:—

"The heads of the King and Royal Family of this country have been much rejoiced by intelligence which has just reached them through the Hanoverian Minister at the Court of St. James, that the long dispute between the King of Hanover and the Queen of England respecting the right of certain jewels of enormous value, in the possession of the Sovereign of England, and forming no inconsiderable portion of what have been hitherto called the British Crown jewels, have been decided in favor of Hanover. Many of your readers are no doubt aware that when the kingdom of Hanover was severed from the United Kingdom by the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne, a claim was made by the late King of Hanover, formerly the Duke of Cumberland, to have the whole of the jewels usually worn on state occasions by the English Sovereign, on the ground that part of them, which had been taken over to England by George I. belonged inalienably to the Crown of Hanover; and that the remainder had been purchased by George III. out of his privy purse, and had been left by him and his Queen Charlotte to the Royal Family of Hanover.

"As the jewels thus claimed are supposed to be worth considerably more than £10,000,000 a single stone having cost nearly £100,000, the matter was not to be trifled with. Three commissioners were appointed, and I am assured that every possible expedient was resorted to in England to baffle the claimant. Ultimately, in the lifetime of the late King, the importunity of the Hanoverian Minister in London drove the English Ministry of the day to consent to the rights of the case being referred, should be submitted to a commission composed of three English Judges; but the proceedings of the Commission were so ingeniously protracted that all the Commissioners died without arriving at any decision; and until Lord Clarendon received the Seals of the British Foreign Office all the efforts of the Court of Hanover to obtain a fresh Commission were vain. Lord Clarendon, however, seems to have perceived that such attempts to stifle inquiry were unworthy of his country, for he consented that a fresh Commission should be issued. Three Judges of the highest eminence, who, after investigation, found the Hanoverian claim to be indisputably just, and reported in its favor. The Court here consequently is in high glee this Christmas at the prospect of removing the Crown and regalia, so jealously guarded in the Tower of London, almost bodily to Hanover."

The President on Filibustering!

What a change the late European peace has wrought in the opinion of some Americans! Read the following concerning filibustering! The signer of the Ostend Manifesto of 1854, sends a Christian anti-piratical message in 1858. Commodore Paulding, who it seems sympathised with Walker in 1855, arrests and returns him in 1858. The President says Commodore Paulding has committed "a grave error," but acted from "pure and patriotic motives." Naval officers should not exceed their instructions. Then comes a denunciation of filibustering and enunciation of the truisms of international good faith which will probably call forth praises from the European press. Yet the attention of the message, and warning us that all is not gold that glitters:—

It is beyond question the destiny of our race to spread themselves over the continent of North America, and that at no distant day, should events be permitted to take their own course. The tide of emigration will flow to the south, and nothing can eventually arrest its progress. If permitted to go there peacefully, Central America will soon contain an American population which will confer blessings and benefits as well upon the natives as their respective Governments, and liberty under the restraint of law will preserve domestic peace, while the different transit routes across the Isthmus, in which we are so deeply interested, will have assured protection.

What our rule is would be a somewhat difficult question to an ethnologist. The President continues:—

"Had one half of the number of Americ an citizens who have miserably perished in the first disastrous expedition of General Walker settled in Nicaragua as peaceful emigrants, the object which we all desire would ere this have been in a great degree accomplished. These expeditions have caused the people of the Central American States to regard us with dread and suspicion.'

THE SENATE ON THE SAME.

The President meets with much opposition among the southern and northern democratic senators. Senator Douglas, the new favorite of the 'friends of human freedom,' condemns the message on account of its anti filibustering spirit. The republicans begin to lose hope of Douglas, and warn him that they will never accept of him as their leader if he does not renounce his filibustering views.

Senator Brown of Mississippi expresses himself thus of Paulding:—

"Secondly, Commodore Paulding appeared, a man of ripe years, doing what every one knew he has done, and which it was unnecessary to recapitulate, and writing just such a letter as ought to affix the seal of eternal disgrace upon him. It was a disgrace to the very epaulettes on his shoulders.'

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, JANUARY 21, 1858.

The Town Council of Sandwich held its first meeting in the Court Room, on Monday last, the 18th, for the purpose of electing a Mayor and Reeve for the ensuing year. Present: Messrs. Boismier, Mercer, Elis, Woodbridge and Marentette; the Sheriff presiding, as directed by the Act of Incorporation.

On motion of Mr. Marentette, seconded by Mr. Ellis, EDWARD BOISMER was elected to the office of Mayor; the yeas being Messrs. Marentette, Ellis, Mercer, and Boismier; the nay, Mr. Woodbridge.

The Mayor elect then having taken the oath of office, took his chair, as Chief Magistrate of the Town of Sandwich.

This is a position of some importance to the interests of our Town, insofar as this is the first time that it has been our privilege to act as an independent municipality, it was therefore all the more necessary that a proper selection of officers should have taken place. Whether that has been done in this instance, time will of course prove. It is not our disposition at present, to say any thing that will tend to throw discredit upon our municipality, for it behooves all who feel an interest in our welfare, to assist those in power—if they are so disposed—to effect the greatest amount of good.—This, we hope, will be the object of the present council.

Mr. MERCER, on motion of Mr. Ellis, seconded by Mr. Marentette, was elected Reeve.

Mr. James Woodbridge, Jun., was then elected as the Clerk for the present year.

In looking back upon the past, we cannot but feel that our Town has now been placed in a position far superior to what it has heretofore occupied; and it now requires energy and perseverance on behalf of the Council, to sustain that position, and to give character to their proceedings.

We hope to see our Mayor sustain his position with that dignity which is becoming, in the high and responsible position to which he has been raised, and with that liberality which should distinguish the Chief Magistrate of the County Town; and more particularly as he is the first who has had the privilege of occupying that position

We hope that the Reeve will use his best endeavors in the County Council, to promote the interests of his municipality, and we have no doubt that he will do so.—Mr. Mercer possesses the qualifications that render him fitted for the place he now occupies.

Messrs. Demouchelle and Reaume have been elected Reeve and Deputy Reeve for the Township of Sandwich.

We are happy to learn that S. S. Macdonell, Esq., has been elected the first Mayor of Windsor; and, in our opinion, a better selection could not have been made. Mr. Macdonell has for many years past been identified with municipal affairs in this County, and will be able to afford that assistance to his municipality, which a new hand at the helm would be unable to do.—Besides, he will be able to occupy his position with credit to the municipality and to himself. Our sister town has certainly placed the right man in the right place.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES FOR THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.—On Monday last the election of School Trustees for the Town of Sandwich came off, when the following gentlemen were elected:—

H. C. Guillot,	J. H. Wilkinson.
Thomas Hill.	Charles Baby.
C. F. Labadie.	P. H. Morin.

NEW YORK STATE ARMORY.—The Albany Morning Express says the architect of the new armory is Mr. William Hodgins, who aided in building the Dudley Observatory. Work on the armory, we understand will be commenced in April. It is to cost $25,000. They should give us a very fine building. Mr. Hodgins was formerly City Engineer of Hamilton, C. W.

We copy from the Windsor Herald, an item of interesting news, in which the ex-Member for Essex, Mr. Rankin, plays a somewhat prominent part.

Times have wonderfully changed indeed, when an ex-Member of Parliament turns midnight assassin, and would dash out the brains of one of his late constituents.

General Walker would find in this individual a fit and proper co-laborer in his career of filibustering, and should certainly secure his services without delay:

"There is one more case to mention—Mr. Rankin has been served with a summons under very peculiar circumstances. On Friday night last, or rather between 1 and 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, he in an unlawful manner entered the bed room of Mr. Gilkes, who had some time before retired to rest, and had closed his door with a latch as usual, and was then in a profound sleep. Mr. Gilkes was suddenly disturbed in his slumber, and an apparition in the form of Rankin stood before him—a club in one hand and a paper in the other—the apparition (Rankin) demanded that the sleeper (Gilkes) should arise and sign the document which was presented. The spectre which King Priam of old saw, when his curtains were drawn, could not have alarmed the King more than poor Mr. Gilkes was alarmed. Mr. Gilkes on recovering his senses somewhat, demanded by what right Mr. Rankin intruded himself into his bed-room? The reply given by Mr. Rankin was, that if Mr. Gilkes did not sign the paper laid before him he would dash his brains out, holding a club over him in a threatening attitude. Mr. Gilkes signed the paper, but he knows nothing of its contents. The paper was signed by a scared, half-sleeping man, with a club and bushy-whiskered man, somewhat like Dirk Hatterick, staring him in the face!

This act has been performed in free Canada, and if such acts meet with impunity, a good many other people, who otherwise might do so, will not settle in this region. If it is shown that a man who conceives that another has done him a wrong, cannot fairly meet him in broad day—in the street, or in a court of justice,—can enter his bed room in the manner described above, the liberty of the subject is gone.

Mr. Rankin Las received a summons to answer the charge, but has since started for Toronto."

☞ The ministerial papers have taken notice of the interference of certain officials of the county of Brant—the Register and a Portmaster of Brantford—in the election for Member of Parliament for that County. We wonder if any notice will be taken of the official interference in the late contest in this County, where a number of Government Officers were out canvassing for Mr. Rankin, and even acted as Scrutineers for the Ex member.

We certainly think these gentlemen should be attended to as well as the others.

The Canadian Steamship Co., has made arrangements with the Great Western Railway, to carry freight from Liverpool to Windsor, and intermediate ports along the line of Railway, upon through bills of lading, for a single rate of charge.

From the report of the Kingston Chief of Police, it appears that during the year 1857 thirteen hundred and thirty-seven person were arrested. Of these, 163 were English; 953 Irish; 70 Scotch; 183 Canadians; 55 Americans; 13 miscellaneous. 529 could read, and write; 508 could neither read nor write. 593 were Protestants of all denominations, and 744 were Roman Catholics. 1043 were males, and 294 were females. 907 were single, and 439 were married.

THE ICE BRIDGE AT QUEBEC.—From our exchanges we learn that the ice has taken across the mouth of the Chaudiere, and here, in Kingston, the Bay and River channels are again as open and unobstructed as in the month of July.

The Hamilton Times says that the Messrs. Rae, of that city, intend to send out a barge early in spring with a load of produce to Europe. There are also two vessels building in Liverpool for the same traffic.

The Montreal Herald of Tuesday says the weather for the past few days has been of the most variable nature alternately freezing and then rising almost to spring temperature. Monday it began to thaw, at an early hour in the morning, and during the day the atmosphere partook more of the mildness of spring than usual rigor of mild winter.

The Montreal Gazette of the 12th says:—On Friday evening last, an inmate, representing the infant Jesus, was stolen out of the St. Ann's Church Griffintown, by a crazy woman, who took it from the alter and made off with it to her brother's house in the Tannery village. The brother immediately suspected that she had stolen it and brought it to the Seminary, where it was recognized as belonging to St. Ann's Church.

GREAT LOSS ON COTTON.—Senator GARLINGTON, of South Carolina, estimates the loss sustained by the South from the depressing of the market for cotton, in consequence of the late commercial crisis, at more than $70,000,000.

John B. Robertson, a bank officer of Rochester, is now on trial, charged with attempting to kill his wife by poison. He made great efforts to induce a physician to undertake the dreadful task, but did not succeed. The affair is creating considerable excitement.

RAILWAY SHARES.—The London Daily News of the 10th December states that Canadian and other railway shares were in active speculative demand, in many cases at considerably advanced rates. This arose from the expected fall in the value of money. Perhaps the Grand Trunk Directors might be able to take advantage of the occasion, which would relieve the Canadian Government from no little embarrassment.

A Lost Husband Turned Up!

HIS INTERVIEW WITH HIS SUCCESSOR.

The following is a counterpart to one of the principal incidents in Reade's story of 'White Lies:'

In May, 1855, a man named R. M Mellen, engaged in keeping a news depot in Chicago, left home after ten in apparent health, and no trace of him could afterwards be found. All sorts of rumors were afloat as to what had become of him. It was supposed he had met with foul play, and the river was dragged for his body. Next, (rumor originated the story,) it was supposed he wandered off insane, and was concealed in the woods near Belvidere, and hundreds of men turned out for the purpose of capturing him. Then a dead body was found near Rock River, which many of his friends identified as his, although on this point there was considerable difference of opinion. At all events, no clue of him could be found after giving the parties an infinite deal of trouble. A year and a half or two children, and about three weeks ago, Mrs. Mellen, having mourned her husband's loss for three years, laid aside her weeds and got married to a Mr. William H. Austin, a printer. Of a sudden she received a letter from Mellen, informing her of his intention to return home, and that upon his heels on Wednesday last he followed. He says he wandered away in a fit of insanity; went to Memphis, thence to New Orleans, and at last to California, where he engaged in various occupations. The Chicago Tribune, of Thursday morning, concludes an account of the matter as follows:

'Mellen visited his wife, or rather Mrs. Austin, yesterday, and also Mr. Austin.—The latter refuses point blank to give Mrs. A. up. What the upshot of the affair will be, is not easily guessed. If both insist upon having possession of the lady, a very interesting law suit would doubtless be the result. Mrs. Mellen, or Austin, did not obtain a divorce before her marriage with Austin.

'What the real motive was which induced Mellen to absent himself for so long a time, he has not made public. If it be true, as he states, that he was insane when he left, why did he not, when he recovered from his insanity, either write to his wife informing her of his whereabouts, or return home immediately?'

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN ST. THOMAS.—About three o'clock on Friday morning, a destructive fire broke out in the wooden buildings opposite to Mansion House in this town, occupied by the following parties:—G. Dunn, barber; James Palmer, grocer; Alex. Henderson, saloon; J. Slater, provision store; Gibbons saddlery; H. H. Hurd, tinsmith; Geo. Louis, barber; Miss McCracken, millinery; McCarthy and Corbett, shoemakers; H. Borbridge, saddler; and a vacant building. No insurance, except on Alex. Henderson's, which was insured for £75. The parties who owned all the houses consumed were, Jonathan Slater, Henry Borbridge, Henry Fitzgerald, and Robert Neil, all of St. Thomas, and John C. Doyle, of Philadelphia, U. S. Fourteen tenements were consumed in all. The fire had nearly extended to the Mansion House and Thompson's Hotel. The Telegraph Office was much injured, and several other buildings were gutted of their contents. On the whole, the value of the property consumed amounted to upwards of $12,000. Most of the sufferers were men of limited means.—St. Thomas Dispatch

BOLD SURGICAL OPERATION.—On the 8th of December, at noon, there was no small amount of excitement exhibited in the surgical ward and operation theatre of the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, resulting from the expectation of a very formidable surgical operation taking place that morning. At twelve o'clock the room was crowded to excess, and numbers of medical men from all parts assembled to witness it. The patient had for a long time suffered from cancer of the tongue, and Professor Syme had resolved upon removing the organ bodily. Shortly after 12 o'clock the man was led into the theatre, placed upon the table, and quickly rendered powerless through the potent influence of the chloroform which was administered to him. Professor Syme commenced by making a vertical incision through the integument covering the chin, and then sawed through the lower jaw at the symphasis. The division being made, he next proceeded to cut away the tongue at the very root, close to the hyoid bone. The arteries were quickly tied, the hemorrhage was comparatively little, the man having lost only a few ounces of blood. The jaw was again placed together, and the integument sewed up. The man was actually able to walk out of the room. At the close of the operation Prof. Syme remarked that the removal of the tongue bodily had been successfully preformed in Italy, but the modus operandi was of a different nature, the incisions having been made entirely in the throat; but he (Prof. Syme) considered that that mode was attended with more danger than the one he had chosen to adopt. This operation has never yet been performed in Great Britain, and should the patient recover, which is earnestly hoped and believed, the highest praise will be due to Professor Syme for having so skillfully undertaken that which no surgeon of this country had formerly ventured upon.—Edinburgh Advertiser. The Scotsman adds: The patient walked out of the theatre speechless, but grateful, and has continued well ever since, being fed with a tube. At one time, however, swallow, and yesterday he spoke, or rather breathed out the word 'Milk.' He is cheerful, and gives every hope of thorough recovery.

A GENTLEMAN IN A 'PECULIARLY PERPLEXING PREDICAMENT.'—On Monday evening, a gentleman of this city, was, like the man in the play, put into a 'peculiarly perplexing predicament.' He had just crossed the ferry from Covington, when, on coming up hill from the river he was applied to by a young woman with a small babe in her arms to hold the child while the woman got some things in a bundle, a part of which had fallen to the ground. Gallantry forbade a refusal, and he accordingly accepted the charge willingly. In his efforts to keep the child quiet, he paid little attention to the woman but after a few minutes, on looking around, she was so s hare to be seen. The unpleasantness of his position may be imagined. A crying babe in his arms, with no means at hand to coax it into silence it was not strange that many harsh expressions should have been thought of if they were not uttered. After waiting a reasonable time for the return of the mother, the gentleman sought the aid of the policeman on that beat, and Messrs. Handselman and Riggs set to work to investigate the matter, and relieve the depository of the weighty a 'responsibility.' After a search of an hour or two they came across mother of the child in the block known as, 'Spring Heel Row,' between Walnut and Main streets, and although she strongly objected to taking back the little waif so unceremoniously thrown upon the kind offices of a stranger, she was finally compelled to do so, and the gentleman was relieved from his unpleasant predicament. During the absence of the mother, who is quite a young girl, she had got pretty thoroughly intoxicated, and was hardly in a fit condition to have charge of the child.—Cin Gazette.

BUSINESS OF THE CUNARD STEAMERS.—During the last year the Cunard Line of Steamers from Jersey City has brought to New York 22,660 tons of freight, most of it being the most valuable goods for this market. In the same time 2,761 passengers have been brought from, and 2,669 taken to Liverpool. The total of specie taken out amounts to the large sum of $21,022,114,94. Their outward cargoes have been generally large, but equal to the cargoes of last year. —N. Y. Paper.

CHARITABLE CALICO DRESS BALL IN NEW YORK.—On the 4th of next month a Charitable Ball is to come off in New York, which is expected to realize five or six thousand dollars. The proceeds of the ball are to be applied to strengthen the funds of some six or eight of the most praiseworthy charitable institutions, male and female, in the city. To this will be added the dresses of the ladies, which are to be given to the poor. It is expected altogether to be a grand affair and will be attended by all the beauty, gallantry, elegance, blood and fashion of the city. Sufficient time is given for the ladies to prepare their pretty dresses, their crinoline, their sweetest smiles, and their charitable feelings.

STEAMBOAT AND RAILROAD ACCIDENTS IN THE UNITED STATES DURING THE YEAR 1857.—The following table embraces the number of steamboat accidents which have occurred on the rivers, lakes and bays of that country, which were attended with loss of life and injury to persons during the years 1857 and 1856, together with the number of killed and wounded:

	Accidents	Killed	Wounded
1857 - - -	30	322	87
1856 - - -	29	858	127

The following table shows the number of accidents, together with the number of killed and wounded, which occurred on the various railroads in the United States during the year 1857, and also in 1856. No accident has been recorded which was not attended with loss of life or injury to person; neither does the table embrace the great number of persons who have been killed and maimed by jumping from moving trains, attempting to get on cars while they were in motion, being run over, etc.:—

	Accidents	Killed	Wounded
1857 - - -	125	130	530
1856 - - -	143	195	629

In 1857 the amount of travel by steamboats was much less than in 1856, which no doubt in part accounts for the decrease in the loss of life. The travel by rail, however, has been rapidly increasing every year, while trains are being run with greater caution, and with less sacrifice of life by accidents.

The baptism of the young Prince of the Asturias, which took place recently in Madrid, seems to have caused more than ordinary stir in the capital. The multiplicity of names given to the child is amusing—Francisco de Assis, Juan, Marino de la Conc pcion, Fernando, Pio, Juanie and Pascual. The Papal Nuncio celebrated the service according to the rubric, and as representative of the Pope, who was Godfather, named the Prince. The poor infant cried lustily during the ceremony. The Spanish residents in London are delighted at the event, and have voted an address to the Queen of Spain, felicitating her on the birth of a male heir to the crown.

The United Service Gazette says that an unpleasant affair has occurred at the Cavalry Depot, Canterbury. As far as we have been able to gather the facts of the case, some non-commissioned officers, forgetful of the distinctions of rank which it is considered so important to preserve, invited a non commissioned officer to their table, which having come to the knowledge of the commandant, has caused their being placed under arrest.

There are many conflicting rumors respecting the intentions of the Mormons One day it is reported that they are going to abandon their settlements upon the advance of the U. S. troops and the next that they are preparing vigorously for war, and will oppose the military forces of the Government to the very last of their power. The Wax Department think the latter course the most likely, have determined upon reinforcing the army in Utah as soon practicable, and have issued orders to the headquarters of the army in New York, requiring 1,300 recruits by the 15th of March next.

TURKISH MODE OF MAKING COFFEE.—The Turkish way of making coffee produces a very different result from that to which we are accustomed. A small conical pan, with a long handle, and sufficient to hold two table spoonfuls of water, is the instrument used. The fresh roasted berry is then nearly filled with water and thrust among the embers; a few seconds suffice to make it boil, and the operation, pounds and all, is poured out into a small cup much like the which fits into a saucer, and holding the cup as one of an acorn, and holding the cup as that does the acorn itself. The Turks seem to drink this decoction boiling, and swallow the grounds with the liquid. It is taken plain—sugar or cream would be thought to spoil it. Europeans after a little practice, are said to prefer it to the clear infusion made in France. In every but you will see these coffee-boilers suspended and it is a means for pounding the roasted berries will be found at hand.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General, and marked "Tenders for Mail Service," will be received at Toronto, until 12 o'clock, Noon, on Saturday, the 23rd January next—for the conveyance of Her Majesty's Mails, twice per week each way between Chatham and Sandwich, on and from the 16th February next.

The conveyance to be made on horseback, or in a Buggy, Waggon or Sleigh. The computed distance between Chatham and Sandwich, is about 63 miles.

The rate of travel to be not less than four miles per hour, including stoppages for all purposes.

The days and hours of Arrival and Departure to be as follows, subject to right of the Post Master General to alter the same should he consider it advisable so to do. To leave Chatham every Monday and Thursday and Sandwich every Wednesday and Saturday, proceeding to Chatham and Sandwich respectively, there serving the Post Offices each way, at Baxton—Tilbury East—Comber—Edgeworth and Maidstone, at such hours as may be required.

The contract, if satisfactorily executed, will continue in force for a term not exceeding four years; the Postmaster General reserving the right to term nate the agreement at any time previous to the expiration of the four years, should the public interest require it, upon giving the Contractor three months previous notice of his intention.

All expenses on this Route for Tolls, Ferries, &c., must be defrayed by the Contractor.

Each Tender to state the price asked in words at length, and to be accompanied by the written guarantee of two responsible parties undertaking that in the event of the Tender being accepted the Contract shall be duly executed, by the party tendering, for the price demanded:—undertaking also to become bound with the Contractor in the sum of Twelve hundred dollars for the due performance of the service.

Blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices at Chatham, Sandwich and Maidstone, and at this Office.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting, as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles.
Dysentery,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each box. v1n43

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities.—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

THIS SOCIETY has been organized upon principles different from, and superior to most societies of a kindred nature.

The Laws regulating the disposal of funds are as follows, viz.

Real Estate ultimate within the County of Essex will be required for security on monies advanced.

The Society shall close at the expiration of eight years, when the accumulated funds will be proportionately divided among members, which division it is estimated will amount to $200 per share.

Sums of $200 each will be disposed of monthly, by competition to members only, at an upset price of 6 per cent, with the privilege of repaying by monthly instalments till the expiration of the society or within a lesser period if desired.

FOR EXAMPLE:

A sum of $200, is loaned for eight years at 6 per cent per annum.

Amount of share -	$200.
Six per cent interest for 8 years -	96.
Total - - -	$296

Which sum divided into 96 equal instalments makes the monthly payment $3 08.

For seven years at the same rate 3.38.

And for three years - 6.55.

Members purchasing sums, still retain right of sharing in the profits at the cessation of the society, alike with other members by paying $1 00 per month extra, as instalment on each share.

The mode of disposition and repayment of the funds as above shown, secures the final closing and settlement of the society in a period of eight years.

What is Love?

What is love?—'tis the source of pain
Of an aching heart and a maddened brain;
It is the dream of a troubled sleep,
Where the light and darkness together creep
It is but another word for tears,
For withered hopes and tumultuous fears;
'Tis a fragile bark on a stormy sea,
To be wrecked by its own intensity.

What is love?—'tis a woman's dream,
Asleep or awake; but never one theme;
But turn to her it serves as a bell
To ring o'er her hopes a funeral knell;
And all that is brightest, fairest, and best,
Takes a shadowy hue from the soul's unrest,
'Till she finds that her wasted love of years,
Comes rushing back on a flood of tears.

Our Day Dreams.

They come like the changeful starts
Of the sunbeam o'er the wave,
Raising, depressing our throbbing hearts
From the cradle to the grave,
They raise us from dark despair
To the height of joy's refrain,
Then bursting in bubbles light as air,
Cast our bark on the waves again.

Yet they bring us sweeter hours
Than life's dull cynics know;
They spring from the weeds like opening flowers,
As memory's spring tides flow.
Then do not call them folly,
They shine like heavenly beams
Amidst this worldly chaos,
Our pleasant light day dreams.

Mirth and Wit

'You've no wife, I believe,' said Mr. Blank to his neighbor.

'No Sir,' was the reply, 'I never was married.'

'Ah,' said,' Mr. Blank, 'you are a happy dog!'

A short time after, Mr. Blank, in addressing a married man said,

'You have a wife, Sir.'

'Yes, Sir,—a wife, and three children.'

'Indeed,' said Mr. Blank, 'you are a happy man!'

'Why, Mr. Blank,' said one of the company,' your remarks to the married and unmarried seem to conflict somewhat.'

'Not at all,' said he, 'for there is a difference in my statement. Please be more observing, Sir. I said the man who had no wife was a 'happy dog' and the man who had a wife was a 'happy man.' Nothing conflicting, Sir—nothing at all. I know what I say, sir!'

We have suggested, says a recent writer, a new kind of telegraph tunnel, to place a line of women at a distance of fifty paces from each other, and then commit to the first the news to be transmitted, as a profound secret.

'Reading makes a man full,' says Bacon; and Fashion makes a full woman—according to Punch, who says, 'certainly a woman as she is dressed in the present fashion could not well be made much fuller.'

'George, what has happened!' 'The most delightful thing. I caught my Jenny, this morning, without hoops; and I got the first kiss I've had since whalebone skirts came into fashion.'

Hint on Externals.—A countryman is called Raw, chiefly for the reason that he is not well dressed.

Unhappy the woman who allows her waist to be moulded by her milliner The seeds of consumption are frequently found set in the mould of fashion.

Advance or Union.—An Eglishman was invited to a fancy ball in a foreign Court. Like a bold Brition, he went in the attire of a Parish Beadle. The effect was immence.

A Pretty Conceit.—Transported with egotism and yearning for sympathy, a youth exclaimed: 'I like the man who treats other people with contempt, and myself with respect.

A Whiskey Tester.—'Jake,' said an old farmer, one day, to one of his mowers, 'do you know how many horns there are in a dilemma?' 'No,' replied Jake, 'but I know how many horns there are in a quart of whiskey.'

Irish Humor.—A joke to an Irishman, even when nearly famished, is a necessary of life. One of the 'finest pisantry,' recently imported into Edinburg, was overheard a few days ago, addressing the following query to a lantern-jawed companion:—'Barney, wouldn't you be the better of a twopenny loaf to blow the wrinkles out of your mouth?'

'Young man, do you believe in a future state?'

'In course I does; and what's more, I intend to enter it as soon as Betsey gets her things ready.'

'Go to, young man, you are incorrigible—go to.'

'Go you! If it was not for the law against bigamy, whip me if I wouldn't get a dozen. But who supposed, Deacon, that a man of your age would give such advice to a young man just starting in life?'

A Conundrum for the Day.—A New York paper, in reference to the late money panic, hazards this witticism:—Why was Pharaoh's daughter like a broker? Because she got a little prophet from the rushes on the banks.

Extravagance.—Cleopatra was the first to fling away jewels in the piggish manner condemned by the proverb. She was in the habit of throwing pearls to Antony's (s) wine.

The young lady who was 'lost in thought,' has been found. She was hugging an idea; it looked like a man.

It's never too late to do right; a gentleman began to study grammar after he had written for the press ten years. It's never too late to get married; Naomi, the daughter of Enoch, took her first husband at the age of five hundred and eight. It is sometimes too late to 'pop the question;' as a man once did so to a 'charming widow,' just as she had reached the house after burying her first husband. 'You are too late!' was the reply.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a-Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XVIII.

The Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to expose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

Commercial Press and News.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

The Editorial Department contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

The Commercial Department is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of a few cents. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge b th of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

The Miscellany consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

The Review is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

The Messenger Department contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most pointed religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good family paper, which is indispensible, each family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form the first line of the season, and commences running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are among the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequaled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties in Detroit and Buffalo, and all intermediate points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise to greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shipper of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of John Hosmer, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

GLOBE, " Amos Pratt,
ONTONAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGDEN, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY,
(New Propeller,)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of the Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the cheapest and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

NEW YORK & ERIE Railroad

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over Five Thousand Tons Burthen, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandize for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours in regard to material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article, cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

Unkind Words.

O breathe them not in passion's hour;
Let silence chain thy tongue—
Lost, by that cold unfeelingness,
Some gentle hearts to wrong.
Speak kindly—let no word of thine,
Distress another's heart:
'Tis easier far to make the wound,
Than to withdraw the dart.

Speak kindly to thy mother, child;
She needs thy kindness now:
The light hath faded from her eye,
The beauty from her brow.
Speak kind to her—he strong to guide,
Her bark o'er life's dark wave:—
Beyond for not her need go down,
In sorrow to the grave.

Speak kindly to thy father now;
His years with age are dim:
He needeth now thy utmost care—
Speak kindly unto him.
He watched o'er thee when thou wert weak,
He is all weakness now—
Speak kindly: let no words or deeds,
Bring sadness to his brow.

Speak kindly, sweetly, to thy wife,
Whoever thou mayest be;
Remember that she left her home,
Her happy home, for thee;
Remember that she left her friends,
With thee alone to dwell:
She gave her heart's best love to thee,
O guard it, guard it well.
What if her eye has lost its light,
And her fair cheek its bloom!
What if her brow, so radiant once,
Now blossoms for the tomb!
May she not love thee now, as much,
As on her bridle morn?
Then speak not coldly to her now.
Because her youth is gone
The rose may wither on the cheek,
The smile of joy depart;
But love dies not—it ever holds
A blossom in its heart.

Speak kindly to thy husband, wife—
Speak kindly to him now;
Chase now the shadows from thy heart,
The sadness from his brow;
Thou knowest not of many cares
That on his pathway throng,
Help him to battle on through life;
O help him to be strong.

Speak ever kindly to thy friends,
Speak kindly to thy foes;
Three thou may'st win with gentleness,
With kindness fetter those.
Speak kindly to the erring one;
Let not thy heart forget,
Its own deceit:—Speak kindly to him,
And thou may'st win him yet.

Speak kindly to thy brother man,
Help thou to bear his grief;
Remember, one kind word from thee,
May yield him much relief.
Bear then his burdens part by with him,
And, when he smiles, rejoiced,
Speak kindly—much of happiness,
Dwells in a kindly voice.

Be kind to all, be kind to all—
To sisters, brothers, friends;
Much, more of thine own happiness,
On kindness depends.
We are like kindred blossoms, wreathed
Around our parent stem;
Our Father is so kind to us,
Let us be kind to them.

A Band of French Robbers.

Some months ago accounts were given of the arrest of a man named Lemaire for murder and other crimes committed in the department at the Aisne, and of his having more than once effected his escape from prison under most extraordinary circumstances and been re-captured. A man named Huguet was captured about the same time as his accomplice in the murders, and from the investigation made by the authorities it turned out that they formed part of a band which had for a long time been in the habit of committing robberies and other crimes in the departments of the Somme and Aisne. After a while the rest of the band, twelve in number, were taken into custody. Yesterday the trial of these fourteen persons commenced before the Court of Assizes of the Aisne, and excited extraordinary interest. It is expected to last several days, as the offence of which the prisoners accused are numerous, and as not fewer than 135 witnesses have been summoned to give evidence. The indictment, which is of very great length, begins by giving a brief description of the different prisoners. One Lemaire, the chief of it is said that, though only 23 years of age, he is a most desperate criminal, and took real pleasure in the perpetration of crimes which were attended with danger; he thought nothing of murder, and declared that "he would murder a thousand people without caring a straw!" Huguet was described as a most dangerous malefactor, possessing great skill in cutting holes through walls, and the peculiar faculty of seeing in the dark as well as in the light; he had no hesitation, it was added, in committing murder when it would facilitate robbery. The third prisoner, a man named Bayle, 48 years of age, was represented to have passed not fewer than 30 years in prison. The fourth, the real chief, of the band since it was he who planned the execution of the most of the crimes, was a public house keeper named Villet, who in early life served in the Royal Guard at the Restoration, and was employed in the stables of Marshal Marmont. He was described as of considerable intelligence, with great cunning, and as of a very pompous style of speech, one of his most frequent expressions being—"I defy all the seven sages of Greece and all the magicians of Egypt to prove me guilty!" and another being:—"Huguet is a murderer, his head belongs to Jupiter!" With Villet were associated his wife, daughter, son, and a cousin named Jean, all of whom he was alleged to have drawn into crime. The other prisoners, who are the wife of Huguet, a carpenter named Pilot, a brick-maker named Labache, a weaver named Provost, a dealer in rabbit skins named Caron, and a tradesman named Popin, are stated to be of indifferent character. The indictment goes on to detail the various crimes alleged to have been committed by the precise band, and share each had in them. On the 27th of June, 1852, Huguet and Prosper Villet committed a burglary in the house of a farmer named Brouse, of Vrely. In September of the same year, two incendiary fires occurred at Vrely, Wiemeon, and it was alleged that they were occasioned by Villet and his son; their reasons being to defraud insurance companies, either for their own direct profit, or for the benefit of persons who owed them money, and by whom they hoped to be paid. The next crime was the murder on the 30th of November, 1852, of one Cretien, at Vrely, and it was alleged to have been committed by Villet and his cousin—their object being to possess themselves of a considerable sum of money the victim had. The indictment then detailed a long series of robberies and burglaries at Parvilleres, Ligniere, Mailly-Raineval, Beancourt, Marbonnieres, Thory, Monididier, and no fewer than 29 other villages, the booty consisting of oxen, clothing, linen, tools, agricultural implements, various sums in notes and gold, &c. In each of these crimes one or other of the prisoners participated, either as perpetrators or as receivers of the booty. The next crime in chronological order was the murder at Berancourt, on the 5th of December, 1856, of a farmer named Blesseling, because he would not sell them, about 6 o'clock, to a cafe, in the outskirts of the town, and after drinking with him for about half an hour went out. He never returned, and on being sought for was not found. The next morning he was discovered in a sheep pen at a short distance from the house; he had, it appeared, been suddenly felled to the ground by a tremendous blow on the back of the head, and had been stamped on until his skull was little more than a mass of jelly. The murder in this case was alleged committed by Bourse, Lemaire, Hugot, and it was added that Villet and his wife had been privy to it, and had received part of the stolen money. Robberies at Laboissere, Lihons, Arvillers, and Bouchoir, asserted to have been committed by Lemaire, Hugot, Villet, and Pillot, were detailed. The last crime mentioned in the indictment was the murder of a couple named Thory, of Les Folles, on the 7th April, 1856. They were found lying dead with their skull smashed in a most frightful manner, the drawers and closets in their house had been ransacked, and their more valuable contents had been taken away, but bills and other securities to the amount of 19,935 fr. had, though they had evidently been examined by the murderers, been left, no doubt because an attempt to put them into circulation might have led to detection. This murder and robbery turned out on investigation to have been committed by Hugot and Lemaire. The indictment concluded by summing up the crimes alleged to have been committed by each of the accused:—Lemaire, 2 murders and 42 robberies or burglaries; Hugot 2 murders and 51 robberies or burglaries; Drouse, 1 murder and 1 robbery; Villet, 1 murder 2 incendiary fires, 29 robberies; Prosper Villet, 3 incendiary fires and 1 robbery; Jean Villet, 1 murder and robbery; the other accused, various robberies or receiving stolen goods. After the indictment was read the court adjourned for the interrogatory of the prisoners.

Hire a Clerk.

A tall, rough-shod, shaggy-aged, good-natured individual arrived in our city a few days ago, from the mountains, and put up at what might be called Millers—one of our third-rate houses. The rules were like those of most other establishments of the kind, boarders being taken by the day, week, or meal. Jim Lock, (We have the name from the register) had 'gone in' by the week with the understanding with the landlord that he should be credited for what he called 'lost time,' at the usual rate. There was nothing very unusual in this arrangement, though it did not turn out altogether to the landlord's satisfaction.

At the end of the second day, it occurred to Jim that he had not seen Sacramento for upwards of a year, and, as a thought with him was almost a deed, he, without saying a word to the landlord, disappeared. He spent the remainder of the week at Sacramento, and reached his boarding house here just in time to find the proprietor calculating that Jim Lock was in debt for one week's board. It didn't take Jim long to prove that he had been out of town four days, and the bill against him was cut down accordingly.

'See yere, old feller,' broke out Jim, as the bill was being altered, 'of it's all one to yeou, I'll take a squint at them ar books.'

'There's your account, sir,' said the landlord, pretending not to notice Jim's last remark. 'Two day's board—$6 00.'

Jim took the bill, and eyeing the puzzled landlord as though he suspected some 'shenanigan' he broke out—

'I want to see them ere books!'

The landlord told him he was asking too much—that no outsider was permitted to examine his books.

Jim was satisfied now that all was not exactly right, and resolved to see the end of it.

'Give me pen, ink and paper,' said he. 'I want to show you how to keep books.'

He took the pen, and after having added up various small sums, made out and handed to the amazed landlord the following account.

Jim Lock to Landlord—Datter too dais bord $2 00
Landlord to Jim Lock—Detter
4 dais lost time $5 20

'Thar she is!' said Jim, as he passed the slip of paper across the counter.—'Cordin' to your way of keepin' books, a fellow ain't allowed nothin' for lost time.'

The landlord said nothing, but gazed with astonishment.

'You see,' continued Jim, anxious to establish the correctness of his bill, 'I tuk board by the week, you know.'

'Yes,' muttered the half-choked landlord.

'And the bargain was that you was to credit me for lost time at the usual rate you know.'

'Yes.'

'Well, I boarded with you two days, you know.'

'Yes.'

'And you owe me for that.'

The landlord took a long breath, brushed the perspiration from his face, and casting his eyes vacantly about the ceiling, slowly ejaculated:

'Oh, yes.'

'Now, I ain't going to be hard on you,' said Jim; 'you feed very well—and as I am goin' up country to-morrow, we'll spend that little balance for champagne to-night. But I'll tell you one thing, landlord,' he added, after a pause, 'you would make money if you would hire a clerk.'

We are inclined to think it would have taken a number of clerks to make Jim believe that the landlord did not owe him for four day's board.

Mr. Lovell's Canada Directory.

We have much pleasure in copying from the Glasgow Argus the following, we will not say flattering, but justly appreciative notice of what may without hyperbole be called Mr. Lovell's magnum opus—a work the intrinsic and local value of which, however great, is far from being its only merit; but to which, the people of Canada as our Scottish contemporary's article proves, must be largely indebted for affording their fellow-subjects in the British Isles a correct means of estimating the vastness of our country's resources and the greatness already achieved by their successful and well-directed enterprise, industry and perseverance in the profitable development of those natural advantages. Our Glasgow contemporary says:—

On our desk lies the Canada Directory, a suprising work. In the spring of the year we took some notice of the prospectus, but we had no idea that the prospectus shadowed such a book as that now before us. Canada was always believed to be a great progressive country, destined at some distant day to hold a prominent place among the nations of the earth. But our conceptions of that progress has not by a long way come up to that which she has attained. Not a great many years ago, Canada, as a mercantile community, was nowhere,—buried in the forests, surrounded by frozen seas,—a country to be visited only by hardy and venturesome men a few months in the year, for the purposes of her timber and furs. But what do we find now? Her commerce setting forth to the world, in no mean style, a book of upwards of 1500 pages, telling us of her 1300 cities, towns and villages, with her business men in each; of her ships and steamboats on her inland seas and rivers; of her produce from those rivers and those seas; of the yield of her mighty forests and broad fields; of her traffic with other nations; of her banks which we see by late papers have stood firm and sure through the panic; of her 1000 miles of railway; of her canal, and her harbors, and wharfs; of her cities and buildings; of her churches and schools; of her benevolent and literary institutions; of her 2000 clergymen. And then we have also an account of her millions of acres of land, waiting for the axe and the plow of the emigrant; of her vast mineral treasures, waiting the pick and the shovel of the capitalist; of her unbounded water-power, almost ready for the spindle and the loom of the manufacturer. This Directory, or rather Gazetteer, decides all this, and a great deal more, gives us some information relative to the government of Canada—her laws, her tariffs, and her military. Yes, Canada from this work, is a far greater country than she gets credit for. Speeches and pamphlets, and papers have not told us one half of what this country is, of what she is doing, can do, and must do. Only ten days' sail from us lies this young and vigorous country. Her steamers and her ships came weekly to our shores. Our Queen is her Queen, our flag is her flag, our language her language. Our sons guide her commerce, our brothers till the soil, our daughters preside over her forest homes. You who want to see a picture of a young colony stepping forth with manly bearing, worthy of the country from which she had sprung, get a copy of this Directory. The information it gives is invaluable; besides, there is a Map of the Province, by the first engineers of the country, in which every new village, up to September last is laid down. The type and the paper is of Canadian manufacture and will not be surpassed by any country. The work has been got up with great care, and may be faithfully relied upon. The expense of the undertaking required an outlay of £12,000. We hope the enterprising publisher in Montreal will reap a handsome reward, not only in Canada but in this country also, and be encouraged in the future years to tell us of the progress of the 'brightest gem in Victoria's crown.'

Miscellany.

A MIRACLE.—The mention of almsgiving recalls a somewhat ludicrous story of modern date, where a most inopportune miracle was wrought. The well known French missionary, Father Bridaine, was always poor, for the simple reason that he gave away everything he had. One evening he asked for a night's lodging of the curate of a village through which he passed, and the worthy man having only one bed shared it with him. At daybreak Father Bridaine rose, according to custom, and went to say his prayers at the neighboring church. Returning from his sacred duty he met a beggar, who asked him alms. "Alas, my friend, I have nothing!" said the good priest, mechanically patting his hand in his breeches pocket, where, to his astonishment, he found something hard wrapped up in paper, which he knew he had not left there. He hastily opened the paper, and seeing four crowns in it cried out that it was a miracle! He gave the money to the beggar, and hastened into the church to return thanks to God. The curate soon after arrived there, and Father Bridaine related the miracle with the greatest unction; the curate turned pale, put his hand in his pocket, and in an instant perceived that Father Bridaine, in getting up in the dark, had taken the wrong pair of breeches; he had performed a miracle with the curate's crowns.

AN AFRICAN BEAUTY.—One morning a very handsome Felatah girl was brought to me by her mother, who espoused very early to answer all my questions. When I wished to examine the girl's tongue, her mother seemed very reluctant; and when I attempted to feel her pulse, she was highly indignant. The girl herself was very willing, but the old lady thought I should have recourse to charms, it being the custom of the Mallams to write something on a piece of paper, and then washing the ink off with water, to give the draught to the patient. She had no idea of my touching her daughter, and told the interpreter, that she was afraid if I came in contact with the girl, she would never recover, since I was an unbeliever! The invalid was one of the finest girls I have seen in the country, and her mother had some reason for her solicitude about her. Her colour was a light brown, her features regularly formed, beautiful black eyes, Grecian nose, a small mouth, with teeth as white as ivory. There was nothing denoting the thick lips or flat nose of the negro: in fact, the contrary was the case. Her arms and legs were encircled with bands of copper.—Dr. Livingston.

PLAIN FACTS FOR PLAIN PEOPLE.—It is a question, whether a physician holds his hand out to a patient when he comes with half so much pleasure when he goes. The man in armour fancies you are staring at him, whereas he is inside the armour, and you cannot well see him. The truth is, you are looking at the armour outside the man. A bell is a handy hint, when a bore will not take any other hint to go.

Chicago is said to be a poor place for a Yankee. The climate gives him the ague fever. The water brings on diarrhœa. The food, as cooked by the "suckers," produces dyspepsia. The whisky, tinctured with strychnine, makes him crazy, while three per cent. a month is sure to bring on the blues.

The depths of the Central American forests will probably yield some new articles of commerce. In the Olanch there is found hanging from the trees a sort of sack some two feet in depth, which is the nest of a species of silkworm. The silk is woven over the inside of this sack. In 1844 six pounds were sent to England, where it was made into handkerchiefs of excellent quality. A profitable trade of this article might, perhaps, be established, as this material can be gathered in any required quantity. An old Mexican author speaks of wild silk as abundant in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, and states that the natives were accustomed to gather it for exportation.

PAPER FROM A NEW MATERIAL.—We were yesterday shown a specimen of remarkably clear and tough paper, made from beetroot. Also a portion of pulp produced from beet root, that was very clear and white, and intended for the manufacture of the finest writing papers. We are told that when mixed with other pulps, it saves a loss which regularly occurs, as by its albuminous character it prevents the escape of the finer parts of the pulps, though the wire-bloth of the Fourdrinier machine. The inventor of beet root paper is Dr. Coltyer, and his discovery is in operation in England and France. He has likewise obtained a patent in the United States.—Phila. Press.

MUSK.—This well known scent is imported from China, Bengal, and Russia. It has a butterish and somewhat acid taste, and in color resembles dried blood. This scent is obtained from the musk deer, and possesses a most penetrating and diffusive order, rather agreeable when feeble, but when concentrated it is decidedly offensive; so diffusive is its power that a few grains will scent a room for years, and it never seems to fade in strength. Tonquin musk is the most esteemed. Pod musk is the natural bag containing the musk, and each one weighs about six drachms having in each about eight scruples of pure musk. It is generally more or less adulterated, but the adulterations are easily detected under the microscope or by analysis.

SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.—A short time since, we announced the suicide of Mr. P. Pinney, of this city, he having taken his life by cutting his throat with a razor. It is now stated that his cousin, residing in Sonora, California, committed the same deed on the same day, and, allowing for the difference in the calculation of time, at the same hour.—Jackson Patriot.

From want of sufficient evidence to implicate the two prisoners Julian and Lemieux, in late Quebec riot, they were discharged from custody.

LIME TREES.—There is now at Ivory, a gigantic lime, or linden tree, which is 100 feet high; the circle covered by its branches measures 245 feet, and these branches commence at a height of ten feet from the ground. The circumference of the trunk near the soil is forty-six feet. It is perhaps an unique instance of this species of tree attaining such magnitude.

In 1752 an English ship stranded near Rochelle. Such has been the changes in the sea that the wreck now lies in the midst of a cultivated field, thirteen feet above the sea, and around it are two thousand acres of cultivated land.

To give vessels a greater hold on the water, and thereby enable them to go more readily to windward, it is proposed to increase the width of the keel, so that a channel or recess will be formed on each side of the keel, between the lower edge and the garboard streak or bottom of the vessel, by attaching to the vertical sides of the keel angular pieces of iron or timber, in vertical cross sections, which will present a right-angled triangle or nearly so.

The year 1858 began on Friday and ends on Friday. January, April, July, October and December, have five Fridays, and January and October begin on Friday. There are 53 Fridays in the year.

BREWERS AND BAKERS.—In the reign of Edward the Third, all the brewers and bakers were women; and when men first began to engage in these occupations, it was thought so strange, that they were called men brewers, and men bakers.

REVOLTING ANECDOTE.—A wretch of a husband, coming home at one in the morning, found his angel wife sitting up reading an old novel. With a composure almost amounting to ferocity, he took the book from her hand, and placed before her a pair of her child's socks, which happened to have holes in them, disgustingly observing, "If you will fatigue yourself, my love, with any work at such hours, I would suggest it is never too late to Mend."—Punch.

"GENTLEMEN," said an engineer, by way of settling a dispute as to relative speed of engines, the last time I run the Lightwind from Syracuse, we went so fast that the telegraph poles on the track looked like a fine-tooth comb!"

A BABY'S NAME.—"My dear, what shall we name our baby?" said Mr. Smith to Mrs. Smith, the other day, "Why, my dear, I've settled on Peter." "Peter! I never knew a man with the simple name of Peter who could earn his salt—" Well, then, we will call him Salt Peter."

"Thou rain'st in this bosom,' as the chap said when a bason of water was thrown over him by the lady he was serenading.

To secure the ingratitude of a mean man, assist him in time of need; do him various acts of kindness. This receipt never fails.

Dr. Smith says, 'the tale-bearer and the tale-bearer should be hanged up together the former by the tongue, the latter by the ear.'

A COIFFEUR'S DISCOVERY.—No wonder that we hear of curling smoke, when it has the fire-irons applied to it so repeatedly!

SWEETLY PRETTY.—Matrimony should be a stereoscope, in which two hearts, though they may slightly differ, appear to the observer as one.

A MARRIAGE QUESTION.—If a man addicted to smoking marries a widow, does it follow that he must lie down his pipe because she gives up her weeds?

AN Irish servant observing her mistress feeding a pet female canary, asked 'How long it took them craters to hatch?' "Three weeks," was the reply. 'Oh! shure that's the same as any other fowel, except a pig.'

A lunatic once informed his physician, who was classifying cases of insanity, that he had lost his wits by watching a politician, whose course was so crooked that it turned his brain.

Arrival of the Europa.

New York, Jan. 25.

The steamship Europa, with Liverpool advices of the 9th instant, arrived yesterday.

There was nothing heard of the Vandelia steamship Ariel, which left Southampton for New York on the 31st December, at the time of the departure of the Europa.

Later advices from India had been telegraphed to London.

General Havelock died at Lucknow on the 25th of December, of dysentery, induced by general anxiety and exposure.

General Wyndham, with his division, consisting of little over 2,000 men, attacked a party of Gwalior mutineers numbering 8,000 men, on the 27th November. The rebels were marching from Calfa towards Cawnpore, and fought desperately, causing the English troops to retreat with a loss of nearly the whole of the 64th Regiment. Sir Colin Campbell, however, completely routed this body of mutineers on the 7th of December, destroying all their ammunition, bullocks and grain, and capturing 16 of their guns.

The London Money Market was easy, and the Bank Directory had reduced the rates of interest to 6 per cent. About $300,000 in gold was on its way from Australia to England. The last returns of the Bank of England show an increase in bullion of £1,188,232.

Failures.—Glasgow—J. & W. Wallace, Seward, muslin manufacturers, £250,000. Mitchell, Miller & Ogilvie, Findly & Co., merchants, Jno. Oman, of Dundee, manufacturers, £50,000, and A. N. Whitfield & Co., London, West India merchants £50,000

Mlle. Rachel, Marshal Radetzky and Reschid Pacha were dead.

The Madrid journals state that no redress will be given to our government for the outrage on the steamship El Dorado, and that the mention of the purchase of the island of Cuba would be a national insult.

Active preparations for a combined attack on Canton continued to be made at Hong Kong.

Some reports were to the effect that the French would not take part in the operations.

The launch of the Leviathan was proceeding satisfactorily, the vessel being moved 8 or 10 feet daily.

Lord Chesterville is spoken of for the first Minister for India, under the new arrangement.

The Bank of Belgium has returned its discount rate to 4½ per cent. The Bank of Prussia has reduced its rates to 5½.

The U. S. Steam Frigate Powhattan, which took over Ex-President Pierce and family, was at Madeira Sept. 23th.

Sugar had advanced, with an active demand in London. Flour declined from 6d. to 1s. per bbl. on Friday, 8th.

Later advices from India had been telegraphed from Suez to London, but the exact dates are not given.

From Australia we have news dated at Sydney on the 11th, and Melbourne on 17th November. Trade at Melbourne continued depressed. Bills for the construction of railways from Melbourne to Mount Alexander, Bendigo, and the Murray, and from Geelong to Ballarat, passed the legislature. Estimated expenses a million pounds sterling.

R. Spence & Co's. Circular, Liverpool 8th, says:—

At to-day's market the attendance of buyers was very small, and business done in all descriptions of breadstuffs quite limited. Wheat lost the advance of Tuesday, and was slow of sale at the reduction.

Flour also receded 6d. to 1s. per bbl, and was almost neglected.

Indian Corn dull, and 6d. per quarter cheaper.

We quote Wheat—Red, 6s. 3d. a 6s 8d. for western; choice southern, rom scarcity, 7s. 6d. a 7s. 7d.; White 7s. 6d. a 8s. per 70 lbs.

Flour.—Philadelphia and Baltimore, 24s. a 25s. Extra Ohio, 26s. 6d. for Northern 28s., in retail for New Orleans, of choice quality western, 23s. a 24s. 6d., per bbl. Indian corn, mixed and yellow, 32s. a 33s.; white 37s. a 38s. per quarter. Pork without change.

How the Indian Revolt Began.

From Smith & Elder's Homeward Mail.

The following translation of an Urdu paper, found in the house of a vakil of the Sadir Court, may interest our readers. The original was sent to us by a valued correspondent, and is thought by many to give a clue to the origin of the revolt:—

Extract from the Lukhnow newspaper, printed on the 25th of March, 1857, under the superintendence of Ali Khan, residing at Malgulzan, in the district of Ismailgarh.

In these days a novel piece of intelligence is spread far and near—viz., that in the countries of Arabia and Turkistan, and Turkey the Muslims, who are religious and zealous for the faith, are making preparations, each after his own fashion, for a religious war. And every noble and poor man, by the advice and exhortation of the ulemas of the faith and spiritual guides of the true law, are prepared for the war. Each one is intent on this thought morn and eve, how he can unite to his life in the cause of God, and feels that this is the right course. All are busy with the tumultuous excitement of this holy contest, and their resolve is to put to flight, however, best it may be done, the army of the infidels, and to set up in the place of strangers the standard of the faith. Moreover, many warriors have arrived in Iran with the view of encountering the contumacious infidels, and have besought permission to do so from the Shah of the curved cap, and are hopeful of his favor. And all have unanimously said, in the presence of the Shah, protected by angels, this, too—that the Russians also are enemies of the faith, and misguided infidels, and that it is altogether wrong to ask aid or assistance of them. It is not right to associate infidels in the cause of religion. All we Muslims are obedient to your commands; whenever these are issued we are ready to devote our lives.—There is no want of warlike stores, &c. We ask not the slightest proffer of support in this respect from your Majesty. We have stored up for ourselves cannon balls, gunpowder, and such like. Thousands of battalions of Ghazis and rank-breaking veterans have been assembled by us. If God wills we will shortly get the victory over the enemies of the faith and adversaries of our creed. We will show the innate qualities of Isfal and Khurasanis in the field of battle. This excellent plan, too, has been decided on, and this admirable arrangement, that the women shall sew clothes, grind flour, and make bread for the warriors of the faith; and the men, from the boy of twelve years old to the old man of forty, shall play the part of valiant men in the field of battle, and not give way in this contest, which has reference to all future world. Meanwhile, the infirm and feeble old persons shall busy themselves in preparing stores, that the brave soldiers may suffer no distress in the struggles of the impending war, but assisted by these means may engage in the holy contest, intent simply on the commands of the Shah, and hopeful of his favors.

The news writers write that the righteous Maulavis and lofty teachers have shown this busy wish for a holy war in the hearts of the people. Everywhere congregations of people are to be seen to their advice and exhortation. All have heard the excellencies of this war against the infidels, and are ready to devote themselves for their God. It is probable, too, that the people of Afghanistan will join them, and not swerve from the cause of the faith.

A Formidable Event.—A correspondent of the Mofussilite, writing from Oude on the 6th ultimo, makes the following report of a strange affair in which our troops had been concerned:—"The troops, however, encountered a much more formidable and enterprising enemy on their way back to camp, and I am ashamed to say the 9th Lancers turned tail; both officers and men fled in utter confusion, while the Artillery drivers abandoned their guns, and bolted like mad, but without avail, for the enemy pursued them to camp, which friend and foe entered at the same time, the latter getting among the tents and having the audacity to attack the whole force, which had turned out in great numbers to cover its flight. The Lancers and the others when they were seen running in such wild despair! The eldest Highlanders did not on this occasion display the courage for which they are famed, for, if anything, the 93rd sought shelter from the attacks of the victorious enemy with more agility than their breeches-ed comrades, though I confess that being less protected they suffer more. The sailors of the Naval Brigade also, strange to say, showed the white feather, and 'topped their booms' with the rest, uttering naughty nautical ejaculations in the extremity of their terror. There is no mistake about it, our fellows were utterly routed, and the enemy continued to hover round the camp for some time, without our daring to molest them, and ultimately they retired in good order, and with very trifling loss."—Don't be alarmed or indignant, good reader; imagine what you would yourself have done if attacked by a swarm of bees!—While the force was returning from the Alumbagh to camp one of the Lancers was tempted to poke his spear into a bees' nest and the result is above described.—Bombay Gazette, Dec. 4.

Scenes at Cawnpore.—One of the survivors, in referring to the massacre at Cawnpore, relates the following: "A poor woman, of the name of White, was walking along the trenches with her husband, and nursing her child (twins) in her arms. Some fiend fired at them, killed the man, and broke both the poor woman's arms. The children fell to the ground, one of them wounded. Then followed a scene which can only be imagined. Fancy the poor woman throwing herself down beside her husband, and not being able to assist them on account of the wounds she had received. Another woman, who was in a wretched state bordering on starvation, was seen to go out of the protection of the trenches with a child in each hand, and stand where the fire was heaviest, hoping that some ball would relieve her and her little ones from the troubles they were enduring. But she was brought back, poor thing, to die a more tedious death than she had intended for herself. Here you saw poor Mrs. W. hit by a ball in the face, just by the nostril, passing through the upper jaw, and coming out inside its exit by the jaw; and by her side you saw her daughter, who, although she was badly wounded in her shoulder, was doing all she could to alleviate the sufferings of her unfortunate mother. Poor creatures, they both died of their wounds. Then you saw an unfortunate native woman, who had remained faithful to her mistress, and was nursing her infant under the protection of the walls of the barrack, as she imagined; but all of a sudden you saw her knocked over, and the child buried out of her arms, and, on examination, you found both her legs cut clean off by a round shot, but the child was picked up uninjured."

Meeting of Parliament.

THE RAILWAY BUBBLE.

Just before the election, it will be remembered that a tremendous bluster was got up by the then member for Essex (but now, by the way, the Ex-Member,) about the Great Southern Railway.

This excitement was no doubt got up very cunningly, to favour his election, but having already lost all confidence in the minds of the Electors, any manœuvers that he might attempt, was certain to fall fruitless in its effect and this one must now, that the elect on is over, be a further proof of his guilt.

The assertion made by Rankin and his paid Emissaries, that the Amalgamation of the two boards of directors, would take place in Toronto on the 19th day of January now past, has turned out to be false, and the poor misguided directors, who were so silly as to allow their names to be used in furtherance of Rankin's election schemes, are now put off by some trivial excuse, either that the day of amalgamation has been further postponed, or that, in consequence of hard times, the works must be delayed;" they are therefore left to grin and bear, with their disappointment as best they may, while Rankin laughs at them for being so green, as to suppose that he had any idea, of the possibility of the Southern Railway being built under such arrangements, as he had concocted.

But certain persons in certain localities had to be flattered before the election, and therefore, the best way that he could accomplish his purpose was to get up a bogus railway meeting, and take a number of unsuspecting persons to London, and have their names paraded through the press as Directors of the Great Southern Railway. Having accomplished this, it was necessary to hold out some bright prospect for the future. An amalgamation was to be effected with the Woodstock and Lake Erie Road, at which the newly made directors were to take an active part. This was to be done immediately, only the prospect of an election began to loom up in the distance, at sight of which Rankin felt wonderfully uneasy; and this being the case, the new directors were put off with the hope that on the 19th (now past) they would have the honor of handing to posterity the fact of their being the directors, and of having accomplished the much desired arrangements, which should place the road in a fair prospect of being built. But, alas! the 19th came, and no amalgamation was made.—The election is past, and Rankin smiles at their folly.

The moral is easily recorded—Rankin had no other intention in forming the new Board than to make for himself a platform upon which he could ride into Parliament at the expense of the folly of a few, who were unfortunate enough to be misled by a railway gambler.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday last, when the following Reeves handed in their certificates of appointment: John Brush, Esq., Colchester; Gordon W. Leggatt, Esq., Amherstburg; Michael Maloney, Esq., Malden; Sylvanus Mott, Esq., Anderdon; Joseph Mercer, Esq., Town of Sandwich; W. B. Hirons, Esq., Town of Windsor; Laurent Beaume, Esq., Reeve, Jerome Demouchelle, Esq., Deputy Reeve, Sandwich; Solomon Wigle, Esq., Gosfield; Theodore Malott, Esq., Mersea; Hugh McPharlin, Esq., Maidstone; Wm. Flanagan, Esq., Rochester; Peter Desjardins, Esq., Tilbury West.

Joseph Mercer, Esq., was elected Warden, and D. A. McMullin, County Clerk.

We propose in our next week's issue to give the entire proceedings, and will only remark at present that we regret to see the feeling that has been exhibited and attempted to be carried out, prompted by ignorance and a blind submission to one of the greatest scoundrels of which the County of Essex is possessed.

It is only necessary to hold up to public view, the characters who have made themselves conspicuous during this session, to convince them, that the most respectable and enlightened portion of the Council has been arrayed against ignorance and bigotry

We will refer again to this subject next week.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

Sir,

I was much struck with the proceedings in your Court House on Friday last, wherein a Mr. Rankin was held to bail for an alleged assault upon a Mr. Gilkes. I say I was surprised, because the party accused, as well as many of the bystanders, appeared to think the charge a mere assault, and of a trifling nature, and even pressed the worthy and learned Magistrate to deal with it in a summary way, and to inflict a small fine upon the accused. This the magistrate very properly refused to do; for, as he expressed himself, the case was far too serious to be disposed of, and could not be legally disposed of in that way. I clearly saw by the conduct of the presiding magistrate, that he considered the case as one embracing felony, as well as an assault, and that on that account he could not, and would not, dispose of it by inflicting a mere fine, and so dismissing the party charged.

What are the facts as presented to the Court? That Mr. Rankin, having taken offence at something which Mr. Gilkes had said of him, (but what it was did not appear,) went, in the dead of the night, to Gilkes's bed-room at the Windsor Castle Hotel, and, unlatching the door, awoke Gilkes from sleep, and holding a heavy bludgeon over his head, threatened in the most violent language, to knock his brains out and murder him, unless he signed a paper which he, (Rankin,) presented to him, and that then Gilkes did sign it, under the fear of being murdered! What the contents of the paper were are not known, at least they did not transpire; but Rankin said, openly, in court, that they were intended to convict Gilkes, over his own signature, of being a villain, and an infamous scoundrel, and so forth. The statement, as presented to the Court was, in substance, admitted by Rankin, except as to the bludgeon, which he said Gilkes could not prove him to have used. Comment upon such a proceeding is unnecessary for me to indulge in. I deal merely with the law, and as a lawyer. The law considers that every man's house is his castle, as well for defence against injury and violence, as for repose; and to invade it at the dead of night, when sleep has disarmed the owner and rendered his castle defenceless, is a very high and a very serious crime. To violate this security is deemed a crime of so atrocious a nature, that the party alarmed, whether he be the owner or a mere inmate, is, by Statute 24, H. 8, c. 5, expressly permitted to repel the violence by killing his assailants on the spot. Now, it is clearly laid down in the English Criminal Law Books, (see Hale, P. C., and Hawke, P. C.; East, P. C., and other high authorities,) that the forcible entry, at night, into a chamber in any house, such chamber being occupied by a person, with the consent of the owner of the house, and such entry having been made with an intent to commit a felony, or other crime, is a Burglary, and that the unlatching the door of such chamber, is a forcible entry.—It has also been held that violently threatening a person while under duress and fear of his life, with dreadful consequences, unless he signed a release of a bond, which the party threatening had executed to him and that, under such fear, he did sign it and release the bond, for the purpose of obtaining his liberty, is a Felony at Common Law, and the threatener was convicted, under an indictment for that offence, and transported beyond the seas! How far the above cases apply to what was witnessed in your Court House on Friday last, does not appear, to me, at least, very difficult to determine.

GAMALIEL.

Registration of Letters.—Persons transmitting letters and other articles should pass through the Post Office as "Registered Letters," must observe that no record is taken of any letter unless specially handed in for registration at the time of posting. Upon all such letters, with the exception of those addressed to the United States, 1d must be prepaid, as a Registration charge. If addressed to the United States, the ordinary postage rate on the letter to that country must be prepaid, and in addition a Registration charge of 3d per letter. The Registry thus affected in Canada will be carried on by the United States Post Office, until the letter arrives at its destination.

In like manner, letters addressed to Canada may be Registered at the places of posting in the United States and the registry made there will accompany the letter to the place of delivery in Canada.

A certificate of Registration will be given by a Post Master, if required.

It must be distinctly understood by parties who avail themselves of the privilege of registration, that such registration, with the certificate and receipt, are merely intended to afford the means of tracing the course of such letters through the Post, and of ascertaining their delivery at destination, and will not be held to imply any liability, on the part of the postal department to make good any loss, or alleged loss, arising upon the miscarriage of any such letter or its contents.

Grand Trunk Railway of Canada

From Herapath's Journal.

Notice has been given that the interest on the Preference Bonds and on the Debentures of the Company, will be payable, as usual, on the presentation of the coupons at the bankers of the Company, on and after the 1st.

Notice has also been given that interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the consolidated stock of the company for the half year ending 31st December, will be paid to the proprietors of such stock in the 7 per cent. debentures of the company having fifteen years to run, and bearing interest from the 1st January, 1858.

In case the interest due to any proprietor shall be less than £100, a scrip certificate for the amount will be issued, payable half yearly, at the same rate as the debentures.

These debentures and certificates will be forwarded to each proprietor on the 15th of January, 1858.

Subsequently, on presentation to Sir C. P. Roney, the Secretary, of a sufficient number of certificates to represent £100 at 7 per cent. debentures of the company for that amount will be given in exchange.

Canadian Decimal Coinage.—From a conviction of the great importance of having at once a Canadian Decimal Coinage to represent the new mode of accounting, we have taken pains to inquire how soon and in what form we are likely to have it; and we are now enabled, on the best authority, to state, that Mr. Wyon, Medallist to the Royal Mint, has prepared the designs for the following pieces:—

In Silver,—20 cents,
" " 10 "
" " 5 "

In Bronze,—1 cent.

The government soon expects to receive specimens of the new coins. The 20 cent piece is intended to be equivalent to 5.066 grains of English standard gold, and will be coined of 71.75 grains of English standard silver. The cent piece will be of the weight of the one hundredth part of the pound avoirdupois. The coinage we have already stated will represent the head of Her Majesty on one side; on the other will be seen a figure emblematic of the commencement of the decimation of the piece. For the last eight years a Canadian Decimal Coinage has been at times talked of —since Mr. Hincks's abortive attempt of 1850 to establish a Mint in Canada. We believe the public may now be positively assured they are about to receive it at last. —Montreal Gazette.

Frightful Death of a Boy.—On Saturday, the 16th, two boys were playing near a lime kiln, at Broughton Low Houses, in the neighborhood of Cockermouth. The material kiln was on a level with the edge, and was emitting dense volumes of smoke. One of the boys, Alexander Mavior, about seven years of age, probably misled by the smoke, stepped upon the surface of the burning mass. He instantly sank into the mass. The opening made by his body allowed a large mass of flame, which prevented the approach of the workmen to extricate the agonized sufferer. As soon as the flames abated, the boy was seen to be several yards from the top. It was still impossible to relieve him, and they watched the effects of the fire, which they actually observed the poor boy's skull burst asunder. Nothing but his bones were recovered.—When his mother was told of the accident, she rushed to the kiln, and would have precipitated herself into it, if the bystanders had not held her.

The Chatham Planet says:—"Not only have parsnies been seen in full bloom in this town during the present month, but Mr. R. K. Payne informed us that on the 14th instant strawberry vines were in blossom in the open air in his garden. Up to the time we write we have no snow and very little frost."

A Montreal paper notices a rumor that the Clear Grits have proposed an alliance with the Lower Canada majority, on the understanding that the question of representation, based on population should be dropped for a period of four years, that is to say, during the probable existence of the present Parliament. The position assumed by the Hamilton Times on the question gives a force of probability to the rumor. It is true the Clear Grit organ in question has gone the length of denying that the journal in question is an organ of that party, or had any authority from them to propound the sentiments which it put forth on that question. The convenience and even the necessity of the case, however; but its accuracy is not the less questionable on that account. Nobody who knows them doubts that the Clear Grits will take any course which would be likely to conduct them to the Treasury benches. They will find, however, that their day has not yet come—that that all the means and unscrupulous devices by which they resorted in the late election have left them in a helpless minority.—Leader.

☞From the Montreal Advertiser we learn that the water again rose and flooded Griffintown on Wednesday, the inundation arising in this instance from back water through the St. Pierre River. The water fell on the following day. At Laprairie a considerable flood also took place, the water rising many feet above its ordinary level, and attaining a greater altitude than has been known for many years. Much damage was done to the store of Mr. Thompson, and to numbers of other houses in the lower portion of the village, where the inhabitants had to take refuge on the roofs of the houses. In the dwelling of Dr. Alexander the water was seven feet deep. A great deal of the flat country in the neighborhood of Laprairie was submerged and rendered impassable.

Stocking and Fatal Accident.—On Thursday afternoon, the little daughter of Mr. Andrew Graham, a tailor of Waukegan, having stepped on her way from school at the planing mill of Porter, Brother, with a school mate, for the purpose, as is supposed, of playing, had her clothes caught by some of the shafting of the establishment, and was drawn round with great violence for several minutes, mangling her in a most shocking manner. The workmen, who were in an adjoining room, noticed the jar of the machinery, but supposed it was occasioned by the disarrangement of some of the belting. They soon discovered the true cause, however, and every man flew to relieve her as soon as possible. The unfortunate little girl lived only a short time after she was brought home.—Waukegan Gaz,

A Wagon Road to California.—The War Department have received advices to the 18th of October from Lieut. Beale, in charge of the wagon road from Fort Defiance to the Colorado river, in which he announces his arrival in California. The expedition has met with the most complete success and a fine wagon road from New Mexico to California has been established. An important part of the operation has been effected by the camels, which were subjected to trials that no other animal could possibly have endured. Lieut. Beale terminated his labors not only without the loss of a single camel, but they are admitted by those who have seen them in Texas to be in as good condition as when they left San Antonio.

Marriage Act.—A bill to prevent runaway matches was reported to the Assembly, in Frankfort, Kentucky, lately, by Mr. Houston. It commends itself to the prayerful consideration of all young men ambitious of paying for some youngster's board and hooped skirts a-cost. Its main provisions are: 1st. Fine and imprisonment for running away with a young lady under 18 years of age and marrying her. 2nd. If he does marry her he cannot get any of her property until she becomes of age, &c. It was made the special order for Wednesday. Young spoonies who cannot live without "dear Julia Ann," had better notify the "being" and hurry up their cakes before Mr. Houston's bill becomes a law. It is the fashion now for the old folks to refuse their consent to all would-be sons in law. This is not because they have any objection to "Chawls," but because they are too stingy to give a wedding party.

Brutal Prize Fight.—The Boston Herald gives an account of a brutal prize fight between James Lynch and John Humphries of Brooklyn, for $100 a side, in a barn situated in a town ten miles from Boston, on Monday morning. During the fight Lynch, who was getting worsted attempted to bite off the nose of his antagonist, which brought about a general melee. Pistols and knives were used with great freedom, and several persons were hurt. Two men were stabbed, and bled profusely. Several others were wounded with clubs, and a large amount of fistic bruising was done.

Western Invention.—In the list of patents for the week ending December 29, we notice the following inventions:—

Machine for Binding Grain.—It consists of a reeching platform in combination with a rake and apron for the purpose of gathering the grain and carrying it to the binding receiver. There are also grooved arms and a slotted lever for the purpose of carrying and crimping the band and compressing the stalks into proper shape for binding. The apron is supplied with straps and pins, which are so combined with the box as to feed the binding clams with bands taken from the mass of the straw placed in the box. The inventor is Reuber D. Phillips, of this city, is the inventor.

Machine for Squaring Logs.—This invention consists in the employment or use of a square, properly graduated, each arm being provided with a graduated slide, and these parts are so arranged that the log or stick of timber may be at once marked on five sides of its surface without any further adjustment of the squares, after fitting them to the log. It is the invention of Jacob Hoke, of Grand Detour, Ill.—Chicago Press, 12th.

If the description given by a correspondent of the Advertiser, of the new treasury notes, issued by the U. S. Government, be anything like correct, they must be surpassing specimens of American art. Here it is: "The $500 notes have a portrait of Secretary Cobb on the left hand side, on the right an eagle perched on the national shield, and surrounded by emblems of Peace and Commerce. The notes of $1000 have an outspread eagle on an exggerated scale, holding olive branches in his talons, but with a very belligerent aspect. On the left side is Justice holding a balance with only one scale in one hand and a drawn sword in the other. The Goddess is sitting on the lid of a strong box, representing the sub treasury, showing that nothing can possibly be got out but by removing justice from the gate of the temple. Old Buck sits on the opposite side with one eye significantly directed toward Justice and the eagle, as if apprehensive of any impending difference between them, and suspicious that the bird would be, in the event of a difficulty, too many for the lady."—Globe.

A Singular Case—A woman Living over Eighteen Months without Eating or Drinking.—Relative to the case of the woman Mrs. Hayes, of the town of Day, Warren County, of whom it is said that she has lived now nineteen months without eating a morsel of food, and whose death was recently announced in one of the papers of Albany, the Sandy Hill Herald has the following:

Mrs. Hayes is not dead, but remains in the condition in which she has been for many months past.

Incredulous as it may seem, there is little, if any doubt, but that this woman has lived more than eighteen months without eating or drinking. We have no other key to the case before for the reason of its apparent incredulity; but scientific gentlemen together with hundreds of others, after the closest scrutiny, have become convinced that there is no deception practised, and that the woman actually subsists without food or water.

In order to test the matter, a gentleman took the woman to his residence, and parties watched her day and night for one month, who say that she neither ate nor drank during that time, and that on food being introduced into the room concealed in the pockets of disinterested persons, the woman would immediately go into horrible convulsions. The same effect was produced by persons taking tobacco, or any kind of ardent spirits where she was.

We are aware there are instances on record somewhat akin to this, which turn out to be frauds, but if this is a deception, it has been so adroitly practised that every one who has examined it, has been deceived. Besides, there is no motive for the deception; and it is quite incredible that any person would suffer to the extent that this woman has, for the sole purpose of playing upon the credulity of the public.

Viewed in any light, the subject is worthy of the attention of the scientific and curious

A Rat Adventure.—A New Bedford (Mass.) Standard says:—"Sometime since a lady in this city, while dressing for church, thought that she felt something moving between her dress and skirt, but after walking them paid no more attention to the circumstance, until seated in her pew at church, when out fell a rat upon the floor, much to the consternation of several other ladies in the pew. It commenced running from one end of the pew to the other, and at last was lost sight of—they presuming it had escaped into the aisle. The first named lady upon arriving home, was in the act of changing her dress for another, when upon shaking it out, out fell the rat, having made the trip to church and back in safety."

The Area of Utah.—It may be a matter of some interest to our readers to know something of the comparative extent of the territory of Utah. According to Colton, the area of Utah is 260,170 square miles. To engineers and a few others this will give a just idea of its vast extent, but the majority of people will form a better estimate by being told that it is as large as the whole of the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Tennessee. Or to compare it with European countries, it is equa in extent to Great Britain and Ireland, Switzerland, Prussia and Denmark, with the Islands of Guernsey, Jersey and Man, and the Ionian Islands added.

Exchange.

Cost of the Utah Expedition.—The probable expense of the Utah expedition may be judged of by the estimate which was on Thursday submitted to Congress for subsistence stores of the Utah expedition for eight months. This item is over a million and a quarter. The estimate referred to is based on the movement of the 11th of January, and provides for eight thousand in the expedition, about five thousand six hundred of which will be troops.—Del, Tribune.

Ice.—A Buffalo contemporary refers to the fears that are expressed that ice-dealers will be unable to lay an their supply for next summer. Mournful predictions as to lake-warm water and tepid cobblers are freely uttered, but if February and March fail to give us abundant ice, people may as well prepare for the Millenium. Weather predictions are not the most reliable of prophecies, but we expect to see the lakes plentifully covered by ice before winter closes.

Sickness at Sea.—Owing to the continued heavy western winds which have prevailed for the past two months, vessels bound westward from European ports, are making uncommonly long passages. With those carrying passengers at this season of the year, a long passage proves very injurious and destructive to health and life. We have received a letter dated early during the past week at quarantine, having had twenty deaths on the passage, and about the same number sick on board upon arrival, with the same disease. There are many vessels now at sea, that have been out some fifty, some sixty, and some even seventy old days. It is feared that a sad number must die from want and disease.—N. Y. Advertiser.

The "Canadian" Steamship.—The Quebec Gazette is informed that the Canadian is lying in her original position, in a state of the most perfect preservation, being completely surrounded by a barrier of ice, which it is anticipated will withstand all the violence of our winter storms, and keep her from injury until the spring weather afford opportunities for floating her off.

Paris and New York.—The annual expenses of the city of Paris are about one fourth more than those of New York, while the population of the former city is nearly twice as great as that of the latter. The following are the estimates of Paris for 1858: Ordinary expenditure 41,020,000 francs—extraordinary 40,000,000 francs—in all about twelve millions of dollars. Of this sum, sixteen millions of francs are required to pay the interest on the city debt.

The passengers by the steamship North American last voyage, before stopping on Sunday, held a meeting at which they passed their earnest thanks to Wm. Grange, Esq., the commander, for the courtesy and vigilance he had manifested during the voyage. This is at least the third time the conduct of Captain Grange has elicited the marked approval of the passengers by his vessel.

The Future of India.—It is currently reported that a modified representative system is to be established, the representatives to form a lower house and a supreme council. A governor general will be appointed as at present. The seat of government for the three presidencies is to be at Calcutta, as at present. With respect to the reorganization of the Bengal army, it is understood that 60,000 Europeans will be the maximum allowed for the army of India. The remainder of the army is to be composed of Rajpoots, Afghans, Sikhs, Goorkhas, and the natives of India proper. The armies of the three presidencies will be consolidated, and the troops, instead of being confined to one district, will be obliged, as in the case with the British army, to serve in all. Caste will be very wisely discouraged, and each regiment will contain an admixture of Hindoos. Enlisting for the new Indian cavalry brigade began on the 26th ult.

The British Post Office Department have made complaints that large numbers of newspapers containing writing, are discovered in the mails received from the United States, and according to the requirement made to our Post Office Department, the latter has directed the attention of Postmasters throughout the country to the necessity of enforcing the laws and regulations upon that subject. The British Post Office Department have also been requested to return to this country all newspapers, etc., illegally forwarded from the United States at printed rates, with the view to prosecute the senders.

THE UTAH EXPEDITION.

The dispatches received at the War Department from Colonel Johnston, dated November 30, confirm the previous reports of excessive suffering, and great loss of animals by snow storms, cold and starvation.—A sufficient number of oxen, though poor, had been saved to supply part rations in six days of the week, and there was on hand enough bacon for one day of the same period for seven months—also, flour and small rations. The storm dealt roughly with Col. Cook's command; he lost half of his horses, besides a number of mules. Further advance toward Salt Lake cannot be made without a new supply of such animals, to procure which Capt. Marcy had been dispatched to New Mexico for their use early in spring, when the army, with a volunteer force 2,000 strong, will resume its march as soon as supplied with horses and mules. At present the grass on the mountains is sufficient to maintain them. Two volunteer companies had been mustered into the service for nine months and it was expected that, in a few days, two more will be mustered in. The troops have borne the dangers and privations of the march with patience and cheerfulness. They are in fine health, though some of the regiments are still suffering from frost-bites. Another letter from an officer in the army says that the Mormons are afraid of the mounted men. They are a set of cowards, like all assassins and robbers. They fear not their leaders, and those who have no claim in the valley, will run away, requiring their deluded followers to destroy their property, lest it may be benefit to the army.

The United States have but 57 ocean steamers, measuring 94,595 tons, while Great Britain has 1670, with 666,380 aggregate tons. The United States have twenty-two steamers, of 45,000 tons, engaged in the foreign and domestic mail service, while Great Britain has one hundred and twenty-one, of 436,488 aggregate tonnage, engaged in the foreign mail service almost exclusively. The United States have thirty seven steamers engaged in the coasting trade, while Great Britain has 1548 similary employed.

Toronto, January, 26.

The supplies of produce have been increasing throughout the week, and the market presents an animated appearance. Prices for a time were very firm, but recently, under increasing supplies, have begun to recede.

WHEAT.—Up to Saturday the market for wheat was buoyant, and deliveries to the extent of 2,000 bushels per day changed hands at 80c to 90c (4s to 4s 6d) per bushel To day, however there was not such a good feeling evident, and with a sluggish demand and an absence of competition, prices were lower, and the outside figure realized was 87½c (4s 4d) while a greater part of the best wheat sold at 86c to 85c (4s to 4s 3d) per bushel. Inferior wheat for distillery purposes sells at 65c to 70c (3s 3d to 3s 6d) per bushel.

FLOUR.—By wholesale there is but little doing in flour. The demand, if any, is of a purely speculative character, and nothing is sold but at a sacrifice. The current quotations are $3 50 for superfine, $3 60 to $3 75 for fancy, and $4 for extra. Very choice brands of the latter grade might realize $4 25 per brl.

Farmers' flour sells on the market at $3 50 to $4 per brl. in bags.

SPRING WHEAT not plentiful, and worth 3s 6d to 3s 8d per pushel.

BARLEY comes in very freely, and the supply amounted to 1000 bushels. It sells at all prices between 2s and 2s 9d.

New York, January, 26.

FLOUR marked dull and demands limited; sales 4,000 barrels at $4 25 @ $4 30 for superfine State; $4 45 @ $4 60 for extra State; $4 25 @ $4 25 for superfine Western; $4 45 @ $5 for common to medium extra do. Canadian flour steady; sales 300 barrels at $4 50 @ $4 40 for superfine and $4 60 @ $6 for extra. Rye flour dull at $3 @ $4.

WHEAT market quiet and firm at $1 @ $1 2 for Chicago spring; $1 6 for Milwaukee club. Rye dull at 70c @ 72c. Barley nominal at 70c @ 75c. Corn quiet at 71c @ 72c for mixed Western. Oats dull at 42c @ 45c for State; 45c @ 46c for Western.

PROVISIONS.—Pork firmer; sales 100 barrels at $14 80 @ $15 for mess; and $11 75 @ $12 for prime. Beef firmer and unchanged. Dressed hogs $6¼ @ $6¾. Bacon in demand at full prices. Lard better; sales 300 barrels at $8¾ @ $9¼.

AN OLD INDIAN DOCTOR WHO has made his fortune and retired from business, will spend the remainder of his days in curing that dreadful disease—CONSUMPTION—FREE OF CHARGE; his earnest desire being to communicate to the world his remedies that have proved successful in more than 3,000 cases. He requires each applicant to send him a minute description of the symptoms, with two stamps, (6 cts.) to pay the return letter, in which he will return them his advice prescription, with directions for preparing the medicines, &c.

The Old Doctor hopes that those afflicted will not, on account of delicacy, refrain from consulting him because he makes No Charge. His sole object in advertising is to do all the good he can before he dies. He feels that he is justly celebrated for cure of consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Nervous Affections, Coughs, Colds, &c.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other portion of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review" and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fevers and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Wounds of all kinds.

, Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

MAIL CONTRACT.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General, and marked "Tenders for Mail Service," will be received at Toronto, until 12 o'clock, Noon, on Saturday, the 23rd January next—for the conveyance of Her Majesty's Mails twice per week each way between Chatham and Sandwich, on and from the 16th February next.

The conveyance to be made on horseback, or in a Buggy, Waggon or Sleigh. The computed distance between Chatham and Sandwich, is about 63 miles.

The rate of travel to be not less than four miles per hour, including stoppages for all purposes.

The days and hours of Arrival and Departure to be as follows, subject to right of the Post Master General to alter the same, should he consider it advisable so to do. To leave Chatham every Monday and Thursday —and Sandwich every Wednesday and Saturday, proceeding to Chatham and Sandwich respectively, direct—serving the Post Offices each way, at Buxton—Tilbury East—Comber—Edgeworth and Maidstone, at such hours as may be fixed.

The Contract, if satisfactorily executed, will continue in force for a term not exceeding four years; the Postmaster General reserving the right to terminate the agreement at any time previous to the expiration of the four years, should the public interest require it, upon giving the Contractor three months previous notice of his intention.

All expenses on this Route for Tolls, Ferries, &c., must be defrayed by the Contractor.

Each Tender to state the price asked in words at length, and to be accompanied by the written guarantee of two responsible parties undertaking that in the event of the Tender being accepted the Contract shall be duly executed, by the party tendering, for the price demanded:—undertaking also to become bound with the Contractor in the sum of Twelve hundred dollars for the due performance of the service.

Blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices in Chatham, Sandwich and Maidstone, and at this Office.

Planting Potatoes.

It appears to be a mooted question among farmers as to the quantity of seed it is proper to put in a hill, and the size of the seed used. Upon the last point I have never experimented, but give it as my opinion that full-grown sound seed is the only proper kind to be used. It is true that a good harvest may be obtained from planting small potatoes, but it will not do to make a practice of choosing small potatoes year after year, or ere long small potatoes will be the result. In 1855 a neighbour was speaking highly of a kind of potato he had got from Ohio, and in exchange for some seeds I had he let me have four about the size of a goose egg. I had only a small garden, so I cut the potatoes so as to leave but one eye on each piece. I supposed I should have enough pieces to plant one row across my garden by putting three pieces in a hill. I planted about half way cross and found I should have too many for one row, and then put two pieces in a hill till I filled that row and another nearly; when, running nearly out, I put one piece in a hill until the two rows were completed. When they came up these hills that had one piece looked naked enough, and those that they thinned out, and by the time they blossomed no difference could be perceived on the top of the ground, and the yield was the greatest I ever had. I believe from six to eight hills would make a bushel. Last season I cut the seed end from some Mercers, and planted one piece in a hill and had as great a yield as the year before. From the result of these two experiments, I am satisfied that loss seed than is generally used by farmers is sufficient. I did not have so many potatoes, but they were very large.

Milking.

It is no easy matter to teach an old man or woman how to milk a cow. The art should be taught to all the children while they are capable of learning. They should learn in the first place to treat the cow with kindness, for we know of but few cows that will be forced to part with all their milk.

But when treated with kindness they are pleased to be relieved of a flood in a distended bag, and will never object to be stripped when a known friend approaches. It is quite important to milk cows with regularity. Let no one be permitted to sit and talk to a friend while drawing out the milk. Let the operator know that no talking is to be permitted in the cowyard, for talking and talking are two distinct operations and must never be united.

The milk must all be drawn out with regularity or a portion of the best of it is lost. In half a minute after commencing the process of drawing out the milk, there is a rapid flow which must not be checked. If the cow is left for a minute or two when half the milk is drawn, the natural flow is checked, the milk returns back into the ducts, and you must wait for a part of it till the next milking time.

But by a repetition of this careless mode of milking, the quantity is gradually diminished, till in a short time the cow is dry. Whereas, by attention to the milking with rapidity, and drawing all from the udder, the cow will yield her milk freely for two months after her time of calving. And we hold that all cows ought to go dry for two months before having another calf.—Plowman.

CAUSE AND EFFECTS OF POOR MILK.—The milk of cows kept stabled, or where the phosphate of lime becomes exhausted is putrified; and when examined through a microscope contains globules of corrupted matter, which is eaten because generally unknown to exist. The effects of on infants and children who use it for daily food, is weakness, sickness and premature death. A child might as well be put to a nurse in the last stage of consumption as to be fed on such milk. So great has this evil become that in some cities where cows are kept wholly on slops, without access to the ground, the sale of their milk has been prohibited by law. But how great must have been the evil—how many thousand helpless infants must have been sent to an untimely grave before the attention of legislators was called to the subject, and the worst of all is, the helpless infant, who has neither power or knowledge to choose, is the sufferer. A handful of bone and meal put into the food of each cow, two or three times a week, would partially remedy the evil.—Exchange.

Interesting Chemical Discovery.

It is notorious that horses, more especially racers and hunters, are subject to inflammatory diseases, and it is observed that grooms are short lived. This has been ascribed to the air of unventilated stables being strongly impregnated with ammonia, an alkali that may be classed amongst the most powerful stimulants, the constant respiration of which predisposes to affections of the lungs. Various means have been tried, with a view to the absorption of this subtle poison, but hitherto without attaining the desired result. During the last year, one of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a paper was presented to the Council by Mr. H. Reese, descriptive of a plan for purifying the air of stables, by a mixture of gypsum or sawdust with sulphuric acid. This mode is said to be at once safe, simple and efficacious. Mr. Reese made some experiments in the extensive stables of Mr. Evans, of Enstone, the results of which are stated to be quite satisfactory. The stables were, in the first instance, strewn with gypsum (crystallized sulphate of lime) coarsely powdered; but though the ammonia was received with the wetted straw, no trace of it was visible after two days' exposure, when examined with slaked lime. The stables were then strewn with the gypsum, moistened with sulphuric acid, and when examined next morning, every portion was found to have absorbed sufficient ammonia to emit its peculiar pungent odor when brought in contact with slaked lime. The stables had lost their close unhealthy smell, and, to use the words of the grooms, appeared to be quite sweetened. As it was evident the gypsum acted merely mechanically, affording a convenient absorbent surface for the acid, some further experiments were made, substituting sawdust for gypsum, which were attended by still more favorable results. The prepared mixture should be laid upon trays, as the acid is considered likely to injure the horses' feet. One part of sawdust will readily absorb three times its weight of acid solution, which should be mixed in the proportion by measure, of one part of sulphuric acid to fifteen of distilled water. The ammonical salt makes an excellent manure, but it should not be mixed with the straw until after removal from the stable.

A NEW "TOBACCO QUESTION."—The important question of the possibility of poisoning by cigars impregnated with arsenic has been raised by the recent death in Fe nce of a priest, named Battaro, supposed to have been poisoned by another priest. An investigation has been undertaken to ascertain whether it be possible or probable that arsenicated cigars can cause death by the inspiration of their smoke impregnated with volatilized arsenic; or by its admission into the saliva without such change.—And very important are the conclusions arrived at. "If there are four ways," remarked the investigator, "in which the introduction of arsenic into the animal economy may be effected through the medium of cigars; by impregnation with a powerful solution of the poison, by its introduction into the carudescent end, so that it may reach and mix with the salt a during smoking, or, finally, in larger quantity hidden in the central part of the cigar. Poisoning is hardly possible in the first or second cases. In the third instance it is inconceivable. It might occur by a combination of two or three methods. The question of the formation of arsenuretted hydrogen is not settled."—In reading this report, we seem to be transported to the days of the Borgias, when the poisoned taper, falsely bearing the motto, "Allis inserviendo consumor," destroyed other existences in sacrificing its own: and when the flowers in the ball room were scented with alien and lethal perfumes. It is well to be assured that these fabled horrors are also impossibilities. The mere suggestion of this most "deleterious sophistication" of tobacco must carry alarm and disconsolation to the soul of any rich male in the habit of smoking his favorite nephew's cigars; while for our modern blowers of anti-blasts tobacco it furnishes a patent and effective insinuation. This report, however, practically negatives the possibility of such a crime being successfully perpetrated; since it is only in those cases where the impalpable powder is made to mix with the saliva—in other words, where detection is almost inevitable—that this detestable expedient could be effectively employed.—Lancet.

CARE OF THE EYES.—Crawford, the celebrated sculptor, had an inveterate habit of reading in a reclining position; one eye was then taken out in consequence of a cancerous tumor forming behind it, and his life has paid the forfeit, after years of suffering, and the expenditure of a large amount of money.

Prescott, the historian, in consequence of a disorder of a nerve, by which the eyes were rendered useless for all writing purposes could not use a pen, as he was unable to see when it failed to make a mark, for want of ink; nor could he distinguish the lines or edges of his paper; yet, with these disadvantages, he wrote all his histories, using an agate stylus on carbonated paper, being guided as to the lines or edges, by brass wires drawn through a wooden frame; but, with all these hindrances, he has made himself one of the most readable of modern historians, and earned a fortune besides.

To avoid these, and similar calamities, we urge upon the young, especially, never to use the eyes by any artificial light, where nicety of sight is required, nor to use them in any strained position, or while riding in rail cars or carriages.

We urge upon all parents, in view of the many incurable eye diseases, to caution their children against reading by twilight, that is, not before sunrise nor after sunset. It would be greatly better not to allow them to read or sew by any artificial light; but if that is unavoidable, let it be imperative that they cease by nine o'clock at night in summer, and by ten at farthest in the winter. It is a most inexcusable folly, and will, sooner or later, bring its punishment, to read or sew by gas or lamp, or candle light, and then rise by the early daylight next morning, as a habit. To persons of all ages it is a most injurious practice.—Hall's Journal of Health.

TO MAKE WATER COLD FOR SUMMER.—This following is a simple mode of rendering water almost as cold as ice: Let the jar, pitcher, or vessel used for water, be surrounded with one or more folds of coarse cotton, to be constantly wet. The evaporation of the water will carry off the heat from the inside, and reduce it to a freezing point.—In India and other tropical regions, where ice cannot be procured, this is common.

GINGER BREAD SPICED.—Take three quarters of a pound of treacle, one egg, four ounces of moist sugar, an ounce each of mace, cloves, allspice and nutmeg powdered, a pound of oiled butter, and sufficient flour to make a stiff paste; mix well, and make into thick pieces, which should be brushed over the top with the white of an egg, and baked for an hour in a moderate oven.

CUSTARD PUDDING, BAKED.—Boil a pint of cream, with three blades of mace, or a stick of cinnamon; when cold, take four yolks of eggs, sugar to taste, beat them well, and stir into the cream, pour into cups, and bake in a quick oven.

SCALDING MILK.—The Devonshire mode of managing milk, whether intended for the churn or other uses, is to scald it immediately as it is strained from the cow. After this operation, it does not sour so soon, even in summer; and if it is intended for butter making, you have sweet milk for family use, after the cream is taken off. In winter the cream that is taken from scalded milk will not require more than fifteen minutes to bring to butter.

COLD POTATOES SCOLLOPED.—Bruise cold potatoes in a mortar or potato bowl.—Beat well the yolk of an egg, and mix it with warm milk, with some salt, and a small lump of butter, rub the potatoes perfectly smooth, and incorporate the mixture with them: put it into a scollop shell, score it over the surface, and put on it some small bits of butter; brown it in a Dutch oven or with a salamander.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs SEYMOUR, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

1857.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY, Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE, " Amos Pratt,
ONTONAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY, "
(New Propeller,)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller will leave and leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

Love and Sorrow.

Whenever under bowers of myrtle
Love, summer tressed and vernal-eyed,
At morn or eve is seen to wander,
A dark-eyed girl is at his side.

No eye beholds the Virgin gliding
Unsandled through the thickest glooms;
Yet some have marked her shadow moving
Like twilight o'er the whiter blooms.

A golden bow the Brother carries,
A silver flute the sister bears;
And ever at the fatal moment
The notes and arrows fly in pairs

She rests her flute upon her bosom,
While up to heaven his bow he rears,
And as her kisses make it tremble
That flute is moistened by her tears.

The lovely twain were born together,
And in the same shell cradle laid,
And in the bosom of one mother
Together slept, and sleeping played.

With hands into each other's woven,
And whispering lips that speak the same to teach
Each other in their rosy motion
What still their favorites learn from each

Proud of her boy, the mother showed him
To mortal and immortal eye,
But hid, (because she loved her dearer,)
The deeper, sweeter Mystery.

Accept them both, or hope for neither,
Oh loveliest youth, or maid lovelorn,
For Grief has come when Love is welcome,
And Love will comfort those who mourn.

To-Day.

Who hath not dreamed a happy dream,
Revealed thro' memory's light,
And fondly watched Hope's gladd'ning beam,
Arrayed in promise bright?
We muse and mourn o'er days of old,
While fast they flee away;
We would we could their life's behold
To-day, my friend, to-day.

We view the place where oft in sport
We, children laughing, played,
The flowery path where first the thought
Of love its presence made.
There stands the cot where kindred blest
Our mirthful roundelay;
'Tis like a bird's forsaken nest,
To-day, my friend, to-day.

Why should we sigh for scenes long flown.
And leave to-day unscan'd?
Full many a joy aside is thrown,
By those who sigh the past to find,
The sun to all a smile imparts,
And cheers each wanderer's way;
Let's hold its warmth within our hearts
To-day, my friend, to-day.

J. MARTIN LUCK.

A Thrilling Adventure.

We question whether in the history of 'hair-breadth' escapes, a parallel to the following can easily be found. The story was told us by an old and valued friend, now residing in the country near this city, but whose early days were spent near the tragic adventure here recorded,

We give the story as related to us, in the words of the hero:

"It was about the year 1805 that I settled in Virginia near the falls of Kanawha. The country at that time was but an unbroken wilderness. But few settlements had been made there by the whites, and they were so far apart as to render vain all hopes of assistance in case of an attack from hostile Indians—numbers of whom still infested the white neighborhood.

I lived there alone with my wife for several months unmolested, and, by dint of perseverance, being then young and hardy, had succeeded in making quite a large clearing in the forest, which I had planted with corn, and which promised an abundant yield.

One morning after we had dispatched our humble meal, and I had just prepared to venture forth upon my regular routine of labor, my attention was arrested by the tinkling of a cowbell in the cornfield.

'There,' said my wife, 'the cow is in the cornfield.'

But the ear of the backwoodsman becomes, by education, very acute, especially so from the fact that his safety often depends upon the nice cultivation of that sense. I was not so easily deceived. That said I, in reply to the remark of my wife, 'was not the tinkle of a bell upon the neck of a cow. It is a decoy from some Indian who desires to draw me into ambush.

Believing this to be the case, I took down my old musket, (I had no rifle,) and seeing that it was properly loaded, I stole cautiously around the field toward the point from which the sound seemed to proceed. As I had suspected there, in a cluster of bushes, crouched an Indian, waiting for me to appear in answer to his decoy bell, that he might send the fatal bullet to my heart. I approached without discovering myself to him until within shooting distance, then raised my piece and fired. The bullet sped true to its mark, and the Indian fell dead.

Not knowing but he might be accompanied by others. I returned with all speed to the cabin, and having firmly barricaded the door, watched all day from the port holes in anticipation of an attack from the companions of the Indian I had killed. To add to the danger and seeming hopelessness of my situation, I discovered I had but one charge of powder left. I could not make but one shot, and then, if attacked by numbers, I should be entirely in their power.—Determined to do the best with what I had, I poured out the last charge of powder and put it into my musket, and then awaited for the approach of night, feeling confident of an attack. Night came at last. A beautiful moonlight night it was too, and this favored me greatly, as I would thereby be able to observe the movements of the enemy as they approached my cabin. It was some two hours after nightfall, and as yet I had neither heard or seen a sign of the Indians, when suddenly I was startled by the baying of my dog at the stable. I knew that the Indians were coming. The stable stood a little to the west of the cabin, and between the two was a patch of cleared ground, upon which the light of the full moon fell unobstructed. Judging from the noise at the stable that they would advance from that direction, I posted myself at the port hole on that side of the cabin.

I had previously placed my wife on the cross-pole in the chimney, so that in case our enemies effected an entrance into the cabin, she might climb out through the low chimney and effect her escape. For myself, I entertained no hope, but, determined not to be taken alive, I resolved to sell my life dearly.

With breathless anxiety, I watched at the port-hole. At length, I saw them emerge from the shadow of the stable and advance across the vacant ground towards my cabin. One—two—three—great heaven! six stalwart Indians, armed to the teeth, and urged on by the hope of revenge, and I alone to oppose them, with but one charge of powder. My case was desperate indeed. With quick, yet stealthy step, in close single file, they approached, and were already within a few yards of the house, when a slight change in the movement of the forward Indian changed the position of the entire six, so that a portion of the left side of each was left uncovered. They were in a range—one aim would cover all. Quick as thought I aimed and fired. As the smoke cleared away, I could hardly credit what my senses showed me as the result of my shot. The fifteen slugs with which I had loaded my musket, had done their work well; five of the six Indians lay upon the ground, and the sixth had disappeared.

Although no enemy was in sight, I did not venture forth till morning. There lay the bodies of five Indians undisturbed, together with the rifle of the other. Securing the arms and ammunition of the fallen Indians, I followed up the trail of the missing one, until it reached the river, beyond which point I could discover no trace whatever.

From the amount of blood which marked the trail, together with the unmistakable evidence that he had picked his way with difficulty, I was led to believe that he was mortally wounded, and in order to prevent his body from falling into the hands of his white foe, he had groped his way to the river, and had thrown himself into the current which had borne him away.

The Indians are a revengeful race, and that, you may be assured, was no trifling loss, yet in my gratitude for my escape from the merciless savages, I would have been utterly willing to have made greater sacrifice. I was well provided, by means of arms and ammunition taken from the six Indians, in case of a second attack, but fortunately, I proved to be my last adventure with the savages. Not one of the band had escaped to tell the tale and entice his brethren to avenge the death of their other comrades."

"Ah!" exclaimed the old man, while the tears gushed from his eyes at the memory of that eventful night, "that was a glorious shot—the best I ever made."

The hero of this adventure lived to see the rude wilderness where had pitched his lonely cabin, transformed into smiling fields and peopled by hardy and enterprising pale faces, among whom his days were passed in peace and plenty, undisturbed by the presence of his old time foes.

How Tom Corwin rid his Sister of an Obnoxious Lover.

BY A WESTERN MAN.

Every one has heard of the eloquent, patriotic and humorous stump orator of Ohio. He was pronounced by Mr. Clay (a most competent authority) to be the finest stump speaker he had ever heard; and in his opinion I most heartily coincide, after having heard Clay, Crittenden, Jones of Tennessee, Polk, Benjamin Soule, Randall, Hunt, Tom Marshall, Gen. Lamar, Bates, Douglas, and a host of others.

Well, this great orator carried his love of fun into every department of life. In the private circle, where he knew every person and understood himself fully, he was the most delightful and genial conversationalist I ever listened to. I do not know that he now, as age and infirmity are creeping on, indulges his proclivity to humor so much as he used to do. But some twenty years ago he used to tell, with great gusto, the following story:

'In early life—so early that I cannot remember the removal—my father pulled up stakes, and carrying with him the household goods, went from Bourbon Co., Kentucky, where I was born, to Ohio. Not withstanding a rough and tumble struggle with the world, he had a hard time to get on, owing to a numerous and rapidly increasing family. Well, family matters had not much improved when I had reached my thirteenth or fourteenth year.

'At this time there lived in the neighborhood a young man named Pickering.—He had inherited a well stocked farm, was good-looking, and made strong profession of religion. This latter qualification caused him to find peculiar favor in the eyes of my father, who always was blinded by profession of extra piety.

'This fellow had a strong hankering after one of my sisters, who was a very pretty girl. To her he was peculiarly distasteful She seemed always excessively annoyed at his presence. Yet he was ever at her side. She dared not dismiss him entirely, for fear of paternal anger.—Things went on in this way for a year or two, and as I partook largely of my sister's hatred of him, I resolved to get rid of him in some way. I must about for a plan for some time, but nothing occurred that gave me the slightest hope of success.

'At last returning home late one summer night from the mill, I found the family at their nightly devotions. Passing by the window of the room in which they were assembled, I saw that Pickering was there, and pretty soon I discovered that he was nodding and pretty soon his head dropped. Now was my opportunity. I stole softly into the Hall, and reaching the hall door which was slightly ajar, and close by where Pickering was, 'on bending knees' I reached in and quickly pulled his chair from under him; he rolled heavily, as a sound sleeper would, upon the floor. The noise alarmed all. The old gentleman stopped in the midst of his almost interminable prayer, and saw the position of Pickering. All the family laughed outright; even my mother smiled.

'Pickering endeavoured to pick himself up as rapidly as possible, but he had touched the old man on the tenderest point. It was evident, from his rubbing his eyes, that he had slept under the old gentleman's ministrations; and had not my father a reputation far and wide for the fervency of his ministrations, and was not Pickering his professing brother? It would not do. Slowly yet most dignifiedly did the old man approach him. "Be gone hypocrite!" he cried in thunder tones, 'never enter my house again.'

'Pickering was thunderstruck. He felt that he could make no apology which would not add to the insult. He had no suspicion of the exterior force which had aided him in his fall. He at once found his hat, took up his line of march, and completely crestfallen, passed by me as I stood grinning in the shadow of the door.

'At a suitable time I entered, got my supper, was told by a brother, in hurried whispers, what had happened, and then I stole off to bed, affecting ignorance and laughing most heartily, as I ensconced myself in the sheets, at the complete success of my plan.

'Next day I cautiously imparted my secret to my interested sister. She was in her own room at the time, and she threw herself upon the bed and rolled in agonies and convulsions of laughter. She had been emancipated forever from the attentions of an obnoxious lover. The old gentleman did not hear the real state of the facts for full twenty years afterwards; but when he did, he laughed heartily.'

The East India Company.

We have glanced at the history of the Company up to the year 1708, when its charter was settled. We would now trace this till the present day. The capital stock of the Company amounted to £3,200,000 in 1708. This was from time to time increased, until, in the year 1837, it amounted to £6,000,000 formally, but as later purchases were made above par, to £7,248,000 in reality. The machinery of management has hitherto consisted of the Court of Proprietors, the Court of Directors, and the Board of control. The business of the Court of Proprietors used to be to elect the Directors, make by-laws for these gentlemen, and to declare the dividends; while the duty of the Directors was, to appoint the Governor General, the Lieutenant Governors, and all other offices. They had also the right to recal any body who became peculiarly offensive. From 1708 to 1784 the Directors were sovereign. At that date, however, a great change was effected by William Pitt, whose famous India Bill created the Board of Control. This body is chosen by the Crown, and its duty is to superintend the territorial or political concerns of the Company, to read all letters or despatches sent to the Directors, to alter or cancel all despatches sent by the Directors, and, if needful, to ignore the existence of the Directors altogether, and send out orders without, or in opposition to, their wishes.—It will be seen that Mr. Pitt thus took India virtually out of the hands of the Company more than seventy years ago, and that during all that period India has been, in reality, ruled by the Home Government through its nominee, the President of this Board.—The Directors still hold power through the form of electing the Governor General and the Lieutenant Governors, and still retain the right of recall; but the appointment of these officers is made by the Ministry of the day, and the Directors have, so far, as we remember, been only once used during this century, in the case of Lord Ellenborough. Thus, in all matters political and territorial, the East India Company has for seventy-four years been the mouth piece and little more, of the British Government. It would be a mistake to suppose, however, that the Company is in the same position now that it occupied seventy four years ago. Again and again have their privileges been further curtailed. In 1813, their monopoly of the Indian trade was put an end to, the China trade was left with them for twenty years longer; and at the same time it was enacted that the Directors should lay a statement of their receipts and expenditures before both Houses of Parliament in the month of May every year. Thus was the Company still further brought under the power of Britain. In 1833, the China trade was thrown open to all British subjects, and the last monopoly of any moment was at an end. At this time the charter was once more renewed for twenty years; that is, till 1853. What happened then will be fresh in the memory of all men.—The existence of the Company was continued, but the management of it was more than ever placed in the hands of the British Government, inasmuch as the number of Directors was reduced from twenty-four to eighteen, and the appointment of one-third of these taken out of the hands of the proprietors, and lodged in those of the President of the Board of Control. We should have stated further that in 1833, when the Company ceased to be a trading body, its commercial assets were transferred to the nation, subject to the fixed dividend payable on the capital stock; and that from that date, the East India Company has, in reality merely indicated "the holders of a certain species of public stock," whose chief duty has been, and now is, to advise with the President of the Board of Control, and to carry out his orders. This is the state of matters at the present moment. The Company has still the appointment of a portion of the cadets going out from England; but its accounts are in the hands of Parliament; its despatches are prepared, and its responsible officers named by Lord Palmerston; in short, India is governed by the First Minister of the Crown. So much is this the fact that Lord Ellenborough has publicly said, "while President of the Board of Control, I governed India;" and Sir John Cam Hobhouse, now Lord Broughton, who once occupied the same post, has said—"I made the Afghan war." We are still further told that the present Cabinet, when the Persian war was resolved on, actually ordered the Company's troops on that expedition without asking, or at any rate, obtaining their assent.

In stating these historical facts, we are neither arguing in favour of, nor against, any proposed future change. That changes are necessary is plain enough; that radical changes are likely soon to be made is as plain; that these will conduce to centralization, is certain; that the form and ceremony of having a Court of Directors who shall consult with the British Cabinet, will be done away with, seems very probable. On this matter, however, we do not now insist. The whole question will be better considered at a later day. All that we would now argue is the fact, that at the present moment, and for more than seventy years, India has been under the control of the British House of Commons, and that many err in imagining that the East India Company is any longer the ruling power in Hindostan. It turns the crank and no more. Probably even this task will ere long pass into other hands.

Miscellany.

WEATHERCOCKS.—The vane, or weathercock, must have been of very early origin. Virtuvius calls it triton, probably from its having the form of a triton. The usual form on towers, castles and secular buildings was that of a banner; but on ecclesiastical edifices it generally was a weathercock. There was a symbolical reason for the adoption of a figure of a cock. The cross surmounted a ball to signify the redemption of the world by the cross of Christ; and the cock was placed upon the cross in allusion to the repentance of St. Peter, and to remind us of the important duties of repentance and Christian vigilence. Apart from symbolism, the large tail of the cock was well adapted to turn with the wind, and for a similiar reason the arrow and the fox might be chosen, though the hare and greyhound, are less favorable. On the church of St Laurence, in Norwich, the vane is formed like a gridiron, with the lady martyr extended upon the bars.—Notes and Queries.

The following advertisment appeared in one of the St. Petersburg papers:—"To be sold, the portraits of Iman Schamyl, the Indian Chief, the slayer of the English, at 15 copecks each, the proceeds for the relief of the sufferers in the Crimea."

The number of Coroner's inquests held within the City and County of New York during the past year, is stated to have been 1,905, of which 13 were cases of murder, 56 of homicide, 63 of suicide, 389 of organic disease, and 1,402 of accident.

SPARE MOMENTS.—As all bonnets take, it is admitted, five minutes to put on, and as in practice it is found that most of them require considerable more than that time, "husbands in waiting" will do well to follow the example of the Chinese for D'Aguisseau, who finding that his wife always kept him waiting a quarter of an hour after the dinner bell had rung resolved to devote the time to writing a book on Jurisprudence, and putting the project in execution, in course of time produced a work of four quarto volumes.—Notes and Queries.

The Mormons who recently left San Bernardino, Cal, for Salt Lake, made enormous sacrifices in selling their estates. One of them sold his farm and vineyards, which are but ten years assessed at $10,000, for $1000. Another sold property consisting of extensive orchards, a distillery which cost $17,000, a flour mill, saw mill, &c., costing altogether not less than $75,000 for $8000! The fanaticism which prompts to such sacrifices as these must be powerful indeed!

The Indian Revolt.

The country was startled through its length and breadth on the morning of Thursday last by the telegraphic announcement of the death of General Havelock who expired a few days after the relief Lucknow, of dysentery, brought on by exure and anxiety,—of the defeat of Windham by the Gwalior Contingent which the 64th Regiment is reported to have been mostly cut up, and the fate of the regiments, the 64th, the 82nd, burnt by the enemy,—of the subsequent overthrow of this same Gwalior Contingent by Sir Colin Campbell, who captured 16 of their guns, 26 carriages of different kinds, an immense quantity of ammunition, stores, grain, bullocks, and the baggage of the force, with the loss on the part of the British of only one officer, Lieutenant Salmon—and of the arrival of numerous reinforcements at Calcutta.

Such is the substance of the last telegram from the East. We are told, indeed, that, "the contents of the present mail are only what might have been expected." But the English public hardly expected, judging from the past, that two battles would have been fought with the Gwalior Contingent, in one of which the enemy had the advantage, although in the other we appear to have used up the enemy. The Gwalior Contingent, we now find, was a complete army, "containing infantry, cavalry, and a strong artillery, disciplined by our own officers, and accustomed to act together. It numbered more than 8,000 men, seems to have advanced from Calpee in the direction of Cawnpore, and to have been attacked by General Windham. He had the 64th, 82d, and 88th Regiments—in all, about 2,000 men. It would seem that the Commander in Chief, learning of this disaster, at once left Lucknow, and marched back to Cawnpore. On the 7th of December he came up with the Gwalior Contingent, and seems to have totally crushed it. The destruction of this body, which was the great obstacle to tranquility in Central India is certainly a happy event. Its existence as an armed force, supplied with guns and ammunition, and possessed of an excellent military organization, might have been a strong temptation to the Oude Sepoys to try their fortune in the south-west. The scene of war is now entirely shut off from Central India, and now that the Gwalior Contingent has lost its guns and baggage, we hope nothing is to be feared in the British rear. But it is quite possible that, owing to deficiencies of transport, the Commander in Chief may not be able to strike the effective blow for some weeks to come. Plenty of troops seem to have arrived at Calcutta during the fortnight; three regiments of infantry, two of cavalry, together with a battalion of Rifles and a detachment of Artillery. We must express our satisfaction that the women and children have been sent from Cawnpore to Allahabad, so as to be remote from any possibility of danger.

This is certainly not a very encouraging account of the state of things, but it is the best which can be given; and we hope that the next accounts will revive the hopes which the present telegram has depressed. When Lord Dalhousie so unceremoniously annexed Oude to the British possessions, he never calculated, of course, on the terrible retribution which that step would produce. The melancholy feeling produced by the murderous deeds and death of the undaunted Havelock has rarely been exceeded within living memory. The authority we have quoted says: "He did not live to hear of the high value which his country set upon his deeds, or to receive the honors conferred upon him by the Crown. His family he leaves to his country, and his death shows how just were the forebodings of those who demanded that the pension accorded to him should be continued to his son." Nothing would have relaced his brave soul more keenly than, if he had been spared, to enjoy the recognition of his country's gratitude for the deeds of this intrepid commander will compare favorably with any which British valor has performed on Indian soil. Amidst unparalleled difficulties, confronted by vastly superior numbers, surrounded by the foes of opposing influences, and the powers of his body and mind taxed to the utmost, this great and clear-headed soldier sustained the honor of this country in a manner and with a success which have shrined the world's admiration; and now to crown the labors of his untimely end before he had enjoyed the well earned influence of a nation's gratitude is a lamentable incident in the fortunes of war. But his name shall long survive this wretched Indian mutiny, and shall be enshrined in the purest memory with the other brave and distinguished men whom this rebellion has brought prominently before the public ear.

Not the least gratifying set-off to the more cheerless portion of the news is the fact that reinforcements were daily arriving from this country in India. Sir Colin Campbell will require them all. We have no doubt that Oude will be re-conquered, but the operation will evidently require both time and men,—more men than the Commander-in-Chief has at present at his disposal. Hitherto, in the parts of India where our arms have been measured with those of the Sepoys, the non-military portion of the population have been passive spectators of the conflict. They either did not share the spirit of the mutineers, or, if they did, would not risk their lives in the contest.—This is not so in Oude. Here the people are all warlike, and every man's hand shall be against us. We have not merely to thrash the Sepoys, but to subjugate the country, for the patriotic spirit of the native population has been sorely outraged by our recent policy, in the deposition of the native princes.—Liverpool Times.

THE LATE GENERAL HAVELOCK.

Major General Havelock C. B., was born at Bishopwearmouth in 1795, and educated at the Charter House. About 1813, in consequence of adverse fortune, he quitted Park, his father's property in Kent, was sold to Government, and Havelock was entered of the Middle Temple, and attended to the lectures of Chitty, the eminent special pleader where his most intimate associate was the late Sir Thomas Talfourd, the author of "Ion." An elder brother had distinguished himself in the Peninsular war and at Waterloo; and Henry, yielding to the military propensities of his family, endeavoured to obtain a commission. A month after Waterloo he was appointed second lieutenant in the rifle brigade (the 95th), where his military training was assisted by Gurwood (afterwards Sir) Harry Smith, the victor of Aliwal. Havelock served for eight years in England, Scotland, and Ireland, and having at length exchanged into the 13th light infantry, embarked for India in 1823. Next year the first Burmese war broke out, and Havelock was appointed deputy assistant-adjutant general, and was present at the the sea of Napadee, Patanagoh, and Paghan, to the close of the war he was associated with Captain Lumsden and Dr. Knok on a mission to the court of Ava, and had an audience of the "Golden Foot," when a treaty of Yandaboo was signed. In 1827 he published the "History of the Ava Campaign," and in that year he was appointed adjutant of the military depot formed at Chinsurah by Lord Combermere. The Chinsurah establishment having been broken up, Havelock returned to his regiment, and subsequently visited Calcutta, and having passed in the languages at the college, was appointed adjutant of his corps by Lord William Bentinck. In 1838 he was promoted to a company, after having served twenty three years as a subaltern. An army was now collected for the invasion of Afghanistan, and Havelock accompanied it on the staff of Sir Willoughby Cotton. He went through the first Afghan campaign, was present at the storming of Ghuznee and the occupation of Cabul, and then returned to India with Sir Willoughby Cotton. Having obtained leave to visit the Presidency he prepared a "Memoir of the Afghan Campaign," which was soon after printed in London. He returned to the Punjaub in charge of a detachment, and was placed on the staff of General Elphinstone, a Persian interpreter. When the Eastern Ghilzies having risen blockaded Cabul, Havelock was sent to join Sir Robert Sale, then marching back to India, and was present at the forcing of the Khoord Cabul Pass, at the action of Tezeen, and all the other engagements of that force till it reached Jellalabad. In the final attack on Mahomed Akbar, in April, 1842, which obliged that chief to raise the siege, Havelock commanded the right column, and defeated him before the other columns could come up. For this he was promoted to a brevet majority, and was made a Companion of the Bath. He was then nominated Persian interpreter to General Pollock, and was present at the action of Mamoo Keil, and the second engagement at Tezeen. He then proceeded with Sir John McCaskill's force into the Kohistan, and had an important share in the brilliant affair at Istaliff. Next year he was promoted to a regimental majority, and nominated Persian interpreter to the commander-in-chief, Sir Hugh Gough At the close of 1843 he accompanied the army to Gwalior, and was engaged in the battle of Maharajore. In 1844 he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel by brevet. In 1845 he proceeded with the army to meet the invasion of the Sikhs, and was actively engaged in the battles of Moodkhee, Ferozshah and Subraon. At Moodkhee he had two horses shot under him; at Subraon a third horse was smitten down by a cannon shot, which passed through his saddle-cloth. On the conclusion of the Sutlej campaign he was appointed deputy adjutant-general of the Queen's troops at Bombay. The second Sikh war now broke out, and his elder brother, Colonel William Havelock, was killed at Ramnugger. His own regiment, the 53rd having been ordered into the field, he quitted his staff appointment at Bombay in order to join it, and had proceeded as far as Indore when his further progress was countermanded, and he returned to his post. Twenty-five years of incessant and laborious service now began to tell on his constitution, and his medical adviser, in 1840, sent him to Europe for two years for the restoration of his health. He returned to Bombay in 1851, and was soon after made brevet Colonel, and appointed, through the kindness of Lord Hardinge, by whose side he had fought in the three battles of the Sutlej, Quartermaster General, and then Adjutant General of the Queen's troops in India On the dispatch of the expedition to Persia he was appointed to the second division, and commanded the troops at Mohammerah, the glory of which action was, however, reserved for the naval force. On the conclusion of peace he returned to Bombay, but declined to go in the Erin for Calcutta, in which vessel he was wrecked, in 1857, off the coast of Ceylon. Five days after he obtained a passage in the Fire Queen, and on reaching Calcutta was immediately sent up to Allahabad as Brigadier General, to command the moveable column.

His subsequent career has been so recent by the subject of public admiration, that we need do no more than recapitulate the leading incidents. With the greater portion of the 64th and 78th regiments he first attacked the mutineers at Futtypore, on the 12th of July, and on the 15th, at Aoung and at Pandoo Nuddee; on the 16th, at Cawnpore, he had a horse shot under him, and the enemy lost 23 guns. Advancing from Cawnpore on the 29th, he captured Oonss, Bussrut Gunge, and 12 guns.—This position he was obliged to give up, but retook it on the 5th of August, inflicting great slaughter. On the 15th August he again defeated the mutineers, and on the 16th attacked them at Bithoor. Eventually receiving reinforcements under Sir James Outram, he entered Lucknow on the 25th of September, and held his ground there until the garrison was finally relieved by Sir Colin Campbell on the 17th November.

Arrival of the Canada.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF NAPOLEON.

HALIFAX, Jan. 28.

The Royal Mail steamship Canada Captain Lang, has arrived. The news by this arrival is three days later, and is important.

An attempt had been made upon the life of the Emperor Napoleon, but it failed, though a projectile pierced his hat.

The Leviathan had been pushed nearly to the end of the launching ways. Little else would be done till the high tides of January float her.

The London money market was easier. The Bank of England had reduced its rate to five per cent. Messrs. C. J. Gray & Sons, in the Canadian trade, have suspended.

The American barque Adirntic, which we confiscated by the Court of Aix for coming in collision with the steamship Lyonnais, has escaped from Marseilles.

A new Spanish Ministry had been organized.

News from India, one week later, had been received; but there was nothing further than Cawnpore, owing to the interception of mails between Bombay and Calcutta.

FRANCE.

An attempt on the life of the Emperor was made on the evening of the 4th inst., on his arrival at the opera house. Three explosions, coming from hollow projectiles, were heard. Sixty persons were wounded, and three killed. The Emperor's hat was pierced, and his aide de camp slightly wounded. Two females were also wounded, and one of the horses attached to the carriage killed. The conspirators were Italians, and many arrests were made. After the opera, the Emperor was enthusiastically hailed by the populace.

INDIA.

Bombay dates are received to the 24th of December.

The garrison of Futtepore was pressed by insurgents, and had abandoned part of their entrenchments to take up a more secure position.

A body of insurgents had been defeated at Genewer, and 150 killed. Three British officers were killed.

The insurgents in the neighbourhood of Jubbulpore were attacked on the 29th November without decisive result. Reinforcements were marching there.

Several executions of native chiefs had taken place.

The Punjaub, Scinde, and Bombay were quiet.

PARIS, FRIDAY.—Four Italians, including Counts Orsine and Pierra had been arrested. Many other arrests have been made; five persons are dead.

PARIS, SATURDAY.—It appears that the police of Paris were notified by the Belgium police of an intended attempt at assassination of the Emperor. Sixty were wounded, eleven dangerously.

The British Ministry were expected to assemble on the 14th instant.

It is said that the question of the Danubian principalities is now so complicated that no day can be fixed for the meeting of the Paris Conference.

The commercial advices from the French departments state that the buyers that present themselves are very difficult in their purchases; nevertheless, some sales in cotton goods were effected at Rouen on better terms than might have been expected under existing circumstances. The wool trade was dull, prices low and would continue so till trade revived in the other manufacturing towns. The Paris flour market was completely inactive. The bakers showed no desire to buy, and there were consequently more offers than demands. The corn market was also dull; the few farmers that attended during the week asked higher prices than buyers were willing to give, and few sales took place.

With regard to the fraudion the Australian Joint Stock Bank at Sydney, Australia, it is stated that the swindler, Miranda, had drawn only £2 400 on his pretended letter of credit from Barings for £20,000.

The London Times, of Jan. 11, says:—

"The launching was continued as usual throughout Saturday, and resulted in a further advance of ten feet fore and aft. The fore part of the vessel seldom moved until all the forward hydraulic presses were worked up to the full power, which they are now allowed to attain—namely 30 cwt. on the circular inch. The aftermost cradle, on the contrary, was, as usual, much inclined to sink, and generally started when the pressure of the rams on the end had reached 20 cwt, or 23 cwt. on the inch. The fore part on Saturday, therefore, gained considerable on the stern, for the compression of the wood forward being very great under the heavy strain, when the pressure did slip, its recoil was naturally forced her down a greater distance in the ways than at the afterpart, where the effect of the pressure was lost in the moment of an inch or so. The distance yet to be accomplished is between fifty and sixty feet, so that, making every reasonable allowance for the few slips laps that can be expected, there is no doubt that the whole will be completed by Saturday next, at latest. There will not, however, be sufficient water to float the Leviathan till the 31st of this month"

The Times of the 12th says:—

"The operations at Millwall yesterday were attended with unusual success, an average advance of 20 feet having been made in the course of the day. The monster seemed to yield each time to a comparatively low rate of pressure, the gauges on the hydralic presses seldom indicating more than 26 cwt. per circular inch at each slip, and such time, therefore the vibratory motion was proportionately diminished. No slip, however, was longer than three inches, but they took place so constantly as to effect in the course of the day the advance we have mentioned."

The progress made in the Leviathan's launch on the 12th, was 16 feet aft and 15 feet and one inch forward.

Yesterday nearly twenty feet was accomplished in an almost continuous movement of short slips of one and two inches at a time. After dinner further progress was advanced till to-day, when the remaining feet to the bottom of the launching ways is expected to be accomplished. It is expected that she will be moved down the rest of the ways to-day in about an hour, and finally she will be hauled off into the river by Trolmans's anchor.

The King of Delhi's mode of Execution.

The following has been communicated to the Poonah Observer:

"It appears from a journal of a European traveller that a new and fearful mode of execution had been adopted by the King of Delhi. The instrument and process are thus described:

"A box, each side of which is 15 feet square, is constructed of timber 18 inches thick, dove-tailed together, and braced with iron rods. The outside of the bottom of the box is covered with a plate of beaten iron, one inch in thickness. The interior is filled with perfect cubes of granite, weighing in the aggregate, several hundred tons. A machine is erected after the ordinary manner of a pile driver, but of course on an enormous scale, and of tremendous strength. The mass is raised by powerful machinery, cast in Birmingham for the express purpose though it is to be presumed that the machinist by whom the work was furnished, had no idea of the horrid purpose for which it was to be applied. The human victim is placed upon a block of granite, of a corresponding surface, buried in the earth immediately beneath the enormous mass, and covered with a plate of iron. At a signal given by the vicramadack, the executioner touches a spring, the mass falls, and the victim, crushed at once, is suddenly annihilated, and spread out like a sheet of pasteboard. The huge weight being again raised, the flattened body is withdrawn and dried in the sun! When completely prepared, it is hung over the wall of a public building, there to serve as a warning to the multitude.

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 4, 1858.

The Celebrated Forgery Cases.

These cases, which have been the subject of so much glee to certain of the Rankinites, keep unfolding their coil, though at so slow a rate, that it is almost impossible to discover the object or design of the gentleman of all Law, who is conducting the prosecution for the ex-Member. Witnesses have been examined upon all imaginable subjects which have no conceivable bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the parties; but yet this mountain of knowledge thinks, no doubt, that he perceives a speck in the horizon of his imagination, and can, by the system of circumlocution adopted, within a very indefinite space of time, arrive within reach of it. That indefinite time, however, appears as far away at this moment as it did at the commencement of the prosecution; and we are inclined to think, much farther. Something has to be said or done in order to bolster up a desperately bad cause, and unless the late Member can get up some show by which he can work upon, his only chance is gone, and he will be compelled to retire silently into his congenial obscurity, to chew the end of disappointment which his own dishonesty had made for him.

The two subjects of the prosecution, as all know, are Dr. Hawkins and Mr. Murray, than whom two more respectable gentlemen could not be found in the county, and who are less likely to commit a crime of so grave a nature as that laid to their charge, than even Rankin himself, or any other member of the community. But such is the desperation to which the ex Member has been reduced since his defeat, that he has resorted to every foul expedient, in order that he may smooth down the chagrin of his supporters; and with that intention he has attempted, by all sorts of extortions and contortions, to bring home to them, some sort of crime, (they do not appear particular as to the description,) upon which these gentlemen may be bound over to take their trial at the next assizes. Although they have now been under examination for two weeks, and no less than twenty-five or thirty witnesses have been examined, not a particle of evidence has been adduced that would warrant the magistrate in handing the cases over to the assizes; but still to the great inconvenience and annoyance of those gentlemen, they are remanded from day to day, to satisfy the craving and vicious disposition of a defeated candidate, and the insolence of an ignorant booby, who is the legal (!) adviser on all occasions where the dirty jobs of the ex-Member have to be dealt with. We do not wish to accuse the magistrate of partiality, but we are strongly of the opinion that his duty would be performed to the entire satisfaction of all parties, (with the exception, perhaps, of Rankin and his tool,) if he had insisted upon the evidence being at once closed or the parties discharged. The witnesses all live within fifteen miles of Sandwich, and there can be no possible excuse that evidence cannot be produced. In the minds of all unbiassed persons, there can be no doubt but that the causes should have been disposed of in one or two days at furthest. If one single shadow of proof had been brought forward to show that the gentlemen charged were in any way guilty, then the magistrate might, under very extraordinary circumstances, (where witnesses were living out of the country,) remand a prisoner for a week: but in the present case, there was no such necessity—witnesses enough were examined, if there had been cause, to convict half the county.

We hope that the magistrate will not allow this conduct to proceed further, but will take a bold and independent stand, and will either force the complainants to bring forward their testimony at once, or discharge the accused.

We believe there is not a case on record where the same time has been allowed to a complainant to make out a case against an accused person, as in the present. If the legal gentleman is at a loss how to proceed, we would advise him to obtain assistance, in order to extricate himself from the complicated net that he has wound about him, and which appears to be the great stumbling block in the way of proceeding with these cases.

The complainants appear to be in a fair way of getting themselves into a mess that will require more than the wisdom and impudence of their legal adviser to extricate them from.

We copy below from the Globe, an article in relation to the election of North Durham. His Honor Judge Clark, it appears, has acted strictly in accordance with the law, and with the advice of Attorney General Macdonald. Mr. Burton is the Ministerial candidate, and has the good will of the Government on his side, and we have no doubt but that Judge Clark has acted as the law directs:

"We learn that Mr. Burton, after evading a personal service of the notice of protest, by running away from Port Hope, concealing his wife, dismissing his servants, and locking up his house for fourteen days—the time within which the service must be made—appears before the County Judge and contends that he ought not to take any evidence in the case, because the notice was not served personally.

"He admits that he received the notice for he answers it, but denies its sufficiency, because it was not given in a way which he, by his own act, rendered impossible! The Judge, we understand,—George M. Clarke, Esq.,—has decided not to take any evidence although it was sworn that a copy of the notice had been nailed to Mr. Burton's door, and another addressed to him through the post office, within the legal period."

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

This question has at length been settled, by the choice of the City of OTTAWA as the permanent seat of Government of Canada. The matter having been referred to the Imperial Government for settlement, a position that was as nearly as possible upon the line between Upper and Lower Canada, was almost certain to be selected. We certainly would have preferred Kingston to Ottawa; but the appointment of the latter place is far preferable to the perambulating system that has been carried on for a few years past. We hope that the funds will be voted at an early day for the erection of permanent and substantial buildings, that will be in keeping with the times, and a credit to our rapidly improving country.

On the night of the 1st February, the capture was effected of Dr. McGhie, supposed to have poisoned, or assisted to poison, Mr. William Ripley of south Crosby; Ripley's wife being the accomplice. Sheriff McEwan heard that a person of his appearance was lurking about Maidstone Cross, and promptly had him arrested by his efficient Bailiff Mr. Bratt, and another constable. We believe Dr. McGhie has not denied his identity. It was thought he had escaped to the States.

The following are some of the particulars taken from the Kingston Whig:

"In the month of May last, Mrs. Riply complained of poor health, and Dr. McGhie was called to visit her, and made his home in the house, having no settled place of residence. Mrs. Riply's sickness continued for quite a length of time, and it was deemed necessary that Mr. Riply should sleep up stairs in a distant part of the house, while the Dr. and Mrs. Riply slept in the same room below stairs. It appears Mrs. Riply recovered her health and a very interesting friendship took place between her and the doctor, which did not escape the notice of the female inmates of the house, as one of them, on the inquest swore that she observed indecent familiarities between the doctor and Mrs. Riply before and after Mr. Riply's death.

"One morning the tea was said to be all poisoned, and all who partook of it at breakfast vomited violently, and were sick all the day, but without any further injury. This occurrence spread great alarm through out the neighborhood. It was said that the Chinese had poisoned the tea, but it is now considered this was only a prelude to prepare the public mind for the disaster which was shortly to take place.

"On Sunday the 10th of May, Mr Riply, the deceased, drove from Crosby to Bastard, taking with him in his buggy a young woman who had for some time resided at his house, and who was under Dr. McGhie's care. Mr. Riply returned the same evening, and after taking tea, discovered a peculiar sensation in his throat. McGhie and Mrs. Ripley applied toasted potatoes to the part. Next day, Monday, Mr. Riply complained a little of his throat, but was able to take dinner as usual.

"Towards evening it was proposed to give Mr. R. some medicine, but he said he would take none of McG's medicines. Salts were then brought, which the doctor gave Mr. R., and which put him in great distress; after vomiting violently, he was somewhat better, Mrs. R. advised her husband to take a little gruel, which she gave him—(Mr. R. all this time, was not confined to bed). After taking the gruel, he made a sudden spring from the lounge, where he sat; he then fell back, and his lower extremities stiffened; his arms became extended and rigid; his head drawn back; his eyes open and pupils dilated. In this state he died.

"Mrs. R. and the doctor then continued their intimacy up to last week, when a report was spread that the doctor and Mrs. R had got married, although his former wife is still living near Kingston. Such reports were harrassing to the feelings of the father of the deceased Wm. R. It was concluded by the friends of both families, that is, the Riply's and Stevens, that a requisition should be presented to Dr. Miller, the Coroner, calling on him to exhume the body and hold an inquest, which was done, and after a careful investigation of the case by a highly intelligent and respectable jury, who sat for three days and almost three nights, the following verdict was returned:

"It is the opinion of the jury, from the testimony brought before us, that the said Wm. Riply came to his death by some unnatural means, have cause to believe by the testimony that said poison was administered by Benjamin T. McGhie and Mary Ophelia Riply, widow of the late Wm. Riply, with intent to kill, and that the parties implicated be put on their trial."

"Dr. McGhie is a native of the north of Ireland, about 40 years of age; 5 feet 10 or 5 feet 11 inches high; has a long nose, and light blue, almost grey, eyes, inclined to baldness in front, with a low forehead, rising as it recedes; speaks fast and coarse.

"Mr. H. was a healthy active young man kind and amiable in his disposition. When he died, he was a councillor of South Crosby. He was mild and passive in his manner; a little more quickness of foresight might have saved his own life and his wife's degradation.

Mrs. Riply is now in gaol at Brockville awaiting her trial.

Legislative Council Election.

In accordance with the provision of the Elective Legislative Council Act, elections take place in twelve divisions in September, 1858, and already there are many Gentlemen pursuing an active canvass of the voters. Six are to be chosen in Upper Canada, in the following divisions:

Tecumseth Division.—The counties of Huron and Bruce.

Gore Division.—The South Riding of Waterloo and the North Riding of Oxford.

Erie Division.—The East and West Riding of Brant and the county of Haldimand.

York Division.—The city of Toronto and the township of York.

Cataraque Division.—The counties of Addington and Frontenac and the city of Kingston.

St. Lawrence.—The town of Brockville and township of Elizabethtown, the south riding of Grenville, the north riding of Leeds and Grenville, and the county of Dundas.

In Lower Canada the six are as follows:

Gulf.—The counties of Gaspe, Bonaventure, Rimouski.

La Salle.—Part of the county of Quebec, the county of Portneuf, and all that part of the Banlieu of Quebec which lies within the parishes of Notre Dame Quebec.

Sorel.—The counties of Richelieu and Bagot, and part of the county of St. Hyacinthe.

Repentigny.—The counties of L'Assomption and Montcalm, and part of Joliette.

Mille Isles.—The counties of Vercheres, Chambly, and Laprairie.

Alma.—The parishes of Long Point, Pointe aux Trembles, River des Prairies, Sault aux Recollects, in the county of Hochelaga, and that part of the parish of Montreal which lies to the east of the prolongation of St. Denis street, the county of Laval, that part of the city of Montreal which lies to the east of Bonsecours and St. Denis streets, and their prolongation.

Contested Elections.

The first session of the new Parliament promises to be fruitful in election contests. There are no less than 27 or 28 members returned whose elections have not been entered. In Lower Canada there are 16 and in Upper Canada 12. The following list shows the members wose seats are contested, as well as the candidates who would, if the sitting members were displaced, and where a second election would be necessary, become members elect:—

	Members Declared Elected.	By Whom Opposed.
Ottawa City	Scott	Bell
Toronto	Brown, Robinson	Boulten
Durham East	Burton	J. S. Smith
Petersborough	Short	Conger
Wellington, North	Allen	Webster
Russell	Fellowes	Loux
Perth	Daly	Macdougall
Oxford, South	Dr. Connor	Bell
Grey	Hogan	Dr. Hamilton
Essex	McLeod	Rankin
Renfrew	McDougall	Supple
Quebec, City	Alleyn, Simard, Dubord	Plamondon, Evanturel, Huot
Quebec County	Panet	Evanturel
Lothiniere	D'Farrell	Noel
L'Islet	Caron	Fourner
Temiscouata	Dionne	Pouliot
Montmorency	Cauchon	Bernier
Beauce	Ross	Chasse
Trois Rivieres	Dawson	McDougal
Drummond and Arthabaska	Dunkin	Dorion
Montreal	Ross, McGee	Holton, Scates
Vercheres	Cartier	Prefontaine
Soulanges	Coutlee	Guindon
Assomption	Archambaus	Pasin

A certain proportion only of these pro'ests have been made in good faith, and with the intention of prosecuting them. Others have been made in the heat of disappointment, and as a convenient method of explaining a defeat.—Leader.

ORDINATION.—The Bishop of Toronto held an Ordination in the Cathedral Church of St. James on Monday, January 25th, (being the festival of the Conversion of St. Paul) when the following persons were ordained:—

PRIEST—The Rev. C. H. Drinkwater, B. A., Cantab Travelling Missionary, in the County of Wellington.

DEACON—Mr. Henry William Stewart, B. A., Senior Moderator, Trinity College, Dublin, appointed Assistant Curate to Guelph and parts adjacent.

The Panic!

The intelligence brought by the Canada that the Bank of England had reduced its rate of discount to 5 per cent, justifies the conclusion, that the financial crisis in England is over. The process of recovery has been unusually rapid. No one would have supposed a month ago, that in the face of unfavorable news from India, the Bank of England would, in so short a time, be enabled to lower its rate of discount one-half from the figure at which it then stood. There were not wanting gloomy prophets who predicted that the United States would not recover from the effects of the crisis in less than three years. The events which have since occurred leave no doubt of the falsity of this prediction.

Amid all the wreck and disaster of the crisis through which the commercial world in Europe and America has just passed, much good will be found. A mania of speculation, checked by no reason and confined within no manageable limits, had become epidemic, as well in Europe as in America. In France, the Credit Mobilier had encouraged every species of speculation. England was expected to find capital to carry out every species of enterprise, sound and unsound, in every part of the world. In the United States and Canada, speculation had inflated prices to an enormous extent. The effect of the commercial crisis has been to bring down prices to something approaching a rational standard. To produce this result, a commercial crisis was alone adequate.

Canada has passed through the crisis with great credit to herself. In the United States a general suspension of specie payments was resorted to by the banks, and while the English Government found it necessary to advise the infraction of the Bank of England charter, Canada was not under the necessity of resorting to any extreme or unusual expedient. That she felt severely the pressure of the times, and that she still feels it to some extent, it would be folly to deny. Our banks, however, have been able to maintain specie payments. The question of suspension was never at any time generally entertained, and when it was mooted by the Quebec Board of Trade, the proposal was at once negatived by the unanimous opinion of the whole Province. Our banks never, for a single day, suffered a loss of public confidence. The mercantile community was well satisfied to have its wants moderately supplied; and fortunately our banks were not called upon to provide for the fears of a panic stricken populace. We do not claim as any proof of the perfection of our banking system, that these institutions have been enabled to withstand the storm, while the thousand banks of the neighbouring country were laid prostrate. One advantage they had on their side was that the possession of large capital and resources enabled them to sustain reverses which would have proved fatal to weaker institutions. A loss that would have sufficed to close a small Buffalo bank, would produce no sensible effect upon the large resources and more ample means of a Canadian bank.

The fact that the crisis has past will render unnecessary any immediate legislation on the currency question. Thus events have postponed the practical consideration of a question which it would have been dangerous to approach in a period of commercial crisis. The present time is not unfavorable to that preliminary discussion which must precede the legislative handling of so intricate and difficult a question. With money at 5 per cent. in England, our banks will be able to make a profitable use of their English credits. Six and seven per cent. first class railroad bonds, which could not be flatted so long as the Bank of England's rate of discount was 9 or 10 per cent., will now become marketable securities. New industrial enterprises, which promise a fair return for the capital necessary to be invested in them, but which have had to be postponed in consequence of the scarcity of money, will now stand a chance of being set successfully afloat. Through these means, it is reasonable to suppose we shall soon feel the advantages of a new influx of foreign capital. Some time must elapse, however, before the effects of the crisis will cease to be felt. We have realized only to a very moderate extent upon the produce of last year's industry; a very large proportion of the produce of the harvest remaining undisposed of in the farmers' barns. The farmers have, in some cases, been holding off for sleighing, which has not yet come during the whole of this winter, and in others for higher prices, which stubbornly refused to arrive. Until the produce of last year's harvest shall have been chiefly disposed of, money matters need not be expected to be very easy in Canada. The great reduction which has recently taken place in the value of money will render available an investment which was at one time entirely unattainable for selling the produce of last year's harvest afloat.—Leader.

Detroit, Milwaukee and Great Western Railway.

We understand the long pending negotiations of this Company for the means to complete the Line to Lake Michigan, and thus open to our beautiful city a new and shorter route to the Great Northwest which centres at Milwaukee, were completed yesterday. The Board of Directors were re-organized in accordance with the terms of the negotiation, and now consists of the following gentlemen, viz:

Robert Gill, Esq., London England.
William Gowan, Esq., Glasgow, Scotland
Chas. J. Brydges, Esq., } Hamilton, c. w.
Thomas Reynolds, Esq., }
John Hillyard Cameron, Esq., London, c.w.
H. C. R. Becher, Esq.,
Henry N. Walker, Esq.,
N. T. Stewart, Esq., } Detroit.
E. A. Brus, Esq., }

At a subsequent meeting of the Board, Charles J. Brydges Esq., was elected President, Thomas Reynolds, Esq., Vice President, and C. C. Trowbridge, Esq., Secretary.

We are informed that the work on the line will be speedily resumed, and it is expected the road will be opened to Grand Rapids by the 1st of April, and to Lake Michigan early in the summer. We may not but congratulate the people living along the line of this important thoroughfare, upon the certain completion of road. Too much praise cannot be awarded to the late Board, who have, for four years, pushed forward this work against all obstacles. The building of this Railway has added many millions to this State. It is by far the most important, opening as it does the fertile valleys of the Shiawassee, Maple, Lookinglass, and Grand Rivers. In due time, under the management of the present Board, we hope to see such encouragement given to the various works contemplated for opening the northern portion of our State as to secure to Michigan the best system of railways of any State in the Union.

It will be seen that a majority of the present Board are the gentlemen who have so ably and successfully managed the Great Western Railway of Canada—a road which is now and always has been a favorite with the citizens of Detroit and Michigan.

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL.—The Chicago Press, of the 15th instant, speaking of the above undertaking, says:

"Let the Georgian Bay Canal be built, and the second city upon the Lakes will be Toronto, and the foreign commerce of the vast fertile regions around and west of the great lakes must concentrate at Montreal. To this same our attention has been turned to this subject, it has always appeared amazing that there should be any doubt of this proposition, either in Toronto or Montreal, or that both these cities should not cordially unite their influence and their energies to carry forward this great enterprise. Stranger still does it appear that the citizens of Toronto should put to a man be alive to its importance. If Toronto and Montreal had no regard to the trade of the Western States, the development of their own vast and fertile territories north and west of Lake Superior should alone direct their attention to this route as of prime necessity and importance."

In reference to the survey of this work, which the Press expresses an anxiety to see completed, we are glad to say, that the plans are all ready, and that the report will also be completed in the early part of next week. We are confident that the work will quite justify the labor and expense of the survey.—Colonist.

DISTINGUISHED GALLANTRY.—The following extract from a letter of Colonel Campbell, 52nd regiment, will be read with interest. The gallant and lamented young officer to whom Colonel Campbell refers, and whose daring achievements cost him his life, was the son of J. F. Bradshaw, Esq., of Quebec:

"Hearing that a gun was placed in a position bearing down the street, upon arriving at a point from which the gun could be seen, I detached a party to get to its rear through a bye street, but, before this party arrived at its point, the gun was taken with a rush without loss, except Lieut. Bradshaw, who, regardless of danger, received a discharge which killed him on the spot."

The weather continues exceedingly mild. Many of the farmers westward are plowing, and out door labor continues. From England we learn that at Christmas ripe Raspberries were gathered in the gardens, that nests of young birds were frequently met with, and the valleys were full of song.—Even with us, in Barrie, a large moth butterfly was caught flitting about our Town on Monday last, and was placed in safe lodgings at Fraser's Hotel.—Barrie Ad.

HONORABLE PRESENTATION.—The Mercury informs us that on Friday last, in the presence of the Royal Artillery, the 17th and 30th Regiments, Private Richard Beswick of the latter corps was presented by Major General Trollope with the new decoration for long service and good conduct. The Major General commanding the division himself presented the medal, (instead of transmitting it to Col. Munro,) as a mark of his appreciation of the good conduct of the regiment during the period it had been under his command in Quebec.

THE NEW YORK Tribune says that private advices, received by the New Orleans Picayune from the city of Mexico to the 13th instant, announce the bombardment of the capital by President Comonfort's opponents. A desperate conflict for several days terminated by a truce for forty eight hour, which was on the point of expiring when the steamship Tennessee, which brought the news, sailed. Over one hundred lives had already been lost.

LUDICROUS SCENE IN A COURT ROOM.—Among the prisoners awaiting sentence in the Brooklyn Police Court, last Monday, says the New York Express, was an Irishman upon whose face the small pox was found to be just breaking out with great violence. A general stampede took place, the officer turned hastily white and made a somerset out of the window, and the judge, thinking the building was falling, went after the clerk in a most undignified manner, while the Deputy-Sheriff and other officers climbed the posts and took refuge among the rafters. The poor Irishman was forced out of the door and bidden to go home away and never to return; and as no one would venture back, the court was pronounced to stand adjourned.

CHRISTMAS IN LONDON.—The London papers contain very ample details of the Christmas festivities. In all workhouses, hospitals, and lunatic asylums, and in suburbs the poor were regaled in the customary style of the season; but we are glad to learn that the number of paupers was comparatively small, and the cost of their entertainment less than on some former occasions. The returns from seventeen parishes in the metropolis have diminished since last year 3145; and in twelve other parishes the increase has been 1820, being a diminution of 1326.—Between 30,000 and 40,000 persons were supplied with a Christmas dinner in the London workhouses.

THE CIRCASSIAN MEMORIAL.—We have at length received the appeal of the Circassian chiefs asserts—what is indeed sufficiently well known—they never sanctioned the right of the Porte to cede their country to Russia. On the contrary, as far as they could, by every means available to a primitive people, the Circassians have protested against and resisted the treaty of Adrianople, and resisted the treaty of Adrianople, and resisted to them. The memorials pray that the European powers will restore to them the line of east wrested from them by Russia, and pledge themselves to assist the commercial development of the country along the Eastern coast of the Black Sea.

Municipal.

Before any alteration can be made in the limits of a school section, notice must be given to the parties interested in the proposed alterations before the passing of the By-Law authorizing the same.—(Griffiths, v. Municipality of Grantham, 6 U. C. C. P. 274.)

The Magistrates in Quarter Sessions have no power to order furniture for the Court House, and the County Council are not liable for furniture so supplied. The fact that the Court House was also used as a shire hall for the sittings of the Council, and the furniture made use of by them could make no difference.—(Coombs v. Municipal Council Co. of Middlesex.)

A person gave his bond to a municipality to put up a mill on his own land, and being sued upon it pleaded performances, which at the trial he failed to prove, and a verdict was rendered against him for £12 10s.

The Court refused to interfere, but it was stated that if the objection had been taken in time no action could be maintained by the municipality on such a bond without showing on the record something to warrant them in taking it, the control being one wholly without the scope of their charter.—(Township of Kinloss v. Stouffer.)

At the close of the poll the returning officer declared A duly elected, but afterwards revised an affidavit from one B. that his vote had been entered by mistake for A., on which he altered this vote on the poll-book, and the numbers being then equal for A. and B., he added his own casting vote as returning officer for B., and returned that he was duly elected.

The Court held that the returning officer had no power to alter the poll-book after the close of the poll; that B.'s election was illegal; and that A. should be seated.—(Reg. ex rel Acheson v. Donoghue (Councillor) and Bennet (Returning Officer).—Barrie Advance.

POISONED BY TOBACCO.—The Prairie du Chien Leader says that a man at Patch Grove cut his finger last week, with a knife which he was cutting tobacco with. It was a slight cut, but his hand and arm soon began to swell, and in a few days he died from the effects of it.

NEW CANADIAN REGIMENT.—Saturday's Quebec Military Gazette talks with confidence as to the intended immediate formation of a new Canadian Regiment of troops.

Yesterday morning the editor of the Daily News was shown a sprig of violets, plucked from the garden of Mr A. Thibeau, this morning, having one full blown flower and two buds just bursting into maturity.

TORONTO, Feb. 2, 1857.

The supply of marketable commodities offered this morning was large, though perhaps scarcely equal to the usual quantity. The demand was brisk, but no alteration in rates is quotable.

Wheat—Very little offered in market to day. The quantity on the market scarcely exceeds 250 bushels. Sold to small purchasers at 4s to 4s 6d (80c to 90c) per bushel.

Flour continues dull, and we still quote prices at $3 40 to $3 50 for No. 1 Superfine; $3 70 to $3 75 for Fancy; and $4 for Extra.

Spring Wheat comes forward very slowly. It brings 70c to 75c per bushel.

Barley—Some 3 or 4 loads offered, and were brought up at 40c to 55c per bushel.

Rye remains with at much enquiry, and none offers.

Oats are only moderately supplied and sell at 30c to 35c per bushel.

Peas are rather scarce, and command 45 to 49c.

Butter was in good supply, and was much enquired for. The prevailing rates are 21c to 25c, per lb.

HEALTH OR SICKNES
CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, theliver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system,

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds,

 Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maid-n Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. 1m43

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

PHŒNIX BITTERS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE now before the Public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last 25 years upwards of Four Millions of persons have been benefited by the use of these Medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties—a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities—The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly affect.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XVIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is divided into the following departments:—

COTEMPORARY PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most prized religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable in each family, obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, [post paid] to JOHN DOUGALL, Witness Office, Montreal

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the heat when rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influences

Skin Diseases & Glandular Swellings!

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. ANGRY EBURTIONS, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABIES (or Itch) &c., to die out, to return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world prove its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

Ulcers, Sores & Tumours!

The effect of this unrivalled external remedy upon Scrofula and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

Wounds, Bruises, Burns & scalds.

In cases of the fracture of the bones injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises Burns, Scalds. Rheumatism Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and universally recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

Undeniable Testimony!

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gunshot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be usep in the following cases.

Bunions,	Skin Diseases,
Burns,	Swelled Glands,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Legs,
Chilblains,	Sore Breasts,
Fistula,	Sore Heads,
Gout,	Sore Throats,

A Gift of one Thousand Copies.

RUSSELL & RICARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Thalberg, Dreyschock, Jewell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musicians Guide will be ready this month. On perusing a copy of some of the most important plates in the course of its delay, it is a large quarto of 55 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a descriptive index to the ideas of over 600 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of his work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to people interested in music, and we will PAY THE POSTAGE.

N. B.—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. The work will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

☞ You will probably get a copy FREE of all EXPENSES, by sending your name and address without delay to

RUSSELL & RICARDSON,

Musical Publishers of Boston.

To EDITORS.—Russell & Richardson will send you two dollars worth of their latest Musical publications and the MUSICIAN'S GUIDE, postage paid, if you will give the above advertisement (including this offer,) one insertion in your paper.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line for the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered first class and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Edmonds, Buffalo, and consignees from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY,	Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE,	" Jesse Pratt,
ONTONAGON,	" A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC,	" M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ,	" W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY, (New Propeller,)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Albany, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an agreement with the Fire Proof TOWN BUILDING, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighbouring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

QUEEN VICTORIA AND HER AUNT.—A correspondent of the Puritan Recorder gives the following reminiscence of a visit to the house of the Rev. Dr. Raffles: "After tea he took us into his study, and showed us his library of 15,000 autograph letters. We saw a letter of Calvin, Mary Queen of Scots, of Cromwell, letters of every sovereign of Europe from Henry VII. to Victoria, a sweet little note, dated "Windsor Castle, 1839," addressed "to my dear aunt on her birthday," wishing her many returns of this anniversary, and begging to "lay at her feet the accompanying bracelet and portrait of myself," concluding with a petition for the richest blessings, and "so prays your affectionate niece, VICTORIA R."

...Extraordinary has jotted down a ...f incidents during the week, which ...arrange in the order of their date:

Tuesday our printing office was for a great part of the day closed, by order of the guard stationed in the calle de la Independencia. This order, coupled with the firing of shots against the windows, proved enough to leave our paper half-pica when on the eve of going to press.

Wednesday President Comonfort entered in person the different quarters of the city, occupied by the faithful troops of the Government. He was everywhere received with the warmest demonstrations of friendship and devotion. The troops remaining faithful are believed to be reliable.

Troops for the Government have arrived in the city from Toluca and Peuabla. The number of these troops we do not exactly know. Gov. Arteaga, of Queretaro, had arrived at and passed Arroyo-seco with the vanguard of troops from the interior. This numbers 25000 men.

It is reported that President Comonfort purposes asking the foreigners to form a legion for the protection of foreign property in the event of affairs becoming more desperate.

Thursday, Osollo entered the city with a small force. His arrival was announced by a general jubilee of the bells, he at once arranged himself under the banners of the pronunciados.

Same day the pronunciados closed all kinds of business in the Calle San Augustin. Among other noble feats of valor they broke up the printing office of our worthy contemporary, the Heraldo. The types were scattered, the form broken up, and books, manuscripts, &c., scattered and destroyed.

Perhaps the following, however, which is the winding up of the Extraordinary's "jotting down of incidents," throws some light upon the real character of this terrible battle and bombardment:—

On Friday morning, Mr. Torres, editor of the Monitor, was passing near the convent of San Augustin, he was fired upon three times. We are informed that he gallantly returned the fire with a Colt's revolver. No harm was done on either side.

An attempt was made on Friday to enter the house of a foreigner by a detachment of one of the commanding forces. The foreigner resisted, and successfully carried his point by threatening to fire on them if they did not desist.

The unbounded sight to our minds is the deplorable apathy that pervades the great bulk of the native Mexican inhabitants of this capital. During the heat of the firing on Friday the shops, cafes, the protected balconies, and the shady sides of the streets, were crowded with well dressed and gentlemanly looking men, who whiffed their cigarrets and dealt in such topics of conversation as were most interesting. But few manifested any great interest except what might be prompted by fear or curiosity. The number of genteel looking people who appeared to take any real interest in what was transpiring was really very small.—N. Y. Com. Advertiser.

A Fight in the House !!

ASTONISHING NEWS FROM WASHINGTON !

When our last report from Washington closed, on Thursday night, the House had not adjourned, but was discussing the reference of the President's message to a committee, —the anti-Lecomptonists wishing to send it to a select committee, while the other side wished it to go to the committee on Territories. From later reports it seems it lasted all night, and Saturday morning adjourned over to this (Monday) morning, without coming to a vote.

About half-past one o'clock Saturday morning one of the most disgraceful scenes occurred, that has ever marred the reputation of an American Congress. The member from South Carolina—we will not say his honorable member—Mr. Keitt, made a bullying, cowardly, personal attack, upon Mr. Grow, of Penn., and an altercation ensued, which engaged a dozen or more members,—in short, it was a fist fight on the floor of our National Congress! The telegraph informs us of the nature of the provocation. If that information is correct, Mr Grow stood more than most men would from a loafer and a bully, before he knocks him down.

That the affair should engage other members, is quite natural; what part they acted, it depends on facts, whether they were justified.—We said it was a disgraceful row. Perhaps it was not so much so, as we would at first naturally think, especially on the defensive. That it was disgraceful in the fellow Keitt, to make such an attack, there can be no question. That it was disgraceful for Mr. Grow to defend his person against such a loferish attack, no one will pretend.

Keitt, doubtless, supposed he was debating with one of his plantation niggers, when he took Grow by the throat, but we are glad to find that the Southern bully members are beginning to find they have free-men to deal with, when they attempt coercion and force, and that blows can be given for blows. Let them once let it be understood that that is their game, and they can soon be made satisfied to quit, although it is not the interest or breeding of Northern members to become contaminated with such characters, as they prefer the association and good will of gentlemen, but will not allow even black guards and loafers to trample upon them.

As such attacks heretofore have too frequently come from Southern members, it casts a stain upon many from that section of our Union, who are truly gentlemen, and would not lower themselves to such base practices, among gentlemen. If Kiett is as clearly in the wrong as the telegraph reports him, we do not see how the House can suffer him to retain his seat. He most certainly should be promptly expelled—he is disgrace to all already.

It certainly is a glaring shame upon the State of South Carolina, to have her members so conspicuous as mere bullies—champions of the ring—only second editions of the Tom Hyers and Bill Sullivans—and poor editions at that, and without the manliness or courage. Keitt will be remembered as the faithful body guard of the gallant Brooks, of the same State, who performed the valiant feat of sneaking up behind Senator Sumner, while engaged in writing at his desk, and unmanly killing him by a beastly and cowardly attack with a cane—par nobile fratum—two fit representatives of South Carolina.

That our readers may have Keitt's portrait to look at as they read this, we subjoin it, as drawn by the correspondent of the Evening Post several weeks since:

Another man excites considerable curiosity among northern people here. It is the Hon Mr. Keitt of South Carolina. His great exploit, that of acting as the body guard to the deceased Brooks when he struck down Senator Sumner, would alone make him (Keitt) while he stays in Congress, a man of note there. It is not difficult to single him out. Once seen, he is never forgotten. He is probably one of the vainest men in the House; he keeps his seat but a few moments at a time, and his every look and gestures as any monkey in the London Zoological Gardens. Is there a pretty lady in the gallery? Be sure that Mr Keitt is looking at her, and pleasantly stroking his whiskers. Wait a few minutes, and if he knows it he will see him at her side. When taking his daily exercise on the floor, he has a gait peculiarly his own—like that of a spavined mare. He throws up his chain, brings a heavy scowl upon his face, and covers the open space in front of the Speaker's chair. This is the member who represents the fire-eaters in the House—the disunionist—par excellence.—When he speaks he generally acquits himself well If he would dispense with his grimaces, he would make a fine orator.

ECKEL DISCHARGED.—The case of John Eckel, accused of participation in the murder of Dr. Rudolph Cramer, lying in the New York Court of Oyer and Terminer on Monday, when Mr. Graham, counsel for Mr. Eckel, suggested that inasmuch as Mrs. Cunningham, who was accused of having been principal in the crime, had been acquitted by a jury of her countrymen, the prosecution should move a nolle prosequi. Mr. Eckel since the acquittal of Mrs. Cunningham, had been permitted to go at large on his own recognizances until the October term, but no action had been taken at that time through inadvertance. Mr. Sedgwick then moved it, and the Court discharged the accused. This is probably the last act in the drama which absorbed public attention so long, and the murderer, whoever he or she may be, will probably remain, except in the conjectures of individual minds, unexposed, as it will probably not be convicted. The discharge of Mr. Eckel, under a motion of nolle prosequi does not bar any future indictment for the same offence, as the case has really not been tried.

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 11, 1858.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

The last election has proved to any reasonable minded man the urgent necessity that exists for the adoption of a system of registration of voters, which will hereafter prevent the recurrence of the abominable system of fraud, of which we have so often occasion to make mention, in other counties as well as our own; and which are growing into such large proportions that all fair dealing in many municipalities has been wholly laid aside; and not a few contemptible hirelings of old political hacks, have exercised these unlawful and disreputable means to force into Parliament, men whom the intelligence and respectability of the country have discarded and cast from them as they would the very filth of the earth.

There is hardly a journal that we have taken up since the last general election, that professed at all to respectability, but has touched upon this very important subject, and recommenced the registrative system; and we hope the cry will resound from one end of the province to the other, until the matter shall have been taken up and brot to a proper termination: and this can only be accomplished by the united action of all honest and upright members, and more particularly by those against whom these foul and dastardly means have been used to effect their exclusion from Parliament.—The member for Essex, we hope, will use his utmost endeavors to bring about a system which will hereafter remove the power from the few hirelings which had well nigh, in the last contest, caused his defeat, although a large majority of the honest and enlightened voters of the County of Essex were in his favor.

The time has now come when it becomes the duty of all honest men, to uphold the greatest bulwark of the people's liberties, namely, the freedom of our elections. If the purity of the election is allowed to be interfered with, we may bid adieu to our long boasted freedom and liberal institutions. When the time comes, that members are elected to our Parliament through violence and brute force, and when the honest and respectable elector is driven from the polls by bands of low and ignorant ruffians, then it will be too late to speak of a remedy; the evil will then have grown to such magnitude that it will be impossible to remove it. It is now, after the first attempt to carry the elections by force and violence, as in the County of Essex, and also in other counties, that the remedy should be applied, and that with a power that will be fully felt; and no more effectual means can be adopted, in our opinion, to check the growing evil, than the adoption of a system of Registration of Voters, somewhat similar to that in use in the old country.

Popular institutions become a curse, instead of a blessing to a people, if they have not the power or the inclination to carry them out by the forces of reason; for so soon as brute force shall have taken the place which should be occupied by argument and common sense, we might just as well live under the rule of a despot, and far better, for no despotism is worse than that which is engendered by the fury of an unrestrained mob.

In writing upon this subject, the Oswego Times says:

"The first result of the late Canadian election is a general outcry in both the Provinces for a general Registry Law, as the only means of preventing illegal voting at the elections. The absolute necessity of such an enactment is equally felt on both sides of our lakes, and we hope the greatest complicity between us will be in the endeavor which of us will first obtain it."

A somewhat extraordinary case has been brought before our notice, in which a certain Majistrate has assumed the duties of Judge and Jury, in a manner that will surprise the ordinary plain thinking run of mortals, who inhabit this section of Her Majesty's Dominions. The facts of the case as far as we can learn, are these; two young men were brought before the aforesaid J. P. for stealing some half dozen bunches of corn, which by the way the culprit were caught in redhanded from whence they had first taken it, their conscience having smote them for having taken what did not belong to them, when he with a due regard, no doubt, for the Law of the Land, and a proper respect for the protection of his neighbour's property fined the aforesaid culprits each the sum of $10 and costs, and last but not least, sentenced them each to seven years transportation in foreign lands. Only yesterday, ye Juvenile sinners, what fate may await you, at any moment, if this terror to evil doers, should only have the opportunity of sitting in Judgment upon you. We would advise all who are addicted to pilfering and stealing, to mend their ways hereafter, lest they may be transported also.

If possible, we will report the case fully upon another occasion, and will send it to be reported in the Law Journals for the guidance of the Judges; it will be valuable as a precedent, if nothing else.

The Forgery Cases.

These cases have at length been disposed of, or rather the parties have been bound over to take their trials at the next assizes; the evidence upon which they were committed certainly did not tend to prove them guilty, but on the contrary, established the fact that they could not be in any way implicated in the alleged charge; and for a proof of our assertion, we have only to take the words of the Mercury, where they are forced to admit in last week's issue that "it was clearly established that forgery was committed but by whom is not so clear" Now when we find that the Mercury is so generous in its admission, we clearly are of opinion, that it may safely be taken for granted that nothing at all was proved, to lay the charge of forgery against them:

But the fact of the matter is, a certain amount of bluster must be got up, and capital had to be made out of something that Rankin might not die politically without a struggle.

If his purpose was as pure, as he would strive to lead the public to believe, why does he not have up certain officials in Maidstone, where it is certain that the rankest and most desperate frauds were committed, in order to swell the list of voters for Rankin where some two hundred names mysteriously got upon the poll book, between the close of the first day's polling and half past seven o'clock of the second day. These are things which, of course, the pure and honest Rankin knew nothing of. Oh! no. It was all right in Maidstone, for the rascality was in his favor; and his keen perception of right could detect no wrong, where he was personally benefited.

Rankin should be the last person to talk of frauds and forgery, when his whole election was conducted in fraud and dishonesty. He has no idea perhaps, that it is known to others beside himself, of the four dollar men, who voted so purely out of love for Rankin, and had no other motive whatever

These and a few other trifling matters will be brought to light at the proper time, and in a manner that will show up things in their true colors, when the public will have an opportunity of judging for themselves.

☞ The appointment of Mr Sidney Smith, of West Northumberland, as Post Master General, and the Hon. John Ross, as Receiver General, will again place the McDonald Ministry upon their legs. There can be little doubt at present, we are inclined to think, but that the ministry will be sustained. The opposition will no doubt strive, with energy, to displace them, but at present, without success; although before the session closes, subjects will be brought up which will severely try their strength.

A CANADIAN MORMON.—From the Christian Guardian we derive the subjoined most startling item of matrimonial indoctrination:—"By the Rev C Silvester, at the residence of the bride's mother, Dec 30th, Mr Robert Winfield, to Miss Catherine Ann Tribe, both of Pilkington." Brigham Young may now hide his diminished head, and that quam primum. He cannot hold a candle to Mr Robert of Pilkington. The Mormon polygamist can only boast of some dozen, or so of wives, whilst Mr Robert has led to the altar an entire tribe.—Streetsville Review.

Appointments.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Toronto, 2nd February, 1858.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz:

The Honorable John Ross, to be a Member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

The Honorable John Ross to be Receiver General of the Province of Canada, in the room of the Honorable Joseph C. Morrison resigned.

Sydney Smith, Esquire, to be a Member of the Executive Council of the Province of Canada.

The Honorable Sydney Smith, to be Postmaster General of the Province of Canada, in the room of the Honorable Robert Spence, resigned.

The Buffalo Express, of January 30th, contains the following:—The Emigrant Agent at this point complains that large numbers of destitute emigrants are continually calling upon him for aid, and that he cannot relieve them. Will the charitable societies look to this? No emigrant should be allowed to die for want of the necessaries of life; besides, he can vote next fall—so cherish him!

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf

Sandwich, Feb. 5, 1858.

SIR,—Having heard an account of the death and inquest of the deceased WILLIAM RILEY, I think it my duty to inform you of the whole details, in order that the public may form a true and impartial account of the whole matter—of his death—and the cause of the Coroner's inquest nearly nine months after his burial.

When he was taken sick, I was not within some miles of him. On the morning of the 25th of May, he was brought to the back home at once of life (by marriage) which had been one of his home, so as to be convenient to medical aid. She had been there for several weeks, and returned home convalescent. While at the house of his brother-in-law Stephen Stevens, he was suddenly taken ill without any apparent cause, and went to bed and stayed some hours; got up, and came home some time in the evening. He was not in his house when he arrived, but came some time before ten: he took a hearty tea. A man named Israel Stewart, residing upon a farm he had recently bought, called upon him to see some sheep he had purchased had upon the farm. He got up, apparently well, lit his pipe, and went out with him. This was about seven o'clock in the evening. In about one hour, the former quarters he returned, complaining much of his throat. He got up, to go to bed up stairs, when his wife insisted he should remain in the room below stairs, where one of his children was sick. He said if he stayed below, the child would keep him awake. He went up stairs, and about eleven or twelve o'clock he came down again, much put to for want of breath. When his wife heard him, she immediately got up out of bed in the next room, where she was sleeping with the servant girl, and asked him what was the matter. He said, Not much; only he feared he was going to be bad, as he had been eight years before, with a sore throat, and that was the disease that for Dr. Chamberlain, who attended him. If he was going to be so bad, he would rather die. His wife wanted him to do something for it. He said it was no use for the medicine he would get do something for it. He insisted that his wife should go to bed, which she did about two o'clock in the morning, after covering him up. He then went upon his face, and remained in that position till morning, when his wife came in, asking the writer of these lines how William was. I said he had rested well; that he had not moved from the left him, except at intervals, by his deep breathing, which was the only disturbance, for he had not complained after she went to bed. She retired to finish her toilet. After she left the room, he turned himself in the bed, and said to the Doctor that he had not slept all night. The answer of the Doctor was, that he was foolish not to do something for himself, as at the same time what that was necessary—apply a blister, or some fomentation, to the neck. He said that the Doctor, who had attended him before, had done the very thing, and he thought that was what made him suffer so much, and he did want to doctor any more. Nothing more was said. He came to breakfast, but took only one mouthful of tea. I took notice of what I had done when my own throat was sore—apply some roasted potatoes to it, if she had a mind. Then I went to the village to see a gentleman, returned about an hour and a half-past. Dinner was announced. I asked him to come to dinner. He sat down to table, but eat nothing; got up, and went back into the room he was first shown to, and told him she would make him some toast, which she did, and took it into the the room to him; he did not eat it, but gave it to the dog. He complained of wishing to be alone, rather than have any company—even his wife, to whom he was much attached, and used to him. I never heard one evil word pass between them. In the afternoon his brother Stephen came to see him, and remonstrated with him about having something done for his throat. He came to town on Tuesday, he would have the doctor do something; he hated to doctor, and his spring's work all upon his hands, and having no family sick at the time, he might as well give up doing any thing, as he had money to raise, and was heavily indebted to the Doctor for borrowed money, besides his doctor's bill, which he would have to give security but his word, but if he lived till Saturday, he would give the Doctor a mortgage on the farm he had bought. The doctor for the first time asked to see his throat: he opened his mouth, and the doctor called his brother to look at his throat, saying at the same time, that he never beheld any sore throat like it, and that he would not have if it was a regular sore throat; his father had been told by Dr. Ainsworth to apply loaf sugar and saltpetre, or something in that manner, to the throat, which he told his brother, and once by himself. He said he would do it no more; about three he said he felt worse; his brother left about four. He wanted nothing, but to be left alone: none in the house, he sent his son to his father or brother's for some. The father of deceased came with the child, and brought the salts, which were given in the room asked for. Some cold water was fetched by the little boy, and the salts were mixed in a teacup. The doctor was called to the kitchen, as a man wanted him to go to see a sick person. When he came back into the room, he saw the deceased lay the teacup on the table; he then laid down upon the lounge upon his face. The salts seemed to sicken him, as is commonly the case; he threw them off immediately, and felt much relieved. Said he never felt so much relief in so short a time; that was about five in the evening; he remained so for an hour or more. Some gruel was directed to be made at his request; some time elapsed before it was ready. I was informed by a Mrs Wilson, and other women in the house at the time; when made, they were directed to cool it. When fetched in, the doctor tasted it, and told them it was too fat, and too coarse; he then asked for and strain it; and they took it into the kitchen and made some fresh. Before the coming of the second gruel, he rose and stood, himself with his back to the fire. Doctor sprung forward, and shouted for some one to get behind him; he would blow the horn for his people to come, which was quicker done than told. They came, and he died in about three quarters of an hour after, without any apparent distress, and he breathing easy. His wife never gave the gruel as mentioned. If any evil has play can be attributed, it must be in some other source than his wife administering anything to him. From the foregoing correct statement, the public can judge for themselves, as through all of his sickness—as the deceased stated to his brother—that he had never, at any time, taken any medicine from the doctor, nor inwardly cleared him from any participation in the death of the deceased William Riley. Neither can it be attributed to his wife in any way whatever.

Mr. Editor, as your columns are for the truth, I thought it a duty incumbent upon me to give you a correct account, which defies contradiction. I was present, and so ill, no time was lost. A second doctor was sent for in haste, with orders not to spare man or horse, so he would find a man who was well acquainted with all the ills of the family, and famed for his honest candid opinion, who had attended him upon his former sickness, Dr. Chamberlain, of Smith's Mills. When he came, Mr. Riply was dead

Dr. C. asked McGhie what was the matter. He told him in what way he complained, and also told Dr. C. that he would take no medicine from him, nor from the solicitations of his wife and his brother, who insisted upon him, but all was of no avail, and told him all the transaction from beginning to end. McGhie said he was not aware in the truth what was the matter with deceased. Then some of his friends suggested to have him opened, which was done with the consent of deceased's father and brother. When opened, the doctor was sent for by the standers what he supposed to be in truth the real cause of his death, dwelling some time upon diseases of the liver and kidneys, and connected reflux of the blood to and from, and it became diseased to such an extent, that death must occur.—After all had been over, funeral and all, the next day the father of deceased wanted to take the property from the widow and the orphans, and when he could not obtain it without censure, he left the matter alone for the space of eight or nine months. McGhie had made a large debt against the deceased, frustrated his designs against the widow for that length of time, when commenced the disgraceful tragedy spoken of in your columns, backed up by some principled doctors, who got no call in their profession, whilst McGhie was about; the Coroner and the Doctor in question has been calumniating them and their classic allusions long gone by, they give him no chance of defending himself. The Coroner first issued a warrant; then quashed it, afraid some light would be thrown upon the case in question; that the witness would go on at the direction of the Coroner, who showed all the malignity of his nature to sour the mind of the jurors; for he was afraid of McGhie's failing him, so he issued a subpœna, telling the jury and the bystanders, that McGhie showed guilt and run away. When McGhie was forthcoming, he called upon him as a witness, who requested to do so by all the respectable men of the jury; he said there was no necessity. When it was made known to the Doctor that the Coroner would have him implicated whether or no, McGhie left, stating at the time of his departure, that he would be forthcoming on the day of trial; but left his sub-stance, fearing his doings were, he quietly submitting himself to be taken, and is now in Sandwich Gaol, anxious to return to Brockville. Although kindly and generously treated by the principal of the Gaol. Please give this an insertion, that the public may get the truth. Most of the jury can attest to the accuracy of this epistle

To the Editor of the Windsor Herald.

SANDWICH, JANUARY 27, 1857.

SIR,—Our little hamlet has been quite in a state of excitement for the last few days, giving it an unusually lively appearance, for here the Grand Council of the whole of the body the County Council have met together to discuss the affairs of the nation. Trials also are going on—persons are brought up for forgery, others are discharged from the Council. Alas, that easy propensities should stick so to a man. Rankin the showman still clings to his Punch and Judy box, and his puppets move accordingly. To give you an account of all these wonderful doings is, dear Editor, my object, and if I in aught exaggerate, pray set it down as not in malice. Let me begin with the Council, the members of which met on Monday and elected their Warden—Mr. Joseph Mercer. I beg his pardon, J. Mercer, Esq. Before his election, however, the Hon. Mr Allen (Mr. Theodore Maloit), in a manly and straightforward speech, begged "that politics should be excluded from the Council Chamber." He would have had deep regret on his way to town that the intention was to keep up the bitter feeling that had existed during the election, and that whatever a Masleod man proposed a Rankin man would oppose. He trusted, nevertheless, that such would not be the case, but now and then they work harmoniously and for the good of the County, at large if such a feeling existed?" Alas! all this falls unheeded on unwilling ears. The wire-puller is at work, and the puppets dare not disobey. Who are the members of the Council? Mr. Biron, Mr. Reaume, Mr. Demouchelle, Mr. Desjardins, Mr. Finigan, Mr. McFarlane, Mr. Mercer—all Rankin men. Opposed to them are Mr. Maloit, Mr. Brush, Mr. Maloy, Mr. Leggatt and Mr. Wigle—the last named also a supporter of Mr. Rankin, but who, thank God! to the credit of the Council be it said, will not be made an automaton of. Thus we find seven arrayed against six; those seven bound together by the closest fetter which binds a man, and forgetting, cast out their party feelings, at the expense of honesty, justice, and every other feeling that ought to animate every straightforward man. The first motion made after the election of Warden was by Mr. Finigan, to the effect that Mr. Wilkinson should be dismissed from the Council for his boorish conduct—a motion it seemed to be for that illustrious Councilman to commit it to writing; however, I can attest that he can put pen to paper. No charge was brought against Mr. Wilkinson more could be. McFarlane, indeed, attempted it in a manner that neither himself nor any one else could understand, but it fell to the ground. This notorious motion was put, and I watched with breathless anxiety to hear the ayes and noes recorded. Bitterly was I disappointed, Mr. Editor, for I expected that some slight Brutus would feel a feeling of faint pity kindled in the breast of old Berkshire, and was not quite dead in the carcass of the jackall Warden. Hopeless hope! The ensting vote was given by the Warden himself. Mr. Wilkinson, a friend of many years' standing, to make room for whom? A man notorious—not for his honesty; a man of the first water—a man of bluff—for Mr. D. A. McMullin. Thank goodness he was not made treasurer. I must, however, do Mr. Brush the justice to say that he looked ashamed when he gave his vote. He said "he had no reason to give; indeed, was not obliged to give any, and should therefore not do so." The next move was to been an attempt to oust our worthy Treasurer, Mr Bullock. During the absence of Mr. Desjardin, who is one of the illiterate, perfectly unable to read or write, it was proposed that Messrs. Malony, Leggatt and Brush should be a committee to look into the Treasurer's books. That motion, passed in a manner that would disgrace a pothouse row. Many were the manœuvres, and, at last, we have the original motion with the addition of the Warden, perhaps a competent man, but one who, if he chooses to be honest (!)—Frightfully dismayed at this intelligence must Mr. Rankin have been, for after all machinations Mr. Bullock retains his lease of life for some years to come. You will see, doubtless, by whom the treasurer is to be supplanted. My dear sir, by no less a man than Mr. Moynahan, the late deputy sheriff, who so fearfully betrayed his trust, a man without principle, honor or truth; who took advantage of his position to abstract the poll books at the late election, and who has done and said everything to injure—nay, ruin the character of his late master and benefactor. Retribution, I trust, is in store for him.

One thing, however, Mr. Editor, we may congratulate ourselves on—we have an excellent committee on education—one that cannot fail to give satisfaction, composed of men of talent, energy and education—Messrs. Reaume, Demouchelle and McFarlane. I think they can read. Let me drop the subject here, and say with Hamlet—"Pah, how it smells!"

"Two!" Clerks have been brought up here to be tried (would you believe it?) for forgery!—men of stainless reputation—Messrs. Hawkins and Murray. The parties conduct in those cases, on the part of the presiding Magistrate (Mr. Salter), has been to unprejudiced minds perfectly revolting. Not a tittle of evidence can be elicited against these gentlemen, yet they are remanded from time to time, and obliged to find almost unheard of bail, viz. $4,000. The plea in one case was the absence of a witness—Mr. McKinney. Now I, for one, know that for some men was about town all day until just when the prosecutors pretended to want him. When, oh, when, Mr. Editor, will this County be purged of such a foul stain? When shall we be able to walk the streets, or lie in our beds in safety? Surely not as long as lynch-law stalks abroad unmolested and trials are a farce.

Vale. VIATOR.

To the Editor of the Herald.

As it appears, Mr. Editor, to be the unquestioned prerogative of yourself and the Herald really brilliant staff of correspondents, whose graceful classic effusions always grace its columns, and to which I think you have in a great measure indebted for the enviable position which your paper now occupies among Canadian Journalism, I say as it appears to be the witness would go on at the direction of the Coroner, who showed all the malignity of his nature to sour the mind of the jurors; for he was afraid of McGhie's failing him, so he issued a subpœna, telling the jury and the bystanders, that McGhie showed guilt and run away. D. A. McMULLIN.

Sandwich, 1st Feby., A.D., 1858.

A CARD.—If the individual styling himself "Viator," and who in the Herald of last week thought proper to make a dastardly attack upon my personal character, will emerge from his shell of obscurity and accompany me to the proper tribunal that which he was inaginationnes enough to do over a fictitious one; and if he can show that he has the scintilla of a claim to be regarded in any other light than the authorship of such a production necessarily places him in, I will make an future unmitigated unprincipled blackguard. I beg to assure him that upon his doing so, he shall receive from me all the consideration he is entitled to.

D. A. McMULLIN.

Sandwich, Feb. 1, '58.

To the Editor of the Windsor Herald.

SIR—The contemptible creature who through the public Press assails the private character of an individual, such as "Viator," and who in the last issue of your paper attempts to assail and traduce mine, only deserves the silent contempt with which he is and has been treated, for years past among the community where he resides.

Knowing his insignificant and miserable position, and knowing him to be the coward and assassin in the dark, endeavors to injure one to whom he is indebted for many, many favors — one, indeed, who has upon many occasions furnished him with the necessaries wherewith to eke out his poor miserable existence.

I shall be glad at all times, when my conduct in public life is deserving of censure, to reply to any person who thinks proper, through the press, to chide me for it; providing always that such person writes over his own signature, and has some slight regard for truth, honesty and common decency, which, most assuredly, "Viator" has not.

Yours, &c.,

D. MOYNAHAN,

Sandwich, 3rd Feb. '58.

THE DEAD OF FOUR CITIES.—The annual report of mortality in Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, Boston, and Chicago, for 1857, shows that the general health has been better than in 1856, in all the cities except New York and Chicago, where there is an increase in the number of interments. The aggregate mortality in the five cities in 1856 and 1857 was as follows:

	1856.	1857.
Philadelphia,	12,090	10,950	Decrease, 1,140
New York,	21,496	23,370	Increase, 1,874
Baltimore,	5 677	5,524	Decrease 153
Boston,	4,170	4,005	Decrease, 165
Chicago,	1,895	2,169	Increase, 274
Total,	45,328	48,018	Increase, 690

The Montreal Transcript says:—By the English papers we learn that a company has been started in Hull, (Eng.) to promote organized emigration, to found a village in Canada, and enable the shareholders to obtain a grant of land of 100 acres, similar to those offered by the Government to actual settlers." The shares are advertised at £1 each. This will be doubtless a very successful scheme.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Herald's correspondent says:—"It is reported to me, on good authority, that Mr. Buchanan contemplates withdrawing the troops from Utah. Mr. Bernheisnel, the Mormon delegate, has submitted propositions to the administration, indicating the willingness of the Mormons to vacate Utah, and colonise on some of the islands of the sea, outside of the jurisdiction of the United States, provided the government will purchase, at a fair valuation, the Salt Lake City improvements. Mr. Bernheisnel asks that commissioners be sent out to arrange terms and details. The administration confidently expect that Kansas will be admitted as a state, with the Lecompton constitution, and that there will be less opposition from northern and western democratic members than is generally supposed."

The London Gazette of the 8th January, contains the appointment of Major and Brevet Lieut. Col. J. A. V. Kirkland, to be Lieut. Colonel of the 5th Foot, having raised a battalion of 1,000 rank and file. Colonel Kirkland served with the Guards in Canada. The same Gazette notifies the promotion, by purchase, of Ensign Alexander James Badgley, formerly of Toronto, to be Lieutenant in the 1st Royal Regiment, now serving in India.

RUMOURS.—The art of spreading rumours is compared to the art of pin making. There is usually some truth, which is the wire: so this passes hand to hand, one gives it a polish, another a point—another makes and put on a head, another pushes it into circulation—others make and put on a head—and at last the pin (or the rumour) is completed.

HEALTH OR SICKNESS

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma
Bowel Complaints
Coughs,
Colds,
Chest Diseases,
Costiveness,
Dyspepsia,
Diarrhœa
Dropsy,
Debility,
Fever and Ague,
Female Complaints,
Worms of all kinds,
Headaches,
Indigestion
Influenza,
Inflammation,
Inward Weakness
Liver Complaints,
Lowness of Spirits
Piles.
Stone and Gravel,
Secondary Symptoms,
Venereal Affections,
Worms of all kinds,

MAIL CONTRACT.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General, and marked "Tenders for Mail Service," will be received at Toronto, until 12 o'clock, Noon, on Saturday, the 23rd January next—for the conveyance of Her Majesty's Mails, twice per week each way between Chatham and Sandwich, on and from the 16th February next.

The conveyance to be made on horseback, or in a Buggy, Waggon or Sleigh. The computed distance between Chatham and Sandwich, is about 63 miles.

The rate of travel to be not less than four miles per hour, including stoppages for all purposes.

The days and hours of Arrival and Departure to be as follows, subject to right of the Post Master General to alter the same, should he consider it advisable so to do. To leave Chatham every Monday and Thursday —and Sandwich every Wednesday and Saturday, proceeding to Chatham and Sandwich respectively, direct—serving the Post Offices each way, at Bouisseau—Pilsbury East—Comber—Edgeworth and Maidstone, at such hours as may be required.

The Contract, if satisfactorily executed, will continue in force for a term not exceeding four years: the Postmaster General reserving the right to terminate the agreement at any time previous to the expiration of the four years, should the public interest require it, upon giving the Contractor three months previous notice of his intention.

All expenses on this Route for Tolls, Ferries, &c., must be defrayed by the Contractor.

Each Tender to state the price asked in words at length, and to be accompanied by the written guarantee of two responsible parties undertaking that in the event of the Tender being accepted the Contract shall be duly executed, by the party tendering, for the price demanded—tendering also to become bound with the Contractor in the sum of Twelve hundred dollars for the due performance of the service.

Blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices at Chatham, Sandwich and Maidstone, and at this Office.

Miscellany.

"A certain amount of opposition," says John Neal, "is a great help to man. Kites rise against, and not with the wind. Even a dead calm is better than horse. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. Let me not want but plenty therefore, because of opposition: opposition is what we want, and must have, to be good for my thing. Hardship is the native soil of manhood and self reliance. He that can not abide the storm without flinching or quarreling strips himself to the sunshine, and lies down by the way side to be overlooked and forgotten. He who but braces himself to the struggle when the winds blow, gives up when they have done, and falls asleep in the stillness that follows."

A new illustrated paper is about to be started in London, on the plan of the Illustrated London News. A large capital is guaranteed for the new paper, which will bear the title of the Illustrated News of London. Some prominent literary Newyorkers are to contribute.

COLLARS.—Ladies with expansive hoops who will ride in omnibuses, should be particularly careful in getting out and in. Riding up in the Black Rock bus yesterday morning, we saw an interesting young lady, after making strenuous efforts to effect an egress under a passage, and finally coming with two yards or less brass hooping trailing after her. The gentleman on board, we are happy to say for our sex, by their silence showed their deep sympathy for the unfortunate, but the ladies not one of whom probably could restrain a less expansive feeling, expressed their clearly by audible snickers and winks. We never felt more disposed in our life to rejoice at the disposition of the nature of our sex, than we did on this occasion

'THAT WILL DO.'—"That will do' makes your sloven and your slatterns. A man who adopts this motto with regard to address does not mind being seen with a dirty shirt, and a beard of two days growth; while the same fatal device allows a woman to go about the house with curl papers and slip shod. 'That will do,' to the household matters, is equally bad, and more annoying to friends than when applying to dress. You may expect ill cooked dinners in any house where the maxim is kept this maxim, to say nothing of the shabby carpets, want of paint, dirty muslins curtains, &c. 'That will do' has sunke many a ship, caused the downfall of scaffolding holding hundreds of human beings, occasions at least half the fires that take place, and is the cause of most rotary disasters."

SAD MISTAKE.—Major Beale, the chivalrous Vermonter, has just returned from his European tour, but his fellow townsmen are astonished and horrified at his altered appearance. While in Paris he challenged a French Colonel, and the weapons being swords, at the first stroke the Major's nose was severed close to his face. Hastily picking up and replacing the organ, he tied his handkerchief over it. After leaving on the bandage for eleven days, he removed it when to his consternation he found that he had joined it wrong side up, and it was now healed. Although it looks ugly, he finds it very convenient for taking snuff.—Augustus Constitutionalist.

"MONTREAL WITNESS,"

COMMERCIAL REVIEW, & FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Published Twice a Week, for Two Dollars per Annum, Payable in Advance.

VOL. XIII.

THE Montreal Witness was commenced 12 years ago with a view to promote the interests, spiritual and temporal, of the people of Canada, and to oppose every form of error, injustice and vice. The Witness is now divided into the following departments:—

CONTEMPORARY PRESS AND NEWS.—This department gives the essence of the News contained in the British, Canadian and American papers.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT contains, in addition to original articles, the regular and occasional correspondence of the Witness, and will be found to keep up with the events and topics of the day.

THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT is felt to be of especial importance in a paper having a large circulation among traders and farmers, whose interests are affected by every change of prices or prospects. To this department is brought the experience of a life of active commercial pursuits, and an intimate knowledge both of the internal and foreign trade of Canada, together with opportunities of obtaining commercial and financial information which cannot be surpassed.

There are also departments for Mothers and children, for young Men, and for Farmers.

THE MISCELLANY consists of Poetry and Miscellaneous instructive and religious articles.

THE REVIEW is filled with reviews of, and extracts from, new books and periodicals.

THE MESSENGER DEPARTMENT contains the most interesting Missionary intelligence and the most pointed religious articles, with anecdotes, stories, and biographical sketches

We earnestly ask the support and patronage of the fathers and mothers of Canada for the Witness, convinced that it will much more than repay its cost in the services which it will render to them and theirs.

Besides a good local paper, which is indispensable, our family obviously needs a general paper, to supply which want the Witness is offered.

Letters to be addressed, (post paid) to JOHN DOUGALL, Witness Office, Montreal Montreal, December 1st, 1857.

A Gift of one Thousand Copies.

RUSSELL & RICARDSON have in hand
THE MUSICIAN'S GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Thalberg, Osborne, Mack, Jewell, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quarto of 96 pages, containing the most interesting and popular pieces, and an index to the ideas of over 600 different composers of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and readers.

In order to secure a rapid introduction of his work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to persons interested in music, and we will PRE-PAY THE POSTAGE.

N. B.—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. The work will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

Any person sending their address to us, (post paid) will be carefully got a copy FREE of all EXPENSES, by sending your name and address without delay to

RUSSELL & RICARDSON,
Musical Publishers, Boston.

To EDITORS.—Russell & Richardson will send you two dollars worth of their latest Musical publications and the MUSICIAN'S GUIDE, postage paid, if you will give the above advertisement (including this offer,) one insertion in your paper.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays
" " Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They have been selected for the express convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties at each end of the line, and also at all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or attained.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOMER, agent, Detroit.

While sailing in the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, between New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affordings a good class of boats to any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West will find this the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad

on as favorable terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, showing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND TONS BURTHEN, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandise for the transport of Property.

GREEN'S
GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion of the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

APPENDIX

APPENDIX A.

To the Warden and Reeves of the County of Essex, in Council assembled:

The County Treasurer begs leave to report:

That with respect to the discrepancy which appears in the accounts of last year, between the amount credited, and the amount allowed by Government towards the administration of Criminal Justice, I have to state:

That the Government pay these amounts half-yearly, viz.: 1st January and 1st July.

In making up my accounts in March last, not having a copy of the public accounts in Book form at hand, I credited the amounts from the vouchers received from Government, and by mistake credited the half year ending 1st January 1857, in the accounts of 1856, and the half-year ending 1st January 1856, in the accounts of 1857, thus giving credit in the former year for a less amount than was actually due, and in the latter year, 1857, for a greater, but when both years are put together they will be found substantially correct.

With respect to the accounts, I can only say that they are posted up to the present time as usual, but as few Municipalities have settled up, and as the Financial year does not close till 31st March next, of course I cannot close them, nevertheless they are always ready for Inspection.

With respect to the Report of a Committee appointed last year to examine into the Treasurer's Bonds, I beg to say, that if my present bonds are not satisfactory I am prepared to make them so, and also to give satisfaction before a committee as to my own solvency.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE BULLOCK,
County Treasurer.

County Treasurer's Office, }
26th January, 1857. }

APPENDIX D.

REPORT of the Special Committee, appointed to enquire into the Treasurer's Accounts, to ascertain how the discrepancy occurs between the statement of the Receiver General's account and the Treasurer's, in regard to the Administration of Justice for the year 1856.

Your committee beg leave to report, that they have compared the statement of the Administration of Justice Account, as contained in the printed Official Roll of Public Accounts for the year 1856, with the general account book of the Treasurer, and they find that in the Receiver General's statement, the item debited the County of Essex for administration of justice to June 30th, 1856, to be £734 14s 8d, whereas in the Treasurer's statement, the item for administration of justice in 1856, is £659.

Your committee have found that the error has arisen by the Treasurer giving credit for the two half years, to December 1856, instead of the two half years to June 1856.

The item for the last half year of 1855 will appear in the Receiver General's account of 1857.

Your committee are informed that hereafter the public accounts will be made up to the end of December of each year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THEODORE MALOTT,
S. S. MACDONELL.

Sandwich, December 28th, 1857.

APPENDIX E.

To the Warden and Reeves of the Municipal Council of the County of Essex.

Your finance committee beg to report, for the information of your honorable body,

That they have examined the Treasurer's Report, as well as the Report of Messrs. Mabitt and Macdonell, the committee appointed at the last Session of the County Council, to examine into the discrepancy which apparently existed between the Inspector General's accounts and the Treasurer's; and find that the discrepancy alluded to is accounted for and explained both by the Treasurer and the committee. Your committee also find that it is impossible for the Treasurer to render an account at present for the reason assigned by him in his report; in fact, he can not be expected to do so till the end of the financial year, which expires on the 31st March.

Your committee would suggest that the Treasurer be required to renew his bonds, in accordance with the Report of the committee adopted by this Council in July last.

All of which is humbly submitted.

THEODORE MALOTT,
Chairman.

APPENDIX G.

To the Warden and Reeves of the County of Essex, in Council assembled:

The Committee on Roads and Bridges, beg to report, that they have the Petitions of John Allen, and others, requesting a grant or sum of money, in aid of opening the "Old Malden Road" through the Township of Colchester, as the said Road is in many place totally impassible, and also the Petition of Thomas McLane, and others, respectfully requesting the Town Line between Gosfield and Colchester to be surveyed and defined before them, and consider it unnecessary to take action on the Petition of John Allen and others, asking aid for opening the Old Malden Road, as the By-Law assuming it, is repealed.

The Petition of Thomas McLane, and others, your Committee would recommend its being surveyed and defined, all of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN BRUSH,
Chairman.

Spicy Correspondence—A True Wife.

We are assured by a friend, who is personally cognizant of what he states, that the following piquant correspondence is genuine. A gentleman, whose business calls him a good deal from home, is accustomed to give the custody of his correspondence to his wife, an intelligent lady, who, in obedience to his instructions, opens all letters that come in her husband's absence; answers such of them as she can, like a confidential clerk, and forwards the rest to her hege lord, at such places as he may have designated at his departure. During a recent absence of her husband the lady received a letter, of which the following (omitting names, dates and places,) is a true copy:

"My dear ——I saw a fine picture of you yesterday and fell in love with you as I did with the original in W—— last winter, when I saw you more than an hour, though I suppose you did not see me among so many. I fear you will think me forward in thus addressing you; but I trust you are as noble and unsuspecting as you are handsome and brilliant. Perhaps you would like to know something about me—your ardent admirer! Well, I am not very good at description, but I will say I am not married (though you are, I am told). My friends tell me I have not a pretty face, but only a good figure. I am rather petite, have black eyes, black hair and a dark complexion—that is, I am what is called a "brunette." I am stopping for a few weeks with my brother-in-law and sister in this town, and I dearly wish you would meet me there before I return to W——. At any rate, do not fail to write to me at least a few words to tell me whether I shall ever see you again, and know you more intimately. Forgive my boldness and believe me,
Your friend,

To this letter, the wife, who, by the bye, has not the least knowledge of the person to whom she was writing, made the following answer:

"Mademoiselle—Your letter of the——inst. addressed to Mr.—— was duly received. "Mr.——," who is my husband, directed me, when he left home, some days ago, to open all his letters and to answer any of them that I conveniently could. As you seem to be rather impertinent, I will answer your letter myself. I do not think your description of yours If will please Mr.——, I happen to know that he dislikes black eyes and hair, brunettes most decidedly. It is quite true (as you seem to suppose) that he judges of women as he does of horses; but I do not think your inventory of your "points" is complete enough to be satisfactory to him. You omit to mention your height, weight, wind, speed, and [here the word is illegible.] Taking your charms at your own estimate, I doubt whether they will prove sufficiently attractive to draw him so far as B——, merely for the satisfaction of comparing them with the schedule. You say you trust my husband is 'unsuspecting.' I think that is his nature, but yet he is used to drawing inferences which are sometimes as unkind as suspicious. You say that you are unmarried. My advice to you is that you marry somebody as soon as possible. In most cases I would not recommend haste; but in yours, I am convinced there is truth in the proverb which speaks of the danger of delay.—Should you be so fortunate as to get a husband, (which may God mercifully grant!) my opinion is you will consider any woman who should write him such a letter as this of yours, impertinent, and, perhaps, immodest.

I will deliver your note to Mr.—— when he returns, and also a copy of my reply which I am sure he will approve.

I am, with much respect, as you permit,
Mrs.——."

This was the end of the correspondence.

MORAL.—Young ladies who write affectionate letters to married men, should be careful that the precious missives do not fall into the hands of their spouses, or the amorous writers may chance to get "more cuffs than kisses."

Painting Once too Often.

"We may faint once too often," repeated Miss Lillywhite, and she sighed; and then her customary smile beamed about her. "Of this dearly-truth I am a sad example.'

"You, Miss Lillywhite!" said Angelina.

"Listen,' said the old maid. "'Tis a short story—but worth your hearing. When I was nineteen, I was about to be married. About, did I say! Why, the day was fixed; the ring—the wedding ring at the very tip of my finger, when——"

"Mercy me!" cried Angelina, "what happened!"

"I fainted!" said Miss Lillywhite, and she shook her head, and a wan smile played about her lips.

"And you were not married because you fainted!' said Angelina, much awkened to the subject.

"As I have confessed, it was my weakness to faint upon all occasions. I enjoyed the interest that, as I thought, fainting cast about me. My lover often looked coolly, suspiciously; but love conquered his doubts, and led him triumphantly before the parson. Well, the marriage service was begun, and—and—'

"Do go on!' cried Angelina.

"And in a few minutes I should have been a wife, when I thought I must faint. It would seem very bold of me in such a situation not to faint. I who had fainted on so many occasions, not to swoon at the altar would have been a want of sentiment—of proper feeling on so awful an occasion. With this thought, I felt myself fainting rapidly, and just as the bridegroom had touched my finger with the ring—I went off, yes, my dear, swooned with all the honors.'

"Do go on,' again cried Angelina.

"As I swooned, the ring slipped from the bridegroom's fingers, fell upon the stove, and was rolling—rolling—to drop through the aperture of the stove, that, from below, admitted h

INSECT LIFE IN AUSTRALIA.—In truth this country seems the favorite home of insect life; insects here are endless in numbers and form.—Many are most singular and beautiful, others are most disgusting. Centipedes and the Scorpions are a terrific nuisance. The bite of all these is severe and venomous. There is a red spider, too, whose bite is said to be deadly; but the ants are most numerous, next to the flies. They cover the whole surface of the ground, I might almost say of the whole colony—of all colours and sizes, and almost every variety of them sting keenly. Nor is it the ground only on which they swarm; there is not a log lying on the ground, nor a tree standing in the forest, up and down which they are not creeping in myriads. Trains of them are constantly ascending to the topmost twigs of the loftiest gum trees, two hundred and fifty feet high, and other trains descending. They appear to be the main cause of the prevalent hollowness of the trees, as they pierce to the centre of the youngest ones, and cut out and make their nests in their bearis. They eat the wood of the boughs, so that immense arms fall off, with a sudden snap, just as if they had been cut asunder by an axe. The other day we cut down a stringy bark tree, and split it to make some fences, and the heart of it was all eaten out, and occupied by ants. These insects, many of them an inch long, fiercely contested the ground with us when we are pitching our tents in any fresh place, and their sting is as severe as that of a wasp.

A FORTUNE CHASING A PRETTY WOMAN BY TELEGRAPH.—Some two weeks ago there arrived in our city a beautiful young widow of 25 (a Hungarian by birth) on her way to New Orleans, en route, to Havana, where she intended to engage in her profession as a female physician. She was also on an exit from Hungary, where her husband had lived and died a patriot. Feeling now that the 'fatherland,' in its subjugated condition, had little left of promise for her future, she, with a true woman's heroic resolution, betook herself to travel in search of a new and more genial home in another hemisphere. Reaching New York, she took the inland route to New Orleans, making Louisville a point. After tarrying a day here, she continued her journey, and on one of the good packet steamers reached New Orleans a few days ago.

On Friday last an agent from the house of Rothschilds, the great bankers, also reached our city in search of the beautiful young self reliant widow, who is intent upon her journey to Havana. He had been dispatched from Europe to seek out the wanderer and bear to her the glad tidings that she had recently come into immense possessions at home and to invite her to retrace her trip. While the aid of the telegraph he learned that she had arrived safely in New Orleans, and was stopping at the St. Louis Hotel. A second dispatch, urging her to await his arrival, was forwarded, and on he hastened to bear to her the information that she has a fortune of eleven millions at home awaiting her disposal. Think of this child of fortune trying to escape the wealth she all unconsciously possessed, and how it chased her to the New World, and by the aid of faithful agents, quick travel, and telegraphic wire, she at length leains the story of her wealth.—Louisville Democrat.

CHINA.

The correspondent of the Times writing from Canton river, under date Dec. 16th, says that Yeh has returned an insolent reply to the ultimatum of the English and French plenipotentiaries, and that the two forces would in a few days attack Canton. Lord Elgin's demand was of the most temperate character. He asked no more than that the treaty should be carried out; that Canton should be put upon the same footing as other treaty ports—its gates to be open to commerce, compensation to be given for damage to British merchants; and cessation of the Island of Honam to be acquiesced in as guarantee until all matters are settled. Yeh's answer to Lord Elgin is said to be couched in a sarcastic vein. He tells his Lordship that the question of the treatment of strangers at Canton has been settled by the Emperor's decree that Sir George Brougham was made a baronet for respecting that decree, and recommends Lord Elgin to follow his example, and as for compensation Yeh had demanded this of the British Government for loss and suffer age by China a few days before this answer was received.

Mr. Reid, the American Commissioner, solicited an interview in the city, and Yeh replied that he would meet him outside of the city, but that no barbarians should put foot within the limits of Canton.

GREAT BRITAIN

Parliament assembles on the 4th of February.

Prince Frederick William of Prussia had received the Order of the Garter.

The steamship Leviathan had been pushed 20 feet off the ends of launching ways, and her cradles were being removed. She had over 17 feet of water under her and it was expected that she would float on the 30th or 31st.

Heavy drafts of troops were under orders to embark for India.

The Bank of England had reduced the rate of discount to 4 per cent.

The reduction had little effect on the money market or Stock Exchange.

FRANCE

The addresses from some of the regiments to the Emperor are worked sostrongly as to attract much attention.

The Zouaves regretted that they had no opportunity to manifest their zeal in a striking manner; and the addresses of the 82nd Regiment contains the following sentence:

If your Majesty wants soldiers to reach those men even in their hearts we humbly pray you to designate the 82d Regiment as part of the advance guard of this army.'

The Pays has adressed an autograph letter of congratulation to Napoleon. It is stated that Orsini was at Slutte Garat when the Emperor was there last year; but that he and two or three other Italians were expelled.

A Brussells paper affirms that the French Foreign Minister had addressed a note to British, Belgium, Swiss and Sardinian Government demanding certain measures which may prevent renewed attempts at assassination.

ITALY

A plot against the life of the King of Naples had been discovered, Ten persons all Frenchmen are said to have been landed at Naples to carry out the design. A conspiracy had also been discovered.

An insurrection movement at Rome was said to have been planned for the 15th of January. But the police frustrated it.

AUSTRIA

A Vienna journal says that the National Bank contains a greater amount of specie by 300,000 florins than ever before.

RUSSIA

It is said that Russia intends to restore all marine stations on the Circassian const, but on a new system which will erade the treaty of Paris. A new Sebastopol is also in contemplation.

TURKEY

Serious disturbances were said to have broken out in Bosnia. A force of 3,000 men had been sent to suppress them.

VERY LATEST

London, Jan. 30th.

On stock Exchange loans are obtained at 1¾ a 2 per cent. Nearly £200,000 in gold was taken to the Bank to-day.

AUSTRALIA

The mail steamer has arrived at Suez with advices from Melbourne to December 16th and Sidney to the 11th. Trade at Melbourne had commenced being dull. Several failures are reported. There was little gold leaving for England.

MONEY MARKET.

The London Money Market was decidedly easier. Consols closed on Friday at 93¾ a 95¾ for money, and from accounts the bullion in the Bank of England had increased £922,000.

POLITICAL BUBBERY IN THE STATES.—For some time past a committee appointed by the House of Representatives has been sitting in Washington, to take evidence in reference to wholesale system of bribery which is said to prevail. In that Elysium of political corruptionists the purchase of members with easy consciences is carried on, on a scale of imposing grandeur, to which our little 'cultivator' and 'collector' ship' bribes are by comparison contemptible. Private members and Foreign Government appear as principals in these disgraceful transactions; the extent of which, however, may possibly be best comprehended from the following extract, embodying the result of evidence very unwillingly tendered upon oath:—

Williamson, one of the principal culprits, says on affirmation, that if he had been permitted he would have testified that European manufacturers and the British Government had authorized Sir Henry Bulwer and others to expend two millions of dollars to effect our tariff and to establish a free policy. More than $700 000 had actually been expended to buy the members of Congress, or to defeat their elections when they could not be bought. Williamson also intimates that he could disclose corrupt or disputable transactions of United States Government, in connection with the negotiation of recent treaty with New Granada. He particularly implicates Mr Buchanan and Mr. Cass. He also claims to have been secret Commercial Agent of the Barings and other English and mercantile and manufacturing houses from 1841 to 1850.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, FEBRUARY 18, 1858.

The recent attempt of the Mercury, to throw discredit upon the Treasurer, is only in keeping with the many other dirty jobs, which that paper has been engaged in; the great object of the over anxiety, however, which they entertain for the public money, has, through the excessive interest taken by them, been made apparent. There can now be now doubt whatever, but that these over pious and honest individuals connected with the Mercury, among whom we wish to include the ex-Member, (for his finances appear somewhat low,) were striving with the very laudable (!) purpose of displacing Mr. Bullock, in order to get into the office of Treasurer, one of the honest (!) and disinterested (?) followers of Rankin. What a splendid time they would have had among them, had they succeeded: Warden, Clerk and Treasurer, with the ex-Member in the back ground, giving directions for the disposal of the funds! Only imagine, gentle reader, with what facilities another election contest might be carried on. Only imagine the delightful time they would have had among them; the whole force having a quiet little game for the pile. (If we have not used the exact sporting term, our readers must forgive our want of knowledge in that respect.) But they did not succeed; which of course made them all the more rabid, and through their mouth-piece, the Mercury, a very simple and chuilish attempt is made to show their disinteredness in the premises, and their great desire for the public good. If they had said at once, that the cause of their rage was the itching to handle the public funds, many more would have believed in their sincerity, and would at least have given them credit for honesty; as it is, they have only made their disappointment the more apparent.

It certainly showed a bad and despicable spirit, to write upon the subject, when a committee has been already appointed to examine into the Treasurer's books, to see that all is right; and before this committee has reported, or even had time to report, to harp upon a subject that all are pretty well convinced by this time, has been a source of dire disappointment to them, with all their boasted disinteredness. They might, at least, have had the decency to wait until the committee had reported, and that unfavorably, before they commenced their foul and mean attack upon the present Treasurer.

If any thing was wrong with the Treasurer, it was the duty of the Auditors to discover it, and report to the council. This is a portion of their duty; but they have never reported unfavorably, but on the contrary, have always shown that the Treasurer's books and accounts were kept correctly.—Again, it is duty of the Finance Committee is to examine the Treasurer's books, and report to the council. This they have done again and again, but they have not discovered the tremendous wrongs of which the Mercury speaks. And again, a special Committee was appointed, and reported at the last session of the council; and that committee found nothing wrong. It therefore must be, as we before stated, disappointment at not being able to finger the public funds, that has made the Mercury so disinterested.

The next, is an attempt to show that the Treasurer's sureties are not sufficient. This is one of the most dishonest and cowardly tricks that has yet been attempted. 'A false statement is made, and which must be known to be so, in order to lead the public into the belief that the Treasurer has not given sufficient sureties, when six of the best names in the county are given as his bondsmen, and were approved of by the County Council. As this subject will be brought up in a different manner, we need not at present go into the subject further, but will only state, that if this system of interfering with private affairs is continued, it may become the duty of those interested, to retaliate, when many that are now making a wonderful flourish, particularly among those who are the greatest admirers of the Mercury, about solvency, &c., would, if their affairs were looked into, shew an interesting table—one that might open the eyes of the public a little, and cause no little discomfiture in the camp. We do not wish to lend our columns to such a system of argument, but if it is commenced on one side, it is only fair and just that the other side should be seen also.

The evidence that follows, was given in a prosecution brought against DEVLIN, the Deputy Returning Officer for Maidstone, and gives a pretty fair idea of the honesty of Rankin's friends in the contest.

Read, and you will be quite satisfied as to the claims of the respective candidates to a seat in the Legislative Halls of the Province, for the County of Essex.

The Deputy returning Officer with a pistol, and his father, as a constable, guarding the polls, to keep off MacLeod's supporters, is altogether a new feature in the freedom of elections, of which we were ignorant heretofore. We propose giving the remainder of the evidence; also that taken in a suit brought against Devlin, for perjury, next week, with our remarks thereon.

PROVINCE OF CANADA, }
to wit:

The several informations and complaints of Duncan Grant, John Martindale, John Murray, and Andrew Patillo, all of the Township of Maidstone, in the said County of Essex, Yeomen, taken this 29th day of January, 1858, before the undersigned JOHN PRINCE, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said County, who severally say as followeth:

The said Duncan Grant saith that on the 2nd day of January, 1858, Mr. Patillo and myself went to the Poll at Maidstone, at 8 o'clock, A. M., and found the Returning Officer, James Devlin, and the Poll Clerk there, recording Votes, and about thirty other persons that had voted since the last day of polling. I told them that they had opened before the time. Mr. Murray, the check clerk for Mr. MacLeod, arrived, and took his seat at the table. He was told by the Returning Officer, that he would not allow any check book in the house, and if he (Murray) opened it he would burn it, and told him to leave the place. At the same time a constable came, and took the chair from under him, and threw it with violence towards the door. I asked the Returning Officer to allow me to look at the poll book. He told me he would not, and covered the names with a newspaper. I told him I would hold him answerable for such conduct, and he (the Returning Officer) then presented a pistol at me, and said he would drive me to the door if I interfered. Mr. MacLeod's voters were not allowed to come to the poll, and were driven away without voting, about forty yards from the house, by Mr. Rankin's party. Mr. Patillo and myself concluded we had better leave, as Mr. Rankin's party were getting drunk, and we were afraid of our lives, and were not allowed to check or scrutinize the votes.—At this time, all MacLeod's voters left together, with the special constables sent there by the sheriff. Mr. Patillo and myself were authorized agents for Mr. MacLeod. I believe that after the poll had closed on the first day, and before the poll had opened on the second day, about one hundred and eighteen fictitious votes were added to the poll book.

JOHN MARTINDALE saith: That he went to the polling place in the Township of Maidstone, on the 31st day of December last. I tried to go in by the front door, which was the proper way, but could not. A number of Rankin's supporters got in by the back door. I then went round by the back door and got in, and was put out of the front door by Develin the constable, who held an axe handle in one hand, and pushed me with the other. I not being allowed to vote at that time. I then again went round to the back door, and got in and voted. As soon as I had voted, the cry was, 'Put him out!' Develin, the constable, then took hold of me, and pushed me out of the door. I then went home. I was afraid to stay any longer. This happended on the first day of polling. On Saturday the 2nd day of January, I went to the polling place, but did not go into the house, but stood on the road. I did not like to go in, seeing there was trouble going on. I saw Develin the constable drive my brother Matthew Martindale, and Mitchel Damur, who had gone in for the purpose of voting, away from the poll, and drive them over the fence into the field on the house where the poll was held. I saw a great many others driven away, whose names I do not remember. Develin then came up to the fence, flourishing an axe handle, and said to us, "Clear away from there." My brother and a great many went away, and were prevented from voting, being in fear of their lives. I also left, and went home.

JOHN MURRAY saith: On the first day of polling the 31st December last, I went to the polling about half past 8 o'clock a.m. and found they had recorded several votes. I commenced recording as check clerk for Mr. MacLeod, but it seemed impossible to keep a correct list of the votes given, as the poll clerk Patrick McGuire, kept on recording names, while the Returning Officer was asking questions of the persons who came to vote, and took down more names than actually voted. When the polling got a little slack, I requested him to compare his Poll Book with my Check Book, to ascertain whether I had a correct list of the votes, but he refused and told me to keep his book shut up. On the 2nd day of January 1858, I went to the polling place about 8 o'clock a.m. and found they had recorded a great number of votes, Mr. Devlin the Returning Officer said the poll had been opened about an hour, and that a party from Detroit had recorded their votes, and gone. I opened my check book and commenced checking votes, when Mr. Devlin the Returning Officer ordered me to be gone, that his was the only necessary book to be there. I continued to sit still, when old Devlin, the constable, made a snatch at the check book. I prevented him from taking it, but he tore the cover a little, he then took hold of my waistcoat, gave me a pull with one hand, and with the other took the chair from under me and threw it towards the door, I asked if I had done anything amiss when Devlin, the returning officer ordered me to go out, as no check book would be allowed there, I then left the room and went north (the opposite way from home) about two miles and a half, when two special constables, who were at the door before I left, overtook me and made me prisoner and brought me back to the polling place where I was compelled to remain until about 2 o'clock P. M., of the same day with two or more constables guarding me, when I got back to the polling place I asked Devlin, upon whose authority I had been made prisoner, Devlin the returning officer said on his authority—when detained as prisoner. I observed the MacLeod voters were ill treated and driven from the polling place, but very few had an opportunity of giving their vote. I perceived that a great number of MacLeod's voters were not allowed to come near the voting place and went away without being able to record their votes in consequence of the threats and violence used. I believed after the poll had closed on the first day and before the poll opened on the second day about 118 fictitious votes had been added to the poll book.

MR. PATILLO saith as follows: I went to the polling place in the Township of Maidstone, on the 31st Dec. last, to act as Mr. MacLeod's agent. All of my objections were not taken down, nor any notice taken of what I said. I was continually jostled about by the supporters of Arthur Rankin. On the morning of the second day of voting, being the 2nd day of January inst., Mr. Grant and myself went to the polling place in the Township of Maidstone, before Eight o'clock, A. M., and there found Returning Officer James Devlin, recording votes, and about thirty other persons were there who had voted the first day. I then asked Develin, the Returning Officer, if he had been recording votes. He said he had, and that there had been a number from Detroit, who recorded their votes, and had gone away. I saw no one there but those who had voted on the first day of polling. The poll clerk had the book before him, with a newspaper covering the names recorded. I lifted the newspaper, and asked him where he got all those names. Develin (the Returning Officer) told me, that if I troubled that book, he would put me to the door. Mr. Murray, the check clerk for Mr. MacLeod, took his seat, and opened his book upon the table. Devlin, the Returning Officer, said, if Mr. Murray opened that book, he would burn it, and ordered Mr. Murray out, and said he had no business there. The father of the Returning Officer, James Develin, (a special constable), took the chair from under Mr. Murray, and threw it violently towards the door. The Returning Officer James Devlin, and his father the constable, ordered Mr. Murray to go out immediately. If I or Grant asked any questions of the voters, they were told not to answer them. When Murray was ordered out, he went out. I was then informed that MacLeod's friends could not get in to vote. I then went out, and saw a number of them on the road. I asked them to come in and record their votes. They said they were not permitted to come in, as they had been driven out into the road. I said, "Come in, and record your votes. I will see that you are not driven out." I then asked Devlin, the constable, if they would be allowed to come in. He said, "Yes; let them come." I then called Mitchell Damur to come in and vote. When he came to the door, he was stopped by the Constable Devlin, and others with sticks in their hands, and driven over the fence into the road. I then call'd Matthew Martindale who was likewise stopped and driven away by the same party, I then complained to the Returning Officer and asked him to come to the door, and see how his Father the Constable was driving parties away and not permitting MacLeod's friends to vote. He said he had given his constables their instructions, and that they knew their duty, and it was not his business to go to the door. I then consulted with Capt. Grant, and protested against the election before the Returning Officer, James Devlin, and said I should leave, and record for my self. I believe that after the close of the first day's polling, and before the opening of the poll on the second day, 118 fictitious votes were added to the poll book.

The Atlantic Monthly.

We would direct the attention of our subscribers to the prospectus of the above journal, which will be found below. In recommending it, we do so from the full conviction of its merits, having, since its commencement, had an opportunity of judging.

As it has always been our desire to make the Maple Leaf as interesting and useful as possible, we propose now to give our patrons an opportunity of receiving one of the best literary monthlies published upon the continent, at an exceedingly low rate, in connection with this paper.

We have therefore made arrangements with the publishers, by which we will furnish the Atlantic Monthly to our subscribers at Two Dollars a year, being one dollar ess than the publishers themselves furnish the work for.

So that any one sending us 83 75, will be entitled to the Maple Leaf and Atlantic Monthly for one year.

PROSPECTUS OF THE 'ATLANTIC MONTHLY.'

Published by Phillips, Sampson & Co., Boston. A new Magazine, devoted to Literature, Art and Politics.

ITS AIM WILL BE—FIRST: In Literature, to leave no province unrepresented, so that while each number will contain articles of an abstract and permanent value, it will also be found that the healthy appetite of the mind for entertainment will find various pabulum of Narrative, Wit and Humor, will not go uncared for. The publishers wish to say also, that while native writers will receive the most solid encouragement, and will be mainly relied on to fill the pages of the ATLANTIC, they will not hesitate to draw from the foreign sources at their command, as occasion may require, relying rather on the competency of an author to treat a particular subject, than on any other claim whatever. In this way they hope to make their Periodical welcome wherever the English tongue is spoken or read.

SECOND: In the term ART they intend to include the whole domain of æsthetics, and hope gradually to make this critical department a true and fearless representative of Art, in all its various branches, without any regard to prejudice, whether personal or national, or to private considerations of what kind soever.

THIRD: In Politics, the ATLANTIC will be the organ of no party or clique, but will honestly endeavor to be the exponent of what the conductors believe to be the American idea. It will deal frankly with persons and with parties, endeavoring always to keep in view that moral element which transcends all persons and parties, and which alone makes the basis of a true and lasting national prosperity. It will not rank itself with any sect of antics, but with that body of men which is in favor of Freedom, National Progress and Honor, whether public or private.

The Publishers will aim to have each number of the magazine ready in time for distribution and sale, in the more remote parts of the country, on or before the first day of the month for which it is intended.

TERMS.—The Atlantic Monthly can be had of Booksellers, Periodical Agents, or from the Publishers, at Three Dollars a year, or Twenty five cents a number.

Subscribers remitting three dollars in advance, to the publishers, will receive the work for one year, post paid, in any part of the United States.

Agents are wanted in every part of the country. Liberal terms will be also made to postmasters, clergymen, and others who act as agents. Great inducements will be made to parties forming clubs. Specimen copies will be forwarded, with the terms, on receipt of twenty-five cents in money or postage stamps.

☞ Dr. McGhie, who was arrested by Sheriff McEwan of this county, for being concerned in the poisoning of a Mr. Ripley, in the township of Crosby, in the County of Leeds, was this day delivered over on a warrant from the authorities of that county, endorsed by Francis Caron, Esq., J.P., to W James Kincard, High Constable for the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, and Robert Mowatt, an officer of the same county, who will convey him to the Goal at Brockville, where he will be tried at the next Assizes held in that Town on the 14th April.

MR. EDITOR,—The shaft must have been deftly sent, aye and well home also, to make Mr. McMullin so violent as to show how deeply it rankled in the wound. You, Mr. Editor, as well as myself, must deeply feel the amount of withering sarcasm and classic lore with which we have been overwhelmed; yet I think that Mr. McMullin has been somewhat foolish in this, for had he not drawn attention to the matter, the communication of Viator might have passed over in the corner of your paper almost unobserved; as it is, he has drawn attention to it. Now, if to supplant a friend in office, against whom there is no charge, if to work in secret against him, or even lend oneself to party injustice by accepting such office be honest, then have I deeply wronged Mr. McMullin. Let the public judge.

A word about Mr. Moynahan. Let me begin by assuring him that I never assailed the private character of "Viator," and that he had better frame his sentences more clearly if he wishes to be understood. I candidly confess that I have been on terms of great intimacy with Mr. Moynahan, and many kindnesses have passed between us, though by no means as he would show, all on one side. I have observed with regret that of late Mr. Moynahan has been pursuing, and, smarting under a sense of what I considered deep and treacherous conduct towards our party, perhaps used hard words, hard indeed if the person to whom they were applied felt he deserved them; whether deserved or not the sequel will show.

I had almost forgotten the Card; somewhat differently worded from the one in the Mercury of last week. It is really an extraordinary and elaborate document, I give it all the consideration it deserves,—it is simply ridiculous.

I remain, Sir,
Yours, &c.,
E. DAVIS.

P. S. I perceive in reading over Mr. McMullin's communication that he says he knew the source from whence emanated "Viator,"—if he did why all this fuss to find out? Had he come to me I would at once have informed him. E.D.

On Wednesday last the office of the Times was brought under the hammer of the auctioneer and knocked down to Henry de Blaquiere, Esq., for £250.—The proprietor of the Times is now no matter of conjecture, while McCleneghan now occupies the position he is best fitted for, a man of all dirty work. There is this advantage, however, which the public obtains, namely, it is their own funds they are served with the ravings of an unprincipled menial, or the sober effusions on railways, by King Chisseller. We hardly think that a great portion of the people of Woodstock who best know the morality of the man, will countenance or encourage a sheet teeming with such low mean attacks on private character, and abominable falsehoods.—Woodstock Sentinel.

LAKE SUPERIOR WINTER.—The Lake Superior Chronicle of January 19th, states that the weather during December was delightful, almost continual sunshine, mercury frequently 45 above zero. January, 10th only eight inches snow, and very little ice. Every week small boats continued to pass up and down the north shore.

PHRENOLOGY AND GRAVE ROBBING.—The Brantford Expositor contains the following, which is curious:—'A short time since the inhabitants of the village of Mount Pleasant, in this county, were thrown into an unusual excitement, in consequence of the exhibition of some skulls at a phrenological lecture in that place, by a shoemaker there by the name of G. W. Chapman, who professes to be devoted to the study of phrenology. It appears that when a certain skull was presented to the lecturer for examination, it was at once recognized, by persons present, as having been once worn by an eccentric and well-known individual who had formerly lived in Mount Pleasant, and on his death was interred in the grave yard of the English Church of that village. Chapman upon being interrogated as to the identity of the skull admitted it at once, and also that he had obtained the heads of several other persons of well known characters, who had been buried in the neighbourhood; also one from the village of Boston. Subsequently, the grave whence one of the heads was supposed to have been taken was opened, when it was ascertained, sure enough, that the head of the inmate of the grave had been severed from the body and taken away. No doubt now remained that Chapman had, as he admitted, despoiled a number of other graves in the same manner, and the excitement through the neighbourhood, in consequence of this conviction, became so strong and threatening, that the offender immediately left the neighbourhood to avoid the consequence. Had he remained, an effort would have been made to punish him legally for body snatching, but failing in which, the indignant villagers determined to administer to the wretch a balmage of tar and a hieroglyphic of feathers.' His prompt retreat, however, saved him the indignity.'

COTTON FACTORY.—We are glad to see that Messrs. Nutty & Woodward have commenced running the Cotton Factory in our village. At present they are only making batting, a sample of which they have sent us, and we can safely pronounce it superior to anything sold in our market, and at much lower figures. Next week they expect to start their spinning machinery, and as soon as money matters get a little easier they will start all their looms, of which they will have about one hundred. We wish them the greatest success in their undertaking, and hope it will be followed by many more. There is no business that will make so much money in the country as the manufacturing of cotton; and the Welland Canal offers unrivalled facilities to parties who wish to invest their capital in such enterprises.—Thorold Gazette.

A HEAVY VERDICT.—In Albany on the last instant, a verdict of $104,000 was rendered against S. P. Townsend, the well-known vender and manufacturer of the patentes sarsaparilla bearing his name. The suit was instituted for the benefit of the heirs of Rull Clapp, who was a partner of Townsend and one Howard, upon an alleged fraud of Townsend, consisting of false representations and concealments in the division of the effects of the co-partnership after Clapp's death. The hundred thousand of dollars, it is said, have been taken from the jaws of death' by Townsend's inimitable compound should show their gratitude by subscribing a 'quarter' each to pay off the amount of the above verdict. Somehow, since Townsend & Bristol have made their fortunes, sarsaparilla has gone out of fashion, and Gaelph Mercury is not alone in crying the manner of diseases among the people' as main intact, it is not in our power to determine.

THE COLLINS LINE DONE FOR.—The New York Journal of Commerce says there have been various rumours current in New York for several days in regard to the company owning these American steamships all pointing towards the final breaking up of the line. It appears that the United States Government has declined to enter into negotiations for a renewal of the contract which expires in June, and that the officer in the service of the company was out in the Baltic on the 16th ult. to see what could be done toward effecting a sale of the vessels in Europe. Report says that the owners of the company have used their available means, and that their bankers, Messrs. Brown, Brothers & Co., have declined to make further advances without additional security. The conduct of the United States Government in thus permitting Great Britain to monopolize the passage traffic is not compatible with its usual spirit.

Three ladies, says an English paper, were last week walking on the Newmarket road, two of them exhibiting the favorite under garment of the day, when the ire of a passing bullock was excited by the glaring color, and he made a dash at the party. The offending ladies succeeded in evading him, but their companion, though in a more sombre garb, was lifted upon a gate by the beast, but sustained no injury beyond the fright.

GARROTTING CITY OFFICERS.—We learn that two of our leading municipal officers were set upon, in the city hall, on Monday last, by one of those unprincipled marauders, and after being rendered perfectly speechless, their pocket were then deliberately rifled. The city police were present at the time, but were so paralyzed by the audacity of the attack that they could render no assistance; and were also robbed of a portion of their funds. The gang were so soon fly applied upon the closest scrutiny to do the capitation.—London Prototype.

TRIBUTE TO HAVELOCK.—The flags of the shipping in this harbour (New York) and that of Boston were put at half mast yesterday, as also the flags of the principal forts. Several of the city churches tolled bells. The Times of this morning approves of the, the Herald contra. Two years and a quarter ago the British and French residents were afraid to meet and celebrate the evacuation of Sebastopol. What a strange fluctuation of opinion has occur ed between these two cities!

WOOD!

We will be obliged to those who may find it convenient to give Wood for subscriptions, to send it in while the roads are good, as that article will be as acceptable as Cash, in these hard times.

Latest news from Mexico state that the would-be dictator, General Comonfort, having been abandoned by his troops, left the capital on the 21st ult., embarked on board the Tennessee at Vera Cruz, and, in company with Gen. Garcia Conde, arrived at New Orleans on Wednesday. Immediately on the departure of Comonfort from the city, the opposing party took possession of the palace, called a convention of notables, who elected Zuloaga President of Puebla and other points in the vicinity of this city. Meantime the Chief of the Supreme Court, as President of the constitution, had called a Congress to meet at Guanajuato, the focus of the liberal party, while General Parrodi and others were preparing at other points to rush against the capital, and Alvarez was marshalling his forces in Guerero.

The Minister of Agriculture has given notice in the last Gazette, of the formation of "The City of Kingston Horticultural Society," "The City of Hamilton Horticultural Society," and "The Niagara Horticultural Society."

HEALTH OR SICKNES

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

Holloway's Pills.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; when corrupt, it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the mucous, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

Used throughout the World!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race, and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

Alarming Disorders!

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, diaphoretic and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

General Weakness—Nervous Complaints!

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victims of general debility.

Delicate Females!

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alternatives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

Scientific Endosements!

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the Faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints	Indigestion
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits
Diarrhœa	Piles.
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

* * Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box. 1yr43

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box. The same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

MAIL CONTRACT.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster General, and marked "Tenders for Mail Service," will be received at Ottawa until noon, on Monday, on Saturday, the 23rd January next—for the conveyance of Her Majesty's Mails twice per week each way between Chatham and Sandwich, on and from the 16th February next.

The conveyance to be made on horseback, or in a Buggy, Waggon or Sleigh. The computed distance between Chatham and Sandwich, is about 63 miles.

The rate of travel to be not less than four miles per hour, including stoppages for all purposes.

The days and hours of Arrival and Departure to be as follows, subject to right of the Post Master General to alter the same, should he consider it advisable so to do. To leave Chatham every Monday and Thursday—and Sandwich every Wednesday and Saturday, proceeding to Chatham and Sandwich respectively, direct—serving the Post Offices each way, at Raymond—Tilsonburg, Dartmouth—Edgeworth and Maidstone, at such hours as may be required.

The Contract, if satisfactorily executed, will guarantee three years term and exceeding four years; the Postmaster General reserving the right to terminate the agreement at any time previous to the expiration of the four years, should the public interest require it, upon giving the Contractor three months previous notice of his intention.

All expenses on this Route for Tolls, Ferries, &c., must be defrayed by the Contractor.

Each Tender to state the price asked in words at length, and to be accompanied by the written guarantee of two responsible parties undertaking that in the event of the Tender being accepted the Contract shall be duly executed by the party tendering, for the price demanded;—undertaking also to become bound with the Contractor in the sum of Twelve hundred dollars for the due performance of the service.

Blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Offices at Chatham, Sandwich and Maidstone, and at this Office.

...of your CATHARTIC PILLS, this ...e family medicine, for common ...e no knowledge. Many of my ...find benefits from them, and ...tient they possess extraordinary ...ves and curing the sick. They ...ble and pleasant to be taken ...them valued by the public.

...WARDLAW writes from the ...1854:

...: I have taken your Pills with ...lessness, languor, loss of appetite, ...which has of late years oftentimes ...A few doses of your Pills cured me. I ...hem Pectoral many years in my family ...ables with astonishing success. Your ...ill ever be used but with a pleasure in ...and you have done and are doing."

...BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co.

..."Pa. N. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 12, 1853. ...I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the ...of your medicines, having derived very numerous ...of your Pills, both your Pectoral and Cathartic ...Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor, ...ever consent to be, while my means will procure them. ...The widely renowned R. S. STEVENS, M. D., of West ...worth, N. H., writes:

..."Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I ...comply from experience that they are so invaluable purga... ...tive. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, constipation, ...headache, indigestion, costiveness, and the great variety ...of diseases this Pill is, they are a sure remedy than any ...other. In all cases where a purgative remedy is required, ...I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as ...superior to any other I have ever found. They are sure ...in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which ...render it a valuable article for public use. I have ...made these and my valuable Cherry Pectoral in this city ...for many years known as your Cherry Pectoral and ...Cough medicine in the world, and these Pills are in my ...wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the treat... ...ment of diseases."

..."Iowa, M., Nov. 26, 1853. ..."Dr. J. C. AYER—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted from ...my birth with scrofula in its worst form, and over a ...twenty years' trial, and an untold amount of suffering, ...have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. ...With what feelings of rejoicing I write can only be ...imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and how ...long. I ...

..."Never until now have I been free from this loathsome ...disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and ...I became almost blind, besides the intolerable pain; at ...others it settled in the form of ulcers on my head, and ...bone, and has kept me partly bald all my days; sometimes ...it came out in my face, and kept it for months. I saw ...about some weeks after I had commenced taking your Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. ...For years are well, my skin is fair, and my hair has ...assumed a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel already a new person.

..."Hoping the statement may be the means of conveying information that shall do good to others, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c., MARIA RICKER."

..."I have known the above named Maria Ricker from ...my childhood, and her statement is strictly true.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,
Overseer of the Portsmouth Manufacturing Co."

...CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Marion, writes from ...Boston, 20th April, 1854:

..."Your Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which ...arose from derangement of the liver, which had become very serious. I had failed of any relief by my Physician, ...and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills have completely restored me to health. I have given them to my children for worms, with the best effects. They were promptly cured. I recommended them to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for ...months; he told me in a few days they had cured him. ...You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

...Read the letter from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme ...Court, whose brilliant abilities have made him well ...known, and only to this but the neighboring States.

..."New Orleans, 5th April, 1854. ..."Sir: I have great satisfaction in informing you that ...my family have been very much benefitted by your ...Pills. My wife was cured, two years ago, of a most ...dangerous cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, ...and my children have been frequently relieved from ...[illegible] by your CATHARTIC PILLS. I have no hesitation ...in saying that these two remedies are the best ...[illegible] in use. Doctor, like a providential blessing ...to my family, and [illegible] will suppose we are not an ...fool of it. Yours respectfully,

LEAVITT THAXTER."

..."Seattle Chamber, Ohio, April 5th, 1854. ..."Dr. J. C. AYER—Honored Sir: I have made a clear ...sweep from all the CATHARTIC PILLS sold to me by your agent, ...and have been cured by them of the dreadful Rheumatism ...under which he found me suffering. The first dose re... ...lieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health now than for ...some years before, which I attribute entirely to the effects ...of your CATHARTIC PILLS. Yours with great respect,

A Gift of one Thousand Copies.

RUSSELL & RICARDSON have in press a work entitled

THE MUSICIANS GUIDE;

Edited by Nathan Richardson, author of the Modern School for the Piano Forte, which recently took the first Prize Medal, and is so highly recommended by Dodworth, Dorrigh... ton, Bristow, Bassford, Dr. Mason, Wm. Mason and others as being superior to all other Instruction Books published.

The Musician's Guide will be ready this month. The engraving of some of the most important plates is the cause of its delay. It is a large quarto of 55 pages, containing many beautiful engravings, and a description of the use of over 600 different compositions of music. It is an invaluable book for teachers of music, amateurs, and all players and singers.

Desirous of making a rapid introduction of his work, we are induced to GIVE AWAY the first edition, of ONE THOUSAND COPIES to people interested in music, and so will send it FREE OF THE POSTAGE.

B—Only one copy will be sent to the same address. The work will be sent in the same order as the addresses are received.

N. B.—You will greatly get rid of your FREE OF ALL EXPENSES, by sending your name and address without delay to

RUSSELL & RICARDSON,
Musical Publishers, Boston.

To EDITORS.—Russell & Richardson will send you two dollars worth of their latest Musical publications and the MUSICIAN'S GUIDE, postage pid, if you will give the above advertisement (including this offer) one insertion in your paper.

North Shore Line of Steamboats

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE new and magnificent steamers PLYMOUTH ROCK, WESTERN WORLD, and MISSISSIPPI, will form this line the ensuing season, and commence running immediately upon the opening of navigation, as follows:

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays
" Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.

WESTERN WORLD,
J. S. RICHARDS, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Wednesdays & Saturdays
" Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Will leave Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.
" Buffalo, Wednesdays & Saturdays

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being built expressly and runs each. The Commanders and Officers are gentlemen of great experience and capability. They are fitted up and furnished for the convenience and pleasure of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the safest and most desirable steamers that sail upon the Western Waters.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Buffalo, and at all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandize with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

For the transportation of live stock these steamers offer facilities to drovers which cannot be surpassed or equalled.

Shippers of merchandize from the East, should mark packages to the care of Messrs SEYMOUR, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

NORTH-WESTERN TRANSPORTATION LINE.

1857.

Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago

THIS LINE consists of the following First Class Propellers:

MONTGOMERY, Capt. T. Nicholson
GLOBE, " Amos Pratt,
ONTONAGON, " A. Wilkins,
ADRIATIC, " M. S. Lathrop
OGONTZ, " W. D. Wilkinson
WABASH VALLEY, "
(New Propeller.)

Which will, during the season, run between Buffalo, Milwaukie and Chicago, touching at intermediate ports.

This line connects with the North-Western Transportation Company Line on the Erie Canal and Hudson River, from the New York and Buffalo, forming a continuous Line from New York to Chicago, and affording as good facilities as that of any other line.

A Propeller of this Line will leave BUFFALO and CHICAGO THREE times a week; and having Upper Cabins, afford good accommodations for Cabin and Steerage Passengers, and Families emigrating West should seek the CHEAPEST and most comfortable route.

Arrangements are made for transportation of Property and Merchandize, via

New York & Erie Railroad

on as low terms as can be by any other Railroad Route.

This Line having so large facilities, show ing an aggregate of over FIVE THOUSAND Tons Burthen, and being all new and staunch first-class Propellers, offers superior facilities to Shippers of Produce and Merchandize for the transport of Property.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

GREEN'S

GREAT WESTERN BOOT STORE,

Bedford Street, Sandwich.

J. GREEN returns his thanks to the inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor and the neighboring townships, for the very liberal manner in which they have supported him since his commencement in business, and he assures them that it is his intention to purchase the very best quality of LEATHER and keep the best of workmen, so that he can compete with his Yankee neighbours both as regards material and workmanship, and sell at such low prices for cash, as will defy competition. It is a mistaken notion for the public to carry their money to Detroit, when they can be supplied with a home manufactured article cheaper.

Farmers

Call at the Great Western Boot store, where you will find every article in the Boot and Shoe trade to suit you.

N. B.—Gentlemen's wear of all kinds made to order on the shortest notice.

Sandwich, March 15, 1857.

THE OLD STORY.

BY WILLIE LIGHTHEART.

Mamma, mamma, young Eddie Jones,
Who called for me last night,
And by the fallen oak sat down,
Beneath the moon's soft light,
Whispered so many pretty things
About his country home,
And took my hand in his and asked
If I would be his own.

He called me beautiful, and said
My hand was snowy white,
My lips were coral and my eyes
Were like the diamond's light;
And then he sighed and looked so sad,
And seemed in such distress,
That when he asked to be his,
I had to tell him yes.

Fie! fie! my daughter, Eddie Jones
A nice young man may be,
But "he can't keep a hotel," nor
A husband be to thee;
He's nothing but a country clown,
And he does not own a red,
Before I see you marry him,
I'd rather both were dead.

But, dear mamma, young Eddie Jones
Is wealthy I am sure,
For old Spondulicks died and left
Five thousand pounds or more;
And all his money is his own,
Besides his country home;
Mamma, mamma, I'd rather be
His bride, than live alone.

I know he loves the very ground
On which my shadow falls,
And will delight to furnish me
With bonnets, hoops and shawls;
And more than all that gold can buy,
More than my petty sins—
That climbs upon the porch—I love
To know his heart is mine.

Five thousand pounds!—and all his own!
Whew, daughter, what a pile!
Not that I a care a fig for wealth,
Therefore you needn't smile.
But Eddie Jones has won your heart,
And loves you too, I guess;
So, when he asks your hand again,
Just say, I acquiesce.

The Woodcutter's Story.

FROM THE GERMAN.

One beautiful afternoon in Spring I was sitting with my old friend the woodcutter, on the skirt of the wood which crowns the hill that looks down upon my native village. The sun began to decline in the West, and the still warm rays made golden-edged quarered lights in the inviting shade of the forest. Clear and far sounding was to be heard the song of the sprightly blackbird, which I watched, and whose intelligent gold-bordered eyes I could see; the woodpecker hammered busily away at one of the hollow invalids of the wood, and a finch called his absent wife. No other sound but these interrupted the reigning agreeable quietness; not the slightest breathing of wind was there to move the tops of the green firs. It was one of those moments in which creation seems to keep subbath, and to which the lively singers of the air give the sacred music. All at once, unexpected, there glided into this peaceful harmony a tumultuous rushing sound, as if the spirit of destruction was flying over the crowns of the mighty firs with gigantic wings, the tops of the trees bent down, and came in contact with each other, like human beings going to mutual attack.

I was terror struck, and, expecting and fearing the downfall of these high trees, I ran wildly into the open field. I ran till I was a hundred paces from the edge of the forest, and then I took courage to look back for my old friend. He also had gone away a little from the wood, and was now standing there, quietly watching the strange disturbance of the elements. I felt ashamed of my hasty fright, when I saw his calm composure, and approached the wood again. Wonderful enough, the hurricane blew thus furiously over only a small piece of the wood, of scarcely one hundred fathoms. The crowns of the fir trees bent like feeble reeds in a whirlwind, but further off no branch moved, no leaf trembled. Staring in wonder, I looked on the strange mysterious phenomenon. It lasted about ten minutes; and then, as quickly as it had come, the movement subsided; the trees stood again straight, like soldiers under a rigid command; no leaf whispered, no branch moved.

"What was that?" I asked, awaking from my surprise.

My friend, who looked earnest and gloomy, but not frightened, answered.—

"I knew both of them, though they have now been buried these thirty years. They possessed, each of them, some land here about; they were rich men, and respected, and yet they let themselves be tempted by the Evil One to move the marking-stone further into the wood; and it is exactly that piece upon which you saw the storm blow that they appropriated by their crime. But it brought them into a legal dispute with their neighbors; and it came to pass that they had to prove their bona fide [for whatever the lawyers call it] possession by a solemn oath. The parson, who instructed them about what a thing an oath is, spoke words piercing to the soul; how the perjurer cuts himself off from his God and Lord; how he renounces for ever happy immortality, and binds himself over to the demon of darkness. On hearing this, the two men shuddered to the inmost fibre and marrow of their bodies, and mutually vowed, when going home, to desist from so infamous a deed.

"During the time of the process, their wives had lived in furious enmity with the wife's of their husband's adversaries. Now, the thought of giving in, and of leaving victory in the hands of their enemies, put these women in a state of fire and rage,—They called their husbands cowards and fools, who were going to ruin their families on account of a silly fear. Thus upbraided, the good resolution of the men were at length destroyed. The day for the sitting of the court had come. From far and near the people were collecting. The room was full; head appeared beyond head, and the two men had to stand forth. Doors and windows were then opened, and the judge read, with impressive voice, the warning against perjury. In thick drops stood the perspiration on the forehead of the two.—But when the judge asked, for the last time, if they really were going to take the oath; they obdurately answered 'Yes.' Their hands rose, and, pale as death, they repeated the fearful form. The process was won. The multitude quitted the room, convinced that perjury had been committed.'

This account made me shudder. My old friend looked earnestly in my face, and proceeded with the rest of the tale: 'In the same year, God called from the earth those two men, in the fulness of their strength; and I have observed the dreadful inexplicable hurricane on the small, narrow piece of wood ever since, about the time of the perjury.

My old friend was evidently superstitious, like many of the poor people on the edge of the Black Forest, and elsewhere. The nose, doubtless arose from any eddy of wind passing over the trees from a ravine in the mountains. At the same time I was not displeased to mark the horror in which 'bearing false witness' was held, nor was I unmindful of the solemn imprecation in the old Mosaic law, 'Cursed be he that removeth his neighbor's landmark!'

Miscellany.

THE LAWYER AND THE DEACON.—A year or two ago, as every one will remember, a strong revival of religion spread over the land, and many hardened sinners were hopefully converted. In the interior of New York, an old lawyer was among those who professed to have found grace, but being considerable of a politician, and withal a candidate for a nomination to office, he commenced taking a slynip, sly at first, but the thing began to show itself in good time. The church was scandalized. One day the most prominent deacon caught him standing in his office door in a very bibulous condition. The deacon went at him rough shod.

'Deac'n,' said old Blackstone, inserting his thumbs in the arm holes of his vest—'Deac'n, a man o' my standing oughter be turned outer a church. Tell wher I'll do. I'll compromise honorbly. I'll withdraw my active membership, and you put me down as a 'tributing an' on'ry member.—Come, deac'n that's fair.'

Gentleman: Is Mrs. N. in?

Servant: No, sir; she's not at home.

Gentleman: Well, I am sorry, as I owe her some money and have called to pay it.

Voice from over the balustrades: Oh! I am in. To be sure I am! Why, Sally, didn't you know that I Ask the gentleman to walk in!

Fun, says Quilp, is the most conservative element of society, and ought to be cherished and encouraged by all lawful means People never plot mischief when they are merry. Laughter is an enemy to malice, a foe to scandal, and a friend to every virtue. It promotes good temper, enlivens the heart, and brightens the intellect. Let us laugh when we can.

The customers of a certain cooper cussed him a vast deal of vexation by their saving habits, and persistence in getting all their old tubs and casks repaired, and buying but little new work. 'I stood it, however, said he, 'until one day old Sam Crabtree brought in an old 'bung hole,' to which he said he wanted a new barrel made. Then I quitted the business in disgust.'

What strange things girls are. Of three of them good wages to work for you, and ten chances to one if the old woman can spare any of her girls; but just propose matrimony, and see if they don't jump at the very chance of working a life time for board and clothes.

A San Francisco paper states that a system of wife stealing has been developed among the Chinese of that city, which seems to be carried on upon some recognized and semi-legal principle, that the Celestials understand and accept. If a wife be once fairly carried off, that seems to be the end of the matter, the bereaved husband's only chance of solace being confined to his hopes of carrying off somebody else's wife.

A gentleman lately resident in Sunderland, England, at one time a strong advocate of teetotalism, now a porter bottle manufacturer in a seaport not far off, was recently asked by an acquaintance how he could reconcile his former professions with his present practice. 'Oh,' was the reply, 'when I started bottle-making, to be consistent I also began to drink wine.'

He who plays with his fingers for a living will often find them all thumbs.

Our Ocean Mail Service.

The figures published in these columns on Saturday last, showed that as to the time made by the Canadian Steamers, the Line has held its own during the past year; giving an average passage for the summer season of eleven days from Ireland to this Port. There have been serious mistakes in the management of the line, arising from various causes; among others from extreme parsimony, partially justified, no doubt by the newness of the experiment. That the naval service, however, has been successful, we have recently published speeches of the Postmaster General to attest. Our ocean mail service is not yet self sustaining; but the extra subsidy of last year is likely to be redeemed by the large postal revenue which has accrued from the arrangements made by the Postmaster General with the United States, and various European Governments. But that the management approaches to what we have a right to expect, no one will hastily affirm. It has attracted but a small share of passenger traffic during the past season—from a lack of popular confidence And the Governor General of the Province in preferring a Cunard vessel, has set an example which may be too generally imitated. The line, in fact, is supposed to have been originated more for the purpose of building up a harbour trade in Montreal than any thing else. English strangers ask why Quebec should not be the actual, as it is the natural, Canadian Port for the steamers subsidized by the Government. And the only answer that we can give is, that the concern altogether, as to its management, is controlled by Montreal influences; and that as long as the Government chooses to pay a subsidy sufficient to cover the extra expense attending the Montreal voyage, so long will the present contractors risk the river navigation and Lake St. Peter.

There is a popular delusion abroad that the Steamers of the largest class can take in their full freight at Montreal, and that the only addition to their burthen is the coal required for their onward voyage—Nothing can be more erroneous than this belief. A large portion of the freight of each of the Ocean Steamers during the past year has been conveyed from Montreal to Quebec in lighters—a number of large boats of from 300 to 400 tons capacity—being especially built and kept running for the simple purpose of transhipping the Cargo. Peter diffiently and maintaining the fiction that Montreal is the natural Ocean Port, and perpetuating a commercial falsehood in the eyes of the world. One of these steamers, even but little more than half freighted, had recently to take three days in coming down the river, during very fair weather. The consequence, as we pointed out, was a detention of the Mail—for which we think the Company ought to be brought to account. For all this mal-arrangement, however, the Province, including Quebec, has to pay. Were the Montreal Ocean Steamship Company dependent exclusively on the freight and passenger trafic, for its success, it would hardly venture upon the manifestly losing game of making Montreal its terminal point. As long, however, as the Province pays the piper, so long we are content to put up with delays in Lake St. Peter which keep the American and Canadian mails ten hours back, so long will it be convenient for the proprietors to maintain the present order of things. We shall give our subsidy of four hundred and sixteen thousand dollars, no doubt conveniently for many years to come, knowing that nearly all the sums are expended entirely for the benefit of Montreal, with no compensatory advantages whatever to the rest of the Province. This state of things will last for a time, because where there is a contract which we are not permitted to break. But we need not overlook the fact that it has been demonstrated that a line of common Screw Steamers may be made to pay without postal subsidies, and a carefully managed line, such as the "Anchor" line of Quebec its terminal port, would have no difficulty in carrying off the bulk of the passenger traffic. The necessary wharf accommodation and the amount of paying freight would follow in the natural order of supply and demand, and the people of England would learn that the entree Province is not entirely dependant on one particular Port.—Quebec Chronicle.

Arrival of the Fulton.

St. John's, N. F., Friday, Dec. 21, 1860.

The Steamship Fulton, from Southampton on the 12th inst., arrived off Cape Race at 5 o'clock on Friday morning, where she was intercepted by the news yacht of the Associated Press.

Her advices are three days later than those received by the Persia, at New York.

The steamship Canada from Boston arrived at Liverpool on the 9th inst.

The steamship City of Baltimore, from New York, arrived at Queenstown on the evening of the 11th inst.

The Fulton has 500 tons of merchandise, $600,000 in specie, and 199 passengers,

The Fulton reports, December 14, lat. 50° 30, lon. 11° 10, passed ship Montabello, bound east.

France has granted an amnesty to the French journals for previous infractions of the press law.

The Sardinians would await the fall of Gaeta before summoning the Citadel of Messina to surrender. In case of refusal they would besege it.

Agitation prevailed in the Danubian Principalities, and at Pesth.

The Austrian Ministerial crisis was over.

Pekin surrendered to the Allies on the 13th of October, and yielded to all their demands. The Emperor's Summer palace was sacked, and an enormous amount of spoils taken. The Emperor and the Tartar army had all fled. Nothing was to be seen of the enemy at Pekin. The allied forces will winter at Pekin. They were encamped on the walls, and were all in good health. Col. Parkes and Lock, and thirteen soldiers, had been released. But little hope was felt for the return of Cols. Brabazon and Bowlby, and other French officers who were missing. Norman Anderson had died of brutal treatment.

A new and distinct rebellion was reported at Shanghae.

Batavian affairs were improving.

The Calcutta Government had recommended the Bombay Government for all India.

In the London Stock market American railway securities were flat.

Arrival of the City of Manchester

St. Johns, N.F., Dec. 22, 1860.

The screw steamer City of Manchester which left Liverpool at noon of the 12th instant, via Queenston the 13th, passed Cape Race at 6 o'clock this morning for New York. She was intercepted by the news yacht of the New York Associated Press, and her news despatch obtained.

The steamship Palestine, from Portland arrived at Londonderry on the 12th.

The City of Manchester has £38,000 in specie.

The China mail, which was anxiously looked for, had not been telegraphed when the City of Manchester left Queenston.

The following is by telegraph from Liverpool to Queenstown on the 13th:

Liverpool Breadstuffs.—The market was firm, with an upward tendency.

Provision market dull.

London, Wednesday evening.—Consols closed at 92⅞ for account, ex-div.

The China mails would not reach London before the 18th instant.

The report on the inquiry into the loss of the steamship Connaught has been submitted to the Liverpool Board of Trade. It says that the investigation brought to light nothing to prove that the Connaught was lost through the negligence of her officers, but it was thought that more intelligence might have been displayed in endeavoring to detect the cause and devising means to stop the leak. Various suggestions are made in this report relative to the construction of such vessels, better to insure the safety of passengers.

Lord Lyons and Sir Edmund Head had been created Knights Commander of the Bath.

Lord Napier has been appointed Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburg, vice Sir John Crampton, who has been removed to Madeira.

It has again been rumored that Lord Cowley was to leave Paris, and go to India to assume the duties of Governor.

The supposed robbery of British citizens in Mexico will cause determined action on the part of the British government, who were awaiting official confirmation of the report.

The London Times editorially censures the attitude of the State of South Carolina towards the Federal government, but admits that the southerners have some right on their side, viz: the right of free trade.

The French decree, retracting all warnings to journals, is published.

The Paris Bourse was dull and drooping; 3 per cent. rentes were quoted 68f. 90c.

It is rumored that D. Ranyon Dalrymple will succeed M. Thouvenal in the Foreign Department.

Indian affairs remain unchanged.

The army of Italy is to consist of 300,000 troops, divided into Northern and southern divisions.

The programme of the new Austrian Minister of State promises many sweeping and important measures of reform.

The City of Manchester has £11,636 in specie, a full cargo, 34 cabin and 180 steerage passengers. She has experienced very unfavorable weather.

Municipal Elections.

The Electors of the County of Essex will be required to perform an important duty on the 7th proximo, and in selecting such persons to represent them in their Municipal Council as they, according to their best judgment, shall deem best fitted for the onerous and responsible duties of Councillors.

We need scarcely impress on our friends the urgent necessity of awakening to a sense of the importance of putting the right men in the right place, the election of Municipal Councillors to a certain extent regulates the choice of a Representative in the Legislative Assembly, and it is well therefore, that if we are resolved on electing a Member pledged to the support of the Reform cause the same principles should guide us in chosing such men as shall introduce and advocate such measures of Reform in our Municipal Council as shall best conduce to the improvement and benefit of the County.

We cannot look for immediate prosperity until such men are selected as shall watch carefully and closely the expenditure of the public fund-, while at the same time they must be sufficiently progressive as to assist by a wise and judicious course of conduct, in using all proper means to develope by works of public improvement the resources of our noble County.

Interested politicians are, we are aware, pulling the wires to secure men in the different Townships pledged to the support of their personal ends and views endeavoring by such, to carry on the same disgraceful system of party warfare, which has proved so fatal to the prosperity of the County. The Reform party, however, to their credit, be it said, know no man, principles alone guide them in the selection of a Candidate, and we hope to see the triumph of those principles during the coming contest.

☞ The Sunday School Children recited their Christmas pieces, last night, at the Town Hall. Want of space prevents us giving a full report this week, but we will do so in our next issue.

MR. DOUGALL'S DINNER.

Mr. McKellar proposed the "Reform Electors of the County of Essex."

Alex. Cameron, Esq., of Toronto was loudly called for to reply.

Mr. Cameron rose and said, that after holding the attention of the meeting already so long in listening to the speeches of the gentlemen who had preceded him, it would be unwise to tax their patience much longer. He felt abundantly pleased with the demonstration; and, instead of their receiving thanks, he thought it was he and those who owed thanks to Mr. Dougall for the sacrifices he had made in coming forward to contest the Division on Reform principles, and for the pleasure of that evening's entertainment. He did not desire to trespass upon politics to-night; this was a time for congratulation and rejoicing, rather than for discussion or attack upon our opponents. They could congratulate each other on the fact, that although they had met face to face with their opponents, to discuss the political questions before the country and the acts of the Administration, that at none of these meetings was there any unseemly temper exhibited; that the contest had not been turned into personal warfare; that neighbor had not quarrelled with neighbor, and that it had been entirely clear of that bitter ascerbity that had characterized previous election contests in this County.

He would congratulate them also that they had contested the County with their opponents upon high, honorable principles. It was not a question who should be the greatest in the Division; or the personal interest or the blemishes of the Candidates; or the private rights of one or other of the gentlemen in the field, that was discussed. In this respect it differed entirely from previous elections in this County, and he (Mr. C.) was glad to find that the electors on both sides appreciated the change that had been introduced. What was the issue or issues at the last County election? For what did they work night and day? Why all the excitement and bitter, hostile feeling that was engendered? Because [said Mr. C.] most were made, or made themselves the standard, instead of great political principles. It was degrading for a free, intelligent people to use the elective franchise for so high purpose, and he felt that it was a sincere source of congratulation that in this respect the first contest differed so widely from the contests of long ago. It was sincerely gratifying to those who had taken an active part, and it would be equally so to the people, that they had faithfully and honestly and intelligently dealt with them. He [Mr. C.] hoped that he would be allowed to claim this credit for his party without appearing to be actuated by self-commendation, although an active supporter of their principles in the late election.

He could with confidence appeal to many whom he saw in this large assembly, who had been present at the recent public meetings which were held in various parts of this County, that whether or not he was an open discussion, face to face with our opponents, we had not always been the victors [Cheers.] In this very place, and among the last of the Meetings that were held, the Ministerial brigade formed into line, to do open battle for their cause. He could not deny himself the gratification of referring to that night's proceedings, and many of you will be equally gratified. [Cheers.]—Under the Generalship of Mr. McMicken, member for Welland, Mr. Connor the retired Candidate for the Senate, and Mr. Matthew Connor, backed up by outside volunteers, they made a strenuous effort to damage the principles of the Reform party, and to gain the confidence of the electors of Mersea. They made a fair show in their carriages; they fared sumptuously and doubtless treated liberally at the expense of the Knight of Dundern; they progressed admirably through the muddy roads and over corduroy bridges; Sir Allan's and the Ministerial standards were passed around the County with these "lurks," each in their turn relieving the other of their burden [laughter—but when they tried to carry them into your confidence, when they sought to convince you that they had acted in the interests of the people for the past six years, the labor became too heavy for the whole of them, and the Reform banner ran up as the signal of their defeat and of our victory. [Cheers.] The large majorities which you gave in Gosfield and Mersea establish this fact, and if in other parts of the County we failed, it was because men were attached to an enemy's name, or were caught by unfair prejudices in which our opponents traded for support. He [Mr. C.] saw in the late contest the germ of a new political life in Essex; the future of our opponents was annihilation, and they writhed under the withering defeat and the prospects that were before them.

The public questions before the country were fully and fairly discussed, and the misdeeds of Sir Allan and the Government proved by the Journals of the House of Assembly. There was seldom even an allusion to the personal corruption charged by the newspapers against members of the Executive, because we were determined [said Mr C.] to advance nothing that could not be substantiated by incontrovertible proof This mode, he contended, contrasted favorably with the method adopted by the Ministerialists. Their principles were all bundled up in "cries"—mad dog cries raised to divert the attention of the people from their faithlessness, and to carry support, not through reason, but by the force of prejudice and clap trap. What intelligence or honesty of purpose is there in the constant cry against George Brown? Before they raise antagonism in your minds against him, is it not reasonable that we should demand of them a full and fair exposition of the causes of their antagonism? He [Mr. C.] contended that they had never given any good reason upon which to found the bitter opposition which was fastened upon the name of that gentleman. It was the same too about the term "Clear Grit."—The people were told to oppose the Grit, but he [Mr C.] would be salisfied, as an intelligent man ought to be, to give such counsel to the electors, unless he could advance substantial reasons in support of that advice.

We were also charged as a party with a desire to dissolve the existing Union between Upper and Lower Canada, and this too was based upon slander and dishonesty. Mr. C. entered into an explanation of the present system; showed that where so large a proportion of Lower Canada members sustained the Government, they must necessarily be under their immediate control, and hence any Government who would retain power by a sectional majority alone, must necessarily incur the hostility of that section whose interests are being sacrificed to the majority. It is contended, said [Mr. C.] that Representation by Population would not effect a remedy of existing evils, and quite a number of Reformers entertain this view; another section hold that if Responsible Government were fairly carried out, that it would be a cure for all our political diseases, and that it were better to try Representation by Population than to change our existing relations. These are open questions, however, upon which there is no settled party policy, and those of us who considered that the present Union will not work, cannot fairly be said to be Disunionists. All they seek for is to change the present Union to a Federal Union.

We have heard to night, in the able and candid speeches of Mr. Dougall and Mr. Wm. Cameron, the blunders of Responsible Government system; the catalogue of sectional favors to the solid phalanx of Lower Canada members who have supported the Government for the past six years, aided by some fifteen or twenty Upper Canada members, is surely enough to suggest an immediate necessity to change any system that leads to such results. If there is no cure in the Responsible Government itself for the blemishes of the Candidates; or the private rights of one or other of the gentlemen in the field, that was discussed. In this respect it differed entirely from previous elections in this County, and he (Mr. C.) was glad to find that the electors on both sides appreciated the change that had been introduced. If there is no cure in the Responsible Government itself to be found, can you wonder that a party professing the interests of the whole people, and sounding as they do, looking at the abuses from an Upper Canada point of view, should deem it their duty to agitate for an immediate change to a Federal Union? How long will this system be tolerated, how can it be said, that we have no Reformers among us. Recreant members may barter away their political principles for the sake of gain, but the honest yeomanry of Essex will not do so. If we have been deceived that is no reason why it should be carried out to the ruin of the political principles at the next general election we shall show to both our friends and enemies, in a very tangible manner, that we have Reform principles and by them we shall stand or fall. Prior to the late election, there were in every township many respectable men, who avowed their opinions respecting political matters, who now, I am proud to say, are thoroughly confirmed in reform principles; and I unhesitatingly say that their conversion and confirmation are attributable to the able advocacy, and sound reasonings of Mr. Alex. Cameron, of Toronto, during the election campaign. I cannot part with him without stating that he certainly deserves the thanks not only of the Reform party in Essex, but of the whole Reform party in Upper Canada. I might mention other names who have valuable services in the late contest, the most prominent of whom are Walter Cowan, Esq., Ralph Foster, Esq., Leonard Wigle, Esq., and Wm. Gaines, Esq., all of Mersea.

I know I am trespassing too much upon your valuable columns, but I can not conclude without suggesting the immediate necessity of getting these Reform associations in full blast with out any delay. In urging these suggestions it reminds me of the old proverb which says, "careless men let their cattle stand upon their manures and unprovided." Let us take a lesson from this true proverb; I only heard of three Gentlemen who are likely to be brought before the Reform County Convention: they are Messrs. Walter McCrea, Chatham; Alex. Cameron, of Toronto, and W. R. Morgan, of the Township of Sandwich—two of whom would make a Capital member; the two former are lawyers, and the latter a farmer. There are many who are prejudiced against lawyers, but I think that you will concur with me when I say that there are honest lawyers in Canada as well as honest farmers, and certainly an honest lawyer ought to make a good lawmaker. As far as I can ascertain, Mr. Cameron is the strongest man in the Southern townships; his conduct in the late contest has won him many laurels. I will conclude by saying "Be wise in time for yourself and your paper more than ordinary success.

A FEDERAL UNIONIST.

Mersea, 11th December, 1860.

Bankrupt Law.—The Brantford Courier, Hamilton Spectator, Chatham Planet, and other influential journals, in the interest of the Administration, are urging that Government should take some steps to amend the law between debtor and creditor. The Courier, in concluding some well timed remarks, says:—

"We have in our midst many most worthy men who are fettered and kept down by the present oppressive law. The effects upon the Province are most injurious. We are continually losing persons of this stamp who are capable by their experience, sobriety, industry and business habits to add to the material interests of the land. Discouraged at length, and finding that there is no chance for retrieving their fortunes, their last resource is to be a retreat to the United States. Thus our population is diminished, and the creditor loses all prospect of recovering a single dollar. An amended and efficient bankrupt law would be most popular, and would do more to advance the interests of the present Ministry than any measure they could possibly carry out. We trust that such a law will be among the first products of the ensuing session."

To which we respond Amen!

The excuses that were indulged in during last session will not be available this, and we do hope that such steps will be taken to remove the difficulty of which the Courier complains. The placing the relations of debtor and creditor upon a more sufficient footing is one of the urgent practical reforms of the day, and any set of men will earn the thanks of the community, who go sincerely to work to accomplish it.—Free Press.

A New Brunswick View.—It is satisfactory to find a leading journal, the Head Quarters, preparing the people of that Province for the great scheme of Federation, which must shortly be brought about.—Our contemporary points out greatly in order to disabuse the local mind of the notion so industriously circulated here, that we are overburdened with taxation. 'It is a true saying that we in the Lower Provinces know less of, and take less interest in what is going on in the Canadas, than in what is transpiring in Great Britain, the United States, or the continent of Europe. We may know a few of their leading men by name, but very little of their actions. The cry of the grievance-makers and the dissatisfied, is always the loudest, longest and most persevering, so that there is little wonder if the small attention we give their affairs is attracted to the false exaggerated views of them; and that we are inclined to believe that the Canadas, are almost bankrupt, are weighed heavily down by indirect taxation, and are torn to pieces by sectional differences that threaten disruption and all the calamities of civil war. But a closer view shows a different picture. If Canada is deeply dipped in debt, the debt has incurred in order to build the most splendid system of inland communication in the world—that will rapidly help to develope resources—a fair view of which may well make the fibre of bankruptcy laughable. If Canada is rather heavily taxed, its people can well bear the burden, for a tax of one pound currency is less weight to them to-day than a dollar was thirty years ago, when the Upper and Lower Canada were dividing provinces. If Canada is torn by sectional grievances which lend to so much agitation, there is such a strong majority of members in favor of union in the House of Assembly, backed by influential support, that the fears of disunion are calumenial.—Quebec Chronicle.

Manufactures at Lawrence.—The Boston Comm-rcial Bulletin says the Washington Mills, in consequence of the uncertain future, are working short time, running only three quarters of a day. The semi-annual account—made up favorably, for the mills having earned $100,000, after making the usual guarantees and interest, and estimating the property at safe prices. The question of a dividend has been deferred in the possibility of extra interest and postponed debts, which it may be required to guard against.

Fatal Street Fight between California Editors.—On Wednesday, the 14th ult., a deadly fight took place at Visalia, California, between Wm. G. Morris and Mr. Shannon, editor of the Weekly Delta. The latter attacked Morris in the street and beat him over the head with a heavy revolver, knocking him senseless to the floor. On Morris recovering, he armed himself and started on after Shannon, when they met, and each fired two shots, one of which from Morris' pistol struck Shannon in the abdomen, from the effects of which he died in half an hour. Morris surrendered himself to the authorities, and was acquitted by the Justice of the Peace.

Double Memory.—A young lady whose memory was well stored and capacious suffered from somnambulism, or walking, in a gently fell asleep. She was discovered that she had lost every iota of acquired knowledge, and that her mind was reduced to a perfect blank. With great effort she was gradually mastering, as a child would do, the first lessons of youth, when she suddenly fell into a sound sleep, on awaking from which it was discovered that she had recovered her old state of knowledge. The old and new states alternated with each other; at one movement she was the accomplished woman, at another she possessed the mental calibre of a child; in the old state she wrote a beautiful hand, in the new a cramped, stiff character, such as children do. In this extraordinary condition she remained for four years; double mind, as it were, took possession of her, she being conscious only of the state she might happen to be in at the time.—Once a Week.

Duke Paul, of Wurtemburg, a prince more famous for his travels in all quarters of the globe than for any of the usual avocations of princely life, has just died at Merentheim, in the 64th year of his age. He has written a great number of works on the Orient and America, and several others will be published from its posthumous manuscripts.

Straw Paper.—We learn that in a few days, a mill near Toronto will be put in operation to manufacture the paper to be produced under the patent of Mr. Ebenezer Clemo. It is now found that the paper cannot be produced for 5 cents per pound but that it will cost 8 cents fully. But even at this price the invention will be a valuable one, if it turns out that the paper made will compare with that ordinarily in use. The patent consists in the application of nitric acid or the aquafortis of commerce to straw, or other vegetable fabric, in combination with other substances, by which alkalis will play a part. It is by the repeated action of nitric acid, diluted with certain proportions of water and caustic soda, or soda ash, that the fibre of the straw undergoes the necessary modification, and, is rendered available for the required purpose.—Kingston News.

Anecdote of Garibaldi.—After the peace of Villafranca, Garibaldi came to Genoa with the intention of retiring to the island of Sardinia. He arrived one with out the means of paying his passage across, and a private subscription was set on foot to raise 500f for him. Well, this extraordinary man, himself penniless, was one day accosted in the streets by a beggar woman, who extended alms of him. He inquired into her case, and finding it a deserving one, said—"My good woman, said he, I myself am penniless, but here, take this; it will enable you to obtain bread." So saying, he handed over to the woman the money awarded him by the King for his services during the war with Austria.—Chronicle's Correspondent.

Mr. Punch's New Contributor.—As the Herd was short of fuel, the Duke inquired of the Prince whether he should signal to the Adalus for any? "Indeed I always pay not," was the prompt reply: "for they will never be such fools as to send coals to Newcastle."—Punch.

Died.

At her residence, Hands Farm, Sandwich, Mrs. Mary Hands, on Saturday the 22d day of December, inst., at 10 minutes past 2 P.M., aged 90 years and 14 days.

The deceased was perhaps the oldest resident of this Frontier, and is the last of those U. E. Loyalists who emigrated from the opposite side of the River, then known as Fort Detroit, but a portion of the British possessions, where she was born on the 8th day of December, 1770.

Her late husband, Wm. Hands, after the evacuations of the Fort by the British, removed with his family in 1796 to Sandwich, where they rested with a few other loyal subjects, not one of whom now remains to speak of the many hardships that this small band had subsequently to endure in this, then, wilderness; for they were the only English inhabitants on this Frontier.

We will not attempt to speak of the many virtues of the deceased; she was too well known to need praise at our hands; all who have known her during her childhood up will testify of her exemplary conduct, as a mother, as a friend, and a neighbor, all with unite with us in saying, that whom no one was more respected or loved by all who knew her. Many a tear will be shed where her mortal remains are being conveyed to their last earthly resting place.

Order of Sessions.

Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in Quarter Session assembled, having considered the expense and inconveniance to parties prosecuting petty larcenies and other minor offences, as well as taking up the time of the Court and Jury, and the heavy expenses such matters are to the County, do hereby resolve that His Honor the Chairman be authorized and requested to draft a petition to the two branches of the Legislature, setting forth the above grievance, and praying that a power be granted in the administration of the Criminal Law, to enable Magistrates out of the sessions to deal in a summary manner with such cases, similar to that which applies to incorporated cities; but that no summary convictions shall be made by less number than three Magistrates, and giving the power to the one taking the information to call two others of the nearest Magistrates to his aid, and that the Chairman cause a transcript said petition for approval at the approval meeting of this session on the 10th day of January next, when so many Justices shall meet as convenient, to adopt the same. And for the information of all Magistrates this resolution shall be published for three successive weeks in the following papers, namely the Amherstburg Observer, Kingsville Maple Leaf Essex Journal, and Windsor Herald.

Weekly Commercial Review

WINDSOR, December 26, 1860.

There does not appear to be any immediate hope of a settlement of the political troubles in the United States; the secession movement in the South appears as determined on as ever, consequently commercial affairs remain in a very unsettled state, although a partial improvement has taken place from the recent importations of specie from England.

There is a better feeling in the produce trade within the last few days, stocks are becoming somewhat reduced in the East, and shipments to England can now be made more freely, exchange in England being more easily negotiated.

Heavy importations of breadstuffs into England had according to the last advices checked any upward tendency; prices of foreign grain were, however, well sustained and in some instances an advance had been paid; the trade was liberally supplied them being a large demand for local consumption and as a heavy inroad was being made into the stocks on hand, and the Russian ports were closed by ice, it was generally supposed that the lowest point had been reached, the following is the latest report.

LIVERPOOL, 4th Dec., 1860.

A few hours of westerly wind has enabled a great many ships which were in the channel to get into our port, but the wind is again easterly, and the rain which we have had for a week ashore without cessation continues. The weather during November has, on the whole, been very favorable for field-work, but the land was so wet that great delay took place in many districts. A good proportion of the Wheat has been well got into the ground, but in the low and clay districts a considerable breadth of land must now be left over for Spring Wheat. The fine weather of November has somewhat improved the Turnips and Mangolds, and has tended to check the advance of Potato disease. The deliveries of English Wheat from farmers are only about one-half of the usual quantities at this season, and the quality and condition are decidedly worse than was expected; a very important proportion is quite unfit for making Flour, and must be used for feeding purposes.

We have now the analysis of our large October importation of Wheat and Flour, which were from the following countries, viz:—

Russia,	234,000	quarters.
Prussia,	49,000	"
Denmark,	5,000	"
Mecklenburgh,	12,000	"
Hanse Towns	26,000	"
France,	153,000	"
Turkey, &c.	11,000	"
Egypt,	47,000	"
United States	477,000	"
Others,	90,000	"
	1,073,000	quarters.

November will, we think, show very nearly as large a total. The state of the money market had no doubt some effect upon the Corn Trade a few weeks ago, but as the financial difficulties in New York are now looked upon as likely to be of long duration they have produced no effect in this country, and it is thought that a moderate export of Gold will suffice to set matters right.

The French markets with good supplies from farmers are lower, but in Paris stocks are very light. At Marseilles arrivals are moderate, and prices firm. At Bordeaux and Nantes there is now nothing doing for England, as prices are too high. In the north of Europe prices are rather lower, but there is not much business passing. In Italy there is a demand for Grain, which which arrest some of our supplies.

Buyers have been extremely cautious during the past week, and new English and inferior Foreign Wheats have been selling at low and irregular prices, while the finer descriptions of Foreign maintain their value.

At To-day's market there was a good attendance, and more tone in the trade than of late, although the amount of business done was not very large.

WHEAT.—There is a fair demand for Red Winter Wheats at 11s.4d. to 11s.6d. per cental, but the common sorts of American Red Wheats are very difficult of sale; White Wheats are scarce, and sell readily at 12s. 6d. per cental.

FLOUR.—There was a good deal done today in Extra New York State Flour at 27s. 6d. per barrel, but nothing reported in Ohios or Baltimore.

INDIAN CORN is 1s. lower to-day, and mixed Western was sold at 37s.

PEASE are dull, and 1s. lower.

BACON.—The new arrivals meet a fair demand.

BUTTER.—The best qualities sell readily at full prices, and the lower grades are easier to move.

TALLOW is quiet, and 6d. to 1s. lower.

ASHES.—There have been 750 barrels of Pots at 28s.6d. to 29s.; Pearls 29s.6d. A large proportion of late imports have been for consumers' account, which keeps them out of the market.

TIMBER, &c.—Quebec Yellow Pine has been selling readily at full prices, up to 31s. for large averages of prime quality. Good Pine is in demand. Oak low in stock, and wanted; sales at 2s. to 2s.3d. Deals sell readily, good freight parcels have brought £18, and £13 10s. for first and second. Staves are in rather better demand, and a shade dearer.

GILLESPIE, BORTHWICK & CO.

GUN DISEASE.—At Manchester to-day there was a steady consumptive demand for Wheat, and Tuesday's extreme prices paid, more particularly on the finer qualities of Red. Flour has also found ready buyers, and in some instances at an advance of 3d. per cental. Indian Corn slow of sale, and rather cheaper, mixed offered at 37s.

There is very little change to notice in the Western market; operators continue very restricted from the stringency of the money market. Considerable purchases of Flour have been made in Chicago for the Eastern markets by merchants to make remittances, this mode being preferred to selling Western currency at 10 a 12½ discount, The following is the latest report.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24, 1860.

Flour is selling only in a retail way at a range of 4 25 a 4 75 for extras. Wheat is held above the views of buyers for store lots. Street rates 85c for good red and 90c for do white. Corn is selling in moderate quantities at 40c for old, and 37 for new. Corn meal ranges from 87½ to 100c, but with little doing. Butter is worth 11 a 13 for packet, and 11c for roll. Nothing doing in provisions.

Dressed Hogs were again lower, 5 00 being all that dealers were willing to offer, while no more than 4 75 and 4 87½ were offered for lots weighing 190 a 200. The tendency of the market was strongly downward, and while 5 12½ was occasionally paid for extra lots, yet 500 was the very highest that most dealers would go for good lots.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21, 1860.

Since our last, the market has touched a still lower point. Superfine having been sold at 4,90, and Wheat, ex car, at 90c to 1,00. For the last two days, however, a better feeling has prevailed, and there is more doing at a slight advance. Sales for Spring delivery have been made at 5 65 to 5 75 for Superfine in May and 20c. per 66 lbs. for U. C. Peas, afloat, in May.

A day or two of milder weather has made Dressed Hogs very dull, but we look for a more active market soon. Coarse Grains are quiet.

WINDSOR WHOLESALE MARKET.

WHEAT is unchanged in value; there are very few deliveries. Good White winter would sell at 95c, red 85c, and spring 75c per bushel.

INDIAN CORN is wanted at 35c for shelled and 30c a 35 for ear per bushel.

BARLEY dull at $1 per 160 lbs.

OATS meet with a ready sale at 18 a 20 per bushel.

DRESSED HOGS in good enquiry at 4 50 a 5 00 per 100lbs.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

AS used in Her Majesty's stables, and also on His Royal Highness the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are substantially shown by certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

NERVOUS DISORDERS.

What is more fearful than a breaking down of the nervous system? To be excitable or nervous in a small degree is most distressing, for where can a remedy be found? There is one—drink but little wine, beer, or spirits, or eat better, and take no coffee, —weak tea being preferable; get all the fresh air you can; take three or four Pills every night; eat plenty of solids, avoiding the use of spices; and if these golden rules are followed, you will be happy in mind and strong in body, and forget you have any nerves.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

If there is one thing more than another for which these Pills are so famous it is their purifying properties, especially their power of cleansing the blood from all impurities, and removing dangerous and suspended secretions. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints, they never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about what is required.

SICK HEADACHE AND WANT OF APPETITE.

These feelings which so sudden, most frequently arise from annoyances or trouble, from obstructed perspiration, or from eating and drinking what is unfit for us, thus disordering the liver and stomach. These organs must be regulated if you wish to be well. The Pills, if taken according to the printed instruction, will quickly restore a healthy action to both liver and stomach, whence follow as a natural consequence, a good appetite and a clear head. In the East and West Indies scarcely any other medicine is ever used for these disorders.

DISORDERS OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water, or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

FOR STOMACH OUT OF ORDER

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills. They remove all acidity, occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and restore it to a healthy action, they are wonderfully efficacious in case of spasm,—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Ague,	Asthma
Bilious Complaints,	Blotches on the Skin
Bowel Complaints,	Colics,
Constipation of the Bowels,	Consumption,
Dropsy,	Debility,
Erysipelas,	Dysentery,
Fevers of all kinds,	Female Irregularities,
Gout,	Fits,
Indigestion,	Head-ache,
Jaundice,	Inflammation,

Tumors,	Ulcers,
Venereal Affections,	Worms of all kinds,

Weakness from any cause, &c., &c.

☞ CAUTION—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK and LONDON," are discernable as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions, around each pot or box. The same may be seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

☞* Sold at the Manufactory of Professor Holloway, 80 Maiden Lane, New York and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilized world, in pots, at 25c., 62c. and $1 each.

MINIATURE LIKENESSES OF PERSONS ON CHINA,

presenting all the attractive and advantageous features of ordinary photographs, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a hitherto unattained quality of durability, by being rendered as imperishable as the natural properties of the articles upon which they are transferred.

As the patented process of the Company enables the reproduction of Photographs, not only on plain surfaces, but on such as are round or of any degree of irregularity —portraits can be reproduced with faultless accuracy and delicacy of delineation, upon Porcelain vases of any description and dimension used in the manufacture of luxury or of household utility, such as thereby securing faithful portraits and furnishing a unique and exquisite style of ornamentation of articles in domestic use.

In order to furnish facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those visiting the Fine Arts desirous of having Portraits on Porcelain, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured to their own order, which they sell at cost prices.

As the American Company are owners of the patent right, and consequently the only persons authorized to use the process they have determined, in order

WINDSOR NURSERIES.

James Dougall, Proprietor.

The Stock of Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Shrubs for Fall sales is large, well-grown, and will be supplied as low as they can be obtained. The trees will be found true to name, hardy, and of superior quality.

The DWARF PEAR has been made a specialty, probably more varieties having been fully tested than in any other Nursery on this Continent. Upwards of 300 varieties can now be supplied on the true Angers Quince Stock, mostly in a bearing state, though none are grown in quantity except those that have been of great excellence, hardy, and of thrifty growth.

From the peculiar suitability of the soil of these Nurseries for the cultivation of the Pear the Trees will be found more hardy and healthy than can be procured elsewhere.

APPLE TREES.—Several thousands can be supplied—very extra budded trees, that will bear the year after planting—at $20. per 100, or $150 per 1,000. Also ordinary-sized trees, at the usual rates.

DWARF APPLES.—A large collection on the Doucin and Paradise stocks.

CURRANTS.—All the finest varieties, including the newest, in the largest quantities.

GRAPE VINES, Of the Isabella & Catawba.—All the best leading sorts, including the finest new native varieties; as also some splendid new foreign varieties, that have fruited with us for the first time in this country, and proved very early and superior. Together with all other kinds of fruits cultivated.

TREES & HEDGE PLANTS.—A splendid collection of the finest named varieties. The cultivation of both these beautiful flowers in the open boarder is very simple.

WEEPING TREES.—English weeping Ash, Scampston Weeping Elm, and Weeping Mountain Ash. A few hundred trees, of extra size and quality, from 10 to 13 feet high, 2 to 2 inches in diameter, with heads in proportion.

HARDY ROSES.—The cultivation of Hardy Summer and Everblooming Roses has also been made a specialty. All the finest kinds can be supplied. Extra strong budded on the Manetti Stock, for no other stock will they bloom freely in August—also many sorts on their own roots.

New Catalogues will be ready about the first October. Send for them, enclosing stamps.

Orders will be promptly attended to, carefully packed and forwarded as required so as to carry safely any distance.

THE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE AND FEDERATION.—If the Court Journal be good authority, the Duke of Newcastle has been bestowing much attention upon the question of a Federal Union, since his return to England. "We believe," says that paper, "that "since his return from Canada, the Duke of "Newcastle has devoted considerable attention to a plan for consolidating all the "North American colonies into one confederation. This is a project which has been "urged on the attention of the Colonial office more than once; and, perhaps, the personal knowledge the Duke has acquired "during his recent visit across the Atlantic "has made His Grace more earnest in this "matter than would otherwise have been "the case. The idea has been a favorite one "with many whose social position and official experience entitle their opinion to every "respect." It will be remembered that the question of a Federation of the Provinces had been brought under the attention of the Imperial Government, by gentlemen connected with more than one Colonial administration; and that the policy of the Imperial Government upon it was in some sort understood. It was natural, under these circumstances, that the Duke of Newcastle, by whom the Imperial policy on this question would have to be determined, in his capacity of Colonial Secretary, should take advantage of the local visit of the Heads of the Provinces to sound public opinion on the subject. We believe that at some points in his course, the Duke expressed the opinion that if federation was to be brought about it would not be desirable that there should be any unnecessary delay about it. We take it for granted, that what the Duke learned of public opinion, in these Provinces, on the subject, must have convinced him that federation is a popular measure. Taking back this information, we are not surprised to learn that His Grace has given special attention to a question of such importance; more especially as one of his predecessors had expressed the opinion that the initiation of a policy looking to the great measure of a federation of all the British American Provinces, ought to be taken by the Imperial authorities.—Leader.

SAD DEATH FROM HYDROPHOBIA.—It is with the most painful feelings that we announce to our readers the melancholy death of Mr. George Clark, a well known inhabitant of Blenheim, by that fearful disease, hydrophobia. About six months ago, we are informed, Mr. Clark was bitten by a dog of his own which was supposed to be in a rabid state—the animal also biting several other persons before it was destroyed. No bad results ever showing themselves, however, the circumstance was almost forgotten by Mr. Clark; but on Monday of last week, on his going to the well, he found he had a most unaccountable dread of water, and immediately mentioned the circumstance to some of his friends. Medical aid was promptly sought, but convulsion siezed upon the unfortunate man, and continued to increase in violence until the following night when he expired. Great anxiety exists in the minds of the friends of the other parties bitten by the dog; but up to date, we believe, no unfortunate symptoms have displayed themselves.—Galt Reporter.

LIFE AND TIMES.—William Lyon Mackenzie is busily engaged on a history of his own life and times, which if he is at all faithful to his character, will be an interesting book. Much ignorance prevails, especially among rising politicians of the day, as to the troubles of 1837, and no man possesses better information than Mr. Mackenzie on the subject.

SLAVE SALES IN ALABAMA.—The sales of negroes (one hundred and sixty five in number) belonging to the estate of Samuel Townsend, deceased, was commenced in this place on Monday, and will be continued to-day until concluded. The terms were twelve months' credit, with interest from date. The prices were very high—negro men bringing one thousand five hundred, one thousand six hundred dollars, and upwards, and others in proportion. A large number of persons were in attendance from this and other counties—Huntsville (Ala') Advocate, Dec. 5.

ENCOUNTER WITH A BEAR.—On Tuesday last, a man named Guenette, a farmer belonging to the Parish of St. Casimir, in the County of Bellechasse, having gone into the woods in the vicinity of that place, for the purpose of cutting some wood, encountered a bear. Undaunted by the size of the animal, and tempted by the rich spoil of his hive, he attacked the ferocious beast with his axe, and a desperate and terrible encounter ensued, which terminated in the death of the bear. The unfortunate assailant, however, received such injuries in the course of the fight, that his life is despaired of.—Quebec Chronicle.

VACANCY AT HAMILTON.—Mr. Isaac Buchanan has resigned his seat for Hamilton, by a letter to the Speaker, but has done it so stupidly, that the Speaker cannot act on the communication, but must wait until a formal resignation comes from Scotland, whither Mr. Isaac Buchanan has proceeded, to inherit the large property to which he has become heir through the melancholy decease of his late brother Mr. Peter Buchanan.—N. B. Whig.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY BY THOUSANDS of suffering families, a safe and reliable remedy for accidents from burns, scalds, wounds, bruises, &c., the same may be found at any respectable druggists throughout the United States and Canadas, by inquiring for Holloway's Ointment, which far excels all other salves in use for the immediate relief it gives to burns, scalds, wounds, cuts, &c., no matter how severe. The thousands who have used it pronounce it the speediest in its effect and soothing of pain—it extracts the heat and the inflammation, and by its soothing nature promotes a rapid cure of all accidents of this character. No household should be without Holloway's Pills and Ointment, which are the cheapest and most efficacious medicines for family use.

MUNIFICENT.—Dr. Morin, of Quebec, has appropriated the sum of $48,000 for the establishment of a college at Quebec.

The Welland Railway has carried over 8,000,000 bushels of grain this season.

Scientific & Useful.

BEST MODE OF DRYING PUMPKINS AND SQUASHES.—The common method of cutting into rings and drying on poles is far inferior to another plan which was partly described in a former volume of the American Agriculturalist, and which we have practised for several seasons past. The pumpkins, or squashes, are pared and cut in pieces and cooked thoroughly in as little water as will suffice to keep them from burning. After they are well done the water is mostly dried off with a gentle heat. The mass is then rubbed through a sieve or colander, and spread out on plates. It is soon dried before the fire, or in an oven kept at a very moderate warmth so as not to injure the flavor. The dried sheets peel off readily, and may be kept for any length of time. When desired for use it is simply soaked in milk. It gives a good flavored pulp, and makes pies quite as rich as the fresh pumpkins or squashes.

GOOD JELLY FROM SOUR APPLES.—Perhaps all the lady readers of the American Agriculturilist are now aware that a very delicious and palatable jelly may be made from common sour apples, and it may be prepared at all seasons when you have apples on hand. To our taste it is preferable to any other. It is prepared thus; Pare the apples and stew them as you would for common sauce, then express the juice by straining the pulp through a flannel bag. To every pint of juice add from ¾ lb. to a pound of sugar, according to the tartness of the apples used. Let the juice boil before aiding the sugar. [In making all jellies, this previous boiling facilities the process.] The time of boiling is usually from 15 to 20 minutes, but this can be tested and should be stopped before the jelly toughens. Put into molds, bowls or jars as may be most convenient, and cover with paper to exclude the air. A few quinces with the apples improve the flavor for most persons.

DRAINING PAYS.—Two years ago, I put in stone drains about four rods apart, upon a piece of swale, with a muck top about a foot thick, and a heavy clayey subsoil, a perfect hard pan, that could only be moved with a pick. This has helped the soil very much, and sunk all the springs that used to bubble up on the top in all wet seasons. I got a fair crop of potatoes last season, but the troubles of 1837, and the ground looked as if it wanted more of the same sort. Last Fall I doubled the drains put in at two rods apart and about two feet deep, which was all the fall I could get. This season I have had a very large crop of Davis' Seedling potatoes harvested without a rotten one, and a second crop of Cowhorn turnips,—Two such years will pay all the expenses of draining, and leave the land four times as much as it was before it was drained.—It is now prepared to be benefitted by manure. I think well drained land, like this, will pay the interest on two hundred dollars an acre as long as it is cared for, I am so well pleased with the experiment, that I shall lay down tiles on all my swale land as fast as I can attend to it.

EXPERIMENTE.

PREMIUM BREAD.—The following directions for making bread were given by the to whom premiums were awarded, at the late fair held to the district, which if he is at all familiar to his character, will be interesting book. Much ignorance prevails, especially among rising politicians of the day, as to the troubles of 1837, and no man possesses better information than Mr. Mackenzie on the subject.

DR. AMOS & SON,
No. 95 Main Street,
(Corner of Main & Quay Sts. Buffalo, N. Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, may be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a host of protracted and painful distressing affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and unaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Young Men, take Particular Notice.

Dr. Amos & Son take pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subject to a test by the most eminent physicians in London, Paris, Philadelphia, and New York; it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, or any disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of these instruments, pledge themselves that in any instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the Instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful Instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions securely packed and sent by express, is Ten Dollars.

BEWARE OF IMPOSITION.

Beware of empirics and itinerant self styled professors, who attempt cures, but never succeed. Dr. Amos & Son have for a long series of years been engaged in a most successful practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain ailments; for whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their case, with remittance. Also Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secure from observation.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a Writ
TO WIT: } of Fieri Facias, issued out of the Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, and to me directed, against the lands and tenements which were of John Gowie Watson, deceased, at the time of his death in the hands of John Watson and William Gasper Hall, surviving Executors of the last Will and testament of the said John Gowie Watson, deceased, to be administered, at the suit of James Purdie and Christina Purdie, Plaintiffs. I have seized and taken in execution all the right, title, interest, &c., of Part of Lot No. 76, formerly in the First Concession of the Township of Sandwich, but now in the Town of Windsor, bounded in front by the River Detroit; in rear by the highway, on the north-east side by a small run of water, and on the south-west side by the boundary line between the late Strong and Watson Estates, and containing Two hundred feet in front and rear, by one hundred feet in depth. Also, all that part of Lot No. 76, first Concession of Sandwich, which lies on the south side of the highway from Sandwich to Windsor, (saving that portion thereof conveyed by John Watson to one Richard Talbot, which lands and tenements, or the interest of the said Defendants therein, as such executors as aforesaid, I shall sell by Public Auction at my office, in the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Thursday the Thirteenth day of December next, at 12 o'clock, noon.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.

CRAWFORD & CO.,

AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,

WINDSOR, CANADA WEST,

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District composed of the COUNTIES OF ESSEX and KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of Water Communication and Railway Accommodation. With Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm produce and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be constructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable land; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; thus placing the District in direct communication with the leading cities of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials from the most reliable sources can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate, from its Southerly situation, is mild and genial, and the winters are shorter than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle, and the soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, vastly cheaper than in any other sections of the country, and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD OR UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hardwood, and conveniently located is offered, are exceedingly moderate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLERS, MANUFACTURERS, and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

LIST OF PROPERTY FOR SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more hazardous risks than farm buildings; and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that adheres to this rule. It is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property, isolated, is Insured for the above period, by giving a Premium Note for two per cent., of which twelve and a half per cents. (one eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a payment. The Agent's Fee is $1.50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid till losses occur; rendering an assessment on the Note necessary, and then no more will be called for than is required. Owing to the non-hazardous risks to which the Company is confined, the losses may reasonably expect to be small. When the Insurance expires, the Note expires also.

To illustrate the above terms:—If you Insure such property for three years, say for $600, you pay (exclusive of the Agent's Fee) $1,25 in money, and your Note is held for $6.75 more which is the limit of your liability in the transaction. No other Company offers more favorable terms; scarcely any one terms so favor ble. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are Insured a little lower.

This Office insures against Loss or Damage by Fire, all descriptions of buildings, including Mills and Manufactories, and the Goods, Wares, and Merchandize in the same; Ships in harbor or in dock; craft on navigable Rivers and Canals, and the Goods under the same; and farming stock of all descriptions.

The RATES of this Company will be found to be exceedingly moderate.

The PREMIUM is such as to insure fixed in strict accordance with the merits of the risk under consideration, determined only by a most careful investigation.

The advancements of the Equitable are guaranteed by a responsible proprietary, and an ample subscribed capital. The insured are free from the liabilities of a Mutual Insurance Society, and entitled, according to the plan of the Company, to a return of half the profits.

Losses are made good, without deduction or discount, and are adjusted and paid in Montreal, without reference to London.

The Local Directors meet weekly.

The Slave Dealer.

The slave dealer sat in his tent at noon;
With his chin on his knees, near the dismal swamp,
And he looked not unlike a long baboon,
Through the flashing mist from the fen so damp.

He was growling terribly to be sure,
And like tigers of his eyes no goodness meant,
And the curses he used were not classic and pure,
As he spoke of the new-made President.

Of the blacks he talked, as he spake he,
And I thought to myself, in his satisfied tone
If they're to be raised are their cheeses
They may keep to pickle slaves for what I can see.

Though what he told made my blood run cold,
Of toils, slaves' death a solitary cry,
By the whip-forced task full soon made old,
And the unfilled grave soon to die.

As he told the tale, full little ruth,
And very little of pity had he,
He told it in triumph—a boast in truth,
Of Labor's true economy.

"I guess," said he, "at each trading trick,
Though you Britishers know a thing or two,
We Yankees all can beat you slick."
"And long," quoth I, "long may you do."

"And I guess," he said, "a lesson we'll teach
Those Northerners are a-post, be-yide,"
And quickly their I defined his speech
With "I fervently hope you'll try it on."

"We'll part," said he, "from the Union all,
And rid the North of their clog on gen;
Of the banner the stripes our own well eat,
And leave the glittering stars to them.

"We'll keep our slaves, and they may keep
Their grand new liberator still;
To teach them of notions new a heap,
I said, "I really trust they will."

Then quick he replied, "If you mean chaff,
I guess this here old hoss you'll rile,"
"But I'm not a shiver," I said, with a laugh,
"And care not a button you from me to smile.

Here's a wish to the new-made President
You may drink confusion to his name;
For a slave dealer's curse, though badly meant,
And a fem sman's blessing are all the same."

Then I left him sitting all alone,
Brooding angrily o'er each bloody scheme,
Of a tyranny rotten to the bone,
As though he slept through a night's long dream.

From whence the fierce loud battle cry
Of a million slaves shall waking appal:
And the idol of blood and tears, built high,
Shall crash its worshippers in its fall.

The Sixth Sense.

I was a close student at school, a young ambitious lad of sixteen, somewhat home spun, but strong in uprightness, and conscious in power. My dear father was sick and gradually undergoing that mysterious sickness, which baffles the thinker and death. It was a stormy day in January; the snow had fallen two feet deep, and I started for my home eight miles distance. My father had written to me that he wanted to see me; he wanted to give injunctions, not to forget my duties to him and the care of his wife—my mother. He need not have sent it, I could not, I never can, forget him or her. His desire to see me growing out of a feeling that he might at any hour "pass onward," and to give me counsel was natural, but not necessary. But his slightest wish was law to me, and I started for home, as I have said, on foot. Weary walk, this dredging in an unbroken snow path. Before I reached the door, I thought my body would tire out completely; but it did not—I accomplished it.

I ate my supper, chatted a while with my parents, and went to bed in my old bed room. My father and mother I left in the kitchen, gratified at my arrival and proud of me.

I fell asleep, awoke, rose and dressed myself, came into the kitchen, took a seat between my father and mother. They looked surprised and asked why I left my bed.

Said I—"He tapped three times and since I went to bed."

"No."

"Well," replied I, "there 'will' be some body come and that is why I left my bed—at least I have dreamed three would, and the dream is no illusion to me, but a fierce reality."

My father smiled as if incredulous, yet as if he asked no better or braver definition than his boy. At this instant my mother, a very cautious woman, heard a rap at the door and stepping to it, as I supposed to inquire who was there, and what was wanted, but instead opened the door, and in came a terrible gust of snow—for the night was hideous—and with them it marched a woman.

She walked half way from the door to the fireplace when she discovered me, and I certainly took her a back by my presence. I saw the creature of my dream. I knew that I was destined to a struggle, and I grew in strength as I looked at my dear father and mother. She took a chair, turned her back to the fire and seated herself in the shadow. I kept my seat and appeared to give no attention to her.

"Who are you?" inquired my father.

"What's that to you?" said she.

"Everything, if you are to stay in my house; nothing if you are not."

"What if I will not tell you?"

"Then you must leave my house!"

"Leave the house!" exclaimed she; "I should like to see anybody here try to put me out."

"What if I call my men, and throw you out neck and heels!"

"You have not got any men; they have all gone home."

"How do you know?"

"I inquired at the last house on the road before I came here. It is Saturday night, and I was told that your laborers all went home, and that you lived alone."

I glanced at my father. He was pale, but his courage edged up a whit. He, however, not able to get out of his chair, surmised strange occurrences for he had received not less than eighteen hundred dollars that very week from a large cattle sale, and he saw what was coming here. This lady was either a decoy, or a man in disguise, whose object was robbery. I could see that all this was rapidly passing through my father's mind, but it did not bow him the width part of an inch. So I was still as I suspected nothing but a war of words. The bag had on an old quilted hood, and an old bombazine cloak, which reached to her feet and was belted about the waist.

"You are a woman!" said father.

"Of course I am; what do you ask that question for?"

"Have you a husband?"

"Yes."

"Where does he live?"

"In Truxton."

"Well, then, if you have a husband, why do you not live at home instead of gadding about on such a night as this, at only for the fiends to be abroad?"

"Why don't you set the North River on fire?" said she, leaping from her chair, and springing to my father, at the back side of my chair, and hissing through her teeth; "I'll teach you why I am here."

My mother screamed and ran; my father made an ineffectual attempt to get out of the way, but instantly yielded, resolved to take what was coming like a man, and I was out of my seat as quick as the bag, and as she passed me on her way to grapple with my father, I struck her with my fist a blow under the ear, which, but for her old cotton hood, would have knocked her down; as it was, it staggered her, and gave me time to get the chairs out of the way and gather for a fight.

She recovered, and looking at me for a moment, said, as if in soliloquy:

"Oh, you choose to cross my path, do you?" Well, see if I don't settle you pretty quickly;" and then flung her hand into here cloak, made a motion as if she would draw a dagger.

The intention maddened me, and it brought foam to my lips. I struck her half a dozen blows as quick as lightning. She let her dagger go and clenched me. Her grip satisfied me that I had found my match, aye, more, in strength, and that my skill as a boxer, and that I almost unparalleled ability as a wrestler, must serve me. I had learned pugilism of a clever English teacher, and as to wrestling, to that day I had never been thrown down. I knew that when I felt the grasp that I was dealing with a man. I felt that my father and mother were relying on me, and and I grew stronger as I fought.

We tussled, grasped and let loose; struck and parried, clinched and wrestled, till after various attempts, we found ourselves in what wrestlers call a "side hold." I got the under arm and lifted him (for it was no longer her,) threw my leg round his and turned him. He fell on the floor like a log. I intended to break his bones, but he unhooked his cloak (it had been unbuckled in the struggle) and leaped up like a cat. I struck him before he was balanced, staggered him, grappled my left hand into his throat and struck him again; called on my mother to open the door, and as she did so I gave a kick behind him. He swore that he would be the death of me. I told him to take himself out of the State, or I would put the sheriff on his track, and shutting the door in his face, walked to my father.

Now let your doubter tell me how I came to see this matter before-hand—this hooded, cloaked man. "I had seen and heard his threats to my father, and struggled with him in my dream, before he came to the house, and had awakened and left my bed, to go and see to my father's safety, and again conquer him in the kitchen. All the main features of the occurrence were known to me before they took place, and by the impressions they made on me, enabled me to save my parent's life.

THE POPE AND THE BALLET.—The Pontifical Government, according to the Times, allows the Roman opera 18,000 crowns a year. A good many Peter's pence, therefore, go into the short petticoated pink tights of the ballet girls, unless their petticoats are as long as those of his Holiness himself, who also, like the danseuses, wears white satin shoes. The Pope patronises ballet, like a good old gentleman. Fancy the jolly Father going behind the scenes, and imparting his paternal benediction to the corypheæ by poking them in the waist with his thumb and two first fingers.

A WAG.—A wagish speculator, one of a numerous family in the world, remarked, "Five years ago I was not worth a penny in the world, now see where I am—are through my own exertions! Well, where you!" "Why, a thousand dollars in debt.

An American View of the Futu. of Canada.

The following rather rich article on the "Future of Canada," we copy from the New York Herald. We were not aware until now, that the people of Canada were "panting for more freedom than they now enjoy," or that they entertain designs of joining with the United States. But the Herald, which knows all about it, says:

"From all that we can ascertain, from the best sources of information, the rapid revolutionary movement now going forward in the United States has extended to our Canadian brethren over the line; and as the slave States of the South are about to secede from the American Union in consequence of the refusal of Seward and the Massachusetts school of politics to make any concessions to the just demands of the South, so Canada is about to secede from the mother country and cast her lot with the Northern States, to which she naturally and historically belongs.

"The difficulties hitherto in the way of the annexation of Canada are now removed. Before the disruption of the Union the Southern States would not consent to the absorption of Canada, because they feared it would give a preponderance to the anti-slavery element, already too large, just as the Northern States have heretofore battled against the annexation of Cuba, lest it should add to the strength of "the slave power." But as after the 4th of March both sections will be able to follow each its own bent and to expand in its own way without let or hindrance—the slave States westward to the Pacific Ocean in their own latitude, and southward to Darien, or as far as they can—the free States westward in their own latitude, and northward to the Pole, or as far as they can—it is obvious that Canada comes first within the scope of Northern acquisition, and must soon be numbered as a bright particular star on our azure shield. The sole objection of Canada to the Union is now removed, for there will be no slavery in the States or Territories of the Northern confederacy, and it will be a consolidated government, in which secession will not be admissible, and in which State rights will be kept in subordination to the federal authority and the whole machinery will more closely resemble the British monarchy than it does now. The Canadians, on the other hand, have been long panting for more freedom than they can enjoy under British rule, and entertain designs of forming, with the other British provinces of North America, an independent confederacy, entirely separated from England. The opportunity is now offered of forming part and parcel of a far greater and more powerful confederacy, by a union with the States on her southern frontier.

"From all that we can learn her population are already meditating the annexation, and are only waiting to see the peaceable separation of our confederacy into two parts brought to the decently wished for consummation. The Canadian population now numbers as much as that of the thirteen colonies when they threw off the British yoke; and Canada is therefore perfectly able to follow their example, especially as she would be, by our free States. But as the doctrine of revolution of peaceable secession is making the price of the abatement of the sword in England, the annexation of England herself, she cannot fairly object to the Canadians determining their own destiny by the same method. The British government will allow them to go, and had them God speed. It will, moreover, cede to them the forts and other property of the crown at a fair valuation.

"The Canadians are of the same race, language and religion with the people of the free States; have the same ideas of government, and are intimately acquainted with them. They are only separated by a chain of lakes and a river on one side, and on the other by a mere imaginary line. What is to prevent a perfect union? In 1857 the population of the two Canadas was 2,571,437, of which Lower Canada numbered 1,200,000, and Upper Canada 1,330,923. As the population had then increased 1,000,000 in five years, it cannot be much short of three millions and a half at the present time. The total value of the commerce of Canada for 1856 was:—

Total exports	$40,000,000
Total imports	53,000,000
Tonnage inwards	3,630,172
Tonnage outwards	3,620,247

"What the total value of Canadian commerce was last year we have no means as yet of knowing; but the value of the commerce between Canada, the other British provinces and the United States, was as follows:—

Exports from Canada and the other British provinces to the United States in 1860	$18,861,673
Imports from the United States into Canada and the other British provinces in 1860	14,183,114

"If the union of these provinces with the free States of the North were only accomplished, this trade would be doubled, and a mighty impetus would be given to every branch of business and industry, which would speedily develope the resources of the country, and advance it more in ten years than it progressed in forty under its present rule. The North American free State republic would thus become a mighty Power on the earth, and make its influence felt throughout the world, and Canada would partake of its glory and prosperity instead of being tied as a province to the tail of a distant nation, who has no longer any interest in her developement and success. Let the Canadian people, therefore, have their arrangements all made by the 4th of March, so that there may be no delay to the consummation of their union with the Northern confederacy of the United States. A new and a grand destiny awaits them."

Arrival of the Steamship Ætna.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.

The steamship Ætna, from Liverpool the 16th via Queenstown the 17th inst., will be up at 4 o'clock.

In the Court of Queen's Bench, Edwin James applied for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Anderson, the fugitive slave in prison in Toronto. The motion was founded on an affidavit of the Secretary of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. The Queen, after a consultation, granted a writ. Chief Justice Cockburn admitted that, in doing so, it might be re-colonial inda- ...n's Bench had ...ously regarded as a British subject.

It is stated that several rifled cannon have been shipped from Liverpool for Charleston.

The weather was again quite severe throughout England

The French Legislature is summoned for the 4th of February.

Persigny has ordered the free circulation of all foreign journals throughout the French Empire.

Hostilities were suspended at Gaeta.—Part of the French fleet had already left, and all would leave on the 19th.

Prince Carignan had arrived at Naples, and was warmly received. Victor Emmanuel had issued a proclamation calling on the people to show towards Carignan that they desire the unity of Italy.

It is asserted that King Francis wrote the Emperor of Austria, declaring his intention to defend Gaeta to the utmost.

The Prussian Chambers were opened by a speech from the King. He said the friendly relations between the great Powers were being strengthened by the recent meetings. He said it was the national duty to bring about a solution of the Danish difficulties. He reiterated his intention to remain faithful to the principles he had already announced.

A political amnesty had been proclaimed in Prussia.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.—The funds had been steady, but on the 16th they became dull and heavy, and consols declined ¼ per cent., closing at 91 a 91⅛ for money; 91 a 91⅛ for account. The heaviness was caused by a report that the Bank of France was still losing gold, and that a further rise in the rate of discount there was contemplated. It was also said that the Bank of England was taking some considerable amount of money on loans of stock. In the discount market, where was no change. Good bills were negotiated at a fraction below the Bank rate.

The Daily News says: "Many persons believe the Bank of France will have great difficulty in maintaining specie payments."

The Morning Chronicle says: "Some arrangements have been made with exchange houses to transmit gold to America direct from London on French account."

The Ætna brought $1,500,000 in specie.

LATEST VIA QUEENSTON.—Count and Countess Montemolin, the former the eldest son of Don Carlos of Spain, died at Trieste on the 14th inst.

The French funds had risen on a report that a Congress is to meet at Paris for the settlement of the Italian question.

Rumors were afloat that the Bank of France had effected some arrangement to meet its present requirements. In some quarters it was stated that a suspension of specie payments was contemplated.

Florence Nightingale was quite ill.

The Post's Paris correspondent says: "The people seem fully convinced that the armies will evacuate without any decision, and that Francis II. will surrender Gaeta."

The Paris Monsieur publishes a decree abolishing the tax of 3f. per hundred kilogrammes on foreign sugar imported in French vessels from countries out of Europe.

It was reported that Gen. Turr had consented to act as mediator between Cavour and Garibaldi, with a view to persuade the latter to postpone a threatened attack on Venice in the spring.

The Moniteur officially announces the withdrawal of the Brest fleet from Gaeta.

The Russian government had protested against the warlike project attributed to the German governments to assist the designs of Prussia on Denmark.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 17.—Breadstuffs quiet and steady.

Provisions dull.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Consols 91¾ a 91⅞ for money, and 91¾ a 91⅞ for account. The Bank rate was unchanged.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.—Illinois Central shares 30¾ discount; Erie shares 32 a 32½.

The Moniteur explains that the dispatch of a French fleet to Gaeta was intended as a mark of sympathy to a Prince cruelly treated by destiny, but its stay could not be indefinitely prolonged without its presence constituting an encouragement and national support to Francis II., and the fleet would accordingly be withdrawn.

On Tuesday, the Lays, an anti-Italian journal, and the Opinione Nationale, the warmest advocate of Italy, both had articles headed "Peace or War," and both came to the same conclusion: that Italy must postpone the acquisition of Venice.

The Opinione of Turin, Count Cavour's journal, has a leader which shows that the battalions of Austria cannot be put to flight by a few bands of volunteers, nor can her fortresses be taken without immense military effort.

A Constantinople letter of Dec. 31st, in the World, records the utter rout of the main Persian army, 60,000 strong, by a large force of Turcomans, the greater part being killed and taken prisoners. This may perhaps cause the overthrow of the Persian dynasty.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT SELKIRK—A CATHEDRAL AND BISHOP'S PALACE CONSUMED.—The Red River Nor' Wester on the 17th of December contains an account of the burning of a Catholic cathedral and the Bishop's palace adjoining, both of which were completely destroyed, causing a loss of about $125,000. The fire originated in the kitchen of the Bishop's residence, where two servant girls were engaged in making tallow candles. They put about sixty pounds of tallow into an iron pot on the kettle on the stove which boiling over set the house on fire.—The palace being attached to the cathedral, both were rapidly overrun by the flames. An old blind man, named Ducharme, perished in the conflagration and effects, about $800 in money a choice library of five thousand volumes, and a large quantity of provisions, all were lost. The cathedral, says the Nor' Wester, was beyond all question, the largest edifice in Rupert's Land. Its dimensions were:—Length, 100 feet; breath, 60 feet; height of walls, 40; height of spires, 108. The foundation was laid in 1845, and it was not until the present year that it was completely finished. The structure is said to have been vastly superior in symmetry and elegant finish to the magnificent cathedral of St. Michael's, at Toronto, considered the most imposing on this continent.

Reform Organization.

The importance of political organization and union cannot be too frequently pressed upon the attention of the Electors of the County. In a few days, Parliament will be in session, and the people should be made thoroughly acquainted with the policy of the Administration, and the conduct of the Opposition. From every appearance at present, it would seem more than probable that our worst fears are to be realized, relative to granting more aid to the Grand Trunk Railway. In what shape it will be introduced, the organs of the Government have not disclosed, but from ten to twelve millions and a-half of dollars will be asked.

The organs also indicate that a measure will be introduced for the reconstruction of the Province, with a view to the adjustment of the balance of power. If this be the case, all the clap-trap at out Disunion, and the charges against the Opposition for contending that the present system is unfair to Upper Canada, will be admitted to be dishonest. The Government and the organs begin at length to feel the pressure of Upper Canada public opinion, and desire to find a remedy. What scheme the Ministerial party will propose, it is impossible to divine. One thing is quite certain, that after keeping Upper Canada so long under the Lower Canada yoke, and with the influence of the latter still predominant in the Cabinet, there is little cause to hope that justice will be done in the premises. Indeed the prevailing idea is that it is intended merely as a flobby horse for Government candidates at next election.

After the success which has attended the Amherstburgh Reform Association, it is to be hoped that Reformers will go vigorously to work, and organize in every Township in the County, and hold meetings regularly among the people. It requires a little time and trouble, but the political system under which we live, is worthy of all our sacrifices. Surely freedom and good government is worth a sacrifice of one day in the month; and if twenty earnest men in Essex, will devote that much time, there is little doubt our cause will be triumphant at next election. Let the friends at Amherstburg extend the sphere of their labors to Gosfield, Mersea, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West, until they see Associations in every one of these Townships established, and in good working order. The people are ready to join them, and will cordially co-operate in sustaining them. Members should be enrolled, and efforts at once made to bring as many into the Association as possible. An active canvass should also be made, and meetings held, to explain the objects of the organization, and as soon as this is done, an early call for a Convention would be desirable. The importance of choosing the Reform candidate at an early day cannot be over estimated. It is quite possible that a selection might not be made at the first meeting of the Convention, and it is very desirable that there should be no tampering or for quiet deliberation. The people only require information upon the public questions of the day to enable them to determine upon which side of the two political parties to range themselves. They desire honest Government, irrespective of party names. It is only the scheming, speculating politicians who work upon cries, and the electors of this County are beginning to have their eyes open to this class of men. Let the Reformers determine to ally themselves with no party, nor place confidence in any man whose political creed is in the remotest degree doubtful, and whose watchword will not be justice to Upper Canada, in centra-distinction to Lower Canada domination.

As we mentioned last week, Sir Allan N McNab's visit to us was not for the purpose of explaining his political views on the public questions of the day, or of provoking discussion on the leading measures that agitate the public mind, but solely to ascertain by personal observation the wants and requirements of the District—which he has now the honor to represent in the Legislative Council. While we opposed, and would still oppose him; holding the strong Conservative prejudices that have hitherto marked his political career, we shall consider it our duty at all times to co operate with him, and give our best exertions to the prosecution or promotion of any local works of public improvement which may be considered beneficial to the prosperity of the County. That much is wanted is self-evident to any intelligent and practical mind, and we trust, with the hints he has received in the course of his tour he will be able to do good service in securing for the County, by the advocacy of a liberal and enlightened policy, such wholesome measures of public utility, as shall have for their object the development of our natural resources and the settlement of our unimproved lands.

It might naturally be expected that as discussion on the leading political questions that divide the two great parties in the Province was entirely ignored, Sir Allan's tour was not interrupted by any manifestations of party contention; the notice of his visit in several instances arrived at the place of meeting simultaneously with himself, and in others the inhabitants never heard of his being in the County at all until after he was gone, consequently his meetings were very sparsely attended. Had sufficient intimation of his intention to address his constituents been given, and had discussion on the public policy of the country, and his opinion in regard to it been invited, as we think ought to have been done, party lines would have been more clearly drawn, and we hesitate not to say the Reform element in the County would have shown a bolder front than some of the wise minds of the Conservative party little dream of.

Sir Allan spoke a short time at Windsor on Saturday evening, but his remarks suggested nothing for his political opponents to combat or counteract, except the threadbare allusion to his physical disabilities, which he alleges were used by his adversaries to defeat him at the election, but which if used at all, must have been coined or conjured up by some of his own party followers to obtain for him sympathy or compassion, and finding them to produce an opposite effect, were pulmed off as the emanation of Mr. Dougall's supporters.

We must not omit to say that Sir Allan was accompanied in his tour by two prominent gentlemen in the County, understood to be rival Candidates at the next general election, whose singular conduct, looking to their former friendly associations, has been a fruitful source of comment since the late contest. We need scarcely say we allude to Messrs. O'Connor and Rankin. If they were specially invited to constitute his bodyguard, it was a striking want of generalship on the part of Sir Allan to proffer them an invitation; but if they offered their services unasked, we think it was a piece of decided bad taste on their part, and a mark of gross disrespect towards Sir Allan, to take advantage of an opportunity specially devoted to a harmonious and intelligent inquiry into the wants and resources of the County, to present their respective claims for Parliamentary honors before the audiences assembled to meet Sir Allan, under the plausible pretext of congratulation on the result of the last election.

We hear the result of the tour has not improved the bad feeling that is known to exist between them: on several occasions they were nigh coming to an open rupture, but finding discretion the better part of valor, they delayed the denouement until a more convenient season. When this does come, we may expect some sounding revelations; both parties threaten the most direful experiments, and new feelings of jealousy and enmity are so evidently harbored, no opportunity will be lost to point each other's characters in the blackest dye.

But will the electors of Essex allow their homes to be the scene of such gross and scandalous proceedings as characterized the conduct of last election? Will they permit personal quarrels and private animosities to supersede the advocacy of questions of local and general import affecting the well being and social improvement of the people? Will they longer tolerate a set of men known through the length and breath of the land to be willing at any time to sacrifice their political consistency to subserve their private ends? We have more faith in their intelligence and more confidence in their discretion—we say discard them now and forever, and chose from amongst you a representative of progressive views, allied to no personal party; whose position in society is a safeguard to his honesty of purpose, and whose political antecedents are known to be of that sound stamp, which bear the impress of high minded consistency and lasting sincerity.

The Reformer of this County ought not to lose a moment in establishing a thorough system of organization; the principles of the party, wherever they are thoroughly explained and advocated, meet with the most encouraging success, and the prospects of securing the election of a sound exponent of those principles at the next election, are of the most flattering character. The country is now being thoroughly awakened to the extreme necessity of conducting future contests on purely political grounds, and of utterly ignoring candidates having no other recommendation than the gratification of their personal ambition. Our principles enjoy the benefits of popularity and justice, and the day is not far distant when they will meet with a glorious triumph. Let Essex then join hand in hand with the majority of Upper Canada in doing her part to secure sound legislation and good government, when the day of battle arrives.

☞ The Celebration of the Anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, on Friday evening last, passed off with great eclat. A large party were present, and all seemed to enjoy themselves to their heart's content; the supper and other entertainments provided by Mr. Brown, were of the best description, and received great commendation from those who were fortunate enough to participate in them; the dancing was kept up until a late hour in the morning.

☞ The proceedings of the Reform Meeting held at Anderdon, on Friday evening, 18th inst., came to hand too late for insertion this week, they are very interesting and will appear next week. We shall publish a number of extra copies so that the friends of the cause may be able to give them extensive publicity through the county.

☞ James Smith, Esq., has been re elected Warden for the County of Kent.

Essex Agricultural Society.

The annual meeting of the members of this Association took place at the Court House, Sandwich, on Saturday the 19th inst., About 30 members attended, and on motion Henry Wright Esq., of Malden, 2d Vice President, was called to the chair.

The Chairman explained the object for which they were called together; the election of Directors and Officers for the ensuing year, and the transaction of any business that might come before them.

Mr. A. Bartlett was called upon to read the Annual Report, which is as follows:

The Board of officers and directors in submitting their annual report for the consideration of the society, together with the list of Premiums and Treasurer's abstract, have much pleasure in congratulating the society on the success that has this year crowned the labors of the farmer. In the confusion of last years report a hope was expressed that another year would bring increased abundance and thus inaugurate a new era in the prosperity of the County, that such hope has been fully realized would but feebly express the true state of the case as it has seldom fallen to our lot to witness better crops than has been raised this year. Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and in fact all the root crops have grown in great luxuriance and the price paid although not so high as they were a few years ago have been highly remunerative to the farmer and must tend in a great measure to diminish the indebtedness of the County which accumulated during the years of the bad crops. We wish we could report an increased interest in the affairs of the Society in proportion to the agricultural prosperity of the County, as it is obvious to every friend that unless the united influence of the farmers be secured in aid of the Agricultural Societies, the County will not progress so rapidly in agricultural prosperity. True, individual effort often accomplishes great results, but united effort will do more.

The Fair last year was in many respects a decided success, especially in the departments of 'Seeds and Roots," and sheep. But the departments of Horses, Cattle, and Swine, were not, any in advance of the County's Fairs eight years ago, and it must be obvious to almost every member of the society that unless it is able to offer premiums of sufficient value to make it an inducement to the farmers in the more remote Townships to bring out their stock the County Fair will not by any means be a true index to the agricultural prosperity of the County, as we are assured other superior horses and cattle to those exhibited at the Fair are to be found in the County. The Treasurer's account will show an expenditure on account of premiums of $378 97 not a very large sum, but never the less one quite as large as the society could afford under the circumstances, and until the interest in the society become more general larger premiums cannot be awarded. The following is a condensed statement of the monies.

It was hereafter moved by Mr. Malony, and seconded by Mr. Wilkinson, that Joseph R. Berthelet Esq., be the President for the ensuing year, which motion on being put to the vote was carried unanimously.

It was then resolved that James Dougall Esquire, be elected 1st Vice-President and Charles Cornwall, Esquire, 2nd Vice President, Alex. Bartlet Esquire, Secretary, and James Noble Esquire, Treasurer. Carried;

Resolved, That the following gentlemen be appointed Directors for the current year. carried.

Henry Wright	Colchester,
James McKee.	Sandwich,
E. Boismier.	Sandwich Township,
F. Caron	Windsor,
J. G. Buchanan,	Colchester,
Alex. McGee.	Anderdon,
James Lambkin,	Sandwich West,
Duncan Campbell	Malden,
Luke Montreuil.	Sandwich East.

A vote of thanks was afterwards passed to the President and Directors for the valuable services rendered the Society; and the new President made an able address which we regret we have not been able to get a report of, we shall, however, take occasion to refer to it on an early day.

Colored Emigration to Hayti.

Mr John Brown, Jr. delivered a lecture in the Town Hall, Winsor, on the capabilities of the Island of Hayti for colonization by the colored people of Canada. A large attendance assembled to hear him, and from the interest manifested in the subject we have every reason to believe he will be successful in the object of his visit; he explained at great length the geographical position and resources of the Island, and offered on behalf of the Haytian Bureau of Emigration in Boston, for which he is the accredited Agent, considerable inducements to intending emigrants. Guide books and other documents were freely distributed, and every information tendered which could avail the object of his mission. We think the colored people ought to take the matter into their serious consideration.

☞ We are requested to state that Mr. Stewart intends opening an Evening School in this town, sometime this week. The evening of instruction will be Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays; the charge $1 per month. We hope that many of our young friends will avail themselves of the opportunity.

The New York Messenger says that it has been favored by Walker Powell, Esq., M. P. P., with the Prospectus of the "Norfolk Woolen Mills Company, to be organized at Port-Dover; it is proposed to raise a Capital of $120,000, divided into 600 shares of $20 each to purchase the Machinary, &c., which, with the buildings to be provided by the owner of the site and water power, will be sufficient to complete the manufactory. A party of five gentlemen from the Eastern States have offered to rent it at an annual charge of ten per cent. on the cost. We feel fully satisfied an establishment of this kind giving employment to 60 or 70 mechanics, besides creating a home market for wool and other produce, will prove a great acquisition to the County of Norfolk.

A WRIT for a new Election in the County of Grey has been issued, and Mr. Solicitor General Morrison is to be the Government candidate. He will no doubt be success fully opposed by a member of the Reform party. This County was formerly represented by Mr. James Sheridan Hogan, whose mysterious disappearance about two years ago, has been the subject of great speculation and inquiry. No trace of him has ever been found, and the Speaker, acting under the impression that he is no longer alive, has issued his Writ for a new election.

SUDDEN DEATH OF THE COUNTESS OF EGLINGTON.—It is with deep regret that we announce the sudden death of the Countess of Eglington. The Earl and Countess of Essex received a telegram on Monday from Scotland, informing them of the sudden death of the Countess, their daughter, who died at nine o'clock on Monday morning, at Eglington Castle Ayrshire. The lamented Countess, so untimely cut off, was to all appearance in the best health on Sunday, and, with her noble husband, was about to receive a large circle of distinguished visitors at the Castle. Her late ladyship, Adela Caroline Harriet, was the only daughter of the Earl and Countess of Essex, and was born the 4th March, 1828. She was married at Dublin in 1858, to the Earl of Eglington, then Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, by Lord Claddyh's second wife. We believe she leaves issue an only child.—London Times, Jan. 2nd.

TOO MUCH MONEY.—At Stewart & Co.'s Foundry, in Hamilton, on Tuesday, a quantity of stoves, and other castings were made, the value of the iron and fuel employed in which (says the Spectator) was three hundred thousand dollars! But this requires some explanation, as at first sight it appears fabulous. The President and Directors of the Gore Bank, having allowed to accumulate a large amount of Bank bills, which from long circulation had become objectionable, conceived the idea of destroying them en masse, instead of by the slow process hitherto used, and therefore had the amount stated deposited between the large body of burning coal, and some two or three tons of iron, which, on being subjected to the powerful heat soon placed them beyond the possibility of ever again being presented.—Gobi Reporter.

NANA SAHIB ALIVE.—Nana Sahib, whom every one believed to have died long since, is said to be still alive, and to encamped, with 3,000 or 4,000 followers, not some guns, in Thibet, just beyond the Nepaul frontier. The Calcutta correspondent of the London Times declares that the announcement is perfectly true, and adds that the Indian government is cognizant of the fact, and has determined not to interfere actively, but to keep a strict eye on the frontier which would be most exposed to a descent from Thibet. He likewise gives an account of the artifices by which his life is now affirmed, Nana Sahib and his brother succeeded in accomplishing the report of their death so completely as to cause it to be fully believed, not only by the officers of the Indian government, but by their own wives, friends and followers in Hindostan and Oude.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.—Washington, Jan. 25. There is no longer any doubt that the Government have sent forces to relieve forts Sumter and Pickens. The Administration do not regard this action as any declaration of war on the part of the government, but as simply a duty. The authorities of Charleston and Pensacola understand this, and if they choose to be the aggressors and make the attack they must take the consequences.

It may be some days before it is known that forces have been sent. The movement will be made quietly and, but the movement is in earnest, now, as these people well understand.

The destination of the steamer Brooklyn is Fort Pickens.

OUR TRADE WITH CANADA.—From a statement compiled from the Custom House books in this city, the total value of imports from Canada into this district for the year 1860, was $2,877,840 46, of which $32,680 21 were dutiable; $2,745,660 00 free under the Reciprocity Treaty, $89,500 21 free under the tariff of 1857. The imports were under the Reciprocity Treaty. The exports aggregate $618,359, consisting of foreign goods to the amount of $67,047, and domestic produce amounting to $552,493. The total number of vessels entered at the port of Buffalo during the year were 2,726, whose tonnage was 2,240,085. Total number of vessels cleared 5,769; tonnage 2,352, 127. This number comprises the vessels in the coasting trade, as also those engaged in our commerce with Canada.—Buffalo Republican.

AN ABOLITIONIST IN LIMBO.—The New Orleans Picayune on the 15th, says:—Dennis Clay was arrested yesterday, at five o'clock, at the corner of Richard and St. Thomas streets, for using incendiary language with slaves, and telling them, among other foolish things, that our military companies sent to Baton Rouge had been driven away from that place by the slaveholders.

The judge of an English County Court, that of Rochdale, has decided that the oath of an infidel is not to be received in a court of justice. A Mr. Madden, an artist, sued for the value of a piano forte. The only witness called for the plaintiff was Mrs. Madden, his wife. When she stepped into the witness box, the question was put 'Do you believe in a future state of rewards and punishments?' Reply—'I do not.' Question—'You don't believe in any human responsibility for telling a lie?' Reply—'Yes.' Quest.—'Except to society?' Reply—'No.' Quest.—'Do you believe in a God who can punish you for telling a lie?' Reply—'No.' Then said the judge, 'I cannot hear you.' And I consent the plaintiff with costs of defendant's advocate. If people will insult public opinion in a court of justice, they must take the consequence. This is rightly judging, that a person who denies the being of God, and with it the great doctrine of personal accountability, is not to be depended upon in any matter of important testimony.

THE TALLEST MAN IN KENTUCKY.—The editor of the Clarksville Chronicle has made the acquaintance of the gentleman upon whose knowledge of the mantle of Jim Porter, the Kentucy giant, has fallen. The little fellow is Mr. John M. Baker, a native and resident of Caldwell county, Kentucky. He is twenty-four years old, and is seven feet two inches in height—one inch of which he grew in 1859! Big as Baker is, he is a good fellow all over—his soul being in proportion to his body. Now that he has taken a start, we hope he may continue to grow till he gets big enough to take care of himself.—Louisville Journal.

CROWN LAND SALES.—The last official Gazette announces that public lands in the following places will be offered for sale on the days undermentioned:—

At Sandwich, on Friday the 22nd February.
At Chatham, on Tuesday the 26th February.
At London, on Friday the 1st March.
At Toronto, on Tuesday the 5th March.
At Barrie, on Friday the 8th March.
At Sarnia, on Wednesday the 13th March.

Among the curiosities of London life may be mentioned the appearance of Lord Caithness in the metropolis, guiding his steam carriage. He is said to have driven through the most crowded parts without frightening the horses, and threaded the vehicles, nicely drawn as they are in the city, with ease and elegance.

It is stated in the Perth (Scotland) Courier, that the largest modern deer forest is that of the Duke of Athol, which extends to 100,000 acres. The next is the forest of Farquharson of Invercauld, but which is partly under sheep and deer, altogether about 90,000 English acres. Next to which ranks Lord Fife's forest of Mar, about 60,000 acres.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

AS used in Her Majesty's stables and also on His Royal Highness, the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are acknowledged by the certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

Soldier casks containing 448 feeds price 14 dollars and half casks containing 224 feeds, 7 dollars.

Weekly Commercial Review

WINDSOR, January 29, 1861.

The past week has been one of the dullest in the produce trade that has been experienced for a considerable time, the townfrom England are not very exhilarating and although quotations are without any important alteration, there does not seem to be much inducement to operate at present prices; the extraordinary high rate of interest now raised to 7 per cent, charged by the Bank of England, checks speculation, and restricts the wants of customers to the narrowest compass. The following circular came to hand this morning per steamer Niagara.

LONDON, January 12th, 1861.

The return of severe frost has closed the Inland navigable of the Country, and put an almost entire stop to business.

Our markets this week have been nominal, and we make no change in our quotations.

The Bank of France has followed the example of the Bank of England, and raised minimum Rate of Discount to 7 per cent. this step was forced upon her by the continued demand for Gold, of which the return issued yesterday shows a diminution of three millions two hundred and eighty-four thousand francs sterling during the last month.

These measures restrict trade of every kind, and though breadstuffs feel the effect of them as little or perhaps less than anything else, yet prices cannot advance in the face of dear money, whilst the supply from abroad continues good.

The arrivals this week are very moderate, large of Corn-laden Ships which are expected on the Coast from America and the Black Sea with the first change of wind, many of which have been a long time on passage.

Our demand, however, is still good, and will soon again become large, so that we do not anticipate any depreciation in value of much importance.

The Board of Trade returns for the last month have not yet been issued, but the Imports of Wheat and Flour during the last six months of 1860 much exceed those of 1859 by five or six millions of quarters; the bulk of which has already gone into consumption.

Our receipts from America this week are only the Adams, from New Orleans, 8000 bbls flour; the Arthur Wake, from New York, 2332 bbls flour, 29583 bu wheat.

At yesterday's market we had nothing doing. Prices nominally the same.

BARDGETT, PICARD, & Co.

The New York market has participated in the general dullness which prevailed elsewhere, there has been a fair enquiry for the local trade, but English support appear indisposed to operate at present quotations.

NEW YORK, January 29, 1861.

FLOUR—Market less active and no change in prices. Sales 10,200 bbls at 5 10 a 5 25 for superfine western; 5 75 for inferior to good shipping brands extra round hoop Ohio; Canadian dull and drooping. Sales 400 bbls at 5 35 a 7 25. Rye flour steady at 3 40 a 4 20 for common to choice superfine.

WHEAT—Market in favor of purchasers, with moderate export demand. Sales 53,000 bu at 1 18 for fair Chicago spring; 1 27 a 1 28 for good and white; 1 30 for Canada white and amber Wisconsin; 1 30 for Canada white; 1 31 a 1 35 in store and delivered for winter red western; 1 48 a 1 49 for fair white Indiana.

RYE—Dull at 67 a 70c.

Barley—Quiet. Sales 12,000 bu State at 74c.

CORN—Market without change. Sales 38,000 bu at 69 a 70c for mixed western, in store and delivered.

OATS—Dull at 35 a 37½c for Western; Canada and state 40c.

PORK—Dull and heavy. Sales 150 bbls at 17 75 a 17 87 for mess; 13 00 for prime.

BEEF—Dull and unchanged. Small sales.

CUT MEATS—Dull and heavy.

LARD—Dull. Sales 100 bbls at 10¾ a 10¾.

BUTTER—In fair request at 10 a 14c for Ohio; 14 a 19c for state.

The high rate of exchange in the West Indies Steamers will require to remit exchange to the East, to purchase produce instead, and in consequence the Chicago market continues quite lively, and large operations are being daily entered into, in all descriptions of produce; prices are without any material fluctuation, there is very little doing in Dock; the scarcity of negotiable currency prevents business being done to any large extent. The following are the latest reports.

CHICAGO, 28th Jan., 1861.

The Flour market was firmer to-day and quite easier than yesterday, with a moderate business doing. The sales include some 4000 bbls at 4 00 a 4 40 for fair to choice, spring extra; market closing quiet. The rate of Eastern exchange continued to advance, and it is thought that this fact will have a tendency to keep prices up and cause a better shipping demand. There was a fair business doing at Wheat at 74 a 74c, for No. 2 spring, 80 a 80½c for No. 1, in store, and 83 to 84c, for north western club in bags on track, the market closing at 84c for No. 2. There was but a small business done in Corn at 28 a 28½ for mixed in store. Oats, sales 1200 bu in store at 17½c. Dressed Hogs receipts 3100, sales averaging 200 at 4 37½ a 4 42½ a 4 60 dividing on 200 bbls 245 or at 6 00. Mess Pork, sales 26 bbls same at 11 50, 50 bbls country mess at 12 25, City mess at 16 00 to 17 00. Cut Meats, sales 231 bbls country packed, shoulders in sweet pickle at 4 00, 23 tierces do at 4 00, 35 trs. of hams at 22 00, 200 boxes cumberland middle at 8½c. Lard, sales of Country at 10c. Butter quiet at 9c for common, 9½c, extra 10 a 11c. Hides, sales, green at 5½ a 5¾c, green salted 5½ a 6¼c, dry flint 12 a 12½c.

DETROIT, Jan., 29, 1860.

The supply of hogs continues to fall away and the late rise in the price appear to have driven away the Albany and New York buyers out of the run for a few days, some of which prices have receded and are at least 30 cents under our last quotations. There is no material change in the price of breadstuffs.

MONTREAL WHOLESALE MARKET.

FLOUR.—There is an active demand for Superfine and No. 2, and the few parcels which come to hand meet with ready sale. We quote No. 1, 5 45 to 5 50, and No. 2, 5 10 to 5 20. Fancy is nominal at 5 60 to 5 70, and Extra 6 00 to 6 20.

BAG-FLOUR—Is not abundant although the demand is fully equal to the supply. Prices are relatively low; the range is 2 80 to 2 95; the latter figures are only obtainable for choice.

WHEAT.—We hear of no transactions; 1 13 to 1 17 is obtainable for car loads of No. 1.

COARSE GRAIN.—There is very little arriving of any kind, and equally small wholesale demand.

BUTTER.—The entire demand which existed some days ago, has in a measure subsided; 12 to 14c, according to quality, is still obtainable for State packed. Dairy Butter has become abundant owing to arrivals from the Townships and other places, where it has usually been sold for the Boston Market, as well as a liberal supply from surrounding farmers; 15c, may now be quoted as the outside figures.

PORK.—There is some demand for Prime Mess, which is scarce and, readily saleable at 13 00. We have to note a sale of 150 barrels Mess, at 17 50; and some 25 barrels Thin Mess, at 15 00.

HOGS.—Owing to a short supply are rather higher; the prices obtainable are 5 75 to 6 00, according to weight and quality.

ASHES.—Pearls at 5 40 to 5 45 for Firsts and 5 30 to 5 35 for Pearls, with very moderate supply on demand.

WINDSOR WHOLESALE MARKET.

WHEAT is unchanged at last week's quotations, 1 00 for white, 90c for red and 80c for spring per bushel.

BARLEY, nothing doing, prime samples would command 1 00 per 100lbs.

OATS in good request at 18 a 20c per bushel.

INDIAN CORN, has not altered in value, car sells at 30c, shelled 35c per bushel.

DRESSED HOGS are in good request for shipment to Eastern markets, and prices have again improved, good heavy weights would realize from 6 00 to 6 25 per 100lbs.

A Novelty in the Art World!

PHOTOGRAPHY UPON PORCELAIN.

Secured by letters patent in United States, England, France and Belgium.

THE

American Photographic Porcelain Co'py,

No 781 BROADWAY, NEW YORK,

having secured their novel and ingenious invention by the United States and European patents, are fully prepared to execute all orders for presenting all the attributes and advantageous features of ordinary photographs, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a hitherto unattained quality of durability, as being rendered as imperishable as the natural properties of the articles upon which they are transferred.

MINIATURE LIKENESSES OF PERSONS OR CHINA,

As the patented process of the Company enables the reproduction of Photographs not only on plain surfaces, but of such as are round or of any degree of irregularity —portraits can be reproduced with faultless accuracy and delineation of delineation, upon Porcelain wares of any description and dimension used as articles of luxury of of household utility, such as thereby securing faithful portraits and furnishing a unique and exquisite style of ornamentation of articles in domestic use.

In order to furnish facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those patrons of the Fine Arts desirous of having Portraits on Porcelain, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured to their own order, which they sell at cost prices.

As the American Company are owners of he patent right, and consequently the only persons authorized to use the process, they have determined, in order

TO AFFORD PEOPLE IN EVERY SECTION OF THE UNION

an opportunity to possess

PORTRAITS ON CHINA,

to make the following proposition to

RESIDENTS IN THE COUNTRY, WHO ARE UNABLE TO VISIT PERSONALLY THE ATELIER AND GALLERIES IN NEW YORK.

FIVE DOLLARS,

will receive in return by express, free of other charge,

A RICHLY ORNAMENTED BREAKFAST CUP AND SAUCER, WITH THE PORTRAIT TRANSFERRED THEREON.

By transmitting a daguerreotype and

TEN DOLLARS,

they will receive in like manner,

A HANDSOME FRENCH VASE OR TOILET ARTICLE.

with the portrait reproduced by the patented process. By sending a pair of daguerreotypes and

FIFTEEN DOLLARS,

they will receive in return

A PAIR OF RICH SEVRES VASES,

with the portraits executed equal to miniature paintings; and in like manner portraits can be reproduced on porcelain wares or

VASES OF EVERY QUALITY OF FINISH,

ranging in price from

TWENTY TO ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAIR.

MARK THESE FACTS!

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, SORES AND ULCERS

All description of sores are remediable by the proper and diligent use of this inestimable preparation. No attempt to cure bad legs by plastering the edges of the wound together is a folly, for should the skin unite, a bogey diseased condition remains underneath to break out with tenfold fury in a few days. The only rational and successful treatment, as instituted by nature, is to reduce the inflammation in and about the wound and to soothe the neighboring parts by rubbing in plenty of the Ointment as salt is forced into meat.

DIPTHERIA, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, AND SCARLET AND OTHER FEVERS.

Any of the above diseases may be cured by well rubbing the Ointment three times a day into the chest, throat and back of the patient; it will soon penetrate, and give immediate relief. Medicine taken by the mouth must operate upon the whole system ere its influence can be felt in any local part, whereas the Ointment will do its work at once. Whoever tries the ointment in the above manner for the diseases named, or similar disorders affecting the chest and throat, will find themselves relieved as by a charm.

PILES, FISTULAS, STRICTURES.

The above class of complaints will be removed by nightly fomenting the parts with warm water, and then by most effectually rubbing in the Ointment. Persons suffering from these direful complaints should lose not a moment in arresting their progress, it should be understood that it is not sufficient merely to smear the Ointment on the affected part, but it must be well rubbed in for some considerable time two or three times a day, that it may be taken into the system, and then it will remove any hidden sore or wound as effectually as though palpable to the eye. There again bread and water poultices after the rubbing in of the Ointment will do good service. Tubes to each pot, for treatment for females, cases of cancer in the stomach, or where there may be a general bearing down.

INDISCRETIONS OF YOUTH;—SORES AND ULCERS.

Blotches, as also swellings, sore, with certainty, be radically cured if the Ointment be used freely, and the Pills taken night and morning as recommended in the printed instructions. When treated in any other way they only dry up in one place to break out in another, whereas this Ointment will remove the humour from the system, and leave the patient a vigorous and healthy being. It will require time with the use of the Pills to ensure a lasting cure.

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS, PARALYSIS AND STIFF JOINTS.

Although the above complaints differ widely in their origin and nature, yet they all require local treatment. Many of the worst cases of dropsy will yield to a comparatively short space of time when this Ointment is diligently rubbed into the parts affected, even after every other means have failed. In all cases these and the Pills should be taken according to the directions accompanying each box.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs,	Burns,
Bunions,	Bite of Moschetoes
Bad Breasts,	and Sand Flies.
Coco-bay,	Chigoe-foot.
Chilblains,	Cropped Hands,
Corns (Soft)	Cancers,
Contracted and Stiff	Rheumatism,

Yaws.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," are discernable as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions, around each pot or box; the same may be seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilized world, in pots, at 25c., 92c. and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

IMPORTANT TO ACTUAL SETTLERS

MR. ALEXANDER CAMERON, (of AMHERSTBURGH and TORONTO,) offers for sale all his Lands in the County of Essex, on the most reasonable terms ever offered by a private land owner.

He will sell to actual settlers on a credit of ten years, and accept one-tenth of the purchase money down.

He will sell at lower rates if parties can pay one-fifth down, and the balance in five equal annual instalments.

He will sell to any person well recommended by any of his friends in the County, to men of industrious habits, without receiving any instalment down, if the intending purchaser cannot pay any thing.

Where applicant can himself cannot agree as to the Price of the land, he will refer it to the Reeve of the Township and a person whom he will select to decide between them.

Mr. Cameron proposes to give lists of his Lands to all the Canadian Emigration Agents, with a view to attract settlement to the County, and will also take immediate steps to place them in the market in Europe for intending settlers, and by these means he hopes to be able to sell all his lands within a period of two or three years.

Persons dealers in clearing farms for their Sons should apply early, and get the first choice.

DYSPEPSIA, GENERAL DEBILITY, Fever and Ague, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Bronchitis, Great Impurity of Blood, Sore Throat, Fistula, Piles, Liver Complaints, Kidneys, Bleeding, &c., &c., Canker, Sore Mouth, Ulcerated Sore Throat, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, Infirmities of Youth and Old Age, &c.

NO MERCURY USED.

DR. AMOS & SON,

No. 95 Main Street,

(Corner of Main & Quay Strs. Buffalo, N.Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, and can be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years' extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice.

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often on growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of prematured insidious and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feelstrange and unaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Young Men, take Particular Notice.

Drs. Amos & Son take pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subject to a test by the most eminent men in London, Paris, Philadelphia, and New York; it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, or any disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of these instruments, guarantee that in no one instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions securely packed and sent by express, is Ten Dollars.

BEWARE OF IMPOSITION.

Beware of empirics and itinerant self style ed professors, who attempt cures, but never succeed. Drs. Amos & Son have for a long series of years been engaged in an extensive practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with remittance for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch and secure from observation.

Address "DEACON & PEDERSON, No. 319 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

RAYER, the eminent Parisian physician, was lately called to attend the child of wealthy parents, and under his care the little one rapidly recovered from a most dangerous illness. A few days after Rayer had discontinued his visits, the mother of the little invalid called on the doctor. She said: "My dear doctor, there are services rendered in this world which money cannot pay. I know not how we could adequately reward you for your kindness and attention and skill to poor Ernest. And I have thought that, perhaps, you would be kind enough to accept this little portmonnaie—a mere trifle—but which I embroidered." "Portmonnaie!" roughly replied the doctor. "Medicine, madame, is not a mercenary profession. When we are called in to visit sick people, we want their fees, and not their gratitude. Gratitude—humbug! I'd like to see gratitude make the pot boil; and I have not only to make my pot boil, but I have got a house to feed, madame, and a driver to pay, madame, and a countess's portion, madame—and gratitude won't aid me to do any of these things. Money is what is required—money, madame—yes money." The lady was, as you may well imagine, confounded by this burst of indignant talent, and she could only murmur "But—Doctor—what is your fee?" "My fee is two thousand francs—and I tell you, madame, there is no use screaming about it. I will not take one sou less. The lady did not scream. She quietly opened the portmonnaie—I embroidered it myself—put the bank notes in it, gave two to the doctor, placed the other three in the portmonnaie, and the latter in her pocket, and bowing profoundly, "Good morning, doctor," and made her exit.

The President elect is thus described in ONCE A WEEK, the well known English publication: Poor and struggling, his mother could only afford him some eight months' rough schooling; and in the clearings of that new, unsettled country, the healthy stripling went to work to hew his way and gain trees, to grapple with remonstrating bears, and to look out for the too frequent rattlesnake. Tall, strong, lithe and smiling. Abe toiled on as farm laborer, rail-driver, sheep feeder, deer killer, woodcutter, and, lastly, as bostman on the waters of the Wabash and the Mississippi. As seen by the Virginia editor of the Petersburg Intelligencer, "Old Abe" is suspended from the top of a tree in Chesterfield County, about three miles from this city, on Purch's Farm, in effigy. It is represented as a frightful concern, by our informant, whose horse was nearly frightened to death by it, but still bears some striking resemblance to the original individual, particularly when performing one of his great "rail splitting feats," and is decidedly said Abraham a photograph of it, so as to let his reflective faculties be put in motion, and by imagining himself hung, it may have a desirable effect, and he might d i e d."

COFFEE AND TEA TOTTONS.—The decoction of the shavers of the coca—a Peruvian Erythroxylon, recently introduced into ——is exciting attention as possessing far stimulating power, and favoring in more than any other known beverage. These leaves, chewed in moderate quantities, four to six grain, excite the system, and enable those who use them to make great muscular exertion, resist the effects of an unhealthy, imparting a sense of cheerfulness and quietness. In large doses, coca would, it is averred, be hallucinating, delirium. Its chief power over the body is in the place of coffee, four times that of tea. It has no equal in its power of stimulation in cases of forced abstinence. Dr. Mantegazza, of Milan, states that, although he has a weak constitution, he has been enabled, by the use of coca, to follow his usual occupations uninterruptedly for forty hours, without taking any other aliment but two ounces of coca chewed during that time. He adds that he felt no fatigue after this experiment. The Indians of Bolivia and Peru travel four days at a time without taking food, their only provision consisting in a little bag of coca. It is regularly administered to the men who work in the silver mines, and who without it, could not resist the hard labor and bad diet to which they are subjected.

MARRYING THE LANDLADY.—A French student, lately dead of fever, has come to marry his landlady. One morning, he got up my accounts, and found my debts amounted to 2,832 francs. Sly assets were two clay pipes, a quire of cigarette paper, and no tobacco. There was a knock at the door. Caesar in Love to the Widow Arthur, to whom I owed eighteen months' rent. She told me she had bought up all my debts and offered to marry me or send me to Clichy (the debtor's prison). I preferred the latter. Behold me, accordingly, at Clichy, with my two clay pipes, my quire of cigarette paper, and still no tobacco! The first month passed by in studying the tame spiders, and composed ferocious satires against the inexorable widow. The second month, the prolonged absence of every species of tobacco set me to thinking. Then I seized my pen, and wrote my creditor the following note: 'My angel, I cannot live longer without tobacco. My love has reached the zenith—make haste!' Eight days afterwards I found myself a married man."

APPOINTMENT OF A YOUNG HAMILTONIAN TO A NAVAL CADETSHIP.—We have received another instance, says the Spectator, of the good will manifested towards this country by the imperial authorities, in throwing open the avenues of preferment to our colonial youth. On Saturday we were shown a letter from the Secretary of his Excellency the Administrator of the Government, company, a despatch from the Duke of Newcastle, appointing Mr. Daniel Macnab Riddell, second son of John Riddell, Esq., of this city, to a naval cadetship on the North American and West India station. This is probably the first appointment of the kind conferred upon an Upper Canadian. Mr. Riddell will, in the course of the next three months, have his preliminary examination on board the flag ship at Halifax.

NEW YORK Magistrate, pompously, to little boy witness—"My boy, can you repeat the Lord's prayer?" "Yes, sir, was the instant reply of the smart youth; "can you?"

Scientific & Useful.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—CAUTION THE PARENT OR SAFETY.—A word of Hope.—Delicate females expanding into the full bloom of womanhood are frequently confronted by a false polity of society to be ongoing victims of complicated disorders; prevented by their timid and sensitive natures, or the reprehensive neglect of mothers from acknowledging the cause of their ailments. How many girls have been consigned to the cold and pitiless embrace of death through sheer ignorance, or blind want of confidence which should exist between parent and offspring. When mothers bethold their daughters droop—the pallor of the lily substituted for the bloom of the rose—the dim and lack lustre eye—the gradual emaciation of the body—let them take heed—a crisis has arrived which demands their utmost vigilance and solicitude; Holloway's Pills are an effectual remedy for these manifold complaints.

MICROSCOPIC PHENOMENA.—Grains of sand appear of the same form to the naked eye, but seen through a microscope, exhibit different shapes and sizes, globular, square, and conical, and mostly irregular; and what is more surprising, in their cavities have been found, by the microscope, insects of various kinds. The mouldy substance on damp bodies exhibits a region of minute plants. Sometimes it appears a forest of trees, whose branches, leaves, flowers and fruit are clearly distinguished. Some of the flowers have long white, transparent stalks, and the buds, before they open, are little green balls which become white. The particles of dust on the wings of butterflies prove by the microscope to be beautiful and well arranged little feathers. By the same instrument the surface of our skin also seems resembling those of fish; but no minute that a single grain would cover two hundred and fifty, and a single scale covers five hundred pores, whence issues the insensible perspiration necessary to health; consequently, a single grain of sand can cover one hundred and twenty-five thousand pores of the human body.

SALERATUS.—If there is any practice that is more destructive of good flour, and which more readily turns what was meant to be healthy food into most deadly poison, than the use of saleratus, we would like to know it. We loathe the smell of the article in every kind of mixture, that is intended for food; and consider its use detestable. The Philadelphia Ledger thus remarks upon the use of this abominable alkali:

"If our western friends can in any way teach their wives, daughter, or cooks, to keep the pestilish out of the bread, all the yellow people, especially the yellow children, who are supposed to be turned yellow by the fever and ague and billious fevers soon will be turned white. It is a great mistake to suppose that the yellow countenances of the west come from bile, when it is only the enormous quantities of pearlash eaten in the bread that is reflected through the skin. Bread is the staff of life, it is said—and so it is;—but it is the staff of death too in this country. Bad bread kills about as many people here as bad rum. So many people eat poisonous doses of pearlash in bread that they die by inches. Dyspepsia—that great monster disease of the country, that destroys the liver, brings on costiveness, and thus finally kills the human victim,—is half the time 'pearlash.' Here in the east the bread, of New England—we have nearly driven off the pearlash lives here yet in bread, but in cities and towns we have nearly whipped out the murderer. In the distant western towns, beyond the good forests of the lakes and rivers, pearlash reigns, and is the order of the day. It is pearlash for breakfast, pearlash for supper. It is not any wonder then that the people of the east turn yellow in the west, and sicken, and of fever and ague, billous congestive fevers, but of pearlash three times a day."

EXCELLENT RICE PUDDING.—The yolks of four eggs; one teacup of boiled rice; one pint of milk and a little salt. Take the whites of the four eggs and one pound of white sugar, a few drops of lemon juice; make a frosting, and just as the pudding is done, spread it over, and set it in the oven to harden.

GERMAN PUFFS.—1 pint milk; 2 eggs well beaten together, add milk and flour gradually to the eggs, leaving half the milk to the last; a little salt. Put the batter in buttered tea cups, three parts full; bake half an hour. This makes 4 cups.

APPLE JELLY.—Wash and pare half a peck tart apples, and throw them in water. Peel 2 lemons and scald the peel, letting it remain on the stove; cut the lemons, and put them through the apples in the kettle, and pour in the lemon water, making about a quart in all. Put a plate over them and stew slowly until perfectly reduced to a pulp; then throw them into a jelly-bag, and let it drip. Measure 1 pound sugar to each pint of juice, and boil 20 minutes. Put it in moulds.

ORANGE COCOA NUT.—Break up a fine nut. Peel and grate it into a pan, and sweeten it with powdered sugar. Have ready some fine, large ripe oranges. First cut off a piece from the end to take out the fruit; then cut off the other end, and then into round slices rather thick, removing the seeds. Cover with slices of orange the bottom of a large glass bowl, then a layer of cocoa nut, and so on till all are used. Pile grated cocoa nut, heaped, on the top.

PRESERVED ORANGE SKINS.—Cut them in strips the size of a straw, and boil them in a strong syrup till clear. Keep them for bird's nest Pudding.

In making syrup for any kind of preserves, one gill of water to each pound of sugar is enough.

STEWED APPLES FOR WINTER USE.—When good apples are plenty in the autumn, pare, core, sweeten to taste, strain, through a colander; then return them again to the porcelain kettle to heat well, and having ready b ated, "Arthur's Jars," or any air tight ones; fill them and close.—You have then stock for winter pies or puddings.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.
CRAWFORD & CO.,
AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,
WINDSOR, CANADA WEST.

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District composed of the COUNTIES OF ESSEX and KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of water Communication—Lake Erie and Huron, Lake Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm products and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be consructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable lands; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; thus placing the District in direct communication with all parts of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials to the above facts can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate, from its Southerly situation, is the finest and most healthy than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle, and the soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, fully cheaper than in any other section of the country and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hard-wood, and conveniently located is offered, are exceedingly moderate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLERS, MANUFACTURERS and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

LIST OF PROPERTIES FOR SALE.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more hazardous risks than farm buildings, and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that adheres to this rule. It is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property, isolated, is Insured for the above period for Four Dollars. A Premium Note for two per cent., of which two and a-half per cent., (or one eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a part, payment. The Agent's Fee is $1.50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid till losses occur, rendering an assessment, when a Note is necessary, and then no more will be called for than is required Owing to the non-hazardous risks to which the Company is confined, the losses are very trifling, and the Company offers more favorable terms, scarcely any one, terms so favorable. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are charged a little lower.

WHAT IS A PUSEYITE?

DICTATED WITHOUT PERMISSION TO THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD JUSTICE KNIGHT BRUCE.

"Lord Justice Knight Bruce, asked if any of the learned counsel would define 'Puseyite?' but no one attempted a definition."—See Law Report in the MORNING HERALD, Nov. 12.

"Pray tell me what's a Puseyite?' 'Tis puzzling to describe
This ecclesiastic Janus of a pious hybrid tribe:
At Lambeth and the Vatican he's equally at home,
Although 'tis said he's wont to give the preference to Rome.

Voracious as a bookworm in his antiquarian maw,
The 'Fathers' in his text book, the 'Canons' in his law:
He's 'mighty in the 'Rubrics,' and 'well up' in the Creeds,
But he only quotes the 'Articles' just as they serve his needs.

The Bible is to him almost a sealed book,
Reserve is on his lips, and mystery in his look;
The 'sacramental system' is the lamp that illumes his night,
He loves the earthly candlestick more than the Heavenly light.

He is great in pearilities, when he bows and when he stands,
In the cutting of his surplice, and the hemming of his bands;
Each saint upon the calender he knows by heart at least,
He always dates his letters on a vigil or a feast.

He talketh much of discipline, but when the shoe doth pinch,
This most obedient dutorous son will not give way on inch;
Pliant and obstinate by turns whate'er may be the whim,
He's only for the bishop when the bishop is for him.

But hark; with what a nasal twang, between a whine and a groan,
He doth our noble Liturgy most murderously intone;
Cold are his prayers and praises, his preaching order still,
Inanimate and passionless, his very look doth chill.

Others as weak, but more sincere, who rather feel than think,
Encouraging he leads to Popery's dizzy brink,
And when they take the fatal plunge, he walks back quite content
To his snug berth at ——ch, and wonders why they went.

Such and much more, and worse, if I had time to write,
Is a slight sketch, your worship, of a thorough Puseyite.
Whom even Rome repudiates, as she laughs within her sleeve
At the sacerdotal mimic, a solemn 'make-believe.'

Oh! it were well for England if her Church were free of those Half-Papist, and half-Protestants, who are less her friends than foes;
Give me the open enemy, and not the hollow friend,
With God and with the Bible we need not fear the end.

Original Story of Hamlet.

FROM THE LATIN OF SAXO GRAMMATICUS.

Florwendilus, King of Jutland, married Gourathra, (or Gertrude,) the only daughter of Rurie, King of Denmark. The produce of this union was a son called Amlettus. When he grew toward manhood, his spirit and extraordinary abilities excited the envy and hatred of his uncle who, before the birth of Amlettus, was regarded as presumptive heir to the throne. Fengo, which was the name of this haughty prince, conceived a passion for his sister in-law, the Queen: and, meeting with reciprocal feelings they soon arranged a plan, which, putting into execution, he ascended the throne of his brother, and espoused the widowed Princess. Amlettus, (or Hamlet,) suspecting his father had died by the hand or devices of his uncle, determined to be revenged; but, perceiving the jealousy with which the usurper eyed his superior talents, and the better to conceal his hatred and intentions, he affected a gradual derangement of reason, and, at last, acted with all the extravagance of an absolute madman. Fengo's guilt induced him to doubt the reality of a malady so favorable to his security—and, suspicious of some direful project being hidden beneath assumed insanity, he tried by different strategems to penetrate the truth. One of them was to draw him into a confidential interview with a young damsel, who had been the companion of his infancy, but Hamlet's sagacity and the timely caution of his intimate friend frustrated his design. In these two persons we may recognise the Ophelia and Horatio of Shakespeare; a second plot was attended with equal want of success. It was concerted by Fengo that the Queen should take her son to task in a private conversation, vainly flattering himself that the Prince would not conceal his true state from the feelings of a mother. Shakespeare has adopted every part of this scene, not only the precise situation and circumstances, but the sentiments, and sometimes the very words themselves.

The Queen's apartment was the appointed place of conference, where the King, to secure certain testimony, had previously ordered one of his courtiers to secrete himself under a heap of straw. So says the historian; and though Shakespere, in unison with refinement of more modern times, changes that rustic covering for the royal tapestry, yet it was even as Saxo-Grammaticus relates it. In those primative ages, straw, hay or rushes strewed on the floor, were the usual carpets in the chambers of the great. One of our Henrys, in making a progress to the north of England, privately sent on forward a courtier to order clean straw at every house where he was to take his lodgings. But, to return to the subject:

The Prince, suspecting there might be a concealed listener and that it was the King, assumed his wild and frantic acts, hoping that, by some lucky chance, he might discover his hiding place. Watchful of all that passed in the room, as dashed from side to side, he descried a little movement of the uneasy courtier's covering. Suddenly Hamlet sprung on his feet, began to crow like a cock, and flapping his arms against his sides, leaped upon the straw; feeling something under him, he snatched out his sword and thrust it through the unfortunate rat. The barbarism of the times is most shockingly displayed in the brutal manner he treats the dead body; but for the honor of the Danish Prince, we must suppose it was not merely a wanton act, but done the more decidedly to convince the King, when the strange situation of the corpse was seen, how absolutely he must be divested of reason. Being assured he was now alone with his mother, in a most awful manner he turns upon her, and avows his madness to be assumed; he reproached her with her wicked deeds and incestuous marriage, and threatens a mighty vengeance upon the instigator of the crime.

In the historian, we find that the admonitions of Hamlet awakened the conscience of the Queen, and called her to penitence and virtue, The King observing the change, became doubly suspicious of the Prince; and baffling rome preliminary steps he took to disengage himself from what he suspected by him into an embassy to England. He sent along with him two courtiers, who bore private letters to the English monarch, requesting him, as the greatest favor he could confer on Denmark, to compass by secret and by sure means, the death of the Prince as soon as he landed. Hamlet during the voyage had reason to suspect the mission of his companions; and, by a stratagem, obtaining their credendials, he found the treacherous mandate, and changing it for one where he had ordered the execution of the two lords, he quietly proceeded with them. On landing the papers were delivered, and the King, without further parley obeyed what he believed, to be the request of his royal ally; and thus did treason meet the punishment due to its crime.

The daughter of the King being charmed with the person and manners of the foreign Prince, evinced such marks of tenderness that Hamlet could not but perceive the depth of the conquest. He was not insensible to her attractions, and receiving the King's assent, in the course of a few days led her to the nuptial altar. Amid all joys he was, however, like a perturbed ghost that could not rest; and before many suns had risen and set, he obtained a hard-wrung leave from his bride, once more set sail, and appeared at Elsinore, just in time to be a witness to the splendid rites which Fengo (supposing him to be murdered) had prepared for his funeral. On the proclamation of his arrival, he was welcomed with enthusiasm by the people whose idol he was, and who had been over-whelmed with grief when Fengo announced to them his sudden death in England.

The King, inflamed with so ruinous a disappointment, and becoming doubly jealous of his growing popularity, now affected no conciliation, but openly manifested his hatred and hostility. Hamlet, again had recourse to his pretended madness, and committed so many alarming acts that Fengo, fearing their direction, ordered his sword to be locked in his scabbard, under the plea of guarding the lunatic from personal harm. After various adventures the Prince accomplished the death of his uncle's adherents and vengeance on the fratracide himself, by setting fire to the palace during the debauch of a midnight banquet. Rushing in amid the flames, he kills Fengo with his own hands, reproaching him at the moment with his murder, adultery and incest. Immediately on the act of retribution, he was proclaimed lawful successor to the throne, and crowned with all due solemnity.

Thus far Shakespeare treads in the steps of the ancient. The only difference is in the fate of the hero; in the one we finds a kingdom, in the other a grave. Saxo-Grammaticus carries the history further; and after the crowning of Hamlet as King, brings him again to Britain; where, in compliance to that land of beauty, he marries a second wife, the daughter of a Scottish King. Hamlet brought back both his wives to Denmark, and prepared for a long life of prosperity and peace. But the sword hung over his head; war burst around him, and he fell in combat by the hand of Vigeletes, son of Rorie. Saxo Grammaticus sums up his character in a few words: "He was a wise Prince and a great warrior." Like Achilles, he had the principal actions of his life wrought on his shield. The daughter of the King of Scotland, casting her eyes on it, loved him for the battles he had won, and became his bride.

A Narrow Escape.

The following anecdote is related, by a French journal, of Gen Fanti:—

During the retreat of Novara, in 1849, the General who had charge of saving the remnant of the Piedmontese army, had given the most severe orders to his troops. As it was all-important to avoid attracting the attention of the Austrians, the command was given that no one under any circumstances, should utter a cry, or, above all, fire a gun, without the command of an officer, under penalty of instant death. One morning during a halt, a soldier, hearing the neighing of a horse in the neighboring thicket, raised his gun and fired. Gen. Fanti who was near, rushed upon him in fury, seize in hand, and plunging the weapon into his breast, extended him at his feet. "I will do the same," he cried out, "to any one who attempts to imitate this wretch, who was either a coward or a traitor." Ten years have passed since this occurrence, ten eventful years, which have transformed the victors of Novara into the vanquished of Magenta and Solferino. During these ten years, Gen. Fanti has sometimes related to his friends with emotion and compunction, also, this episode of his military life. "I was brutal," he would say; "but the safety of the army was at stake." A few days since, before his departure for the Neapolitan territory, he was accosted, in a public square, at Turin, by a man who placed himself before him, saying—

"Do you know me, general?

"Not the least in the world.'

"But, general look at me.

"I am in a hurry. Speak, who are you?

"General, if you have forgotten me, I have kept a remembrance of you in the bottom of my heart, for your sabre entered here, several inches.'

"At the retreat of Novara!'

"Yes, general.'

"What! are you not dead?'

"You can boast of a tough life; but do you know that you were a bad soldier.'

"I know that I am now a very poor laborer.'

"Come to see me to-morrow."

The next day the soldier of Novara presented himself at the war office. "Show me my sabre wound," demanded the general. The Italian opened his breast, and disclosed a deep scar. "Pride!" said the general, "it was a good stroke. Hold; here is some lint that will staunch the wound," handing him a handful of bank notes.

The Frozen Crew.

FROM CHAMBER'S EDINBURGH JOURNAL.

We have said that cold may not only predispose to the death of animals or portions of animal tissues, but it may kill them. How it slaughters its victims, we do not exactly know; some say it paralyses the heart; others think that the cold, to use a popular expression, drives the blood inwards, and kills by apoplexy. The irresistible sleepiness that creeps over a person "lost in the snow" is well known, and has been often described; if he is yielded to, death, under the forlorn circumstances usually present, is sure to result. But, undoubtedly, it may kill at once. Persons have been found stone dead standing upright at their posts, all the machinery of life having stopped at once—the mouth half open, as it was when the last groan was uttered; the limbs still in the position they assumed during life, and having undergone, through the peculiar antiseptic nature of the cold, none of the changes we find after other forms of death.

Captain Warems reports to the Admiralty thus:—"In the month of August, 1775, I was sailing about 77 degrees north latitude, when one morning, about a mile from my vessel, I saw the sea entirely blocked up by ice. Nothing could be seen, far as the eye could reach, but mountains and peaks covered with snow. The wind soon fell to a calm, and I remained for two days in the constant expectation of being crushed by that frightful mass of ice which the slightest wind could force upon us. We had passed the second day in such anxieties, when about midnight the wind got up, and we immediately heard a horrible crackling of ice, which broke and tossed about with a noise resembling thunder. That was a terrible night for us; but by the morning, the wind having become by degrees less violent, we saw the barrier of ice which was before us entirely broken up, and a large channel extending out of sight between its two sides.—The sun now shone out, and we daily saw from the north-east, before a slight breeze. Suddenly, when looking at the sides of the icy channel, we saw the masts of a ship; but what was still more surprising to us was the singular manner in which its sails were placed, and the dismantled appearance of its spars and manœuvers.

"It continued to sail on for some time, then stopping by a block of ice, it remained motionless. I could not then resist my feelings of curiosity; I got into my gig with some of my sailors, and went towards this strange vessel.

"We saw, as we drew near, that it was very much damaged by the ice. Not a man was to be seen on the deck, which was covered with snow. We shouted, but no one replied. Before getting up the side, I looked through a port-hole which was open, and saw a man seated before a table, upon which were all the necessary materials for writing. Arrived on the deck, we opened the hatchway, and went down into the cabin; there we found the ship's clerk seated as we had before seen him through the port hole. But what were our terror and astonishment when we saw that it was a corpse, and that a green damp mould covered his cheeks and fore-head, and hung over his eyes, which were open.

"He had a pen in his hand, and the ship's log lay before him. The last lines he had written were as follow:

"'11th November, 1762.

"'It is now seventeen days since we were shut up in the ice. The fire went out yesterday, and our captain has since tried to light it again, but without success. His wife died this morning. There is no more hope.'

"My sailors kept aloof in alarm from this dead body, which seemed still living. We entered together the state room, and the first object which attracted us was the body of a woman laid on a bed, in an attitude of great and perplexed attention. One would have said, from the freshness of her features, that she was still in life, had not the contraction of her limbs told us she was dead. Before her a young man was seated on the floor holding a steel in one hand, and a flint in the other, and having before him several pieces of German timber. We passed on to the fore cabin, and found there several sailors laid in their hammocks, and a dog stretched out at the foot of the ladder. It was in vain that we sought for provisions and fire-wood; we discovered nothing. Then my sailors began to say that it was an enchanted ship, and they declared their intentions of remaining but a very short time longer on board. We then, after having taken the ship's log, set out for our vessel, stricken with terror at the thought of the fatal instance we had just seen of the peril of polar navigation, in so high a degree of north latitude. On my return, I found, by comparing the documents which I had in my possession that the vessel had been missing for thirteen years."

Now, although these are extreme cases, and but seldom heard of don't think that will excuse you, my good reader, if you see any even in this comparatively temperate country, for instance, cold or likely to be cold, and you do not your best to warm them. Think, while you sit over the fire, or turn in the warm blankets, or button up your over-coat—think, when you have a warm grasp of a friend's hand; or feel your child's warm cheek nestle against yours—think of the heat-abstracting powers of door steps, and common stairs, and east winds, and parish officers, and cold shoulders, and, if you will take my advice, let the cold of winter exhibit its worst powers, and its meanest mode of "proposing!" but, no doubt, it was the sight of them which caused the mistake.

A spiritualist and medium recently underwent a test to prove the reality of his doctrines at a police station in Halifax, England. He was securely, as it was thought, bound with cords, and then placed in a room by himself. In forty-five minutes he came forth unbound; but a boy secreted under a bed saw how it was done, and so did a detective who peeped through a window. Whereupon the medium departed, somewhat 'down in the mouth.'

A blunt old citizen of Cleveland, according to the Herald, was recently expressing the great interest he felt in regard to the movements of the President elect. 'I heard,' 'I hope he will come out all right. I have done my best to help him by praying for him every night. The other night, I prayed earnestly for the success of the President, and to prevent mistakes, I just added that I meant Abraham Lincoln, not that other fellor!'

An Irishman recently went into a rum hole in Pittsfield and wanted a glass of cheap whisky, but by accident was given sulphate acid, and went off. The proprietor of the concern thought he had killed his man sure; but a short time after his customer appeared and wanted another glass of that cheap whiskey. 'It was the best he ever drank; it kept him drunk for three days!'

A carpenter, who was always prognosticating evil to himself, was one day upon the roof of a five story building, upon which had fallen a rain. The roof being slippery, he lost his footing, and as he was descending towards the eaves, he exclaimed, 'Just as I told you!' Catching, however, in the tin spout, he kicked off his shoes, and regained a place of safety, from which he thus delivered himself, 'I know'd it; there's a pair of shoes gone to thunder!'

A newspaper correspondent asserts with evident pride that the President elect means to black his own boots.

The following neat sentiment was drunk standing at a private ball among the first circle colored elite, a few evenings since:—'Here's to de color'd fair sex, der face needs no paint, dar heart no tinner.'

'Stop that abominable noise,' said a commanding officer to a horrid trumpeter in the midst of a battle; 'we can stand fire but we can't stand that air.

DIPTHERIA.—Dr. Peterson, of St. John, New Brunswick, states in a medical journal, that this prostrating and rapidly fatal disease has raged for two years past with fearful violence in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, carrying off, in many instances, entire families. The earlier symptoms of this disease appearing so like ordinary sore throat, many lives have been lost, in consequence of medical aid not being called in until too late. The writer above quoted states that he has successfully treated every case in his practice with Bimiodide of Mercury, Heper Sulph, Iodium and Veratrum. As we stated the other day, a physician should be called in on the first appearance of throat disease. The epidemic is supposed to have been prevalent several times during the past three centuries. In 1610, in Italy and in Spain, and in 1734, in New Hampshire, epidemics were prevalent, which from all that is known of them appear to have been diptherial.—Montreal Witness.

ANOTHER INVENTION.—We have been shown the model of a self-acting Cattle Guard for Railways, invented by Mr. James Forrest, of Ontario. It seems to be adapted to that purpose, and we understand that the Engineer of the Great Western is about to test it shortly. The invention consists of a series of flanges, somewhat like those of a mill wheel so placed that the cattle stepping upon them would be presented from crossing the road. These flanges immediately caught in such a manner that the animals could release themselves, but in no way could they effect a passage across the guard.

The Durham Standard says rumors are afloat that John Sheridan Hogan, M. P. P., has recently been in Cincinnatti, Ohio, and that he will return in time to take his seat in the House, at the opening of the present session on the 10th inst. What a pretty sight that would be for Mr. Pardy. But, we don't think it need trouble him much.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S SPEECH.

QUEBEC, March 16, 1860.

This day at 3 o'clock p. m. His Excellency the Governor General proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Legislative Council in the Parliament buildings.

The members of the Legislative Council being assembled, His Excellency was pleased to command the attendance of the Legislative Assembly and that House being present, His Excellency was pleased to open the 4th Session of the 6th Parliament of the Province of Canada with the following speech from the throne:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I congratulate you on the abundance of the Harvest with which Providence has blessed us, and I think I may express the hope that the Commercial prosperity of Canada is rapidly reviving.

In the year 1860 we have had the honor of welcoming to our shores His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Our Gracious Sovereign has acknowledged the loyalty which Greeted her son in this Province, and I feel confident that the grateful remembrance of his visit will live long on the hearts of our people.

Much has lately been effected by legislation, and I hope that the circumstances of the Province are such as to enable the important measures to be laid before you, in this, the last session of the Present Parliament.

It is a satisfaction to me to see that the Consolidated Statutes both of Upper and Lower Canada have been promulgated in an authentic form, but I must remind you that something yet remains to be done, and I desire your assistance in assimilating as far as possible the law which prevails in either section of the Province.

A measure will be submitted to you having for its object the proper administration of Bankrupt Estates in Upper Canada, I would earnestly request your careful consideration of so grave a subject. Some changes are required in our Council Law, and the further improvement of our prison discipline demands the establishment at particular places of certain well regulated jails or local penitentiaries.

The registration of judgments in Upper Canada has been the cause of expense and delay, and I think you will find it expedient to amend the laws which relate to this matter.

The report of the Commissioner of Crown lands will be laid before you. You will see that the receipts from this department have increased, and that the greatest efforts have been made to establish a sound system of immigration and promote the settlement of our waste lands.

My attention has been directed to the fact that a writ issued by the Court of Queen's Bench in England, has been served in this Colony. I have been advised to represent to Her Majesty's Government the expediency of preventing by Legislation in Great Britain any possible conflict of jurisdiction. I will also add that certain legal documents appear to make it expedient for you to define by statutory enactments of your own the nature and extent of the laws and customs of Parliament, as shall exist in Canada.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

The accounts for the year which has just expired will be laid before you immediately, and I hope you will have no reason for being dissatisfied with the results which they present

You will see that the reception of the Prince of Wales, whilst it was, we hope, worthy of the Province, and of its illustrious guest, was conducted by the Commissioner of Public Works with a due regard to economy.

I have again to ask at your hands the supplies which will be required for the services of Her Most Gracious Majesty in the current year.

Honorable Gentlemen and Gentlemen:

I have only to desire you to give your best consideration to the various subjects on which I have touched, and I offer an earnest prayer that God will aid your counsels and will bless our people with his choicest gifts.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

On the Speaker taking the chair,

Hon. Mr. Vankoughnet introduced an Act relating to Common Schools.

Hon. Mr. Speaker reported the speech from His Excellency.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Vankoughnet, the speech will be taken into consideration on Tuesday.

The following gentlemen were introduced and took their seats:—Messrs. Merritt, Sir Allan McNab, Foster, Proctor, Prouix, Letellier, Jeffrey, Guevremont and Hamilton. House adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

On the motion of the Speaker to the House, Mr. Craik and Mr. Purdy were introduced and took their seats.

It was then resolved that the address in answer to the speech should be discussed on Monday.

The speaker informed the House that a special return had been made in reference to the Shefford Election; subsequently on the motion of Mr. Loranger, the poll-books and other documents were laid on the table.

The Speaker also stated, that during the recess he had received a paper from Pierre Huot, Esq., which purported to be the resignation of his seat for East Quebec, but considering the resignation under the circumstances to be contrary to law, he had declined to act upon it.

He had also received from Isaac Buchanan, Esq., a paper purporting to be the resignation of his seat but as the seat of the hon. gentleman was not attached to it thereby confining it as his solemn Act, he had declined to receive it.

Attorney General Carties moved the adoption of a sessional order, declaring: first, that members whose seats are contested are to withdraw while the subject is under debate; second, pledging the House to proceed with the utmost severity against members guilty of bribery or other corrupt practices; and third, declaring the offer of money or other advantages to a member to be a high crime and misdemeanor.

After some further routine business the House adjourned.

The Maple Leaf.

SANDWICH, MARCH 20, 1861.

There is no question which more urgently demands the attention and consideration of Parliament, during the session just commenced, than that of the enactment of a proper Bankruptcy Law. Everywhere throughout the Province such a law,—devised so comprehensively as to meet the absolute requirements of the trading public, and so clearly and honestly as to admit of neither misconstructions or abuse, is much needed, and is being clamorously sought for. It seems very evident, too, that the Bankruptcy act now demanded, must be of such a sort as is really requisite, and that the country will be no longer bamboozled with half-way measures which from their imperfections and impotency prove to be little else than sources of incessant difficulty and continual annoyance. What the people do require is a measure which will place the intermediate relations and obligations of debtor and creditor on an honorable and equitable basis, very different from that on which they are presently placed.

Nothing could better protect a creditor from the knavery or deceit of an unprincipled debtor, nor so well shelter an honest debtor from the tyranny or injustice of an overbearing and unreasonable creditor, than the institution of an Insolvency or Bankruptcy Court, nor could any better method be adopted to guard against the pernicious consequences of foolish, and haphazardous speculations. Founded on the principles, and after the manner pursued in Great Britain, this court would constitute a tribunal before which a bankrupt would be compelled to disclose the transactions that led to his insolvency,and to reveal the state of his affairs far more circumspectly and minutely than (by any of the means at present within their reach,) his creditors could possibly force him to do. It would also be one of its chief objects, to prevent anymisappropriation or fraudulent disposal of his property or effects, and to see that they were disposed of as advantageously as possible for the benefit of all those persons to whom he might be indebted. It would further have at its discretion, the discharging of honest debtors and the power of granting them (as is done in the mother country) certificates of discharge, which might be of three or four different classes. A first class certificate to be deemed the most meritorious, and to be given only to such bankrupts as have passed undoubtedly creditable examinations, proving themselves to have been thoroughly honest and trustworthy, although unfortunate in their business transactions. A second class certificate to be less meritorious, and given to those bankrupts who may perhaps have scarcely proved themselves to have been as careful or attentive to the interests of their business, although equally honest in their intentions as the first. A third class certificate to be inferior to the second in the same way as the second would be to the first, and so on, through as many grades as might be deemed necessary or advantageous to adopt. These certificates would, after a bankrupt's discharge, come to be regarded as a species of testimonial to his character. In the event of his resuming business, one of the first-class order would regain him what credit he might need almost at once, because the public would surely be quite ready to trust a man who has, on the finding of a reliable and searching authority, been adjudged to be of a faithful and an upright character. A certificate of the second order would be a less ready passport to public confidence than one of the first; and one of the third class would be less highly esteemed than one of the second; and of necessity proportionally less than one of the first, because of the reasons and the manner of their being severally granted. In as far, then, as the honest debtor would be honoured, this passing through a Bankruptcy Court and yielding his property fairly and honestly for the benefit of his creditors would legally release him from liabilities, from which under our present system he could hardly ever, in the ordinary course of things, expect to be released; empower him to renew his enterprises and his business, and with a fair field afford him a prospect of being yet enabled under happier auspices than before, to pay, as he would honorably wish and sincerely desire to do, even the last farthing of all his old indebtedness. Here would be an advantage to both the debtor and the creditor, which neither can now possess, because of its being systematically impossible for the former under existing circumstances, to do any good for either. No sooner would he now-a-days have resumed business, perhaps with success, than some one or more of his creditors may pounce upon him with a bailiff's warrant and fatally retard his further progress, by depriving him of what little advantage he might, by dint of hard industry and unfitting assiduity, have regained.—The fact, too, of his being placed, or liable to be placed, at such a disadvantage, if it were not altogether to prevent, must certainly operate heavily against, the re establishment of his credit, and prejudicially to all his best interests. So long need we the present heterogeneous modes of dealing with such traders as may be unable to meet their liabilities, tend to encumber and embarrass them, that we cannot be far wrong in asserting, that in nine out of every ten such cases, it is practically impossible for them to relieve themselves from the burden of difficulties which their misfortunes and reverses have imposed upon them. To such, and to the bulk of their creditors, the institution of a Bankruptcy Court would be an inestimable blessing. But further, if properly constituted, such a court would be a terror to evil doers, as well as a protection to honesty and merit, for it would have within itself the power of punishing fraudulent or dishonest debtors in something of the same manner as a court of justice would punish a swindler or a pick-pocket. By all means let there be, first of all, a marked and much needed distinction made between honest misfortune and intentional roguery. At present they are far too readily confounded and inextricably mingled. Certainly it would not be the least of the benefits that such a court, were it instituted, would confer upon our community, if it could be made the means of exempting the merely unfortunate from the stigma that attaches to all insolvent debtors and of causing it to rest only but with all merited severity on those, whose conduct, in producing their bankruptcy, has been such as really calls for condemnation and reproach.

We sincerely hope that this session of Parliament will not be permitted to pass away without this subject receiving at the hands of our Legislators all the consideration it merits and demands. The law of Bankruptcy must at least be thoroughly amended if not altogether reconstituted. It is so far satisfactory to observe that it has been pointedly alluded to in the Governor General's speech, and that he has committed it to the careful consideration of the Legislature, as a measure that he expects them to deal with. It is assuredly one of those measures that should, if possible, be exempte ! from being regarded as a political or party one, for certainly if it be but properly, honestly, and fairly dealt with, it is so much needed that the people will care very little whether it be introduced to Parliament by the Ministry or the Opposition. The only thing we are afraid of is, that if it comes to be regarded especially as a Ministerial project, it will be dealt with as triflingly, defectively, and unsatisfactorily, as are too many of the measures entrusted to the care of that wayward and impotent political combination which at present constitutes the Government of the country.

Pursuing our inquiries into the evidence of authorship afforded by the letters signed "An Elector" and "D. Moynahan," when considered by themselves, we propose for the present to confine our remarks to the first of these productions.

In the letter signed "An Elector," the author takes occasion to observe, probably by way of diverting the attention of the public from himself to his amanuensis, that he thinks "Mr. O'Connor possesses too much good sense to notice the puerile falsehoods" of the letter signed "Anti-Humbug." Now, is it likely, that if Mr. O'Connor's plethora of good sense prevented him from replying to those alleged falsehoods, Mr. D. Moynahan would be willing to exhibit his own deficiency in that attribute, by doing that which he commends Mr. O'Connor for not doing? This is truly "ipsis Hibernicis Hibernior!" No man desires to make himself ridiculous, or to exhibit his want of good sense, even for a friend. This is not the age for disinterested much less for onerous and mirth provoking friendships. It is not the era of Achilles and Patroclus—of Nisus and Euryalus—of Cicero and Atticus—of Horace and Mecœnas. It is the age of "every man for himself." The "sua cuique utilitas" is certainly not less a ruling principle now, than it was in the days of Tacitus—of Galba and of Piso; and we must refuse to believe that a parasite who adhered to the fortunes of Mr. Rankin, so long as the latter was en rapport with Messrs. Zimmerman and Buchanan, and the $90,000 remained unsignated, is sufficiently chivalrous or Quixotic to volunteer a defence for his new patron, from which that patron would reap much more benefit than the parasite himself.

Again, why should Mr. D. Moynahan have had any peculiar knowledge of the fact that the support of the representatives of West Tilbury and Rochester, and that of Mr. Reaume or Mr. Villaire had been with difficulty obtained to the grant for opening Town lines? Mr. O'Connor, on the contrary, from his position in the Corporation of the County, must have been intimate with these details. Who told Mr. D. Moynahan that Mr. Macdonell had expressed astonishment when he heard of the grant being carried ! It is not probable that he heard this from Mr. Macdonell's own lips. What motive had Mr. D. Moynahan to apply long ago, as "An Elector" asserts, to the proper quarter, to know whether Mr. O'Connor had made any charge for his services in the matter of the Deputy-Reevealty of Windsor? Mr. O'Connor must have known long ago, that he himself had made no such charge, but why should Mr. D. Moynahan have interested himself in the matter long ago? Is he Mr. O'Connor's Confessor? Why does "An Elector," attach the word "Esquire" to the names of Wilson and Eccles, and prefix Mr. to that of Blevins, while he calls Messrs. Eliot and MacMullin simply C. F. Eliott, Conseil, (so he spells it) and D. A. MacMullin, Attorney There has been a difference, as we understand, between Mr. O'Connor, and Messrs. Eliot and MacMullin, which might cause the former to make use of this invidious distinction; but why should Mr. D. Moynahan write in so pointed a manner? Albeit he is learned classic, it will scarcely do to tell us by way of apology,

"Tantum infelicon nimium dilexit amicum"

Mr. C. F. Eliot is called in Elector's letter, Mr. Rankin's friend. He used to be the friend of Mr. O'Connor also.

"An Elector" states that the suits (in Mr. Bullock's case) were commenced by the unanimous vote of the County Council.—Now no one is more interested than Mr. O'Connor in suppressing the fact, (and accordingly it is suppressed!) that he himself proposed in the County Council, the following resolution: "That the Warden and Solicitor be and they are hereby authorized to institute legal proceedings civil or criminal, or both, against the late Treasurer and his sureties, or any of them, as may be found advisable, for the recovery of amounts due by the late Treasurer of the County, as such late Treasurer; and the Clerk be hereby authorized to furnish the late County Treasurer with a copy of this resolution."

A very pretty carte blanche, this, for lawyers ! Any kind of action, civil or criminal, or both, and as many of them as the lawyers thought proper. Truly Mr. O'Connor is a profitable Councillor to the County, and a profitable Counsellor to himself. The lawyers accordingly availed themselves, on a most extensive scale, of the power conferred by the resolution. No less than NINE suits were instituted, the expenses of which, estimated at $2500, have already reached $2397,37, in addition to those of the indictment, &c., amounting to $379.40, as well as the further sum of $36,75, paid to Messrs. Reeves and D. Moynahan, for attendance on arbitration and at the Assizes, in the same cases!

Certainly, the advantage of having a lawyer in the Corporation, and that lawyer Mr. O'Connor, cannot be over-estimated; for after all, the true bills—even all the actions, civil and criminal—after all the costs incurred—Mr. Bullock managed to escape the acumen of the Windsor Themis, and is now in Detroit, while the sureties have not as yet been compelled to pay one cent of their liability. Indeed, although the County has paid $611.50 to Mr. D. Moynahan, as an accountant, for investigating Mr. Bullock's books, the amount of his defalcations does not seem to be ascertained. Be this, however, as it may, the costs to the County up to the present time have been as follows:

To Mr. D. Moynahan,	$611,50
To indictment ag't Bullock,	379,40
To 9 suits ag't Bullock & Sureties,	2397,37
To Messrs. Reeves and D. Moynahan.	36,75
Total costs to the County, up to this time.	$3425,02

while, so far as the achievement of any practical result, matters are almost as they were before.

Need we add that Mr. O'Connor is much more likely than Mr. D. Moynahan to have suggested that the word "plea" (in the sense in which Anti Humbug used it) is" A Scotch law term" ! In the letter signed "An Elector," Mr. O'Cooner is styled—a gentleman! Mr. Rankin—a man!! This reminds us of the story of the New York Sabman, who thus accosted an English officer of the 43rd: "Say, are you the man as called the cab ? 'cos I'm the GENTLEMAN wot drives!" Such vulgarities prove nothing; for Mr. O'Connor was a pupil of Mr. D. Moynahan. Neither do the mistakes in spelling which occur in the letters, for we are prepared to admit that Mr. Moynahan wrote them: while beyond the vulgarities and the mistakes in spelling, we have as yet discovered no presumptive evidence, in favour of the hypothesis, that our rustic Dr. D. Toole was the unassisted author of these compositions.

The first letter signed D. Moynahan bears still more unmistakeable traces of having emanated from a legal mind. We reserve it for our next issue.

The Quarter Sessions.

As we announced last week, very little business was transacted at this Court.—There were only two criminal cases disposed of, viz.;

The Queen vs. William Williams—Larceny. Verdict, guilty; recommended to mercy. Sentenced to six months' hard labor.

The Queen vs. John Thompson—Larceny. Verdict, guilty. Sentence, 3 months.

In the County Court, there were only two cases disposed of, viz:

Smith vs. Brote—Verdict for plaintiff, $123:33.

Jacobs vs. Hodge.—Verdict for plaintiff, $120:00.

The following Bills were ignored by the Grand Jury, viz: The Queen vs Robert Stevenson and John Stevenson, for Larceny. The Queen vs. Wm. Stevenson, Larceny.

Certificates of Naturalization were ordered to be granted to the following persons; Lewis Smith, Andrew Jackson, Jesse Stowers, George Harris, George Reynolds, Allan Johnson, Robert Green, Aaron Fugate, Jas. Smith, Henry Offe, Elijah J. Patterson, John Hall, Isaiah Collins, Samuel Mundy, William Jackson, Henry Foster, Thomas Jones.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, having concluded their labors at the present Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, beg to make the following presentment:

That they have visited the Gaol, and find everything in as good order and as clean as can be, under the unfavorable circumstances; that the prisoners seem perfectly satisfied with the diet and treatment they receive at the hands of the officers in charge.

The prisoners complain sadly of the in sufferable stench arising from the privies, which is such, that at times it is almost insufferable.

The prisoners also complain sadly of the number of insane persons confined among them, most of whom are picked up in the highways and committed by the magistrates for safe keeping, and are generally in such a loathsome and filthy state as to infect the whole of the inmates in consequence of there being no provision made whereby the Gaoler can furnish clothing, neither is there a bath in which such persons can be cleaned

Other prisoners also complain that they have been in confinement for months, and have had no trial, most in the civil cause, and have no means to supply themselves nor is there any provision made.

The Grand Jury therefore suggest that your Honor will make application to the Medical Superintendent of the Lunatic Asylum for the immediate removal of such insane persons to the Asylum.

The Grand Jury also suggest that the Sheriff or other officers be authorized to furnish all persons that have been in gaol for a long period, with apparel suitable to the season of the year, and that also there be Gaol clothing kept in Gaol for the use of transient prisoners, so that other prisoners may not be annoyed by the dirt vagrants may bring in, and also that a bath may be furnished for the use of the prisoners.

PORTLAND, 7th March, 1861.

Notwithstanding the increased facilities which have within the last few years been introduced into this Country, for meeting the wants of the travelling public, a journey, especially if it is intended to be a long one at this season of the year, is not generally undertaken without discomfort and inconvenience. From Windsor to Suspension Bridge, the Great Western Railway performed her portion with commendable regularity; but it happened otherwise on the New York Central, where it was our fate to meet with a perplexing detention. All went well until we arrived at the St. Johnsville Station, about 60 miles from Albany, when information was received that the Valley of the Mohawk was completely flooded; the track covered with water to the depth of about three feet, besides being partially blocked up by the large masses of ice washed down by the freshet. Fortunately, our load of passengers was a small one, and with but one or two exceptions they appeared perfectly resigned to their temporary impediment. The Superintendent was luckily on board, and despatched two locomotives with a large posse of men to clear away the obstruction; those, after being absent about a couple of hours, were obliged to return, having made little progress. The water had nearly blackened the fires of the leading one, rendering her entirely useless, and in fact becoming a hinderance to the progress of the other. After getting up a fresh supply of steam, they made another attempt, and having, after a long interval succeeded in getting through the worst part, signalled for our train to come along. We accordingly started, and succeeded after a tiresome and critical ride of from seven to eight miles through a belgy of water about three feet deep, with large quantities of floating ice, in getting safe within a short distance of the Fort Plane Station, where the obstruction ended. Here, however, as the track had been displaced, we were obliged to be taken ashore in boats, and walk to the Depot. A general rush on landing was made for a Hotel to get something to replenish the "inner man;" but as the trains from the East were also detained there, the passengers monopolized everything that could be prepared, and as the accommodation was very much circumscribed, the folks in the Hotels were kept busy furnishing fresh relays of provender for the greater part of the day—although some of our passengers were famishing from the long fast, we had to bear up against it as best we could, and wait for them; the good people of cooked and bustled as much as possible to satisfy our craving appetites, and were about placing before us a plentiful supply of ham and eggs with the usual accompaniments, when, to our inexpressible chagrin, a messenger was despatched to say that our train was about to start, and we were of course obliged, although very reluctantly, to leave, a good deal more hungry than we came.—The Railway officials had in the meantime determined to send us to Albany on the train that had arrived from the East, with the passengers going West were sent on in our train, and must have had a hard time. Our baggage, however, was not sent along with us, and did not reach New York for some time after we arrived there. Nothing occurred afterwards to mar our journey, and we reached New York about twenty-four hours behind the usual running time.

The talk in New-York on Tuesday, the day after receipt of the President's Message, was, as might be supposed, pretty generally confined to that important document. Various were the opinions that were expressed in relation to it, each party construing it to suit his own particular ends; but, on the whole, it was received with great favor and respect. The communication did not abound with any great amount of classical lore or highly finished rhetoric, neither does it show any very distinguished marks of statesmanship, but there is a deep vein of strong common sense running through the document, which, taken in connection with the character of the subject, shows that "Honest Abe" is perfectly competent to fill his high office and solemnity, and is fully prepared to assume the responsibility of meeting the great questions that have caused so much trouble, alarm, with a vigor and determination which we fervently hope will end in an amicable settlement. It would be folly to imagine that he does not sleep on a bed of roses; he had a difficult game to play; and if he succeed in reconciling the conflicting elements of his country, he will have won for himself a nation's gratitude. How it is to be done is a perplexing consideration; to execute the onerous duties of his office, he can not tolerate disunion, and to coerce the seceding States into submission to the Federal laws, will be the signal for an outbreak of civil war, which we hesitate not to say will eventually end in a complete and final secession.

PORTLAND, 9th March, 1861.

The detention on the New York Central prevented our making more than a few hours' stay in New York, as the steamer America for Liverpool, whither we were bound, sailed on the following day from Boston; we were therefore obliged to leave in the afternoon, arriving in the latter city about midnight. The steamer generally sails at 12 o'clock noon, and basing our calculations accordingly, we made no haste to take an early start. On looking out on the morning paper, however, at breakfast, we found to our astonishment and vexation, an advertisement stating that passengers must be on board by 8 o'clock; being then half an hour past that time, we thought it needless to try to get on board, but on the suggestion of the clerk, did make an attempt, and had the questionable felicity of seeing her move out from her dock and going slowly to sea, as we neared the harbor. Another intended passenger suffered the same fate. Deeming it to little purpose staying any longer in a city where we had no business, and where legalized extortion in hackmen's charges is allowed to prevail, we took the earliest opportunity of quitting it. The steamer Canadian was the next opportunity for England, to sail from Portland on Saturday, and thither we bent our steps. The ride by railway must be very pretty in summer; the country is of a hilly character, interspersed with a number of small rivers, and upon favorable situations towns and villages, particularly where water power is abundant, at very convenient distances meet the eye. Manufacturing appears to be carried on, on a large scale, and gives a backbone to the country, which makes up for the drawback in the barren nature of the soil. The City of Portland is a very bustling and improving place, beautifully situated on the sea shore, and having a harbor unequalled for safety and accommodation, it must continue to grow with the increase and development of the rail road works which have of late years made her the Atlantic terminus. The Grand Trunk Railway has a large passenger and freight depot here, with extensive wharfs and store houses, all built in the most solid and appropriate manner, and calculated to do a vast amount of business. Whether they are likely to get all they can undertake at a paying rate, is of course a matter of conjecture; but for the sake of the Provinces and the shareholders, we hope the expenditure made here will furnish a profitable return. There are two ocean going vessels are loading with grain, but, from the manner in which it is handled in this shipment, we have our misgivings as to the economy practised by the Company in this essential particular.

Another thing particularly adapted for a winter harbor for Canada, from its natural situation and the railway accommodation which unite them, we should not be sorry to see the State of Maine added to the British North American possessions. The inhabitants are an industrious enterprising, and intelligent people, and, from appearances, do not entertain those anti-British feelings which prevail in some of the Northern States. Allied to us by former connections, and becoming again more closely linked by social and commercial intercourse, we should not be surprised to see some movement made to bring about that much to be desired union. While increasing her own strength by the greater development of her natural resources, and the introduction of English capital and labor, to enhance her manufacturing capabilities, we should find a large market for the sale of our agricultural products, and be able, through the accession of her manufacturing industry, to supply ourselves cheaper with the products of her looms. Until, however, we see the effect of the present disruption in the South, it would be rather premature to speculate on the probabilities of our best wishes being fulfilled. We have no hope of Maine being annexed to us if peace is established through the influence of President Lincoln; but should civil war break out through the determination of the Southern States to form a Slave-holding Confederacy, we may look for vast changes in the Government of the remaining Republic, and amongst those may be the proposition of Maine to be allowed a voluntary exit from the Federal Union, so as to become subject to the wise and merciful rule of her most gracious Majesty Queen Victoria of England.

The Assizes.

The Assizes were opened on Monday, [in the absence of Mr. Justice Hagarty,] by Sheriff McEwan, and immediately adjourned until nine o'clock yesterday morning. There are only two civil cases on record. The criminal cases are unusually heavy. Want of space prevents our giving a report this week, but we will do so in our next issue.

BOTS IN HORSES.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,—Being desirous of making known to the public a simple but sure remedy for Bots in horses, that persons may be spared the expense of employing a Farrier, and save the life of that valuable animal, so liable to be destroyed. I take the liberty of sending you the following receipt, with the request that you will give it a place in your columns.

REMEDY.—A piece of Indigo about the size of a common Hickory nut, dissolved in a pint of water, Drench with it. If given in time, it is a never failing cure.

Yours,
SOLOMON ILER.

THE MALDEN STEAMBOATS.—The steamer Pearl has resumed her route between Detroit and Malden. The Clara continues also on the same route for the present, having kept up communication with that place since the 16th of February, with the loss of only one trip, for which her enterprising owner is deserving the thanks of those who travel that way.

☞ On Thursday last, Charles Howman, a Brakesman on the Great Western Railway, had his arm badly crushed while coupling cars at the Dairy Siding.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Facts versus Assertions. Salt Rheum, Scurvy, etc. An officer of the New York Police Force doing duty in the upper part of the city, whose name we suppress at his request, was for many years afflicted with salt rheum in the hands, for which he tried numberless remedies without success—the disease increased and finally became so bad that he could neither close his hand nor grasp his baton without experiencing the most intense pain—he was on the point of resigning his situation and seeking admittance to Bellevue Hospital, when he was advised to try Holloway's Pills and Ointment. He did so, and by persevering in their use the disorder quickly disappeared and he now enjoys sound health. This is but one out of thousands of cases.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.—The following are the earnings of the Great Western Railway for the week ending March 15, 1861.

Passengers	$13,314 35
Freight and live stock	30,807 97
Mail and sundries	1,375 08
Total	$50,487 40
Corresponding week of last year	44,934 32
Increase	$5,553 08

☞ A few days ago, Mr. Moynahan asked us if we would insert a letter from him in answer to an article which appeared in our last week's issue. We at once replied that we would insert it. But, at the time of making the promise, we had no idea that his letter would be so long as it is. We hope that, for the future he will make his communications shorter. We shall defer our remarks till next week; in the meantime we give the letter:

To the Publisher of the Maple Leaf.

SIR.—In the Leaf of the 13th inst., there has appeared an article in the shape of a critical review, the object of which is to show that I am not the author of certain letters published in the Windsor Herald, discussing subjects relating to Mr. Rankin. I have something to say in reply, which I trust you will, in a spirit of fair play, publish in the same paper.

It is to my mind something strange that the article alluded to should appear in the Maple Leaf at the present time—arrange ment, after the events of the last five months, that a paper which appears to be the recognized, if not the avowed organ of the clear grit party in the County of Essex, should suddenly and without apparent cause, take up the "Gadgets" for Mr. Rankin.

I shall not at present indulge in any conjecture as to what is indicated by this newborn zeal of the Fox for the Wolf. My present object is to point out the unfairness and incorrectness of the criticism, as well as the vulgarity of the whole article.

I should be sorry to attribute the effusion alluded to, to the gentlemanly pen of the ostensible Editor of the "Leaf" whose departure for Europe before the article appeared, gives more than probability to the belief that he never saw it. I therefore attribute it to the mind of some "new hand at the bellows" who, having learned by note the adage—"it is much easier to be a critic than an author"—desired to make his "debut" in the easier rôle.

The avowed object of the writer was to show that I was not the author of letters which I had published over my proper signature.

In attempting this he is guilty of a gross breach of a rule of etiquette which is well understood and universally observed by the proper representatives of the fourth estate, and by gentlemen in all situations. Had the writer a direct knowledge that I was not the author, he might be excused; but to set up loose inferences from flimsy data in contradiction to my public avowal, in a personal matter, is an impropriety which, however it may become the "new hand at the bellows," I shall refrain from designating by its appropriate title.

The letters of Junius, which were published in the early part of the reign of George III, have been subjected to the discussion of the best critics of the English language from that time to the present, to ascertain their author; but to vain; for while some have with as much ingenuity as discretion as your writer, shown that those letters were the production of a certain individual, others have, by deductions equally satisfactory to themselves, shown that the style was not that individual; but that the letters bore internal evidence of having emanated from another, and thus the controversy progressed, until hardly less than a dozen appeared to have equal claims to the disputed authorship.

I venture to say that at least some of these critics of neither less learned nor less sagacious, though far less pragmatic, than your writer; and as no person claimed the authorship, they were not guilty of a breach of courtesy.

Another mark of the character of your writer's mind and education, is afforded by his referring to me by a name different from my own—a nickname, if you please.

This is a species of impertinence of which none but the most vulgar are ever guilty.

The slur attempted to be cast upon me by alluding to me as having "formerly pursued the vocation of a country school master," is equally creditable to your writer; and I can only say that while I pursued that honorable vocation, I endeavored to discharge the important duties which devolved upon me faithfully and honestly; and I succeeded so well that I have no doubt, if your writer had been far even a short time under my control while in that vocation, he might have learned something of good manners; though I could not expect to do much for him in that direction.

Your writer, in order to sustain his position, criticises a document written by me under peculiar circumstances, and on a totally different subject, over two years ago

He says that in that document the plural of "money" is mis-spelled over and over again. I admit that writing "moneys" instead of "moneys" is contrary to the general rule of grammar, but the rule has exceptions, and I think it may, at least, be considered a disputed point whether the word "money" is not one of the exceptions. I believe a great many lawyers, if not a majority of them, write not only the plural of "money," but the plural of "attorney" in the same way, viz moneys, attornies; and for so doing they allege the authority of their Tidd, their Chitleys and other standard authors in England, and of some in this country.

For the present, I shall consider this a sufficient apology for having affected the literary sensibilities of your writer by my "mis spelling" the plural of "money."—Other critiques occur which have no better foundation; for the unfairness of which is at once apparent by supplying words plainly understood and omitted in accordance with the rules of English grammar relating to ellipses; which perhaps your writer never reached in his studies of that branch.

And now allow me for a moment to criticise the critic. Let us see by what right he claims to be a judge—examine his title to literary nobility. The whole scope and object of his article are to show that I am not the author of the letters in the Windsor Herald; yet in the first paragraph he concludes a long straggling sentence as follows:

"We are of opinion that the letters in question whether considered by themselves or contrasted with former productions known to have emanated from the pen of this most accommodating and accomplished

"Calinus nor is no noble bigram," bear upon the face of them a conviction overwhelming both in its nature and extent, as to exclude the possibility of our attributing them so far as Mr. Moynahan is concerned to anything but his pen."

Let the literary qualities of this quotation go for the present: pass the classic beauty especially of the intermediate clause, "so far as Mr. Moynahan is concerned."

If I understand the meaning of your writer, it is simply that in his opinion it is impossible to attribute the letters in the Herald to anything but my pen; and that the evidence which they afford on the face of them, to prove that they are from nothing but my pen, is in its nature and extent overwhelming!!

Therefore, in the opinion of your writer, I am the author of the letters in the Herald, and the evidence to prove that I am is overwhelming!

Well, why did he proceed to prove that I was not the author? Why stultify himself? Lawyers say a man should not be heard who utters contradictions; which means, I presume, that no attention shall be paid a man who first asserts a positive, and then contradicts it. In other words, a man who contradicts himself shall not be believed.

A limb of the law has suggested to me, that when next your writer puts his pen to paper, he should conclude with the words "Ego stultus sum," and subscribe his name. Being no Latinist, I am unable to say the point of the suggestion.

But, aside from all this, what difference would it make whether I am or not the author of the letters in the Herald? Why not meet the facts and arguments put forth in them? Why this "beating about the bush," rather than meet the questions "plump?"

In the letter subscribed "An Elector," I made statements which Mr. Rankin considered injurious to his public pretensions relative to this County; and he published a characteristic letter in the same paper, calling for the name of the author, that he might afford him an opportunity at the next Assizes of proving the truth of his assertions. I without delay informed Mr. Rankin that I was the man, and in the next issue of the Herald, I declared the same in a letter over my own signature, in which I re-asserted all that I had stated in the anonymous communication, "with additions and amendations," as book writers have it.

Again Mr. Rankin appeared in the Herald, and declared that he knew from the outset I was the author, and that he did not intend to go to court—his bombast was all moonshine; he merely wanted to know what he already knew, if he told the truth. Next comes to his relief your writer in the "Leof," who first positively asserts, and declares the evidence overwhelming, that I am, and then, tries to prove that I am not, the author of the letters alluded to.

Thus I am met first with thredening bravado, then with attempted rebuke, and next with vulgar contradictions, and paltry garbling, and in pettifogging of a document totally unconnected with the matter in issue; all this the common design of perverting the attention of the public from the facts which I have endeavoured to set before them. The trick will not succeed, believe me.

Sir, yours truly,
D. MOYNAHAN.

HEALTH & ITS PLEASURES OR DISEASE WITH ITS AGONIES

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM,

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

NERVOUS DISORDERS,

What is more fearful than a breaking down of the nervous system? To be excitable or nervous in a small degree is most distressing, for where can a remedy be found? There is none;—drink but little wine, beer, or spirits, or the better manner to make no office,—weak tea being preferable; get all the fresh air you can; take three or four Pills every night; eat plenty of solids, avoiding the use of sloppy food; these golden rules are followed, you will be happy in mind and strong in body, and forget you have any nerves.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

If there is one thing more than another for which these Pills are so famous it is their purifying properties, especially their power of cleansing the blood from all impurities, and removing dangerous and suspended secretions. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints; they never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about what is required.

SICK HEADACHE AND WANT OF APPETITE.

These feelings which so sadden most frequently arise from annoyances or trouble, from obstructed perspiration, or from eating and drinking what is unfit for us, thus disordering the liver and stomach. These organs must be regulated if you wish to be well. The Pills, if taken according to the printed instruction, will quickly restore a healthy action to both liver and stomach, whence follows as a natural consequence, a good appetite and a clear head. In the East and West Indies scarce'y any other medicine is ever used for these disorders.

DISORDERS OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

FOR STOMACH OUT OF ORDER

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills; they remove all debility, occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in case of spasm,—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and Stomach.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Ague,	Asthma
Bilious Complaints,	Blotches on the Skin
Bowel Complaints	Colics,
Constipations of the Bowels,	Consumption,
Dropsy,	Debility,
Erysipelas,	Dysentery,
Fevers of all kinds,	Female Irregularities,
Gout,	Fits,
Indigestion,	Head-ache,
Jaundice,	Inflammation,
Lumbago,	Liver Complaints,
Rheumatism,	Piles,
Scrofula or King's Evil,	Retention of Urine,
Secondary Symptoms,	Sore Throats,
Tic Douloureux,	Stone and Gravel,
Tumors,	Ulcers,
Venereal Affections,	Worms of all kinds,
Weakness from whatever cause, &c., &c.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK and LONDON," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions, around each pot or box; the same may be seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilized world, in pots, at 25c., 92c. and $1 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

IMPORTANT TO ACTUAL SETTLERS

MR. ALEXANDER CAMERON, (of Amherstburgh and Toronto,) offers for sale all his Lands in the County of Essex, on the most reasonable terms ever offered by a private land owner.

He will sell to actual settlers on a credit of ten years, and accept one-tenth of the purchase money down.

He will sell at lower rates if parties can pay one-fifth down, and the balance in five equal annual instalments.

He will sell to any person well recommended by any of his friends in the County, to men of industrious habits, without receiving any instalment down, if the intending purchaser cannot pay any thing.

If the applicant and himself cannot agree as to the Price of the land, he will refer it to the Reeve of the Township and a person whom he will select to decide between them.

Mr. Cameron proposes to give lists of his Lands to all the Canadian Emigration Agents, with a view to attract settlement to this County, and will also take immediate steps to place them in the market in Europe for intending settlers, and by these means he hopes to be able to sell all his lands within a period of two or three years.

Persons desirous of purchasing farms for their Sons should apply early, and get the first choice.

NO MERCURY USED.

DR. AMOS & SON,

No. 95 Main Street,
(Corner of Main & Quay Sts. Buffalo, N.Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, may be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, till 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of perplexed insidious and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and unaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An Instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Young Men, take Particular Notice.

Dr. Amos & Son have the pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subject to a test by the most eminent physicians of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and New York; it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, or any disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most sceptical as to the merits of these instruments, pledge themselves to refund in any instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful Instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions securely packed and sent by express, is Two Dollars.

BEWARE OF IMPOSITION.

Beware of empirics and itinerants of style'd professors, who attempt cures, but never succeed. Dr. Amos & Son have for a long series of years been engaged in an extensive practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with remittance, for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secrecy from observation.

Address Dr. AMOS & SON, 95 Main Street corner Main and Quay Sts, Buffalo, N. Y.

Scientific & Useful.

What Kind of Culture pays best?

To illustrate the truth, we would impress upon every reader, let us take two fields, side by side—one of 20 acres, and one of 10 acres, both sown to wheat last year; market price of the land is $30 per acre:

Credit by 170 bushels of wheat, at $1.00	$170
Net profit on 10 acres,	$77

The above figures are worth studying. By raising the yield from 12 to 17 bushels per acre, we get $10 more profit from 10 acres than from 20. The several items, cost of land, expences of collecting, &c., are put at a fair, moderate rate—but how if any thing—and they are the same in each case. If we increase these expences, it will increase the net profit in favor of the smaller field. The same estimates will answer for corn, oats, potatoes, &c. Now for the lesson taught. Does any one doubt that it would be easy to increase the yield five bushels per acre by taking one half of the first field and cultivating it thoroughly, ploughing it deep, subsoiling and draining when necessary, and manuring—in short, treating it as you would if trying to obtain a premium from an agricultural society? Would it cost over $20 an acre to put it in a condition to yield this increased crop every year? Certainly not. Then why not sell off ten acres, and expend two thirds of the proceeds upon the other ten acres, and save the one third for other purposes.

Farmers cultivate too much land. If they will take into account the extra cost of tilling a large surface for the same crop, they can but discover that a little land well tilled will pay better and involve less care than on a large surface. You may laugh at our notions of "high farming," but we have on our side the facts, the figures, and —the "dimes." Stick a pin here!—American Agriculturalist.

A Russian Agriculture.—At a recent meeting of the Chemico Agricultural Society of Ulster, Dr. Hodges, chemist of the association, read a letter from R. E. Scrivener, Esq., Bondville, Tynan, the secretary of the Imperial Economical Society, St. Peters burgh, only copies of the journal of the Society, &c. Dr. Hodges translated several portions of the journal, from which it appeared that recently the first bone mill had been erected in Russia, and that Hanson's potato digger, introduced in Libau, had not given satisfaction. He alluded to the zealous efforts of the present Emperor to develope the immense resources of the Russian territories, and the desire to promote agricultural improvement, which was exhibited by the Russian nobility.

Dr. Hodges had made analyses of oat refuse, showing that this matter possessed nutritive qualities. The doctor, however, cautioned farmers against giving it in too large quantities. He alluded to the balls which occasionally formed in the stomachs of horses about mills, one of these, which had produced the death of a horse belonging to Messrs Andrews, at Comber, weighed no less than 7 lbs., and was found to be composed mainly of the hairs of horses cut formed into a compact mass. He also exhibited a ball taken from the stomach of a sheep, formed of particles of wool.

A Health Item.—If a man begins to cough as the result of a common cold, it is the effort of nature herself attempting this cure, and she will effect it in her own time, more effectually than man can do, if she is let alone and her instincts cherished. What are these instincts? She abhors food and craves warmth. Hence the moment a man is satisfied that he has taken a cold, let him do three things:—1st, eat not an atom; 2d, go to bed and cover up warm in a warm room; 3d, drink as much cold water as he wants, or as much herb tea as he can, and in three cases out of four, he will be almost entirely well in thirty-six hours. If he does nothing for his cold for forty-eight hours after the cough commences, there is nothing that he can swallow that will do him any good, for the cold, with such a start, will run its course in about a fortnight, in spite of all that can be done, and what is swallowed in the meantime, in the way of physic, is a hindrance and not a good.

Fruit Trees in the Vicinity of Barn Yards.—It would be well, says the Saratoga Farmer, if farmers would surround their barn-yards and pig-pens with fruit trees. Such trees bear abundantly, and heavy crops of plums can often be obtained in such places, as the stung fruit is sure to be picked up and devoured as soon as it falls, thus preventing the increase of the curculio. Apples, pears, cherries, and all other fruit, do well for the same reason, and they are also provided with a plentiful amount of liquid manure from the drainage of the barn-yard.

The husband who does not prefer his own fireside to any other spot on earth, has no place to be happy in.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

As used in Her Majesty's stables and also on His Royal Highness, the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are substantially shown by certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

Sold in casks containing 448 feeds price 14 dollars; and half casks containing 224 feeds, 7 dollars.

A Novelty in the Art World!
PHOTOGRAPHY UPON PORCELAIN.
Secured by letters patent in United States, England, France and Belgium.

THE
American Photographic Porcelain Co'py,
No. 781 BROADWAY, NEW YORK,

having secured their novel and ingenious invention by foreign and European patents, are fully prepared to execute all orders for presenting all the attractive and advantageous features of ordinary photographs, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a hitherto unattained quality of permanency that may be considered as imperishable as the natural properties of the articles upon which they are transferred.

MINIATURE LIKENESSES OF PERSONS ON CHINA,

As the patented process of the Company enables the reproduction of Photographs, not only on plain surfaces, but on such as are round or of any degree of irregularity —portraits can be reproduced with faultless accuracy and delicacy of delineation, upon Porcelain wares of any description and dimension used as articles of luxury or of household utility, such as thereby securing faithful portraits and furnishing a unique and exquisite style of ornamentation of articles in domestic use.

In order to bring these facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those patrons of the Fine Arts desirous of having Portraits on Porcelain, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured to their own order, which they sell at cost prices.

As the American Company are owners of the patent right, and consequently the only persons authorized to use the process, they have determined, in order

TO AFFORD PEOPLE IN EVERY SECTION OF THE UNION

an opportunity to possess

PORTRAITS ON CHINA,

to make the following proposition to

RESIDENTS IN THE COUNTRY, WHO ARE UNABLE TO VISIT PERSONALLY THE ATELIER AND GALLERIES IN NEW YORK.

Persons sending a photograph, ambrotype, or daguerreotype to the office of the Company in New York, accompanied by

FIVE DOLLARS,

will receive in return by express, free of other charge,

A HIGHLY ORNAMENTED BREAKFAST CUP AND SAUCER, WITH THE PORTRAIT TRANSFERRED THEREON,

By transmitting a daguerreotype and

TEN DOLLARS,

they will secure in like manner,

A HANDSOME FRENCH VASE OR TOILET ARTICLE,

with the portrait reproduced by the patented process. By sending a pair of daguerreotypes and

FIFTEEN DOLLARS,

they will receive in return

A PAIR OF RICH SEVRES VASES,

with the portraits executed equal to miniature paintings; and in like manner portraits can be reproduced on porcelain wares or

VASES OF EVERY QUALITY OF FINISH,

ranging in prices from

TWENTY TO ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAIR.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.

CRAWFORD & CO.,

AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,

WINDSOR, CANADA WEST,

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District composed of the COUNTIES OF ESSEX and KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of Water Communication and Railway Accommodation. With Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm produce and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be constructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable land; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; thus placing the District in direct communication with the leading cities of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials from the most reliable sources can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate, from its Southerly situation, is mild and genial, and the winters are shorter than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle, and the soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, vastly cheaper than in any other sections of the country, and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD OR UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hardwood, and conveniently located is offered, are exceedingly moderate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLERS, MANUFACTURERS, and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

LIST OF PROPERTIES FOR SALE.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more hazardous risks than farm buildings, and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that adheres to this rule. It is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property, isolated, is insured for the above period, by giving a Premium Note for two per cent., of which twelve and a-half per cent., (or one eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a payment. The Agent's Fee is $1,50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid till losses occur, rendering an assessment on the Note necessary, and then no more will be called for than is required. Owing to the non-hazardous risks to which the Company is confined, the losses may reasonably expect to be small. When the Insurance expires, the Note expires also.

To illustrate the above terms:—If you Insure such property for three years, say for $600, you pay (exclusive of the Agent's Fee) $1,25 in money, and your Note is held for $8,75 more which is the limit of your liability in the transaction. No other Company offers more favorable terms, scarcely any one, terms so favorable. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are insured a little lower.

A LOST LOVE.

So fair, and yet so desolate;
So wan, and yet so young;
Oh! there is grief too deep for tears,
Too sealed for tell-tale tongue!
With a faded flower in her hand,
Poor little hand so white!
And dim blue eye, from her casement high
She looks upon the night.

Only a little rosebud—
Only a simple flower—
But it blooms no more as it seemed to bloom
Through many a lone, lone hour,
As they float from her fever'd touch away,
The petals withered and brown,
All the hopes she deem'd too bright to be
Sink trembling and fluttering down.

It needs no hush of the present
To call back the sweet calm Past;
The lightest summer murmuring
May be heard through the wintry blast;
And the wind is rough with sob and with cough,
To-night upon gable and tree,
Till the bear elme wail like spectres pale,
And the pines like a passionate sea.

But she thinks of a dreamy twilight
On the garden walk below,
Of the lilacs whispering in their sleep,
And the white rose in full blow.
The early moon had sunk away
Like some pale queen, to don
In the misty shroud of an opal cloud,
To the June air's tremulous sigh.

All, all too freshly real:
The soft subdued eclipse,
Hand in hand, and heart in heart,
And the thrill of the wedded lips;
Those tender memories, how they flash
Pale cheek and brow again,
Though heart be changed, and lip estranged
That swore such loving then!

Tis out the old story
Sung so often in vain;
For man all the freedom of passion,
For woman the calm and the pain.
To fill the soul whose grief is read
In the poor, pale suffering face,
It will still cling on to a love that is gone
With the warmth of the first embrace.

Oh, 'tis well for the careless spirit
'Tis weave the web of rhyme,
And prison the idle memories
That float on the beach of time;
But better for my aching heart,
If ever it might be so,
To forget, to forget the flight that has set,
And the dream of long ago.

—[Once a week.

A Private Room.

One particularly dark, damp, dull, drizzly, and disagreeable day in the latter part of November, a tall, gaunt, queer looking customer, dressed in a blue coat with brass buttons, with yellow striped pantaloons, and calf-skin terminations, sat solitary and alone in a little room, situated in a certain little restaurant in that city.

Before him was a little round table on whose marble top was not a little pitcher of smoking punch, screeching hot, and a wine glass. The solitary individual was York — nothing else—and that was his second pitcher full—sig his second empty. One minute after and you couldn't—fact, you see —have squeezed a drop out of either pitcher or glass by a hydraulic press.

York rang the bell. The negro waiter popped his head in at the door.

'Ring, sa!'

'Of course I did. Is it clearing off?'

'No, sa; damp, sa; fog so thick you could ladle it out with a spoon, sa. Have anything sa?'

'More punch, and strong.'

'Yes, sa—immediately.'

The waiter withdrew, and in a few seconds returned with the third pitcher of punch, and York was beginning to feel glorious when, on raising his eyes, he saw his own figure in a pier glass opposite. He rubbed his eyes again.

'By thunder! said he, there's some fellow sitting right before me, I'll swear, there's impudence for you. This is a private room, sir, for my sole accommodation.'

He waited a minute, expecting an answer, but his reflection only stared at him, and held its peace.

'I was saying, sir, that this is my private room—mine, sir!' cried York, fetching his voice an octave higher than it was before.

No answer, and he rang furiously. The waiter made his appearance again.

'Ring, sa?'

'Yes, I did ring. Didn't I ask for a private room?'

'Yes, sa; this is a private room.'

'Ah! sa! Why, there's a fellow sitting right opposite me now, on the other side of the table. Not his impudence.'

'Table, sa—fellow, sa?'

'Yes, there is. Well, just never mind. Bring in some more punch and a couple of glasses.'

In a very short time the fourth pitcher, with two glasses, made their appearance.

York filled one of the glasses, and then shoved it over to the other side of the table.

'Will you drink?' said he, addressing the figure in the glass.

'Oh, you won't, eh? Well, I—I will.'

And so he did.

'Better drink, old fellow,' continued York; 'your liquor is getting cold, and you look as if you was fond of the thing.'

No answer. Long returned, York rang the bell again.

In popped the waiter.

'Ring, sa?'

'To be sure I did. Didn't you hear the b-b-bell?'

'I did, sa.'

'Didn't I order a p-p-private room! Eh?'

'Yes, sa; this is a private room, sa.'

'A pretty private room this, with a fellow sitting right opposite, that won't take a glass of punch with you when it's offered—and a red-nose man at that. Oh, well, never mind; bring more tumblers and more punch. I'll try him again.'

Pitcher number five was accordingly brought in, with due state.

'Better try some, old boy,' said he, cunningly, to his double.

The reflex merely looked good-natured, but said nothing.

'Well,' continued York, with a sigh, 'if this isn't most infamous! Never mind, I'll drink the punch.'

And so he did every drop of it. About five minutes sufficed to end the pitcher. York rang the bell superdiuously.

Waiter came.

'Ring, sa!'

'Certainly. Why should'nt I? Where's the man who keeps the place?'

'Boss, sa? I'll send him, sa.'

Shortly after, the host, a quiet little man, with a mottled, calico pattern face, and a shining bald head, made his appearance.

'What's to pay?' demanded York, rising and assuming an air of dignity.

'Five punches—five dives, sir.'

'There's the money, sir,' said York, forking over the coin, 'and now I want to know why, when I ex-cail for a private room, you put me in here with somebody else?'

'There's nobody here but you and I.'

'Nobody! do you think I can't see? D'ye think I'm drunk? There, look there! Two of 'em, by jingo!'

'Well, sir, I must confess, I can't see but us two.'

'You can't, eh? And York dragged the landlord to the table. 'Look there, then; there's the rascals still, now. One of 'em is enough like you to be your brother—and the other is the most God-forsaken, mean-looking white man that I ever saw!'

ANDERSON'S PILLS.

BY WALTER WATSON.

Anderson's pills are a medicine that has been long in repute. About half a century back they were considered by many in this part of the country to be a cure for almost every disease.

I am well acquainted with some who were personally acquainted with the Doctor. He married a Kirkmahoeite lady, and if my information be correct, he practiced in his profession in this very town. But whether the incident that's the subject of the little story I am going to tell you happened in this town, or after he removed to Glasgow, I am not quite certain.

There was an honest old woman that found herself in what she considered a rather trying case, and hearing of Dr. Anderson's fame, she thought he was the fittest person to apply to, which she did in the following manner:

Rays at the door.

'Come in.'

'Is't here whaur Dr. Anderson lives?'

'Yes.'

'Is he in?'

'Yes.'

'Are you him, sir?'

'Yes.'

'I think shame, sir.'

'Oh, there's nobody needs to think shame before me. Come forward and tell me what you want.'

'I hae a dochter at hame, sir, an' she fell wou'ful deep in love wi' a lad, sir, an' we were a-thinkin' he was a deep in luve wi' her, sir; but noo he's ta'en some ither thocht, sir, an' he'll gang by me, sir, an' he'll come by her, sir, an' he'll never speak to her, an' she's just like to break her verra heart about it, sir, an' I've just come to see if ye could gie her ony thing that would do her gude, sir.'

'Yes; how long may it be since the lad called on her?'

'I think it will be about three weeks, sir.'

'Well, if she'll follow my prescription I think I can do something for her. (Makes up a pill.) You may take that home with you and give it to her.'

'An' hoo is she to tak wi't sir?'

'She must roll it up in a linen rag, and carry it in her bosom or her pocket; and she is not to appear down hearted, but to laugh and speak and bother away as usual, and when she gets to hear him to give it a rub on his coat sleeve, or get it put in his pocket, so much the better, and I think there's no fear but the lad will come back as usual.'

'Fare ye well, an' I thank ye, sir.'

Calls again by and by—rays at the door.

'Come in.'

'Is't here whaur Dr. Anderson lives?'

'Yes.'

'O, ye're him. I see, sir, I'm the woman that thocht shame, sir. Preserve us, ye're an unco man—they'll be marrit noo, sir, an' livin' up on the hill aboon us, sir, an' doin' unco weel, sir, an' here's twa dizzon o' eggs, a pair o' chickens, an' an apron o' butter to ye sir, an' we'll aye be gi'en ye, sir, an' ye'll never be pay't, sir, an' I'm just liken to think shame again, sir.'

'Oh, as I told you before, no person need think shame before me.

'Aweel, sir, I'm left a lane, sir, an' there's a dacient honest man, a neebor, an' a wanter like mysel', sir, an' I was just won'drin' gifye could gie me a pill to catch him to myse'f, sir.

'Ay—what age may the man be you mention?'

'Muckle about my ane age, sir.'

'Well, Mistress, I must tell you, he's above the age of a love pill taking any effect: I can be of no service to you.'

'Micht you no tell a body what they're made o', sir?'

'Oh, you know, if I was to divulge the secret, it might hurt myself; I would have you go home and content yourself.'

'A weel, I'll content nane o' myse'f, and I'll mayhe win aboot him yet, for a' the skill ye hae, sir.—Kirkaldiest. and Camptie Advertiser.

Miscellany.

A telegraph cable between the coast of Sussex and Holland was recently destroyed by driving a nail into the strand. This was done by a man on board the vessel laying it down, employed by parties interested in a rival patent.

Numbers of English shipwrights discharged at Chatham and applying for work at the French yards in Brest and Cherbourg, were informed that there was no place for them, as the work there is in iron and not in wood.

A GOOD ADVICE.—If you want to have a man for your friend, never incur the ill-will of his wife. Public opinion depends in a great measure on the average prejudices of womankind.

Man, anatomists say, changes entirely every seven years. 'Therefore,' says the inimitable Jones, 'my tailor should not remind me of the bill I contracted in 1853. I ain't the man.'

It is said of Ethan Allen that he once attended a church, where a minister made an estimate, the result of which was that out of the whole human race, not more than one in a thousand would be saved. On the announcement of this result, Allen took his hat and walked out, saying, as he went—

'Gentlemen, if any of you want my chance, you are welcome to it. It is not worth staying for.'

Old folk say that 'a snow year is a braw year.' And why? Our fields will receive in the spring from the melted snow a deposit of ammonia equal to a top dressing of guano. The extraordinary quantity that has fallen this year will give us an unusual supply of an element so favorable to vegetation, the more so as the ground is but slightly frozen, and when a thaw will set in the snow water will permeate the land very easily.

An English lady, who had resided at Hamburg for some time, and had been a constant visitor to the gambling saloons, whose by degrees she had lost almost all her property, left the town and went to the village of Kinder, about three miles distant. She ascended the tower of the new church there, and, having first tied her legs together threw herself from the tower, to the earth, a distance of about 100 feet. When picked up she was still living, but was conveyed to the hospital at Hamburg in an exceedingly deplorable condition.

SINGULAR EFFECT OF DIPTHERIA.—Noah Burnham, Jr., nineteen or twenty years old, and Elizabeth Clifford, about sixteen, residing in Cape Ann, N. H., had a mysterious throat malady a few months since, which has resulted in a paralysis of their lower limbs—both being unable to walk, and not being able to stand up on the floor.

BADLY TAKEN IN.—A dry goods clerk, in Cincinnati, recently became charmed with a customer, who came into his store, and was soon married; but next day his bliss was cut short by the entrance of a yellow colored woman, who called the bride daughter.—The daughter acknowledged the parentage, that she was the child of a prominent white citizen of Louisville, Kentucky; she had been seduced from home by a scoundrel, who left her at Columbus; with, however, a good wardrobe and some money, she had come on to Cincinnati, and hence her marriage with the young dry goods clerk, who has not since been heard of.

A girl advertises in a German newspaper in New York for a situation as bar-maid or waiting-maid, and mentions in her letter her qualifications for such a position, she says she can cut 225 pieces of bread and butter, of satisfactory appearance, out of one pound of bread and two ounces of butter.

The Commercial Advertiser of Montreal has been shown some fine specimens of purple and grey copper ore from the Black River Mines in the County of Lotbinière. These mines are owned by a Quebec Company, are situated six miles from the Grand Trunk Railway, Richmond and Quebec branch, and about nine miles from the St Lawrence. The ore is rich and abundant. A parcel of it will shortly be sent for smelting at the works at Longueil which are now in operation.

In the summer of 1859 the Volunteer Riflemen of England numbered but 1,500 men. Now a force of 140,000 men, perfectly equipped, are fit to take the field.—This army has its own cavalry, its own artillery, and its own engineers, as well as its battalions of infantry.

A reckless fellow, smoking a cigar while making cartridges, at Jackson, Missouri, on the 19th ult., dropped some of the ashes into an open keg of gunpowder, which exploded, blew up the place, and nearly killed four men.

Provincial Parliament.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, March 19 1861.

After routine business the House took up the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Its adoption was moved by Hon. Col. TACHE and seconded by Hon. Mr. SHAW, and carried without amendment.

A petition against M. Huot's return was read at the table, and Hon. M. LETELLIER moved its adoption.

The matter was, however, postponed until to-morrow. The House then adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, March 19.

After routine business M. MONDENAIS was introduced and took his seat.

The House then proceeded to the order of the day, which was the consideration of the second paragraph of the Address, relating to the Prince's visit. The debate was resumed by

Mr. FERGUSON who moved in amendment,—That while our Gracious Sovereign has acknowledged the loyalty which greeted His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales on his visit to our shores and throughout the loyal subjects in this great appendage of her Empire, this House feels bound to express to your Excellency its deep regret that owing to the unwise counsel tendered to His Royal Highness, the feelings of large classes of Her Majesty's subjects were insulted, their rights ignored, and undue political and religious excitement engendered, detrimental alike to the peace of the country and that full and unreserved equality of the rights and privileges which all classes of the people should constitutionally enjoy.' He said the visit of the Prince of Wales had done good to Canada in making it known to the world. We would look back to the honor done us with pleasure in after ages. The visit would, among other things, root out the remnant of annexation proclivities if they existed. The Prince had left a favorable impression on those who had the honor of associating with him. Not only males but females, and he (Mr. Ferguson) was sure that children, yet unborn, would be told by their mothers of the happy times they had with the Prince when passing through Canada. But there was no rose without a thorn. Difficulties arose. Some one was to blame. A feeling of irritation provoked difficulty. Several classes of the community had been grossly insulted.—First there was the Presbyterians, whose address would not be received from Dr. Matheson at Montreal; next the Methodists, whose address from Dr. Stinson was scarcely replied to; and then the Masons were insulted. They had been invited to attend the laying of the foundation stone of the Parliament House, in regalia; they had come many hundred miles for that purpose, and yet would not be allowed, at the last moment, to lay the stone with Masonic ceremonies. In Prince Edward Island Masonic addresses were presented and replied to.—The last grievance was the insult offered to the Orangemen. The Orangemen were a respectable portion of the community.—Gentlemen might sneer; they numbered 150,000 (cries, oh!); the did not count Orange women although they made sneers at Orangemen. (Laughter.) The Orangemen, like the Masons, were invited to take part in the reception; But they were grossly insulted by base enemies. The result was that the Prince was not allowed to go quietly to Church at Toronto. Insult after insult offered to the Orangemen sufficient to rouse the feelings of the entire Protestant community. He hoped the day would never come when Canada could be trampled on by any Duke. He thought Orangemen were to blame besides the Duke. He would like to know if Ministers advised the Duke. If they did they could not possess the respect of people of the Province. The Duke's stubbornness broke the peace of the country.

Mr. AIKINS seconded the resolution.

M. SICOTTE contended that the Ministers only to be held responsible for the letters to the different Mayors written from Ottawa by the Governor, under responsible government, if responsible government was carried out.

Atty. Gen. CARTIER said responsible government was not in danger; they did not lose sight of the fact that the Prince represented the Queen. Imperial responsible advisers were present and the Provincial Ministers therefore could not give advices, when the Queen or any member of the Royal Family visited a locality; it was for them to say how he would be received. The case was the same as regarded the Prince; Provincial Ministers could not advise as long as Imperial Ministers were present. Provincial Ministers could only see that the wishes of the Prince were complied with and that the form of invitation was carried out. After this explanation the member for St. Hyacinthe need not think that responsible government was in danger.

Mr. MCGEE drew attention to the fact that the prediction of his, that time twelve months, had been fulfilled—a high official had thrust himself between the Prince and the people. The lion gentleman found fault at some length with the conduct of the Governor General and charged the Ministry with abrogating their duty towards the Governor and the people. He characterized the conduct of the Orangemen as disgraceful in not allowing the Prince to land, but charged the Ministry with knowing before hand of the circumstances which led to it. He could not vote for the address, however, because it said that the Prince had been improperly advised. He could not undertake to say so. He lauded the conduct of the Duke of Newcastle, but condemned the Ministry, and would vote for the amendment, if changed to condemn them.

Mr. MOWAT said that whatever view was taken of the matter, ministers were to blame. He considered their conduct unconstitutional.

Hon. J. S. MACDONALD said that the Ministry was afraid to tender advice to the governor, for fear it would be rejected and they would have to resign. He complained of the conduct of the Governor in monopolizing the Prince and ignoring members of the House. Even carters at Montreal had precedence of members. If a letter from Ottawa from the Governor was written with their consent ministers ought to say so. Ministers marred the Prince's visit.

Atty. Gen. MACDONALD said that this was not the time for such a motion. It should have been brought up at another time when the business of the country would not be delayed. Ministers were charged with shirking their duty in not tendering advice. If such responsibility ever existed it always existed. Why then did the hon. member (J. S. Macdonald) make a motion last session to take that responsibility from ministers and share it with the House? So far as the visit of the Prince went it was the same as if the Queen had come here. The same steps were taken by the Imperial Government in sending responsible Ministers of the Crown with His Royal Highness. No matter where the Queen goes she is accompanied by a responsible minister. Therefore, the Prince, when here was accompanied by a responsible adviser, the Duke of Newcastle. It was said that the Prince ought to have been guided by the advice of the Governor, but he (Atty. Gen. Macdonald) did not see how it could be done. The Ministry was blameless, because it was bound to tender advice only to the Governor General or the administrator of the Government. Hon. J. H. Cameron seemed to know that Ministers were not responsible. The letter had applied to the Duke direct through the Governor General in order that he might learn if an address would be acceptable; and he learned that it would not. All parties seemed to know that Ministers were not responsible. The Duke on all occasions assumed the responsibility of directing the Prince's movements. As to the charge of the Governor monopolizing the Prince, he had only to say, that in a true spirit of hospitality the Prince was allowed to go where he pleased—except that from many peculiar cause in a particular city. As to the charge of the Mayor of Quebec the presenting an address before the members of the Legislature, it was trivial. The head of the Government met the Prince at the entrance of the Province; he received by the Mayor of Quebec as he had been received by the Mayors of all the cities at which he landed. When settled in Quebec solemn Court was held and members duly presented to the Prince, who represented the Queen —certainly a much better course than building down to the wharf to receive him. As to insulting the masons, the Duke was a most distinguished Mason in England and would not do so. What the Orange difficulty arose he (Mr. Macdonald) was one of a deputation from Kingston to endeavor to induce the Duke of Newcastle to change his determination and was sorry that they had not succeeded in their object. He regretted that the amendment was not brought in as a substantive motion. The Orangemen, he believed, had a right to appear in insignia, and had told why the Duke so at the interview which had taken place, and also that the Prince would not be allowed to land if the Duke persisted in his determination, unless the Mayor had committed an assault on every man wearing the Orange regalia. He never saw the letters to the Mayor of the cities until he read them in the newspapers.

Six o'clock having arrived the House took a recess.

EVENING SESSION.

Mr. CARTIER resumed the debate in a long speech in which he said he warmly defended the course of the Government.

Mr. FOLEY followed, and said he approved of the course of the Duke of Newcastle towards the Orangemen, denying, as representing a Protestant constituency in Upper Canada, that His Grace had given offence to Protestants. He thought, however, that the Ministry were responsible for certain insults to Presbyterian, Methodist, and other bodies. Orangemen, he maintained, formed by no means the majority of the people of Upper Canada, and having been told that their presence would give offence and perhaps lead to bloodshed, the Duke did right in discountenancing them. He (Mr. Foley) held the Attorney General West to blame for endeavoring to induce His Grace to countenance the Orangemen of Kingston. It was very likely in his opinion, that Mr. Cartier had asked the Duke to take the opposite course, as the Ministry held different views.

Mr. CONNOR blamed the Ministry in a long speech.

Mr. GOWAN, as an independent member of the House, thought the ministers responsible, and never hesitated to censure them.

Mr. MACDOUGALL acquitted the Duke of Newcastle of any intention to over-ride the Constitution of Canada. He would vote for the resolution, with the following amendment: striking out the words after "unwise Counsels," and inserting, 'which obtained or led to the abdication of their functions by the responsible advisers of the Crown, and that the feelings of a large class of Her Maesty's subjects had been insulted and much ill-will engendered.'

Mr. Simpson hoped that past religious and party difficulties would be forgotten.

Mr. J. S. McDonald could not support the amendment of Mr. McDougall, as it was evident that the Duke had not acted on the advice of the Canadian Ministry. Such advice had not been asked, and if tendered would not have been taken. The Duke had acted entirely on his own responsibility, and he approved of his policy. He would vote against the original amendment also.

Mr. Ferguson accused the members of the Opposition of playing a double game. If his motion was lost the responsibility would be upon their heads. He would oppose Mr. Macdougall's amendment, and hoped it would be withdrawn since it was equivalent to a vote of want of confidence. His (Mr. Ferguson's) amendment embraced the principal point of accusation against the Ministry.

The House then divided on Mr. Macdougall's amendment with the following result:

Yeas—38.
Nays—71.

The House then divided on Mr. Ferguson's amendment, which was also lost on the following division:

Yeas—14.
Nays—55.

The House adjourned at 11:30 p.m.

Quebec, March 20, 1860.

The petition of the English share and bondholders of the Grand Trunk Railway was presented.

Mr. Ferris drew attention to the ventilation of the House, which was abominable.

The fourth paragraph of the answer to the address was carried.

Dr. Connor said, with reference to assimilating the laws of both Provinces, that it had been understood that the consolidated statutes were to be delivered to the public at $3 50 each, yet this had not been done.

Atty. Gen. Macdonald said it was under the consideration of the Government to issue the Consolidated Statutes of Upper Canada free to country Magistrates, instead of charging them $3 50. The matter would be brought up by the Government.

Mr. Mowat congratulated the Government on having stolen two planks from the Opposition platform; viz., the bankrupt law and the assimilation of the laws between Upper and Lower Canada.

After a lengthened debate in French the paragraph was carried.

On the fifth paragraph relating to a Bankrupt law and a change in the criminal law, and the establishment of the local penitentiaries.

Mr. J. S. Macdonald said he did not see how the laws of Upper and Lower Canada could be assimilated, and asked the Government to settle the effect of the measures.

Atty. Gen. Macdonald replied, but was inaudible in reporters' gallery.

Mr. McGee drew the attention of the Government to confining lunatics in Common jails.

The fifth paragraph was carried.

The sixth paragraph, relative to the registration of Judgments in Upper Canada, was taken up.

Mr. Mowat contended that what was mentioned in the Speech was not what caused delay and vexation; it was highly objectionable to simply abolish judgment as a lien on land.

Atty. Gen. Macdonald thought that when Mr. Mowat saw the measure he would support it.

The sixth paragraph was carried.

On the seventh paragraph, relating to Crown Lands and immigration.

Mr. McGee called on the Government for information as to the policy regarding immigration; he hoped that German and Norwegian immigration would be encouraged. Each German emigrant who arrived in the United States brought on an average $62 with him. There was no fear of importing pauperism by encouraging immigration. Then, the barbarous war in New Zealand and the distressed state of the United States were favorable to emigration to Canada. He would like to know, however, what plan had been adopted by the Government; also if it was true, as a Ministerial supporter had stated privately that all countries to which emigration agents from the Province had been sent were Protestant countries. It was said that the agent of the North of Ireland was an Orangeman. He would also like to know if the Government would take measures for a committee to be struck on both sides of the House on this subject.

Hon. Mr. Allyn had no objection to the last proposition. The instructions given to agents would be printed and sent down the House. He did not know that Mr. Donnelson, the agent to Ireland, was an Orangeman; he would be sorry if he was.

The seventh paragraph was carried.

The eighth paragraph, relative to the writ of the English Court of Queen's Bench, was put.

Mr. J. S. Macdonald lamented that the Attorney General West had not been able to decide the Extradition case himself without committing the case to the Judges. Fortunately the Court of Common Pleas released the prisoner; otherwise a conflict would have arisen between the English and Canadian Courts.

Atty. Gen. Macdonald said his friend had not acted fairly. He should have made a substantive motion and moved for the papers on the subject; he would then have seen that the Government were not to blame. The Government did not sue out the writ of habeas corpus; it was done by the prisoner's counsel. The Government could not prevent it; consequently the Government were prevented giving a final decision in the case.

Atty. Gen. Cartier said the Government had acted properly; they could have taken no other course.

Mr. Mowat concluded that the sympathies of the Government were against Anderson, from the manner in which the subject was alluded to in the speech.

The eighth paragraph was carried.

The ninth paragraph in reference to the Prince of Wales was carried.

The last paragraph was then put.

Mr. Ferguson was sorry to be obliged to move an amendment to the last paragraph. He blamed the Ministry for not mentioning the census in the speech. Representation by Population was a most important subject engaging the attention of all the people of Western Canada, and of many in Eastern Canada, and it was generally thought that some allusion to it should be made in the speech. He trusted, however, that that bugbear, disunion, would never be carried. He contended that great injustice was done to Upper Canada. He did not see why Lower Canadians believed that Upper Canadians would do injustice to it on, even if they had the upper hand.—He moved, in amendment:—

"That this House cannot close the address without recording its regret that there was no allusion to the census of the people recently taken, and which the House cannot but regard as preliminary to legislation upon the question of Representation by Population."

Atty. Genl. Cartier contended that the amendment was out of place. When brought before the House in due form it would receive due consideration.

Mr. Craik seconded the amendment.

Mr. White spoke in favor of representation by population.

Mr. McMicken remarked that the Opposition had dropped the question of representation by population long ago. Mr. Brown, through the Globe had done so.—The Opposition knew that if the motion was carried the country would be as far off as ever from getting representation by population. The amendment was out of place and he, therefore, would vote against it now, he was however in favor of the principle.

Mr. Notman announced his intention of bringing forward Representation by Population as a substantial motion.

Mr. Wilson demanded representation by population as an act of justice to Upper Canada.

M. Thibeaudeau had the courage to say he could not grant representation by population. Lower Canada would not grant it. Blood would be shed if it were carried.

Mr. Aikens contended that the people of Upper Canada demanded representation by population, and attacked Mr. J. S. Macdonald's speech.

Mr. Foley said Mr. Sanfield Macdonald's speech was wholly uncalled for. He had not finished his speech when the House adjourned at 12:30.

Quebec, March 22.

The debate on the address was resumed.

Mr. Foley continued his remarks. He maintained that such members as those from Victoria and Welland should vote for the principle of representation by Population, even at its risk of turning out the Ministry.

Mr. McMicken asked would the Brown-Dorion Government, if in power, settle this question.

Mr. Foley—Yes; the Brown-Dorion Government agreed to settle this question, among others.

Cries of "How," "What about checks."

The hon. gentleman declared that as sure as there was a heaven above there would be a conflict between the people if this question was not settled at once. Why should not the men in power settle the question now? But come what might he would stand by Upper Canada.

Mr. Simpson thought this the wrong time to bring up the question. He lamented that fiery spirits on both sides had prematurely embroiled the questions. He took it as a settled fact among all people of sense in both sections of the Province that the union ought to be maintained. The position of Upper and Lower Canada at the time of the union was lost sight of. At that time the population of Lower Canada exceeded by nearly 200,000 the population of Upper Canada, and she did not wish to treat Upper Canada as Upper Canada wanted to treat Lower Canada now. He could say that the ratio of increase in population in Lower Canada since 1852 was greater than in any ten previous years; and he was convinced that the liberal people of Upper Canada would not in any way do injustice to Lower Canada.

After a long and exciting debate Mr. Ferguson's amendment was negatived by a vote of 72 against 38.

Quebec, March 22.

The question being again put on the last paragraph of the Address.

Mr. J. S. Macdonald moved in amendment that this House, nevertheless, feels bound to declare to His Excellency that it is highly desirable that the persons selected by him to direct the legislation of public affairs, and to discharge the administrative functions in this Province, should possess the confidence of that section to which such members belong, and from which they have been chosen. That the responsible advisers of the Crown upon Upper Canada have failed, during the existence of this Parliament, to secure the confidence of the majority of the representatives from that section. That the continuance in office of His Excellency's advisers from Upper Canada, notwithstanding the oft-repeated declarations of want of confidence by the majority from that section, has created an intense feeling of dissatisfaction, and great uneasiness in the minds of the people of Upper Canada.

M. Dorion moved in amendment to the amendment, that this House nevertheless feels bound to decline to His Excellency that it is highly desirable that the persons on whom devolve the duty of directing the legislation of the country and of discharging the administrative functions of the Government, should possess the confidence of both sections of the Province. That the responsible advisers of the Crown have failed during the whole of this Parliament to secure the confidence of a majority of the Representatives of Upper Canada. That the retention of office by His Excellency's present advisers under these circumstances, has created much uneasiness and dissatisfaction in the public mind, and cannot be prolonged without danger to the best interests of the whole province.

M. Sicotte asked the Government if it was intended to adjourn for the Easter holidays, as owing to several holidays occurring next week there were only two working days. He therefore thought it advisable to adjourn, if the Address was carried to-night, until Tuesday week.

Hon. M. Cartier said that the Government would have no objection to do so if the answer to the Address was carried to-night. Members could meet to-morrow to present it to His Excellency.

After considerable discussion the House divided on M. Dorion's amendment to J. S. Macdonald's amendment: Yeas 46; Nays, 65.

The House then divided on Mr. J. S. Macdonald's amendment: Yeas 49; Nays, 62.

The Address was then carried.—Leader.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, MARCH 27, 1861.

We are well pleased to find that one of the leading members of the Opposition, party in Parliament, has been asking information from the Government regarding the policy they intend to pursue with reference to the encouragement and promotion of immigration to this Province. That the subject was not even hinted at by the Governor General in his Speech at the opening of the present session of the Legislature, might assuredly be regarded as very extraordinary and unaccountable, were it not that the Speech is generally notorious for its many short-comings and glaring imperfections, and one that, in the language of Lord Byron, may not be inaptly character ized as "A fair sample on the whole

Of rhetoric, which the learned call rigmarole."

Really, it seems from its entire construction, as if this were the character that its contrivers meant it to bear; and, if so, the success of their endeavors must have afforded them a complete measure of extraordinary satisfaction.

But, although the Governor General and his advisers have cast as it were a slight upon this particular subject, by their omitting to notice it in that very unstatesmanlike and inapposite production, the necessity of attracting and encouraging immigration hitherward, is nevertheless, as we have already said, engaging the attention of Parliament, and from its immense importance can scarcely be passively overlooked. Besides, the fact that Mr. McGee, the talented and energetic member for Montreal, is the gentleman who has now taken the matter in hand, is in our opinion a further guarantee that it will be properly attended to, or at least, that the Government will, if necessary, be forced to understand that it is one that must not be trifled with.

The best interests of our Province demand that its advantages as a field of im migration should be properly published to the civilized world. We (the people of Canada) wish it to be understood, as it ought to be, what a splendid opportunity is presented to Agriculturalists for gaining large remuneration for their labor, by settling among us, and cultivating a soil which is generally eminently productive. They should be led to know what are the peculiarly advantageous features of our favored land, and what are the abundance and variety of its productions. We want mechanics, who are now toiling their lives away for a hardly earned and a paltry pittance in the old countries of Europe, to know that in this young country of ours, they can find a ready and a paying market for their skill. In fact, every class of the laboring community everywhere, should, by the instrumentality of our Government, have the fullest opportunities of ascertaining what are the vast resources of this magnificent Province, and what the transcendent inducements that it presents as a place of settlement are to the hordes of hardy adventurers who yearly flock to America in search of a new home. We wish them all to have a proper conception of the incalculable benefits that we derive from our noble rivers and magnificent lakes, as means of navigation—of the healthy and invigorating climate with which we are blessed, and of the thousand other resources and super-eminent advantages with which our fair country has been providentially endowed.

"There is no danger," as Mr. McGee rightly remarked when he introduced the subject to Parliament, "of importing pauperism by encouraging emigration." Oh the contrary, surely in the abstract, there is nothing so much needed to promote the wealth and prosperity of the Province, as this promotion of immigration. We require millions more of strong arms and willing hands than our present population numbers, to clear and cultivate our immense tracts of wild land, before these tracts can be made to yield one or so per cent. as Nature intended them to be; and we want millions more to aid in the development of our many other resources, (at present most imperfectly promoted,) before their excellence and advantages can be adequately appreciated. Apart from this wide aspect of the case, or rather to view it more literally, it would seem as though poverty could seldom, even at the offset, be individually attributed to a great number of those people who generally immigrate hitherward or to the neighboring Republic. Mr. McGee stated that it has been satisfactorily ascertained that "each German emigrant who arrived in the United States brought on an average $62 with him from his own country." Now, British, French, or Norwegian emigrants are, as a class, certainly in possession of more pounds than are the Germans. The Irish emigrants are generally the poorest; but each of them as come among us, could surely all find labor enough now that our prosperity is somewhat restored, to earn the means of self support, and prevent their proving burdensome to the community.

It is earnestly to be hoped that this subject will meet, in the proper quarter, with the consideration and attention which it urgently demands, and that Mr. McGee and his coadjutors will persevere in their endeavors on its behalf. Assuredly, the importance of promoting immigration to our shores, by the due exercise of all the means that can best be adopted for that purpose, is so great, that it would be difficult to have it over-rated, and more particularly is it so at the present time, when those many difficulties with which, as a people, we have lately been beset, are rapidly wearing away, and when we have good reason to believe that prosperity and plenty are again about to cheer us with their sunny presence, and to endue us freely with their most indulgent gifts.

A DREAM.

"I dreamt that I dwelt in marble halls,
With vassals and serfs by my side."
—Bohemian Girl.

"I succeeded so well that I have no doubt, if your writer had been for even a short time under my control while in that vexation, [a country school-master's,] he might have learned something of good manners."—D. Moynahan, in Maple Leaf of March 20.

"I therefore attribute it to the mind of some 'new hand at the bellows.'"—D. Moynahan.

"A limb of the law has suggested to me," &c.—D. Moynahan.

"Why this 'beating about the bush,' rather than meet the questions 'plump?'"—D. Moynahan.

In addressing the Grand Jury, the Hon. Justice said that he regretted that circumstances over which he had no control, had prevented his being present at the appointed time. He was sorry to see such an unusually heavy calendar; if all the crimes were as black as they appeared to be, they would be very black indeed. His Lordship then fully explained the crimes of Killing and maiming cattle, Burglary, &c. He also explained some Acts passed at the last session of Parliament, the first of which was: "An Act for the Prevention of Corrupt Practices at Elections." By it, he said, a person letting his team, or hiring the team of another, to bring voters to the polls, would forfeit his vote, and would also be guilty of a misdemeanor, for which he is liable to a penalty of $200. This was not intended to prevent several neighbors coming to the polls together in the same team, but only to prevent the regular hiring of teams which has been so common at elections hitherto. His Lordship also said it was a misdemeanor, punishable with a fine of $200, to give or lend, or promise office, place or employment, or any other reward, to induce any voter to vote, or not to vote. The penalty is the same for agreeing to vote for money, gift, or loan, place or employment, or any other consideration.

His Lordship also explained the Act to protect the Growing Timber on Waste Lands, which made it a misdemeanor, punishable with a fine not exceeding $100, or six months imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the Court, for any person stealing timber from waste lands, to the amount of $10.

He also explained the new Liceoss Act, stating that it was now made a misdemeanor for any officer of any municipality to issue more Licences than one for every 250 souls therein, and that it was to prevent the licensing every second house in a street, as is the case in some places.

The only civil case disposed of was:

Dermage vs. Nelson.—Verdict for Plaintiff, $240.

We were too busy to attend at the Court last week, we therefore take the following report of the criminal cases disposed of, partly from the Observer, and partly from the Essex Journal:

The Queen vs Elijah Stevens—Larceny, verdict guilty. Sentence, one week's imprisonment in Gaol.

The Queen vs Henry Belt, Larceny, verdict guilty. Sentence, two years in the Provincial Penitentiary.

The Queen vs Maurice Helfrich and Cesare Drouillard, Forcible entry, not Guilty.

TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

The Queen vs Pettit, Malpractice. In this case Dr. Pettit, a gentleman practicing in Windsor, was charged with manslaughter in having caused the death of Catherine Haley residing there, from malpractice, in acting as an accoucheur. The first witness called was Dr. Casgrain, of Sandwich, who testified that some days after Mrs. Haley died, he and Dr. Pettit made a post mortem examination, and found a rupture of the parts, which he considered the cause of death, and therefore desisted from further examination; that he believed the rupture in question could only be produced by unnatural pressure from above or from an abnormal condition of the child; thought as a surgeon, that in this case it was caused by manipulation; examined the child, and found nothing abnormal in its appearance. In answer to Mr. O'Connor, Dr. Casgrain said such a rupture might be caused by disease.

The only witness examined by Dr. Casgrain, made Post mortem examination; found extensive discoloration of abdomen indicative of mortification; on opening the body found inflammation and an extensive rupture; believe it caused by bad management. Believe that if wrong presentation occurs, professional men who understand their business can correct it without using such force; does not of himself know that Dr. Pettit attended; only heard so; do not know whether he is a licensed physician or not; have been in practice 5 or 6 years; such rupture must in all cases prove fatal.

Cross Examined—Rupture would most likely take place while performing the operation above referred to; previous causes might have predisposed the parts to be very weak; do not think maternal violence could cause it; Dr. Churchill is a high authority; would agree with him; (the authority in question being read by Mr. O'Connor, stating that violence, such as a blow, would produce it.) Dr. Gilbert said that he had not in practice any case to guide him; that he had misunderstood the purport of Mr. O'Connor's question; that while he still thought external violence could not produce the rupture, it would render the parts very liable to it.

Dr. Dewson was then called, but failed to answer. The Court, after granting a long delay, asked the Crown prosecutor whether Dr. Dewson had been regularly cited to appear. Mr. Prince stated that he was under recognizance of fifty dollars to appear. His Lordship said that Dr. Dewson's conduct was inexcusable, and that, were it not because the case was of great importance to the public, he would at once entreat recognizance. He only regretted that the amount was so small. As it was, he would adjourn the case for two hours, and go on with some other. If by that time the Crown was not ready to proceed, Dr. Pettit must be discharged, because as yet, no evidence had been produced to connect him with the case.

When the case was called, Dr. Dewson appeared and excused himself on the ground of professional engagements; His Lordship severely reprimanded him but did not inflict the fine.

THE ASSIZES.

The Assizes were formally opened on Tuesday last, by Mr. Justice Hagarty. The following gentlemen composed the Grand Jury:

John G. Buchanan, Esquire, Foreman; Jacob Arner, John Bell, Oliver Beausoliuel, Walter Cowan, Chas. G. Fortier, William Flanigan, Duncan Grant, George Hobbs, Henry Ives, Alexander Jones, S. Lafferty, William Mills, Michael Maloney, Theodore Malott, Robert McEwan, Mark Richards, John W. Wigle, Asa Wilcox, Theodore Wigle, Wm. Woodbridge, Windle J Wigle, and Michael Wigle.

Dr. Dewson was then placed in the witness box and the case went only was called early on the morning to attend and; gally expected to find Dr. Gilbert; had I been aware that he, Dr. Pettit, was there, would not have gone; my impression is, that he is not a physician; deceased told me there was a wrong presentation; deceased told me Dr. Pettit had repeatedly attempted to correct it; her statement must have been made in the presence of the prisoner; it must have been in his hearing; (Mr. O'Connor objected to the evidence, but it e Court ruled it in order.) I then took measures I deemed necessary to deliver the woman; had Dr. Pettit known how to act, he could have performed the operation without the slightest difficulty; Dr. Dewson here read in support his mode of procedure, an extract from Dr. Ramsbotham of London, (Eng land) a recognized authority. The child was dead; had still faint hopes of her recovery; was fearful of inflammation setting in, which would prove fatal; was not aware of any injury being done; did not attend the post mortem examination; attended the deceased the day after the birth, but was called away into the country for three days; when I returned she was dead; the rupture described would cause death, it might be produced from an abnormal condition of the child; nothing in this case to account for it; Dr. Pettit might have been in the outer room; I say that in this case, death was caused by inflammation.

In answer to His Lordship—Believe the woman could now be alive, had it not been for improper treatment; inflammation is the natural result of the treatment in this case; I have practiced 27 or 28 years.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. O'Connor opened the case for the defence, by calling

Mrs. Catherine Waters—Who testified that she was with deceased on the night of her illness; she was there before Dr. Pettit came, and remained the whole night; deceased was very ill, and frequently called upon Dr. Pettit to assist her. The Doctor said there was a wrong presentation, and tried two or three times to rectify it, but deceased could not bear it. He then told Haley to send for another Doctor to assist. Dr. Pettit did nothing more after that time—up to that time the child was alive. Haley brought Dr. Dewson. When Dr. Pettit first saw deceased that night he said she was in a bad state, and must have had either a heavy fall or a heavy blow; have known deceased since September, she told me frequently she did not expect to get through her trouble, that the Doctor who attended her at her last confinement said that she could never get through another; she told me she had been injured by a kick from her husband in August last. Before Dr. Pettit came, it became necessary to turn rags in the room; when the Doctor said deceased had been injured either by a blow or a fall, the husband said she had neither; the woman said "Oh, John, how can you say so! Its all through you I am in this state;" I think from circumstances that came under my knowledge, that before Dr. Pettit came, deceased was in an inflamed state.

Cross Examined by Mr. Prince—Deceased had one living, and two dead children before this; she told me that the two last were delivered by instruments, those were the dead ones; heard the woman complain that Dr. Dewson was hurting her dreadfully; he desisted every time she complained; I think Dr. Pettit acted very kindly; he did not make more than three attempts.

Mrs. Isabella Smith—Was present part of the time; saw all Dr. Pettit did while there; think he did all that was proper; he said repeatedly that it was a wrong presentation; he touched her three times after she requested to be left alone, he said he would not persist against her will; can't say how long after that Dr. Dewson came; deceased complained some time before of a lump on her side; Dr. Pettit said there was inflammation; deceased came to my house some time before she was confined, and said she could not stay at home in consequence of her husband's treatment.

Cross Examined—Dr. Pettit made three attempts to deliver the child; did not hear the woman complain of Dr. Dewson hurting her; was not there, went away before Dr. Dewson arrived; heard the woman say after Dr. Dewson was sent for, that the child was alive.

Dr. Stewart—I reside in Detroit; am a medical practitioner; have practised since 1832; was in that year a graduate under Dr. Drake of Cincinnati; have heard part of the evidence; heard Dr. Gilbert, Dr. Dewson, and the women; so far as I can understand, there was another disease before; the rupture of the parts described could not take place while the operation described by Dr. Dewson was being performed; my impression from what I heard the woman was diseased; Dr. Pettit acted as I would have done in a case of the kind; the rupture in question might be produced by various causes.

Mrs. David—I have been acquainted for between three and four years; about three years ago, deceased came to Sandwich, with a bundle and said her husband had been abusing her, she told me at other times that he abused her; some time before her confinement, she called my attention to a lump on her side where her husband had kicked her; I think the inflammation was caused by the kicks; she told me that the Dr. in Oakland County, who attended her at her last confinement said the next case would prove fatal; she said before she died, that her husband abused her a great deal, but she forgave him; she did not complain of Dr. Pettit.

Dr Donnelly—I am a regular Practitioner; have practised for over twenty years; have made obstetrics a particular study; from the evidence I have heard, especially from the ladies; I think death arose from violence previously, think Dr. Pettit did very properly in requiring assistance; do not see any malpractice on his part; the presentation in this case is the worst that can occur; I generally act as he is said to have acted; as nature frequently acts itself; do not see any improper delay on Dr. Pettit's part; do not think the rupture described could occur from manipulation; If it took place at all at that time it could only occur during delivery.

At the conclusion of Dr. Donnelly's evidence, His Lordship said that, unless the Crown had strong evidence to rebut this testimony, it would not be his duty to allow the case to go before the Jury, as an open question; after a short discussion with Mr. Prince, (who showed through the whole trial, a highly creditable desire to procure only a fair investigation into the case) the Counsel for the defence closed his case, and his Lordship charged the Jury, without Counsel's address.

His Lordship in reviewing the case, said he was glad the case had been gone into, and that the time occupied had been spent, it being of great importance that cases of this nature should be thoroughly investigated. His Lordship then read over his notes of the evidence, commencing on them, as he did so, showing that no particle of evidence had been tendered to show that Dr. Pettit had been guilty of any improper malpractice whatever, and pointing out some cause or another, of no consequence to the case in question, that Dr. Dewson had some feeling against Dr. Pettit, so much so, that even in a case of such emergency as this, by his own evidence it appears he would not have gone to assist, had he known Dr. Pettit was there. His Lordship further pointed to the evidence of Dr. Donnelly, a gentleman of high respectability, who gave his opinion that the rupture in question, if caused at that time, could only be produced during delivery, and it was proved that Dr. Dewson, (not Dr. Pettit) performed the operation, if any blame attached at all, it would fall on Dr. Dewson. In saying this, however, he had not the least intention of imputing the slightest blame to Dr. Dewson in the matter, but merely to show the impropriety of accusing Dr. Pettit, who was a physician, openly practising in this locality; all the burden of the evidence went to show that the death of this poor woman, had been from the result of most brutal treatment on the part of her husband; if the latter individual was present during the trial, he could not envy his feelings if he had yet left in him one spark of manly principle.

On the conclusion of his Lordship's address, the Jury gave in a verdict of not guilty without leaving the Jury box.

The Queen vs Haley, was then immediately sent in a Bill of Indictment to the Grand Jury, against John Haley, the husband of the deceased, but the evidence appeared to that body sufficient, and it was returned "No Bill he."

The Queen vs. John Haley, Manslaughter. This Haley was the husband of the woman referred to in Dr. Pettit's case. No Bill.

The Queen vs. Jackson Greaves and Richard Hopkins. These prisoners were indicted for killing an ox, and stealing the hide, being the property of Philip Somers, in the Township of Malden. The ox was found dead in the woods, and one of the prisoners sold the hide at Kolfage's Tannery in Amherstburg. Mr. O'Connor acted as their Counsel. Greaves was acquitted, and Hopkins found guilty. He was sentenced to be imprisoned two years in the penitentiary, the Judge remarking at the time that he might have sentenced him to fourteen years imprisonment.

The Queen vs. Franklin Fields (white) Albert Patching, (white) Richard H. Townsend, (white) James Jackson, (mulatto) John Brodie, (mulatto) and James Johnston, (negro.) The indictment charged the parties with burglariously entering Dougall & Stoan's store in Windsor about the middle of the night of the twenty-ninth of November last, and stealing therefrom, 24 shawls, 12 pieces of cloth, 20 pocket knives, a lot of razors, 50 handkerchiefs, 50 neckerchiefs, and 100 pieces of dry goods. McCONor and Mr. Bernard acted as Counsel for the prisoner, and very ably defended their client.

The principal witness, was an old woman, (Mrs. Haley,) about fifty-seven years of age, who swore she heard the parties' make the plot to rob the store a night or two previous, at Stuart's saloon in Windsor, where Mrs. Haley boarded. She saw them all on the night of the robbery leaving Stuart's and go down to Dougall's, she followed to keep her brother-in-law out of their company, and while she was holding him fast at the top of the bank, the others went down to the hill, and entered the store at the rear window. She then saw them bring out the goods; some were taken to the river to three other men who were there in a boat, and the remainder were brought to Stuart's and she saw them divide the spoil in the gambling room. She said Fields offered her two shawls which she refused. She also gave evidence of several conversations between the parties, and fully described the robbery from beginning to end. This testimony, if true, would have sent them all to the penitentiary, but it turned out that Mrs. Haley was "fibbing," and a clear and distinct alibi was proved in each case. No motive is assigned for the woman's acting in this way, and it appears strange if there was no truth at all in her story. We incline to think that there was good reason for the robbery, but was mistaken in the persons who committed it. She was in the witness box for nearly three hours, and subjected to a severe cross-examination, but without success. Her evidence, however, differed materially from that given at the Police Court in Windsor, when the matter was first investigated. It may be mentioned that two individuals known as Charles Leroy and John Morrissey were committed to Detroit of having some of Dougall's goods further possession, knowing them to be stolen, and are now undergoing punishment. They may be the parties who really committed the burglary, but they could not be tried there for a burglary perpetrated in Canada. None of the stolen goods were found on this side of the river. All the parties were acquitted.

The Queen vs Jane Haly. Perjury. This person was the witness in the last case and she was indicted for falsely swearing that Patching was at Stuart's house, on a certain night, and that she saw him throw armfull of goods on the floor. It was clearly shewn that Patchin was in bed and asleep at the time mentioned, and the old lady has to suffer six months imprisonment in the County Gaol for her crime. She says it is for getting into a burglar's nest, and telling the truth, but the Judge and Jury seemed to think differently.

CHARGE OF MURDER.

The Queen vs. Aug. Grisha and Samuel

Smoot. The prisoners were two of the per sons arrested last fall for the murder of a woman found in the Detroit river, between Sandwich and Windsor, and who was known as Adelaide Sparks. It was then considered that the ends of justice would be better attained, if no publicity was given to the evidence adduced before P. J. Salter, Esq., the Magistrate who investigated the case, and we accordingly refrained from giving any of the particulars.

The deceased (a white woman) was the wife of George Sparks, a negro residing at Clarkston in the State of Michigan. Sparks was put in the Detroit Gaol for some offence, and the wife afterwards came across the river, and after she left him, about the 20th of October last, he never saw her again, until he heard of her interment in the church-yard at Sandwich. He came here and fully indentified the body.

It appeared from the evidence of five or six witnesses for the prosecution, that on the night of the supposed murder, the deceased in company with others crossed from Windsor to Detroit in a small boat at about eight o'clock in the evening; that the deceased about eleven or twelve o'clock was seen in Detroit in a small boat, with Henry Brown, John Cash, and Harriet Bradley: that the prisoner Smoot also crossed in a boat about the same time, and attempted to run into the other boat. Deceased expressed a desire to get into Smoot's boat, when he told her she was very well where she was. She insisted however, and got into the boat with Smoot. Both boats landed at the ferry dock near Sheely's saloon, and they all got out of the boats, excepting deceased. She was told to get out, but said she "would die and go to h—l, before she would get out.' The men were quarrelling, and continued to quarrel until they arrived at the top of the hill on the main street of Windsor. It seems that that they all came up, leaving deceased sitting in Smoot's boat.— About half an hour afterwards, Smoot returned with his brother, and as they neared the boat, Smoot expressed his astonishment that "Addie" was not there where he left her. After calling her several times, and hearing no answer, Smoot and his brother gave up the search. The deceased was therefore last seen alive in Smoot's boat. It was proved that the prisoner Griffin had threatened on two occasions that she would kill deceased, for taking away her husband, (John Honsbury) and she afterwards told Sparks when he was enquiring for his wife, that "she was dead and at the bottom of the river." It also appeared that Griffin on the same evening of the murder, came to the house where deceased was staying, and took her off with her. It was noticed that deceased then had on a clean apron which was found after the murder on the person of Griffin, soiled and blood stained; also that she was seen in deceased's company between eight o'clock and nine o'clock, but left with a man, as if she was going home. None of the witnesses above mentioned saw Griffin, on that night, after that hour. Thus far, the case was very slightly made out, but there was another witness, who only made known on Tuesday last, certain alleged facts connected with the murder. His name is John Honsbury, the reputed husband of Griffin, and seemed determined to hang her, if he could. He said that the deceased, Griffin, and Smoot came over from Detroit together, in a boat about twelve o'clock; that he was standing on the dock; that he heard an altercation between Griffin and deceased; that Griffin said she would kill her; that deceased told her she would have no chance that night; that Griffin then struck her one blow on the temple, with a glass pop-bottle; that deceased staggered to the rear of the boat; that Griffin went to her, and took off her apron and deceased went overboard; can't say if she fell accidentally, or if Griffin shoved her over; that as deceased rose to the surface Smoot jogged or pushed an oar at her, and that she sunk out of sight; that Smoot saw him (witness) standing on the dock, and asked him what he wanted; he said he wanted to go to Detroit; Smoot told him he ought to be served the same way; that he was frightened and ran away, seeing Griffin and Smoot came ashore and each take different directions; that Mrs. Sheburr further said he immediately went up to Offitt's store and told it all around there, and crossed over the river the same night, with one Watson; that he also told Cash and Brown about the murder soon after wards.

For the defence it was proved that Honsbury was totally unworthy of belief, and that for years past he had been in Jail most of his time. Cash, Brown and Watson were called, and proved that he never told them anything about it, and that they never saw him at all in October. Harriet Bradley was called, and proved that Griffin left their company at nine o'clock, and was not seen that night afterwards. John O'Connor Esq., appeared as counsel for Smoot, and Charles Baby, Esq, kindly complied with the request of the Court, by acting for Griffin. Both these gentlemen addressed the Jury at length. The Judge's charge was entirely in favor of the prisoners, his lordship showing where he thought the Crown had failed to bring it home without a reasonable doubt to the prisoners in the dock. Although they may be the most wretched beings on earth, they should have the same justice as the most respectable and esteemed. After an absence of five minutes, the jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty."

The Grand Jury were dismissed on Friday, and gave in the following

PRESENTMENT.

SANDWICH, 22nd March, 1861.

The Jurors of our Lady the Queen in the discharge of their duties to the Crown, beg respectfully to report, that they have inspected the different departments of the Gaol in which the prisoners are confined, and are pleased to find that those departments are kept by the present Gaoler, in a proper state of cleanliness and good order, and that the prisoners so confined have no complaint to make as to their treatment.

The said Jurors, however, regret to state that in their opinion, the present construction of the Gaol is not adapted to that proper classification of prisoners which would be so very desirable. They also regret to have seen so many of those inmates of the Gaol, so very destitute of clothing, and whose general appearance bespeak for them a most lamentable condition.

They the said Jurors would therefore recommend that prison clothes should be furnished, at the expense of the County, to be worn by prisoners during their confinement, and that a bathing tub be constructed in the Gaol for the use of the prisoners.

And the Jurors aforesaid beg most respectfully to express a hope that it may not hereafter be considered necessary to appoint Monday as the first day for holding the Courts in this County, as in that case, many persons who may be required to attend, would necessarily have to leave their homes and travel on the Sabbath day; otherwise they would as some have done at this time, be obliged to leave on the Saturday previous, which would be attended with considerable expense and inconvenience.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) JOHN G. BUCHANAN

Foreman.

In dismissing the Grand Jury, His Lordship, after thanking them for their punctual attendance, animadverted very strongly against the pitiful economy of the County Council, in not providing proper means for the cleanliness of prisoners. He directed the Clerk of the Court to send the Grand Jury presentment to the Secretary of the Government Commission at Quebec, instead of to the Clerk of the Crown, as formerly. As the Government Inspectors have the power to enforce any alterations they suggest, we may very shortly expect some improvement in this matter.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—What is life without enjoyment? Impure Blood. Health is the handmaid of happiness, the one is as dependent on the other, as is the preservation of existence on sound and healthy blood. Four fifths of the diseases which afflict mankind proceed from impurity and improverishment of the blood. To keep the vital fluid pure and vigorous is the true secret of health, and Holloway's Pills will accomplish this most effectually no matter how tainted or vitiated. An attention to this fact will not only save trouble and annoyance as well as a considerable item in mutual expenses in the shape of medical attendance, but will prevent all those disorders, pimples, blotches and cutaneous eruptions which proceed from impure blood.

ABANDONED.—The secret ballot system has been abandoned in Illinois. By a law just passed in that State, every voter is required to put his name on the back of his ballot.

Protection vs. Free Trade.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,—

I find by the public papers, that a strong agitation is on foot in the Eastern States, to procure the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty; and if the Canadian Government continues its suicidal policy of high custom duties, and differential tolls on the canals, there is little doubt the movement will eventually be successful. The Farmers of Essex must be well aware that a return to the old system would be ruinous to their interests, as it would reduce the market price of their wheat at least ten cents per bushel, and other grain in proportion. Now it is well known that the Opposition in Parliament, comprising a majority of the Upper Canadian Representatives have always opposed those high tariffs; but the Lower Canadian members have almost to a man supported them. The secret of this policy is, to constitute the St. Lawrence the only free outlet for the produce of Upper Canada, for the purpose of building up the cities of Montreal and Quebec at our expense. For this strenuous opposition to this state of affairs every species of abuse is heaped upon the heads of the Reformers by their opponents, who, by the way, pass under different names, sometimes it is "Conservatives," then "Moderates," and now are in a high state of excitement about what they call a good name for the next election—they propose to style themselves "Constitutionalists"—a name under which the Central American Republics have committed every species of enormity. Query! Would not the name of Maricana be more appropriate?

The Ministerialists would not care one pin if the Reciprocity Treaty were abolished to morrow. They would be secure of the Lower Canadian votes, and they can always count upon a few from Upper Canada to give them a majority in the Assembly. John A.—while on his recent dinner tour through Upper Canada, said, that protection was just right, for Lower Canada was a manufacturing country, and would supply the Upper Province, while Upper Canada being an Agricultural country, would feed the Lower Canadians. The Attorney General also distinctly stated that any man who went for the Union as it is, was his political friend; or, in other words, things will remain as they are. Farmers of Essex—such is the programme laid before us by the present government. What do you think of it? Doctor Swift remarked—"the result of high duties is, that instead of 2 and 2 making 4, it more frequently made 1;" and his theory seems to be verified in Canada, for the duties on tea in 1860, although higher than in 1859, have not produced so much to the revenue by $80,000. The query is, how much was smuggled, and did the consumer or the trader benefit thereby! The cost of collecting those high duties is of itself a heavy tax, being over $360,000 annually—a sum that ought to go a great way towards defraying the expenses of the Government; but then what a number of snug offices does the Customs Department furnish for the friends of the Ministry. I maintain the true policy of any country to be, unrestricted trade, which allows every man free to employ his industry or his capital as he thinks best for his own interest. In what way does protection benefit the native manufacturer! The process is often very simple: under its fostering care he keeps on in the old beaten track, secure as he thinks, secure in himself, from foreign competition, until he at length wakes up from his lethargy to find the foreigner underselling him in his own market. How is this! The foreigner has been kept awake by the spur of the keenest competition; he has adopted every modern improvement, he pays less for labor, because the necessaries of life are untaxed; thus he can manufacture at the cheapest possible rate. The finale is, the protected manufacturer is undersold and ruined. The tanner is protected by a high duty on leather, and he can buy his raw material, hides, bark, tallow, &c., in the cheapest market. Persons would naturally suppose under such circumstances, that tanning is a money making business, and that the foreigner could not compete in that trade. Now, how stands the case! In 1860, leather to the value of nearly $300,000 paid duty. This seems strange. There are no doubt a few energetic men doing a large business; but I fear we must class the larger number among the Rip Van Winkles of the 19th Century. Again, how are the mechanics, the workers in leather, protected! There is a duty of 25 per cent on the manufactured article. The harness maker, perhaps buys his leather in the States, paying 20 per cent duty; he pays also 20 per cent duty on his trimmings, or probably he goes to the tanner who will charge him the duty, and generally a little more for what is frequently an inferior article. He cannot work so cheaply as his competitor in the States, because every necessary article of consumption is heavily taxed—therefore protection is of no real benefit to him; he must charge his customers more than the market price, or close his shop. So it is with every other trade. Protection—alias high duties, is cramping their energies and driving our best mechanics from the country. I am afraid our capitalists and public men are too favorable to a course of legislation that will favor the Urban, to the injury of our Rural population, than which nothing could be more injurious to the interests of Canada. There are at the present time, two or three Cotton mills in the course of erection, and several more are projected. Do the proprietors intend to supply their goods as cheap as they can be bought in the cheapest market? If so, the undertaking is a judicious one, and will be beneficial to us; or do they rely on the continuance of the present duty of 20 per cent, and charge accordingly. I suppose they do, or they would scarcely invest as much capital, and pay a duty of 20 per cent on their imported machinery. Now it must be evident to every one, that the price of the protected article is always the highest that can be imposed; while under free competition it will be sold at the lowest rate it can be made for. Why the former should be taxed to support the manufacturer, it must admit, beyond my comprehension. Perhaps some of our protectionist friends will be kind enough to enlighten us on the subject.

I am, sir,
Yours truly,
A REFORMER.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

IMPORTANT TO ACTUAL SETTLERS

MR. ALEXANDER CAMERON, (of AMHERSTBURGH and TORONTO,) offers for sale all his Lands in the County of Essex, on the most reasonable terms ever offered by a private land owner.

He will sell to actual settlers on a credit of ten years, and accept one-tenth of the purchase money down.

If the applicant and himself cannot agree as to the Price of the land, he will refer it to the Reeve of the Township and a person whom he will select to decide between them.

Mr. Cameron proposes to give lists of his Lands to all the Canadian Emigration Agents, with a view to actual settlement to this County, and will also take immediate steps to place them in the market in Europe for intending settlers, and by these means he hopes to be able to sell all his lands within a period of two or three years.

Persons desirous of securing farms for their Sons would apply early, and get the first choice.

DYSPEPSIA, GENERAL DEBILITY, Fever and Ague, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Erysipelas, Great Impurity of Blood, Salt Rheum, Pimples, Piles, Liver Complaints, Kidneys, Diseases of the Eye, Cancer, Sore Mouth, Ulcerated Sore Throat, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, Infirmities of Youth and Old Age, &c.

NO MERCURY USED.

DR. AMOS & SON,

No. 85 Main Street,

(Corner of Main & Quay Sts., Buffalo, N.Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, may be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years' extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious evils to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted, insidious and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious vice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and inaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Intention.

An instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Young Men, take Particular Notice.

Dr. Amos & Son have the pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subject to a test by the most eminent Doctors in London, Paris, Philadelphia, and New York; it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, &c., &c., disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of those instruments, pledge themselves that in no instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful Instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions securely packed and sent by mail, is Seven Dollars.

BEWARE OF IMPOSITION.

Beware of empirics and itinerant self styled professors, who attempt cures, but never succeed! Be treated by Persons of long series of years been engaged in an extensive practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with remittance for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secure from observation.

Scientific & Useful.

Salt and Lime.

Since writing the remarks on salt in reference to the inquiry of a correspondent on another page, we observe from an American exchange that that article is sometimes profitably applied in the States to field crops, particularly old mowing or pasture lots, where the grass is, as it is termed, "running out." The quantity sown broad cast in its crude states, varies considerably, from three or four to as much as twenty bushels per acre. It is said to be effectual in killing worms and insects, when applied in large doses; that is at the rate of twelve or sixteen bushels to the acre. The applied it will kill weeds on garden walks, and on asparagus beds, and the asparagus itself will be benefitted. Some care however is necessary in applying it to growing crops, for if used in too large quantities it will injure or destroy them. We remember many years ago seeing a strong solution of salt applied to pasture land, in England, which apparently destroyed the vegetation through the summer, the surface appearing perfectly brown as in a severe drought, but the rains of autumn awakened up the grass, which soon put on its usual green livery and grew luxuriantly; and both cattle and sheep preferred that part of the field, which had been salted, to any other for a year or two afterwards. In Upper Canada, which is considerably removed from the direct action of oceanic influence, it is reasonable to infer, that the action of salt will be found more powerful than in situations lying contiguous to the sea.

We notice in a recent report of an English Agricultural Society, that one of the members had been in the habit of dressing land intended to be sown with wheat in the fall, with a manure made of a ton of lime to half a ton of salt, well mixed together some weeks before it was used. He had applied it after summer fallow for a long period with marked and invariable success. Whenever he was afraid of a crop of wheat going down, he always applied this dressing, which had always secured a good crop of clover; generally ploughed in the land, and then applied the manure to the surface. The lime and salt should be mixed some time before they are used, for the more completely they amalgamate the better.—The mixture stiffens the straw, and prevents it going down by heavy rains, while it increases the quantity and improves the quality of the grain.—Canadian Agriculturist.

PAINTING BUILDINGS.—This topic has appropriately occupied the attention of several "farmers Clubs" the present winter.—For the first coat or "priming," there appears to be nothing better than the old method of using white lead in oil. A thin mixture fills the pores of the wood better than a thick one. For a second coat, if three are used, a mixture of white lead and zinc is good. For the final coat, whether it be the second or third one, we prefer the zinc paint for white. Though costing more per pound, it goes farther, and is on the whole quite as cheap as lead, while it retains its clear white color much better than lead, which is tarnished by sulphureous gasses arising from the manure around barns and stables, and from the sink drain and other sources around the house. There is always enough of sulphuretted hydrogen in the air to gradually darken any surface paint containing lead.

PLEASANT TO TOBACCO CHEWERS.—Some itinerant has recently been in Virginia, inspecting the tobacco factories.—From Petersburg he writes the following description of the manner of preparing chewing tobacco:—

"Commence on the upper floor, which as dirty as a cow stable. In the corners are large heaps of tobacco. At one end is a large cauldron, into which is put liquorice, rum and tonqua bean. On one side of the room is a large room like a mortar bed, into which is put the weed, and sprinkled with the above decoction. Two or three darkies are stirring the tobacco up with their feet, so that all portions may become equally saturated. After this operation it is dried upon bales overhead, until it is fit for working in the room below. On the second story the leaf is divested of its stem by numerous black women and children. It is then, in a supple state, made into rolls an inch or two in diameter, and of any required length. On the ground floor, the rolls are squeezed into pings, and carefully packed for transportation to the tobacco loving people of the North. Some may think part of this description highly colored, but it is literally a true account of what I saw more than once; and if what I beer be true, the drugs and filth are hardly half performed. It might be supposed these people do not chew, but this is not so; almost every body does—but they chew the clear leaf. And it is worthy of remark that the hands engaged in these factories make no account of throwing their cuts into a tray for a second masticaton."

AN EXCELLENT DRINK FOR THE SICK.—Toast ripe Indian corn quite brown, or even a little black, and put into hot water to steep. Drink when cold. This makes one of the best drinks for the sick, and will often stop sickness at the stomach when all other remedies fail.

AGUE MEDICINE.—Rhubarb, columbo, and essence of peppermint, each one ounce, one pint of water, forty five grains quinine. Tablespoonful once an hour until it operates as physic; then, same amount three times a day. To keep, add one gill of whiskey.

FEVER AND AGUE MIXTURE.—Take of the best brandy one pint, camphor one ounce, dissolve; cloves and jalap each half an ounce, Peruvian bark two ounces, Virginia snake root one ounce, water one pint; boil the cloves and root with the water, to one half; strain, and mix the others in powder with the above. Dose, a tablespoonful three times a day, in the absence of the fever.

BURNS.—Cotton batting, moistened with linseed or sweet oil, and applied directly to the burn, is very efficacious; the linseed oil is preferable, as it allays the pain, while at the same time it extracts the fire. The cotton should not be removed when the skin is off, until the burn is healed, as the new skin will adhere to it while forming, and come off with it. If the burn is washed in lime water, previous to applying the cotton, it will not be so liable to leave a scar.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

AS used in Her Majesty's stables and also on His Royal Highness, the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are substantially shown by certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

Sold in casks containing 448 feeds price 14 dollars; and half casks containing 224 feeds, 7 dollars.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.
CRAWFORD & CO.,
AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,
WINDSOR, CANADA WEST,

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District composed of the COUNTIES OF ESSEX AND KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of Water Communication and Railway Accommodation. With Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm produce and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be constructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable land; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; thus placing the District in direct communication with the leading cities of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials from the most reliable sources can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate from its Southerly position, is mild and genial, and the winters are shorter than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle. The soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, vastly cheaper than in any other sections of the country, and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD OR UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hardwood, and consequently located in a healthy climate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLERS, MANUFACTURERS, and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more hazardous risks than farm buildings, and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that adheres to this rule. It is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property, located, is insured for the above period, by giving a Premium Note for two per cent., of which, twelve and a-half per cent., (or one-eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a payment. The Agent's Fee is $1.50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid till losses occur, rendering an assessment on the Note necessary, and then no more will be called for than is required. Owing to the non-hazardous risks to which the Company is confined, the losses may reasonably expect to be small. When the Insurance expires, the Note expires also.

To illustrate the above terms:—If you Insure such property for three years, say for $600, you pay (exclusive of the Agent's Fee) $1.25 in money, and your Note is held for $8.75 more which is the limit of your liability in the transaction. No other Company offers more favorable terms, scarcely any one, terms so favorable. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are Insured a little lower.

SPRING.

A flush of green is on the boughs,
A warm breath panteth in the air,
And in the earth a heart-pulse throbs
Throbs underneath her breast of snows:

Life is astir among the woods,
And by the Moor and by the stream,
The year, as from a torpid dream,
Wakes in the sunshine on the buds—

Wakes up in music as the song
Of woodbird, wild, and loosened rill
More frequent from the windy hill
Comes greening forest aisles along—

Wakes up in fragrance as the sheen
Of woodland pool the gleams receives
Through bright flowers, over braided leaves
Of broken sunlights, golden green.

She sees the outlaw'd winter stay
Awhile, to grither after him
Snow robes, frost-crystal'd diadem,
And then in soft showers pass away,

She could not bide rough winter well,
Yet can not choose but mourn him now;
So wears awhile on her young brow
His gift—a gleaming icicle.

Then turns her, loving to the still,
Upleaves her bosom's swell to his,
And in the joy of his first kiss,
Forgets for aye that stormer one.

Old Winter's pledge from her he leaves—
That icy-cold, though glittering spar—
And Zeros her with a green cymar,
And girdles round her brow with leaves;

The primrose and wood-violet
He tangles in her shining hair,
And teaches calm breezes fair
To sing her some sweet canzonet.

All promising long summer hours,
When she in his embrace shall lie,
Under the broad dome of bright sky,
On mossy couches starr'd with flowers,

Till she smiles back again to him
The heart's meaning from his face,
And, robed in light, glows with the grace
Of Eden-palaced cherubim.

O Earth! thy glowing loveliness
Around our very hearts has thrown
An undimmed fervance, all its own,
And sum'd as o'er with happiness.

THE LAPLANDERS.

BY ANNE T. WILBUR.

Lapland is one of the countries which excite the most lively interest in travellers. A tourist has not gained his spurs until he has seen the Lilliputians of the North.

The fact is, that this nation is the most interesting as a study, because it is becoming extinct, on transferred, from day to day. The genuine Laplanders, the nomadic Laplanders, the Laplanders drawn by reindeer or skating on skee, will soon be as rare and as much sought for as white blackbirds.

"We had," says M. Ampere, in the Sketches of the North, "a great desire to see the Laplanders. They advance with their reindeer along the mountains which separate Norway from Sweden, and when these alone can exist. We set out on the 20th of August to visit them in their solitudes. It was difficult to do this, because from time to time they leave the places where they had settled, and build their huts elsewhere.

"The country is apparently the ugliest in the universe. Irregular land entirely barren, with the exception of some dwarfish or deformed birches, mostly leaveless. Some broken by the wind, others half consumed, their white bark here and there blackened by the flame, making them resemble calcined skeletons. This country produced no vegetation but mosses; it is composed only of bogs and rocks. One cannot easily become accustomed to this difference in the solidity of the soil, which changes at every step. The foot is alternately repulsed by sharp points of rocks, or buries in the mire. The whole country is covered with swamps. Water is really the foundation of it. There is also land, but it seems the exception.

"The traveller hoped to meet with a bear, to complete his northern adventures; he had not this good fortune, but a man was shown him who proved to him with what intrepidity the Laplanders attack their enemies. This man had found himself in a situation from which none other ever returned. Having fallen senseless in consequence of a combat with one of these animals, he saw, on recovering himself, the bear occupied in burying him, as a dog buries a bone that he may find it afterwards. He did not lose courage, but rose, renewed the combat, and feeble as he was, succeeded in triumphing over the enemy whose provision he was to have been. After a night spent on a Swedish guard, where we slept on some skins spread on the ground, the Laplanders at last appeared, and the picture was worthy of the painter who was in search of it.—About ten o'clock, at the foot of a barren mountain of grotesque form, we suddenly perceived a herd of about three hundred reindeer, and a Lapland family occupied in milking them. These half domestic animals wander all day among the rocks which are their pasture grounds. At a certain hour they are assembled, by means of little dogs of a particular breed. The corp d' ciel which suddenly presented itself was truly striking. This herd of almost wild animals who crowded in disorder, some motionless, others fighting with their branches bloody, or rushing in companions towards one point or another, as if carried away by a sudden vertige; the cries of the children, the barking of dogs which were pursuing them, the men and the women occupied in milking, such was the monadic scene which suddenly appeared to us in this desert. The Laplanders continued their operations, without paying any great attention to us. We entered the herd to observe in what a singular manner the reindeer are treated. A man or a woman holds a cord of from five to six feet, knit at the end like the lower extremity of the string of a kite, and throws it at the female reindeer who is to be caught, so as to catch its horn in a sort of running noose, then, without letting go, dexterously passes this cord around the nose of the animal. Then a child approaches, seizes the cord and holds it tight, while the reindeer, thus subjected, allows herself to be milked without much trouble. Each female gives but little milk. So this is easily relieved, and, hardly free, ordinary goes off with a wild leap.

"The repose of the Laplanders, if repose it is, is not less strange than their nomadic life. Their family huts are like our colliers' cabins; but of incredible filthiness; one must bend double to enter. Some branches, half covered with coarse serge, this is all the architecture. A stone for the hearth, an iron pot upon it, a hole for the escape of smoke, some porrage here and there, some bear, wolf, and reindeer skins, these are all the furniture. 'Our hosts,' says M. Ampere, 'generously abandoned to us the shelter of their roof, such as it was, and remained without, exposed to the rain. This small apartment could hardly contain five of us and two guides. I had never been able to understand how it could lodge the Lapland family, composed of ten persons, including the children. It was impossible to think of sitting down, the roof forming with the ground an angle too sharp to permit of it. Neither could we lie down before the fire, that would give us too much room; one must gather up his body, resting on his side, like a worm during the winter; now, in this constrained position and occupying the least possible space, we filled the hut very exactly.' They thus reduce the extent of their poor dwellings to economize the staff which serves as a roof. The repas of the travellers was in keeping with the hospitality of the hosts. 'The preparations were not very encouraging to the appetite; fortunately ours did not need to be excited. The mother of the family cut a quarter of reindeer in pieces, which she afterwards took her fingers to place them one by one in the kettle; from time to time she threw to the little dogs, which were running about the hut, a piece of raw flesh, which the hungry, almost naked children, disputed with them like little savages. The interior of this hut would have made a picture; we, crouched around the fire, and drinking reindeer milk from great wooden porringers, the good Laplander, stooping over her kettle, and preparing, as I have just said, our repast; the dogs and the children running in a regular tapestry which served as a floor to cross into the fire, and to complete the picture, the impassible face of one of our Norwegians on his knees outside, his head alone passed within, and in this attitude imperturbably smoking his pipe.

'Our hostess having finished cutting up the pieces of meat destined for our use, put it into the iron pot, which she covered with a wooden plate, and left it to cook in the fat of the reindeer; then after a certain time, poured it into a large porringer also of wood, from which we ate this extraordinary ragout with great appetite. There were neither knives nor forks; the Swedish peasants made up this deficiency as well as they could with their own.

'The milk of the reindeer furnishes the Laplander with cheese, butter and cream; its flesh nourishes him; its skin clothes him; its sinews serve him for thread and cords; its bones give him spoons, ladels, tools of every species; finally, its horns were, before the conversion of the Laplanders to Christianity, offered to idols. There are wealthy families who have herds of from ten to twelve hundred reindeer. The average range from one to five hundred heads.

'The Laplanders of pure race are neither stupid nor ferocious, as they have often been painted. They are not monstrously little. Their distinctive features are a sharp chin and oblique eyes.

'The costume of the Laplander is of patriarchal simplicity, and needs no description. He envelopes himself in skins and furs from head to foot. He constantly carries with him his horn spoon and his little knife.

'During the fine season, if one can call the Laplands' summer thus, the families live isolated in their cabins; this swamps interrupt their communications; these are renewed in the winter on the ice, which makes of the whole country a plain of snow. This is the period of labors, of journeyings, of peddling; they assemble in tribes, they fly on sledges with the rapidity of arrows; these sledges are little boats drawn by reindeer; the keel furrows the snow, and the conductor maintains his equilibrium by means of a stick, which he manages with marvellous dexterity.

'Reindeer last have known to travel fifty leagues in a single course, with sledges which weigh two hundred and fifty pounds. There is preserved, at the palace of Drottningholm, the picture of a reindeer which, in a pressing emergency drew a Swedish courier during forty-eight hours over a space of two hundred and sixty six leagues, and fell dead on its arrival.

'The skies (skates) of the Laplanders are justly celebrated. They are as large as the snow shoes. These are two narrow planks, from six to seven feet in length; they glide along as if borne by the wind. War battalions have been seen to manage this strange equipage.

On these, the Laplander glides over the snow as rapidly as over the ice; he chases the reindeer and catches him; he climbs the highest mountains in a direct direction, and descends them resting on his stick, with his body leaning backward, leaping over rocks and gulfs, and travelling in this manner a hundred leagues a day, if we may believe the accounts of travellers.

The Laplanders of Sweden have been Christians for two hundred years; those of Norway but a century. They formerly worshipped Radius, the god of human life; Ruona, the god of the fields; Nordugalis, the genius of destruction, etc. They sacrificed animals to the deities, on the summits of the most grotesque rocks, called the Holy Mountains. Each family had besides, its own deity, which is consulted as an oracle. This was a large drum of birch bark, covered with the figures of tutelary or dangerous gents. Before undertaking a journey or an affair of importance, they threw a copper circlet over the drum, then rolled it, and struck upon it, predicting success or failure, according to the sign on which the circlet fixed itself.

The religious condition of the Laplander is more than neglected, their pastors are at forty leagues from each other; they pass as little time as possible in this retired region, and do not take the trouble to learn the national language, so that they can preach to the natives only by the aid of an interpreter, who translates their sermons sentence by sentence. Judge by him of the eloquence of these discourses, and especially of their results. The government has made efforts almost always vain, to turn the Laplander from their nomadic life. The farmers gradually end by deserting their farms to chase the reindeer over the wild tracts of the north. Where there is lichen, or nothing else, only reindeer can live, and the Laplanders live on the reindeer. The hospitality of this poor country is proverbial. The traveller has all the trouble in the world to induce those who have shared with him their food and wigwam, to accept any recompense; and when he goes away, they salute him with noisy shouts.

The Laplander, like all the curiosities of this world, is passing away. Only twelve thousand nomadic Laplanders remain in Russia, Norway and Sweden. Of these, those who lead a regular life, perish, regretting their vagabond existence.

Juggling Extraordinary.

A Brass Coin Changed into a Living Serpent.—The fort at Calcutta, commonly known as Fort William, is one of the most splendid and convenient military establishments to be found in any part of the globe. It is often the scene of animated festivity, from the presence of native jugglers, renowned for their surpassing skill and dexterity. The performances of those strange people have been so often described that I shall only mention a few, for otherwise I might tire the reader. The particular trick alluded to is the apparent conversion of a brass coin into a snake. The juggler gave me the coin to hold, and then seated himself, about five yards from me, on the sward which is there kept, attempted to move during the whole performance. I showed the coin to several persons who were close beside me, on a form in front of the juggler. At a sign from him, I not only grasped the coin I held, firmly in my right hand, but crossing that hand with equal tightness with my left, I inclosed them both as firmly as I could between my knees.

Of course I was positively certain that the small coin was within my doubled fists. The juggler then began a short incantation, accompanied by a monotonous and unmusical ding of recitative, and repeated the words, 'Ram Sammu,' during some minutes. He then suddenly stopped, and still keeping his seat, made a quick motion with his hand, as if throwing something at me, giving, at the same time, a pull with his mouth. At that instant I felt my hands suddenly distended, and become partly open while I experienced a sensation as if a cold ball of dough, or something equally soft, nasty and disagreeable, was now between my palms. I started to my feet, in astonishment, and opening my hands found there no coin; but to my horror and alarm (for of all created things I detest and loathe the genus), I saw a young snake, all alive—oh! and of all snakes in the world, a cobra di capello, folded, or rather coiled, roundly up. I threw it instantly to my feet, trembling with rage and fear, as if already bit by the deadly reptile, which began immediately to crawl along the ground, to the alarm and amusement of every one present.

The juggler then got up for the first time since he had sat down, and catching hold of the snake, displayed its length, which was nearly two feet;—two feet all but an inch and a half. He then took it cautiously by the tail, and opening his own mouth to its widest extent, let the head of the snake drop into it, deliberately commenced to swallow the animal; till the end of the tail was only visible; then making a sudden gulp, the whole of the snake was apparently swallowed. After this he came up to the spectators, and opened his mouth wide, permitted us to look into his throat, but no snake or snake's tail was visible—it was seemingly down his throat altogether. During the remainder of the performance we never saw this snake again, nor did the man profess his ability to make it reappear. But he performed another snake trick which surprised us very much. He took from a bag another cobra di capello and walked into the centre of the room, inclosing it in his hands in a folded state. He waved or shook them for a time in this condition, and then opened his fists, when, hey! presto—the snake was gone, and in its place appeared several small ones, which he suffered to fall from his hands, when they glided with their peculiar undulating movement, almost like the waves of the sea, across the floor.—A British Officer in India.

Miscellany.

The streets of Rome are more than ever unsafe at night, the robberies from the person are extremely frequent. The boldness of the needy ruffians who swarm in this sacred city is increased by the impunity they enjoy under the most paternal of Governments. The Pope has 3,000 gendarmes or more in his pay, but they have something else to do than to look after malefactors and protect the citizens. In the most public streets, and at hours at which thousands of persons are still abroad in Rome, you are stopped by knife-bearing gentlemen, who place the points of these weapons disagreeably close to your skin, and demand the contents of your pockets.

RECRISTENING A GOVERNOR.—Considering the line Governor Pickens has taken with regard to the Federal property in South Carolina, we should suggest the propriety of an addition to his name. Let him henceforth be known as Governor Pickens and Steal-ins.—London Punch.

An exchange says we are creditably informed that John Crawford, Esq., of the law firm of Ross, Crawford & Combie, is a candidate to contest the Eastern section of the City of Toronto against the Hon. Geo. Brown, at the General Election.

The candidates for the Western section are Messrs. Bowes and Robinson.

The site which Messrs. Gzowski and Macpherson selected for the cotton factory, in Toronto, was the St. Andrew's market place. The City Council met on Wednesday afternoon and granted the site, so that active proceedings may be expected in a short time.

The Quebec Chronicle says that an agreement has been made with the owners of the steamer Arabian, to carry passengers, about the beginning of June, from Quebec to the principal fishing stations on the North coast, and to touch at the same place again about the end of July, as a return trip.

The late Mr. Matthews used to tell a story of a gentleman who was as huge, though not so witty, as Falstaff. It was his custom when he travelled to book two places, and thus secure half the inside to himself. He once sent his servant to book him for Perth. The man returned with the following news:—"Sir, I have booked you; there were not two left, so I booked you one in and one out."

A Methodist preacher holding forth one very sultry day in a small hall, he was much annoyed by those who kept dropping in after service had commenced, invariably closing the door after them. He bore the infliction with Job like patience, but at length being fairly exhausted by the extreme oppressiveness of the heat, he vociferated to an offending friend, do, for goodness sake, let that door be open. I believe if I were preaching in a bottle you would put the cork in!"

A Frenchman being about to remove his shop, his landlord inquired the reason, stating, at the same time, that it was considered a very good stand for business. The Frenchman replied, with a shrug of the shoulder, "Oh yes, he's very good stand for de business; by gar, me stand all day, for nobody come to make me more."

The Niagara Gazette tells a story of two young ladies who were promenading along the street recently, when one of them slipped and came down on the icy pavement, like a thousand of bricks. Jumping quickly up, she exclaimed, sotto voce, "before another winter, I'll have a husband to hang on to; see if I don't."

Every word you speak, Dr. Holmes says, is the medal of a dead thought or feeling struck in the die of some human experience worn smooth by innumerable contacts, always transferred warm from one to another.

An active man in the prime of life can raise 100 lbs. one foot per second, working 10 hours per day; a horse can raise 550 lbs. in the same space of time. These are units of horse and man-power.

One gallon of water converted into steam will raise 46 gallons of water at 50 degrees up to 212 degrees, which is the sensible heat of the steam; there are 944 degrees of latent heat in the steam.

It having been officially announced that there is no charge made for visits to the Morgue or Paris dead house, it was immediately noticed that much larger numbers of persons than usual attend there to make recognition of the bodies of the deceased. Their anxiety being without expense, the crowd is unusually great.

"Pray, policeman," said a saucy jade from the Emerald Isle, "Why do you wear that white thing round one of your wrists?"

"To show that I am on duty," was the reply.

"Och, by the powers, I thought it was because you didn't know your right hand from your left," said the shrewd Miss.

SUBSOILING.—The subsoil plow is rapidly becoming one of the most important implements upon the farm. It is used to run in the bottom of the furrow before the potato is dropped, to loosen the earth under the seed, to admit the air and permit the surplus water to sink; and after the potatoes are up, a one horse subsoil plow is run between the rows; and when properly done, it is equal to trenching with a spade. It is also run between the rows of corn when the corn is about four inches high. This will lift the soil slightly, and also the young corn plants, but will not separate the earth from the roots. This will be a more thorough disturbance of the soil than a dozen hoeings, and will permit the corn roots to descend in search of food. In raising carrots, beets and turnips in heavy ground it is almost indispensable. The plow now most approved is the lifting subsoil. The sole of this plow is something like a spear placed flat on the ground, point forward, with its lower side slightly concave. It is a gradually inclined plane from the point backwards. To it is fastened to the beam by two standards with sharp cutting edges. It lifts the soil but one inch, and requires the least power to move it through the earth, at the same time pulverizing the soil as much as spading to the same depth. It may, perhaps, more properly be called the "mole plow," as it works like the mole, under the surface of the earth. No good farmer can dispense with it. They should have the sizes for one or two horses.—E. W. STEPHENS'S Address at the Erie County Fair.

THE COURSE OF STORMS.—In Europe, such have been the interchanges by telegraph of the accounts of the atmospheric alterations, that a severe storm along the coast of England was predicted three days before its arrival in some of the ports, and vessels were warned not to sail out of their ports, in some instances, three days before one of the most severe and fatal storms to others that did sail. At this very moment the English Admiral, Fitzroy, is engaged in arranging and perfecting a set of signals by which, from telegraphic communications received, he may communicate to ships sailing past the coast lighthouses important information of coming storms. So well are the usual courses of these storms now known and mapped, that a very little information from once or two points, regularly received, will make it almost impossible for a severe gale to reach any part of the English coast without first of all being heralded by the telegraph, its violence and rate of progress ascertained, vessels all warned from the lighthouses, and the time of the termination of the whole predicted, with the successive courses and changes of the wind. But to accomplish and perfect this, there needs daily reports of winds, rains, and storms from a thousand different stations, all along the coasts of Europe, to be transmitted and compared; and telegraph wires are being momentarily used in this work.

CHEAP ROOFING FOR HOUSES.—Take coal tar, 800 pounds; hydraulic lime, 150 pounds; ochre, 75 pounds, and whiting, 40 pounds. Mix these substances together thoroughly, and they will make a sufficient quantity of cement to cover 1,000 square feet of roofing. It should be laid down upon strong cotton sheeting nailed to the roof boards, and on the top of all a coat of sand or gravel to be laid and pressed firmly down. The cost of such roofing is about $2,30 for ten square feet. It answers very well for sheds and other out houses.

TO WHITEN LINEN.—Stains occasioned by fruit, iron rust, and other similar causes, may be removed by applying to the parts injured a weak solution of the chloride of lime—the cloth having been previously well washed—or of soda, oxalic acid, or salts of lemon, in warm water. The parts subjected to this operation should be subsequently well rinsed in soft, clear, warm water without soap, and be immediately dried in the sun.

STARCHING.—Take two ounces of fine white gum arabic, put it in a pitcher, and pour on it one pint of boiling water, cover it, and let it stand all night; in the morning pour it into a bottle and cork it tight. A tablespoonful of it put in a pint of ordinary starch will improve it very much.

LIQUID GLUE.—The following receipt, the discovery of a French chemist, is selling about the country as a secret, for various prices, from one to five dollars. It is a handy and valuable composition, as it does not gelatinize nor undergo putrefaction and, for books and paper become offensive, and is always ready for use:

In a wide-mouthed bottle dissolve eight ounces of best glue in half a pint of water, by setting it in a vessel of water and heating it till dissolved. Then add slowly, constantly stirring, two and a half ounces of strong aqua fortis (nitric acid.) Keep it well corked, and it will be ready for use.

FANCY CATTLE.—Some years ago a tenant of Mr. Coke (afterwards Earl of Leicester) had in compliance with the wish of his landlord, who was partial to the Devons, set a dairy of cows of that breed of the purest type. Mr. Coke was so proud of them that he frequently took his friends staying at Holkham to view them. On one occasion he went with a nobleman for the purpose. The latter, after seeing and admiring the stock, addressed the owner. "Your cows," said he, "are very beautiful; but why do you keep those ugly polled Suffolk brutes among them?—they quite spoil the dairy." "That's true, my lord," bluntly replied the farmer; "these fine cattle are all very well for show; but you see, after all, we must have a little milk for the family!"

Arrival of the Steamship Africa.

NEW YORK, March 31.

The steamship Africa, from Liverpool the 16th and Queenstown the 17th, arrived this morning, bringing £11,000 in specie.

The Saxonia arrived out on the 14th.

The London Times asks where the Confederate States are to negotiate the proposed loan, seeing that one-fifth of their population is pledged to repudiation, and says that President Davis is the man who laughed at the dupes in the Mississippi bonds.

The reduction in discount rates by the Bank of France produced a good effect on the money markets of Paris and London. Rentes advanced to 68f. 30c.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies unanimously approve the assumption of the title of the Kingdom of Italy.

WARSAW was apparently tranquil, but late advices say the excitement is unabated.—The Polish deputation said they accepted the Emperor's rescript, but were far from being satisfied.

LATEST VIA QUEENSTOWN.—The Duchess of Kent died on Saturday, the 16th.

The Paris Conference agreed to extend the occupation of Syria till the 5th of June.

The French Corps Legislatif adopted the first ten paragraphs of the address.

LIVERPOOL, 16th.—Cotton, from various causes was dull in the early part of the week and prices irregular, and there was a slight decline on American until the arrival of the Kangaroo, which imparted a firmer tone, and prices have recovered the decline, and close with firmness. Hewitt & Co. draw attention to the continued unfavorable aspect of the consumption, but say this is accounted for by the fact that spinners have for some time purchased very sparingly, and are believed to have run their stocks down to a low point. Trade in Manchester has improved.

BREADSTUFFS.—Circulars report corn generally firm. Flour at firmer rates, 28s a 31s. In wheat there is a moderate business doing at full prices; red 11s a 13s; white 12s 6d a 14s 6d.

PROVISIONS.—Beef in moderate demand at low rates. Pork quiet; no American offering. Bacon quiet; with an improving tendency and speculative inquiry at a slight reduction from current rates. Lard declined, but at a reduction more business has been done; rates range at 51s to 54s.

Sugars quiet, and prices favor buyers. Coffee, market bare and no sales.

LONDON MARKETS.—Baring Bros. & Co. report English wheat is dearer for good; dumaid at full rates; while American 63 a 67; red 59s a 60s. Sugar quiet, and prices barely maintained. Spirits of turpentine 37s. Coffee steady.

LIVERPOOL, 17th.—Consols closed at 92 a 92¼ for account.

The Corps Legislatif continued to debate the address. Independent members strongly advocate the liberal amendments which are published, but the first two paragraphs have been carried without amendment.

Details of the surrender of the citadel at Messina show that it was unconditional, after four days firing. Over five thousand men were taken prisoners, and three hundred cannon.

Civitella de Tronto is not able to resist much longer.

Religious liberty of the most unrestricted character has been proclaimed at Naples.

All former constitutions and treaties with Rome are abrogated, and ecclesiastical power is limited to the punishment of ecclesiastical offences merely.

The English steamers left Constantinople for Italy, and took provisional possession of the arms landed from the Sardinian vessels of war taken by Turkey last autumn.

PARIS, Saturday.—In the Corps Legislatif it was intimated that it might become necessary to fix a later day than the 1st of October for the execution of the treaty of commerce with England, in which case the Chamber of Deputies would be called upon to decide on the matter.

Baring Bros. say the only transactions in railroad stocks are as follows:—Erie 1st mort. gage 91 a 93; 2nd do. 90 a 92; 3rd 75 a 80; Illinois Central 85 a 87; Michigan Central 89 a 90; Michigan Southern 79 a 80; do 86 87 a 89.

HAVRE & Co. report the cotton market buoyant and fully ½ higher. They quote middling up lands 62.

Breadstuffs unchanged and firm.

Provisions quiet and steady.

HAVRE, 16th.—Cotton dull; New Orleans to arrive 101f.; do bas 94ff. Sales of the week 7,000.

Postmaster General's Report for 1861.

The Report of the Post Office Department for the year ending 30th September, 1860, has been laid before Parliament, from which it appears that the number of Post Offices in Canada was 1,698—60 new Offices having been established and 9 closed during the year; 334 miles of new Post Route having been organized, and all including all routes previously established to the extent of 108,000 miles per annum.

A Comparative Table for 1852 and 1860, shows the increase of Letters, the Expenditure, and amount of Postage Revenue, &c.:

	In year 1860.	In year 1852.
No. of Offices	1,698	840
Miles of Route	14,262	8,618
Miles of Annual Mail Travel	5,712,000	2,630,000
No. of Letters by Post	9,000,000	3,760,000
Revenue after deducting Dead Letters	$638,451 99	$230,020 00.
Total Revenue of Department in 1860	$658,451 99
Total Expenditure	645,249 31

The mean of the passages made by the Canadian Mail Steamers during this year, between Quebec and Liverpool, was 11 days and 10 hours, the contract time being 12 days; between Portland and Liverpool, 11 days 15 hours, the contract allowing 14 days. The number of passengers carried by these steamers from Liverpool during the year was 6,705; to Liverpool, 3,962.—Freight to Quebec, 3,222 tons; to Montreal, 25,734 tons. The total bulk of Canadian exports, chiefly in barrels, is estimated as equal to 320,340 barrels of Flour.

The amount received from the United States Post Office, for the sea conveyance of Mails during the year 1860, was $104,641 68.

The number of letters passing during the year 1860, between the United States and Europe by the Canadian Packets, were as follows:

To and from the United Kingdom	500,000
do do France and Belgium.	70,000
do do Prussia.	60,000
	620,000

Correspondence with the United States has more than doubled; 480,000 registered letters were carried during the past year; 5 cent stamps to the number of 2,570,000 were used; and the number of Money Orders issued and payable within the Province was 23,615 amounting in value to $1,096, 462 69.—Witness.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, March 26, 1861.

THE WANT OF CONFIDENCE MOTION.

Hon. Mr. MORRIS said he rose with great regret to move the postponement of his motion. He had been induced to do so owing to the importance of the subject and the absence of several hon. members who wished to take part in the debate. With the leave of the House he would fix Monday, the 8th of April, for his motion.

THE PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE.

Hon. Mr. MOORE gave notice that on Thursday he would move the following resolutions:

Resolved—That this House in the exercise of its duties will best consult its dignity and maintain its just privileges by abstaining from the attempt to exercise functions which do not properly belong to it thereby avoiding jealousies and collisions with the popular branch.

That the duties, attributes and functions of the Legislative Council, as a co-ordinate branch of the Legislature are precisely the same as obtained before the elective principle now adopted, the Legislative Council having analogy to the House of Lords was especially constituted in order to act as a Conservative check on the working of our Constitution, and to maintain the balance of power between the Government and the people so as to prevent the consequences of hasty and improvident Legislation.

That the Government of Canada have no power by law to resolve the Legislative Council, while the power is directly conferred upon it by the Constitution to dissolve the Assembly.

That the principle of accountability of the Executive Council to the people through their representatives can only be constitutionally enforced by a vote of the Legislative Assembly expressing or withholding their confidence, such a declaration of opinion on the part of that House, being subject to direct ratification by the people upon a dissolution of Parliament."

MARRIED WOMEN'S LIFE INSURANCE.

Hon. Mr. PATTON moved the second reading of this bill. The object of it, he explained, was to provide that an insurance effected for the benefit of the wife and family of a man might not fall of intention through the insolvent or reduced circumstances of the husband at the time of his death. He could hardly be accused of particular rashness in introducing the bill, as one of a similar descri tion, indeed almost verbatim, was in existence in the States of New York and Massachusetts. He thought the principle was a sound one. As the law stood now, it was competent for a creditor to claim the policy on the decease of the husband, to the detriment of the widow and orphans.

Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET—Do you propose any security for the husband's debt? (A laugh.)

Hon. Mr. PATTON—No, I have left it to the chapter of accidents.

Hon. Mr. MOORE said the principle involved in the bill was a very important one and ought to be well considered before it was adopted. It was not an impossible thing to suppose that cases might arise, in which foul means might be resorted to by the wife in order to get rid of her husband. It would be thought that there, as in the United States, there was an undue tendency to shelter legislation under the sympathies of the debtor. They should really not forget that the creditor has the rights and privileges, and was entitled to a certain amount of consideration as well as the debtor. Yet this bill would preclude the creditor from claiming those rights which were justly entitled, although his position and circumstances might entitle him to more consideration than those to whom it was specially designed by this bill to benefit.

The bill was then read a second time.

Hon. Mr. PATTON proposed the usual motion to refer it to a Select Committee of three members.

Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET said it was proposed by the bill to introduce a new feature in our legislation, it would perhaps be well therefor it to a large committee.

The motion was amended to enlarge the committee, and then put and carried.

ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved the second reading of his bill to provide for the better assignment of dower. This bill was identical with the one which passed through this House last session, and which, though some cause which he was unable to explain had not been brought up in the Lower House, though it was fortunate to have the approbation of the Attorney General West, the only interference which it proposed with the existing right of dower, was that the widow would, after the passing of the bill, be entitled to share in the value of improvements effected on property after the property had been parted with by the husband, or after the husband's death. This was only a reasonable and just provision.—The rest of the clauses related to the mode in which dower was to be assigned, which was the special object of the bill. It was proposed to facilitate the claim for dower, in a manner which showed alike a fair consideration for the widow and the owner of the property.

The bill was read a second time.

FRANCE, ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.—A statement has been communicated from Paris to the New York Times, that France and England are fitting out a powerful steam fleet for the United States. France is to furnish three steam frigates; and it is said the English contingent may possibly be larger. The United fleet is to sail under sealed orders. The telegraph, by which this startling news comes, does not further any explanation of the cause of the movement. Supposing the statement to be correct, there does not seem to be any great difficulty in understanding what it all means. The two sections of what recently formed the United States have assumed antagonistic positions towards one another; and nobody can say when war may break out between them. England and France, especially the former, have a large trade to protect in the American waters; and in the event of war the steam fleet would be necessary for that purpose. This seems to be the most intelligent explanation of the united movement of England and France. It can hardly be that an allied fleet is to be sent South, for the purpose of arresting any filibustering movement that the Southern Confederation might make; for before the new government has settled with the old, it will have something else to do than to seek to extend a dominion which is yet of doubtful authority, even in the States where it professes to hold away.—Leader.

The Maple Leaf.

SANDWICH, APRIL 3, 1861.

Yesterday, Parliament resumed its sitting, after an adjournment on account of the Easter holidays, of ten days' duration. It would be difficult to arrive at any conclusion as to the reason of the recess having been such a very prolonged one, other than that it was meant to afford an opportunity to the members of the Administration to prepare what few and paltry measures of legislation they may deem or pretend to be sufficient for the present necessities of the country. What these measures are really to be must now be made apparent without much further delay. This much we can easily anticipate of them, that at furthest they will be fewer than are really needed; and that at best they will prove to be very imperfect, because the entire conduct of Ministers, during the short time that Parliament has already been in session, gives us no hope of their general policy proving any more faithful or less defective than it has hitherto been.

Late as the session was of commencing, the occupants of the Treasury benches were unprepared, with even the few measures that they intend, or require, to submit to the legislature. To the fact is, that they are at the present time surrounded by difficulties of very formidable dimensions, threatened not only by their opponents, but also by many of their quondam friends; nay, the Cabinet itself is known to be agitated by strong internal dissensions. Some of its members are said to be on anything but friendly terms with one another; indeed, so much have they differed, that if a seeming by reliable report is to be credited, they are meditating a separation, which, however among such tenacious office holders, is not at all likely to come about. Of course, those representatives from the Upper Province who have hitherto been ranged among the number of their very servile followers, but are now evincing less friendliness and, consequently less claim for them than they used to do, are playing a game of their own. They wish, rather than have never, to sever or to make a "ego stultus sum." Now Mr. D. Moyna has evidently not familiar with the writings of Horace, who does not allude to any particular mountain, but who wished to mark his contempt for a certain class of poets, by exclaiming sarcastically,

"Nec sic inipties, ut scriptor cyclicus olim:
"Fortunam Priami cantabo nobile bellum."
Quid dignum tanto feret hic promissor hiatu?
Parturiunt montes nascetur ridiculus mus.

Some one must therefore have suggested to Mr. D. Moynahan the hint from Horace; and if he received the hint, why not several? And if he received several hints, our case is proved.

Now, we consider, that in our issue of the 20th ult. we brought forward abundant internal evidence from the letter signed An Elector and D. Moynahan, that they were both the production. We had intended to submit the first letter signed D. Moynahan to a similar process of analysis; but time and space are both more important to us than the pursuit of that intention. Suffice it to observe, that Mr. Rankin's reply to it is therein treated precisely as a special leader is wont to treat a plea, although Mr. Moynahan is no lawyer. That which Mr. Rankin denies directly, and that which he denies by explanation, are both noted, and the difference between them pointed out. Our attention is directed to a late issue, which he is of legal to have raised. We are told what "an argumentative fact" is; and how it may be dodged; either by denying the premises, or by denying the conclusion, or by denying both one after another, and then running away with our thumbs or ears or leaving the special pleader biting his fingers with vexation. Of the merits of the first manœuvre we are unable to speak with confidence. The second Mr. Rankin seems to have accomplished à merveille, much to the chagrin of the letter writing firm; while the third is only to be resorted to when one is "hard pushed," probably on account of the danger attending the operation. In truth, we should be ungrateful did we not acknowledge that we have received a great deal of legal information from that letter, without being charged six and eightpence for it. But we must declare Mr. D. Moynahan's entire innocence of all these fascinating subtleties.

Nor is evidence dehors the letters, want ing if required. It is a notorious fact, that is a brother in law of Mr. O'Connor, assisted by a friend of the family, hawked throughout a part of the Northern Townships, bundles of the Windsor Herald, containing the first letter signed D. Moynahan. It is an equally notorious fact that Mr. O'Connor's own brother, on Sunday the 10th ult., or on St. Patrick's day, at Maidstone Cross, in the Township of Sandwich East, in the County of Essex, read one or more of the letters to an audience, upon whose sympathies he desired to operate, and whose plastic disposition is well known to, and has been well and profitably worked upon, by Messrs O'Connor, Moynahan & Co.

—"young and tender virgins, ruled with ease,
We mould like wax, and form them as we please."

We agree with Mr. Moynahan that the question, who wrote the letters, is not one of much importance to the public; but it is a question of the most serious importance whether the youth of this country are to be liable to have their education intrusted to ignorant pedagogues, whose intellectual acquirements are in the inverse ratio to their impudence and pretence! We cast no slur on Mr. D. Moynahan's former occupation. It is only his own morbid vanity that can extract a slur from a statistical fact. We entertain the highest respect for numbers of those estimable and admirable young men, whose energies are devoted to elevate the mental condition of our youth. But in such men we do not discover ignorance substituted for learning; vanity for modesty; and vulgarity for independence. If we styled Mr. D. Moynahan, Dr. O'Toole, it is not because he has been a schoolmaster, but because he has been, and still is, an O'Toole as well. The grammar of his Reports would disgrace a boy, eight years of age, and we do not believe that the four letters, recently published, with which his name has been connected, and for the orthoepy of which he is responsible, are free from at least one, which does not contain one or more mistakes in spelling. For example, in the first letter, signed D. Moynahan, there are three mistakes in spelling within a compass of seven lines. Italicize is spelled italicate; combating, combatting; and fear, feare. Will Todd and Chitty help him out of this difficulty? Even if they did, are they authorities as lexicographers! On points of practice, on pleading, and on contracts, we may accept Todd and the Chittys. They are important too as evidence that even on this point of spelling he consulted the Windsor office—But they are not Johnsons or Worcesters.

In conclusion, we have to request Mr. D. Moynahan, when next he affects to criticize our writings, not to mutilate what we have written, and to put words in the mouth of his own countryman from the mutilated passage, and impudently to assert it to be ours. We are not at all surprised that one who cannot spell or write English correctly, should be unable to comprehend it when properly written. But we write for those who understand that language, not for one who does not.

The Western Division.

The return of Sir Allan MacNab, as the Representative of this Division in the Legislative Council, is contested. The petition of Mr. Dougall, the Candidate of the Reform party, has been in Quebec more than a week, and by this time, will have been presented to the House. The principal grounds, upon which the election is contested, are, want of qualification, illegal votes polled, and bribery and corruption. It does not appear in the Register offices of either Essex or Kent, that Sir Allan owns property within the Division, although it is quite possible for him to have it, and yet not have his title registered. It is not often, however, that owners of real estate in this country, hold title deeds without registration.—In Essex and Kent about ninety alien votes, polled in favor of Sir Allan, have been discovered. These are principally, if not wholly colored voters, who, being neither by birth or naturalization, British subjects, were not qualified to vote, although their names may have been upon the Voters' List. There is not the least doubt but that these votes will be struck off the poll, and this alone will leave Sir Allan in a minority of sixty-three. It will be impossible for Sir Allan and his friends to make up an equal number of bad votes polled for Mr. Dougall. Indeed, it is confidently asserted that there are not twenty bad votes on the poll in favor of Mr. Dougall. The alien votes are principally among the colored people, and with few exceptions, they supported Sir Allan, in consequence of the absurd stories which were circulated among them, to the effect that the Reformers were all in favor of annexation to the United States. It will be impossible therefore to find many alien votes among Mr. Dougall's supporters. The charges of bribery and corruption are introduced to meet a large number of notorious cases of this kind both in Essex and Kent. Although Sir Allan's majority will be decapitated without the aid of this latter charge, still it was thought advisable to cover the whole ground in the petition, in order that evidence in support of it could be produced if it were necessary.

Advices from Quebec represent the Barouet in a "Brown study" over the petition. He is willing to support the Reformers in Parliament, upon condition that the formidable document be stranghed. This would be quite consistent with the political reputation of Sir Allan. In 1854 he was in a "Hincks study," and in order to grasp the powers and emoluments of office, he agreed to carry out the principles of the Reform party, and give up all those for which he had battled a life time. In the matter of this election petition, however, we advise the gallant Baronet to prepare himself for battle; the inscription on the banners of the people of this Division is no "surrender," and promises of support to opposition polling will not save him. It is stated that Sir Allan is willing to let judgment go by default, but some of the leading members of his party are strongly urging him to defend it. As the matter progresses, our readers will be kept informed.

COAL OIL.

Now that the subject of Oil Springs is so much on the tapis throughout Canada West, the County of Essex has suddenly appeared upon the scene of action determined to contribute her mite to the general illumination. We natives hope that our lamps will burn brighter than those of our neighbors, and we have good reason to believe that they will, for certainly the experiment lately tried upon a well in the possession of our old friend Ralph Foster, in Mersea, outshines all others that have come within the reach of our observation. Then again is 'Squire Flanagan of Rochester, who swears that he saw the gas bubbling through the potato hills on his farm, and friend Bartley says it's truth; so truth it is. What a blissful reality will it be, when we shall all be able to cast into obscurity those detestable dips we are now tormented with, and cease to envy our friends over the river, the brilliancy of their gas lights. We shall soon have no darkness in Essex, and we hope that when our Kerosine (?) oil has reached its climax, another scion of Royalty may honor us, and we will show him that in one respect at least, that we are not to be outen anywhere.

INCREASE OF ESSEX.

When the Census of 1851 was taken, Essex only numbered 17,000; now in 1861, we have a population of 25,000, being an increase of 8,000, (we use round numbers for convenience. Not so bad for Essex.

WINDSOR AMATEUR DRAMATIC CLUB.

We are happy to announce that the association has so far progressed that during the latter portion of next week, we may expect from them an entertainment. We have had the pleasure of seeing the scenery and other necessary arrangements which they have been for some time preparing, and we say that their endeavors are in every way praiseworthy, and deserving of public favor. Such undertakings are generally the fruits of an admiring and liberal community, but this arduous and highly commendable task has gained its present start through the exertion of a very few. We anticipate that such progress has been made, that next Friday we may have the pleasure of witnessing this young and energetic company, for the first time, upon the stage, and, although we do not expect to find Keans and Macreadys among them, we are satisfied that they will present an appearance not frequently surpassed by Amateurs. We are sorry that the accommodations in the Town Hall are of so imperfect a character, but are informed that they are not going to stop at any obstacle, and will erect a stage for the Concert (will not) at their own expenses. The Drama entitled "The Seven Clerks" has been chosen, for a piece well calculated to bring the talent of all engaged before the audience. They are to be assisted by talented amateurs in the musical line, and we hope their efforts may be justly rewarded.—Windsor Herald.

We learn that the above Glub have not been able to complete their scenery as yet, and consequently cannot make their debut this week, as they intended. We have no doubt, however, that everything will be ready by the latter part of next week. We may expect their first appearance on Friday week next, the 12th instant. We wish them every success.

BRYANT, STRATTON & GOLDSMITH'S MERCANTILE COLLEGE.—The object of this Institution is to impart a thorough business education, sustaining the same relation to the professionship that law, medical, and theological schools do the several professions they have in view. The chain of Colleges, of which this is a branch, have supplied a want long felt, both by the business community and those desiring to enter business, and we can fully indorse the opinion of its numerous patrons, both in this city and elsewhere, that for thoroughness and practicability it stands unrivalled by any similar Institution either west or east.—Detroit Free Press.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—A voice from the wilderness.—Abscess, tumors, scrofulous and glandular swellings—Living alone the great African traveller relates that he was much startled at the sight of a pot of Holloway's Ointment in the interior of Africa as was Robinson Crusoe at the print of a naked foot in the sand—on enquiry he discovered it was in common use and that the Portuguese traders kept up the supply—he most wisely frequently afterwards and found it highly beneficial for the cure of scrofulous humors, glandular swellings and the numerous other skin diseases which afflict the nomadic tribes of those arid and interminable wilds. Read the advertisement.

ATTEMPT TO SINK THE DART.—Two attempts were made last week to sink the steamer Dart at her dock, at the foot of Woodward avenue. On Friday night the watchman on board was alarmed by the sound of water rushing into the hold, and on examination, found that a plug had been removed, and that water was pouring in at the rate of a barrel a minute. The evil was remedied before any damage had been done, but on the succeeding night the boat was not so fortunate. Early in the day she was found to be loaded with water in the hold, and fast sinking. She sunk to the guards, when she was held by her hawsers until an engine was procured to pump her out. She was released during Sunday, and is not much the worse for the adventure.

It is supposed that some evil disposed person removed the plugs for the purpose of sinking the boat. The object to be observed by such evils is not plain, and if such attempts were made they could have been actuated by no motive of theft pure malice. There is no clue to the perpetrator.—Detroit Free Press.

ALL THAT GLITTERS IS NOT GOLD.—That this can soon be verified by any one who, from motives of economy or vanity, purchases "dollar jewelry." The discoverer of the "single gold" must have been possessed of profound knowledge of chemistry when he professed, as the result of his experiment, a composition possessing the color, density, fineness of grain, and ductility of gold without the remotest particle of auriferous metal among its component parts. One can readily imagine the great triumph that illuminated the features of the inventor, who, perhaps, after years of toil and study, saw at the bottom of his crucible a glittering substance so closely resembling gold, as to the unskilful, to be almost impossible of detection. The only difficulty appeared that he had at last found that philosopher's stone so long and laboriously sought for. His dictionary of chemical synonyms must have been more elaborate than those usually found in libraries when he named the beautiful compound. We would hail France for the place of its discovery and a Frenchman first brought it to light. It has at last been brought to this country, and is now extensively manufactured into articles of taste and ornament, which find a ready sale cheaply as to be placed within the reach of almost the poorest. The country is now flooded with the articles, which are dazzlingly exposed to the admiring gaze of thousands, drawing from them their dollars without disengaging so much as a reluctant sigh. The materials which enter into the composition of the "oreide" are copper, zinc or tin, magnesia, sal ammoniac, lime and cream of tartar. The copper is first, melted, when the materials are carefully added, the whole fused and the process completed. The cost is very trifling, the ingredients costing but a few cents, and setting aside the moral taint of the imposition and the almost innumerable articles of ornament and use, being attended with the greatest expense. The cost of manufacture, however, is much reduced by the aid of machinery, and the use of moulds and dies by which genuine gold ornaments have been produced. The new metal can do little harm, and will serve to gratify the vanity of thousands of vain mortals, who delight in an appearance of splendor and wealth.

PROSE AND POETRY.—A fine wit has told the world that all men and women, all beautiful girls, are poetry. Poetry is the rose, who write in verse. In such a saying, as in all good wit, there lies a core of truth. Men who have kept their poesy of their lives unshaped by art stand face to face with nature, seeing the blue sky, the bursting of the buds in spring, the rising and setting sun, the green glade, the flowing sea, as these things are; not as they appear in books, cut off in lengths of lines, tricked into antithetical phrase, rounded and closed by rhyme. No false rules of art impede a man who sees and feels; he does not mean to write or paint, he squint at a group of elms, to peer through his hand at moonlight shimmering on a lake or at sunset on the tops of trees or of hills; for such a man has no thought of how true, how, and by what he is blessed. A verse of five or six feet, or of the lines in which this or that old painter would have framed them. He comes fresh to nature, and has an intimate and poetical relation to her.—Personal History of Lord Bacon. By Wm. Hepworth Dixon.

An ingenious English inventor proposes to remedy the want of bust in ladies of "a given thinness," by a jacket, to be inflated by the wearer to the proper shape, and, as Willis would say, "plumpitude."

Benzine, applied by a rag, is a complete destroyer of serpion on cattle, and, indeed, we deem to return.

AMHERSTBURG, April 2nd, 1861.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,—What a truly melancholy picture does the Great Republic on our borders present to the world at the present time! With a President inaugurated under the protection of the bayonet, with her senators proclaiming treason in her Capitol, her glory has indeed departed. Every intelligent American has acknowledged for years that the cause of Slavery would eventually prove their ruin; yet no effectual steps have been taken by the so called Free States to meet the impending crisis. Better far had they had paid the slave-owner the full value of his slaves, and appointed some future time—had it been fifty years—for the final extinction of Slavery. But, no; they have worshipped the Almighty Dollar to their own destruction, and they must now realize the bitter truth, that nations, as well as individuals, are punished for their sins.

With a people holding such views, it would be too much to expect liberality in their intercourse with Foreign Nations. Their great Republican party has sanctioned a Tariff which imposes enormous duties on foreign importations, being actually prohibitive on many goods of British manufacture; although Great Britain is the best customer of America for her produce, her breadstuffs, and her cotton. Great Britain also admits American manufactures free of duty. A special committee appointed by the New York Chamber of Commerce have made a report on the Lake and Coasting Trade and Registry Act, dated 7th February, 1861, which is a curiosity in its way. A Mr. Lindsay, an extensive ship-owner in Great Britain, lately visited the United States with a view to getting the Lake and Coasting Trade thrown open to British shipping in exchange for the like privilege to be granted American vessels; also to allow British ships to obtain an American register—a privilege now granted by the British Government to American vessels, and which American ship-owners are daily taking advantage of in British ports, they being afraid to send their own ships to Southern ports under the stars and stripes, and are well pleased to be allowed the protection of the British Flag. Four out of the five gentlemen composing the Committee report against granting these privileges, but they are extremely anxious to get all the favors they can from the British Government—granting none in return. In the first place, they say it would be wrong to grant British vessels the benefits of their coasting and lake trade, because those ladies, with their whaling and fishery fleets, are the only nurseries for native seamen. This sounds very plausible, but in the next sentence they say, "the number of whom is unfortunately steadily decreasing." The natural inference would be that their restrictive policy is wrong; but these gentlemen think otherwise. Then they say, "It is impossible to over estimate the importance of their coasting trade." They seem entirely to ignore the extent of the coasting trade of Great Britain which is offered them. If they take a look into the harbor of Newcastle on Tyne, with its 24 miles of dock-head with vessels of all nations, they would be able to form some idea of British coasting trade. There are also two or three other ports where extensive business is done well worthy their attention. In regard to the Lake trade, they say, "they have the lion's share already, with sufficient tonnage to carry it on, and they feel so extremely liberal they think they had better keep it entirely to themselves. I imagine there are many people in this Western country who take a different view of the matter, and would say the opening of the Lake trade would prove highly beneficial to both countries. On the subject of granting registers to British ships, they think it would introduce an inferior class of iron vessels, and quote a writer in the London Shipping Gazette, who styles the British iron propellers, navigating the waters of Northern Europe, as sea going coffins.—Possibly there are faults in the construction of iron vessels, and making those defects public is the surest method of having them remedied; but who ever heard of the American people proclaiming the bank of ships—though the per centage of loss is greater in American than in British shipping. They then proclaim the astounding fact that they have built 73 iron hulls already. I can safely venture to say that that quantity is launched from British shipyards every few months, and the substantial workmanship of British mechanics is too well known to be lightly denied. They say further, "that the navigation laws of Great Britain have been repealed but twelve years, and it was under them she laid the foundation of her naval supremacy." It may be so; but it is of late years, under Free Trade, that she has finished the work, and that with a rapidity which could never have taken place under the old system of protection. The nursery of British Seamen, too, must flourish under Free Trade, or 70,000 men could not be found to man the Royal Navy. The committee complain that Great Britain levies light house dues on American vessels, which they say she ought to remit, although they only pay the same as other foreign nations. They also have the modesty to propose that Great Britain erect a few more light houses on the Eastern side of the Bahamas, for the accommodation of their Aspinwall Steamers; and all this without any return on their part whatever. One of the Committee, however, a Mr. Nelson, presents a minority report in which he entirely differs from his colleagues. He says he believes free trade to be the true principle of Commerce, looking to the interests of the country at large, and not to those of shipowners alone; he contends, that whoever does the work cheapest ought to have it; that American citizens should enjoy the privilege of purchasing vessels wherever they may find it for their interest to do so, and that those vessels should be entitled to registry in the United States on the same terms as vessels built there. He adds further that he should have no fear of the results of free trade, and very justly remarks, with respect to the light house dues. "If the United States Government would throw open the coasting lake trade, Great Britain would grant all they ask. The expression of such sentiments as these show that there are at least some liberal men among our neighbors. If all nations would adopt this liberal policy, we would hear far less of wars and rumours of wars. Unrestricted Commercial intercourse would bind them together by the bonds of common interests, a far more effectual bond of peace than all the treaties that ever were written.

Yours,

A REFORMER.

MARK THESE FACTS!

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, SORES AND ULCERS.

All description of sores are remediable by the proper and diligent use of this inestimable preparation. To attempt to cure bad legs by plastering the edges of the wound together is a folly; for should the skin unite, a baggy diseased condition or matter continued to break out with tenfold fury in a few days. The only rational and successful treatment, as indicated by nature, is to remove the inflammation in and about the wound, and to soothe the neighboring parts by rubbing in plenty of the Ointment as salt is forced into meat.

ERYSIPELAS ULCERATED SORE THROAT, AND ALL SORTS OF SKIN DISEASES.

Any of the above diseases may be cured by well rubbing the Ointment three times a day into the chest, throat and neck of the patient; it will soon penetrate, and give immediate relief. Medicine taken by the mouth must operate upon the whole system ere its influence can be felt in any local part, whereas the Ointment will do its work at once. Whoever tries the unguent in the above manner for the diseases named, or similar disorders affecting the throat internally, will find themselves relieved as by a charm.

FILES, FISTULAS, STRICTURES.

The above class of complaints will be removed by nightly fomenting the parts with warm water, and then by most effectually rubbing in the Ointment. Persons suffering from these direful complaints should lose not a moment in arresting their progress, it should be understood that it is not sufficient merely to smear the Ointment on the affected part, but it must be well rubbed in for some considerable time, two or three times a day, that it may be taken into the system, whence it will remove any hidden sore or wound as effectually as though palpable to the eye. There again the hand and wrist should be used during the rubbing in of the Ointment with great service. This is the only sure treatment for females, cases of cancer in the stomach, or where there may be a general debility.

INDISCRETIONS OF YOUTH;—SORES AND ULCERS.

Blotches, as also swellings, can, with certainty, be quickly cured if the Ointment be used freely, and the Pills taken night and morning as recommended in the printed instructions. When treated in any other way they only dry up in one place to break out in another, whereas this Ointment will remove the humour from the system, and leave the patient a vigorous and healthy being. It will require time with the use of the Pills to ensure a lasting cure.

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS, PARALYSIS AND STIFF JOINTS.

Although the above complaints differ widely in their origin and nature, yet they all require local treatment. Many of the worst cases of such diseases, will yield in a comparatively short space of time when this Ointment is diligently rubbed into the parts affected, even after every other means have failed. In all such maladies the Pills should be taken according to the directions accompanying each box.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs,	Burns,
Bunions,	Bite of Moschetoes
Bad Breasts,	and Sand Flies.
Coco-bay,	Chigoe-foot.
Chilblains,	Chapped Hands,
Corns [Soft]	Cancers,
Contracted and Stiff	Elephantiasis,
Joints,	Fistulas,
Gout,	Glandular Swellings,
Lumbago,	Piles,
Rheumatism,	Scalds,
Sore Throats,	Sore-throat,
Skin Diseases,	Scurvey,
Sore-heads,	Tumors,
Ulcers,	Wounds,
Yaws.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," are discernable as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions, around each pot or box; the same may be seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilized world, in pots, at 25c., 62c., $1 and $2 each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger size.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

IMPORTANT TO ACTUAL SETTLERS

MR. ALEXANDER CAMERON, of Amherstburgh and Toronto, offers for sale all his Lands in the County of Essex, on the most reasonable terms, ever offered by a private land owner. viz:—

He will sell to actual settlers one tenth of ten years, and accept one tenth of the purchase money down, and

He will sell at lower rates still parties to pay one fifth down, and the balance in five equal annual instalments.

He will sell to any person, well meaning intended by any of his friends in the County, to men of industrious habits, without asserting any instalment down, if the intending purchaser cannot pay any thing.

If the applicant is an Immigrant or mechanic to the Price of the land, he will refer it to the Reeve of the Township and a person whom he will select to decide between them.

Mr. Cameron proposes to give lots of his Lands to all the Canadian Emigrating Agents, as a return to his wishes in regard to this County, and will also take immediate steps to place them in the market in Europe, for intending settlers, and by these means he hopes to be enabled to sell all his lands within a period of two or three years.

Persons desirous of securing farms for their Sons should apply early, and get the first choice.

DR. AMOS & SON,

No. 85 Main Street,

(Corner of Main & Quay Sts., Buffalo, N.Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, may be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged, in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted maladies and devastating affections. For of those who commit this habit, fifty persons are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, fearful strange pains, indescribable feelings, and vague fears in mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Any person may be cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Females, take Particular Notice.

Drs. Amos & Son take pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above series of troubles, which has been adopted by the most eminent physicians in London, Paris, Philadelphia, and New York it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet discovered for the removal of Weakness, or any disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Drs. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most skeptical of the merits of the above instruments, pledge themselves that in any instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the Instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions, is securely packed and sent by express, is Ten Dollars.

BEWARE OF IMPOSITIONS!

Beware of empirics and itinerants of all styles and professions, who attempt to cure, but never succeed. Dr. Amos & Son have had a long series of years been engaged in an extensive practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with remittance for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secure from observation.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

AS used in Her Majesty's stables and also on His Royal Highness, the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are substantially shown by certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

Sold in casks containing 448 feeds price 14 dollars; and half casks containing 224 feeds, 7 dollars.

A Novelty in the Art World!
PHOTOGRAPHY UPON PORCELAIN.

Secured by letters patent in United States, England, France and Belgium.

The American Photographic Porcelain Co'py,
No. 781 BROADWAY, NEW YORK,

having secured their novel and ingenious invention by American and European patents, are fully prepared to execute all orders for presenting all the attractive and advantageous features of ordinary photographs, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a hitherto unattained quality of durability, by being rendered as imperishable as the natural properties of the articles upon which they are transferred.

MINIATURE LIKENESSES OF PERSONS ON CHINA,

As the present process of the Company enables the reproduction of Photographs, not only on plain surfaces, but on such as are round or of any degree of irregularity —portraits can be reproduced with faithful accuracy and delicacy of delineation, upon Porcelain wares of any description and dimension used as articles of luxury or of household utility, such as thereby securing faithful portraits and furnishing a unique and exquisite style of ornamentation of articles in domestic use.

In order to furnish facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those patrons of the Fine Arts desirous of having Portraits on Porcelain, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured to their own order, which they sell at cost prices.

As the American Company are owners of the patent right, and consequently the only persons authorized to use the process, they have determined, in order

TO AFFORD PEOPLE IN EVERY SECTION OF THE UNION

an opportunity to possess

PORTRAITS ON CHINA,

to make the following proposition to

RESIDENTS IN THE COUNTRY, WHO ARE UNABLE TO VISIT PERSONALLY THE ATELIER AND GALLERIES IN NEW YORK.

Persons sending a photograph, ambrotype, or daguerreotype to the office of the Company in New York, accompanied by

FIVE DOLLARS,

will receive in return by express, free of other charge,

A RICHLY ORNAMENTED BREAKFAST CUP AND SAUCER, WITH THE PORTRAIT TRANSFERRED THEREON.

By transmitting a daguerreotype and

TEN DOLLARS,

they will secure in like manner,

A HANDSOME FRENCH VASE OR TOILET ARTICLE,

with the portrait reproduced by the patented process. By sending a pair of daguerreotypes and

FIFTEEN DOLLARS,

they will receive in return

A PAIR OF RICH SEVRES VASES,

with the portraits executed equal to miniature paintings; and in like manner portraits can be reproduced on porcelain wares of

VASES OF EVERY QUALITY OF FINISH, ranging in prices from

TWENTY TO ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAIR.

N.B.—Be particular in writing the address, town, county and state distinctly.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.

CRAWFORD & CO.,

AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,

WINDSOR, CANADA WEST,

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District, composed of the COUNTIES OR ESSEX and KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of Water Communication and Railway Accommodation. With Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm produce and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be constructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable land; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; thus placing the District in direct communication with the leading cities of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials from the most reliable sources can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate, from its mildness, is mild, and equable, and the winters more shorter than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle, and the soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, vastly cheaper than in any other sections of the country, and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD AND UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hardwood, and conveniently located is offered, are extremely moderate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLERS, MANUFACTURERS, and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

LIST OF PROPERTIES FOR SALE.

CHAS. MONSARRAT, Treasurer.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more Interest with it than a Farm buildings, and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that adheres to this rule. It is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property is insured, is insured for the above period, by giving a Premium Note for two per cent., of which twelve and a-half per cent., (or one-eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a payment. The Agent's Fee is $1.50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid, all losses occurring, rendering an assessment on the Note necessary, and then no more will be called for than is required: Owing to the non-hazardous risks taken by the Company is confined, the losses may reasonably expect to be small. When the Insurance expires, the Note expires also.

To illustrate the above terms:—If you insure such property for three years, say for $600, you pay (exclusive of the Agent's Fee) $1.25 in money, and your Note is held for $8.75 more which is the limit of your liability in the transaction. No other Company offers more favorable terms, scarcely any one, terms in favor. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are insured a little lower.

JONES.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

We sit round the table and pour out the wine,
Transforming our crystals to rubies divine;
Then drain them to freedom, to Friendship, to Worth,
We think ourselves great as the kings of the earth;
When Jones, interrupting, says, "Drinking's a sin,
And headache and heartache are drawn from the bin,"
Fill the goblet again, not with cheers, but with groans;
Get out of our sunshine, ridiculous Jones!

I read the sweet letter my love sent to me,
Inclosing a rose from the land o'er the sea;
I press to my fond lips a curl of her hair,
And own that she's loving and good as she's fair;
When Jones, interrupting, says, "Love's a mistake,
For women will play with men's hearts till they break."
I answer, "Why not?" if they're bloodless as stones?
Get out of the sunshine, detestable Jones!"

My heart glows with hope for the welfare of man;
I pray for my fellows, and help when I can;
I see through the distance of ages to be,
The many grown wiser, made happy and free
When Jones, interrupting, says, "Man is a knave;
And, if not a tyrant, a fool or a slave."
I answer, "There's kind human flesh on my bones;
Get out of my sunshine, cadaverous Jones!"

Social Life in Charleston.

CONDUCT AND CUSTOMS OF THE SLAVES.

The Charleston (S. C.) correspondent of the New York Evening Post writes as follows:

There are over one hundred waiters at the Charleston Hotel, hired from their masters by the landlord at ten dollars per month. (One, almost white and possessing some special accomplishment, obtains a $6 bonus, I am told.) When a planter or traveller brings his own slaves to the hotel, they are allowed their board free of charge, giving in return their services, first to their owners, then to the guests in general.

Submissiveness of Slaves.—You equally obey the dictates of good nature and prudence in feeing your waiter, under which stimulant he becomes as assiduous and deferential as he would be dilatory and indifferent, lacking it. He remembers your culinary likings, will, indeed, sometimes zealously duplicate your yesterday's breakfast without orders, while you read your newspaper.—Approbate in the extremest degree, if you preface a request with 'I'll thank you,' or, 'Will you oblige me,' or any such unexpected courtesy, he absolutely cuts a caper of delight before rushing off to obey the mandate, composing himself in other respects like a grown-up child.

Surveying him and his fellows, generally intelligent looking negroes, neatly dressed, most of them wearing rings, and some watch chains, observing their humble dutiful behavior, a Northern man is appalled to see how they have accepted their position as slaves; how their every word and action implies to their recognition and of the unchristianism belief in their essential inferiority. I think that this very submissiveness is, in itself, a tremendous protest against the inherent wickedness of the cherished institution.

Would it be possible to subdue any other race? I doubt it. 'Gurth, the son of Beowulf, born thrall to Cedric the Saxon,' with his dog's collar round his neck, had yet his rights and possibibilties of emancipation; in a generation or two he was almost certain of becoming a freed man—not so Quashee or Sambo. His very loveable qualities conspire to perpetuate his enslavement. Yet they are capable of a dreadful transformation, as witness St. Domingo. The South has no reason to fear a repetition of that awful experiment possibly for some generations, but if it persists in hugging this evil, in believing it to be the one good, desirable thing, that punishment must follow is as certain as death and judgement.

To return to the waiters at the Charleston Hotel. It is not difficult to understand how the eager obeisance of slaves gratifies the Southern recipient; how he comes to consider it essential to his comfort and well being; how, in short, mutual relations grow up between slave and slave owner, rendering the problem of the extinction of the wrong horribly difficult. Its perpetuation flatters that instinct toward mastery which we all possess. Every man with a white skin below Mason and Dixon's line is an aristocrat.

You observe it in the demeanor of the Irish waiters toward their colored associates; they would be insulted were they required to take their food with 'nagers.' One morning being in my room, I overheard an altercation between a chambermaid and a good-looking mulatto who officiates as fire-maker. He had called to her rather familiarly, and she indignant at his presumtion, was rating him soundly. Who was he talking to? she asked: she would let him know she was no wench, to be spoken to in that manner! Individually, he was by far the pleasantest looking personage of the two.

Treatment of the Slaves.—You very rarely hear a slave spoken harshly or inconsiderately to in a large hotel, nor is there occasion for it. I have heard harsh words from a drunken man—hardly in any other instance. Southerners of education and position are less exacting, more tolerant of the short comings of slaves, than a Northern man finds it easy to be. They seem to allow a certain margin of error, idleness, or small duplicity, as incidental to a negro's position. It is an involuntary recognition of the necessity of tempering a huge injutice with minor indulgences.

'They are liable to be 'paddled,' however. This punishment is generally administered at the guard-house, by the Charleston police, who are all Irishmen. They use a thick, flat board, with holes in it. Any offended master or mistress sends a slave to the place of chastisement, with a note stating the desired amount, which is duly honored. Like 'institutions' breed like results all over the world. In Sala's Journey due North we find the same system in operation in Russia.

At our hotel only white porters are allowed to handle baggage, as slaves cannot be trusted. It is also forbidden by law to sell or give them any liquor. Of course they get it secretly, and have a 'high time.'

Curious Features.—Their approbativeness is curiously manifest in their respect for persons of apparent wealth or consideration. Thus, a man who orders a bottle of wine to his dinner will secure more attention always—provided he 'fees' his boy—than a water drinker. Let him appear in company of any recognized Charleston magnates; above all, let him entertain them at the side-table with the appropriate accompaniments of Champagne, &c, his 'boy' and all the 'boys' around, henceforth conceive the highest opinion of him. 'My boss a real gentleman,' your sable attache will say, crowing over his own importance considerably argumented in consequence of your presumed aristocracy.

Do they listen to the conversation in progress under their noses?—the eternal talk of secession, of which Charlestonians are never wearied? Of course they do. Do they understand it? I think this very doubtful. They have certainly become so incorporated in the system as to share, to some extent, the feelings of their masters. To both the word 'abolitionist' is suggestive of nothing but unqalified, monstrous villany. Perhaps the most extraordinary thing in connection with slavery, is the hearing of it discussed for hours together in the presence of slaves—as any resident of the South can hardly have missed witnessing scores of times.

A Moment of Horror.

For twenty three years old Jake Willard has cultivated the soil in Baldwin County, and drawn therefrom a support for himself and wife. He is childless. Not long ago, Jake left the house in search of a missing cow. His route led him through an old, worn-out patch of clay land, of about six acres in extent, in the centre of which was a well, twenty-five or thirty feet deep, that, at some time probably, had furnished the inmates of a dilapidated house near by with water. In passing by this spot an ill wind drifted Jake's 'tile' from his head, and maliciously wafted it to the edge of the well, and in it tumbled.

Now Jake had always practiced the virtue of economy, and he immediately set about recovering the lost hat. He ran to the well, and found it was dry at the bottom, he uncoiled the rope which he had brought for the purpose of capturing the truant cow, and after several attempts to catch the hat with a noose, he concluded to save time by going down into the well himself. To accomplish this, he made fast one end of the rope to a stump hard by, and was soon on his way down the well.

It is a fact, of which Jake was no less oblivious than the reader hereof, that Ned Wells was in the dilapidated building aforesaid, and that an old blind horse, with a bell on his neck, who had been turned out to die, was lazily grazing within a short distance of the well.

The devil himself, or some other wicked spirit, put it into Ned's cranium to have a little fun; so he quietly slipped up to the horse, unbuckled the strap, and approached with slow and measured 'ting-a ling' to the edge of the well.

'Dang the old blind horse!' said Jake—'he's a comin' this way, sure, and ain't got no more sense nor to fall in here. Whoa, Ball!'

But the continued approach of the 'ting-a ling' said, just as plainly as words that old Ball wouldn't 'whoa.' Besides, Jake was at the bottom, resting before trying to 'shin' it up the rope.

'Great Jerusalem!' said he, 'the old cuss will be a top o' me 'fore I can say Jack Robinson. Whoa! dang you, whoa!'

Just then Ned drew up to the edge of the well, and with his foot kick a little dirt into it.

'Oh! Lord!' exclaimed Jake, falling on his knees at the bottom of the well; 'I'm going now!—Whoa!—Now I lay me down to sleep—Whoa! Ball—I pray the Lord my soul to—Whoa! now—Oh, Lord have mercy on me!'

Ned could hold it no longer, and fearful that Jake might suffer from his fright, he revealed himself.

Probably Ned didn't make tracks with his heels toward that well. May be Jake wasn't up to the top of it in short order.—May be not. I don't know. But I do know that if Jake finds out who sent you this, it will be the last squib you'll get from me.

The Old Colonel's Story.

I found him stretched at full length, his face towards the ground, his head propped on both hands, his eyes on a little open book. I started, for staining the white margin was a rusty spot about the size of the blood-spot on the sea-mew's breast. 'Ha, youngster!' said the Colonel, without looking up, 'think it odd to find an old soldier poring over a prayer book, eh?' 'Colonel, what is that stain upon the margin?' was the answer.—'A drop of brave man's blood, boy,' said the Colonel. He turned round, sat up, and sent a solemn searching look into my countenance. It was also solemn, and he was moved to speak when otherwise he had kept strict silence. 'Sit down, and I'll tell you how I came by it.'

'It's in Latin, you see,' holding the book towards him;' 'but the name on the fly-leaf'—turning to it—' is in German.' 'Gretli Steiner was written there in a thin pointed female hand; underneath, in strong, awkward, masculine characters, 'Muss oft gelesen seyn,' "Must often be read.' 'I was on a divisional staff, in 1815, at Quatre Brass and Waterloo. Late on the latter day when the French game was up, I went galloping with a message to the Prussians in pursuit. None but the chiefs—and they not always—know at the time the importance of even great victories. Yet, somehow, that evening, as I rode back over the field, thick strewn with dead and dying, I felt that I had played my little part in one of the great events of history. A desire seized on me to carry some memento from that bloody battle-ground. I dismounted, threw the bridle over my arm, and went picking my way through piteous obstacles. I thought at first, of taking a cross or medal for a keepsake, but could not bring myself to tear from a defenceless breast what its brave owner would have defended at cost of life itself. Presently I came upon a group of men and horses overthrown into confusion; corpses of them I mean, of course; three slain lancers of the Polish Guard, and, evidently, their slayer with them. You remember I said 'a brave man's blood?' I nodded assent. 'His horse had fallen first: perhaps that alone had lost him. He had not been killed outright, for he was sitting propped against the poor brute's carcase. By the skull and cross bones on its trapping and his uniform, I knew him for a Death's-Head Brunswicker. Poor fellow! he was cold and stiff—his dying grip fast on his little book, open at this very page. He had a wound, among others on his forehead. This drop must have fallen as he bent over the book. I took it, put it in my sabretash, mounted, and rode fast away. For days I was uneasy, as if I had robbed the dead. I did not once take out or open the little book of prayer. When at last I did, the sentence on the fly leaf read like an absolution and a pious bequest, 'Must oft be read.' 'Ay, boy, I have read and read, learned and repeated these old Latin prayers, till I fancy sometimes some of their spirit has passed into mine. At war, in peace, in camp, at home, I have treasured and carried the dead Brunswicker's book. They shall put it in my shroud with me. I wish I could take it boldly with me into 'kingdom come,' to return it to the Brunswicker. Pray God I may meet him there, with 'Gretli,' to thank them for the loan of it.'

The Duchess of Kent.

The Africa brings us intelligence of the death, on the 16th March, of the Duchess of Kent, the mother of the Queen of England. For a long time the late Duchess had been afflicted with a cancer, which was the immediate cause of her death. Since the accession of her daughter to the throne of England she had remained a resident either at Windsor Castle with the Queen, or at Frogmore, a mansion of her own, a mile or two distant from the Castle, whither the Queen went almost daily to visit her.

The late Duchess had attained a venerable age. She was a princess of the house of Saxe-Saalfield-Coburg, was born on the 17th of August, 1786, and was baptized under the names of Marie Louise Victoria. She was, at an early age, married to Prince Henry of Leininge, who, dying, left her a blooming young widow in 1814. A year or later she attracted the attention of Edward Duke of Kent, the fourth son of George III, and was married to him in London on the 11th of July, 1818.

But the married life of the new Duchess was but short; for in less than two years the Duke of Kent died; and she was again a widow with one child—the Princess (now Queen) Victoria. At that time the accession of this little child to the British throne seemed but a remote contingency. George III outlived his son, the Prince of Wales, while George IV. and William IV., his other sons, who reigned after him, both died without issue; thus, the issue of the next brother, the deceased Duke of Kent, became heir to the British Throne. As soon as this contingency gradually resolved itself into a probability and then a certainty, the Duchess of Kent devoted her time fitting her daughter for the high station she was called upon to occupy. A firm and consistent Protestant, she taught the young Princess a veneration for that religion as expressed in the Church of England. Mental and personal accomplishments were carefully attended, as well as physical requirements. The daughter throve under such judicious treatment, and the mother had the satisfaction of attending the coronation and the marriage of her child, of seeing her the mother of a large family, and of knowing that her throne was built upon the hearts of loving subjects.

The life of the Duchess of Kent, quiet and unostentatious, was so identified with that of the present Queen, that there is little to say of her otherwise. Her death will place in mourning most of the reigning families of Europe, while at the English court there can be little doubt that the official trappings of woe will this time represent—what they seldom do in court circles—the honest and unaffected grief of the wearers. It may be added that this is the first serious bereavement Queen Victoria has ever experienced. Her father died before she was old enough to know him, and she has never lost a child. An only child herself, she had never a brother or sister to lose or mourn for, and thus the present bereavement must be peculiarly afflicting to her.

Miscellany.

At a revival lately, a clear case of repentance appeared to come under the notice of a worthy deacon who, during the excitement, was on the look out for stray souls. Noticing a lad wiggle in his seat, the tears flowing from his eyes, he stepped up to him, and affectionately inquired, 'How is it with you, my son?' The boy looked up, and supposing him to be the sexton, answered, 'Oh, very bad, and I want to go out—my innards is kicking up a revolution and the Fourth of July! and if ever I eat a green currant pie again, my name ain't Jeems Billins!'

HOW TO SILENCE A GRUMBLER.—A late reverend doctor had the misfortune to be aggrieved by a continual fault-finding of one of the resident heritors. He consulted a distinguished senator of the College of Justice, with whom he enjoyed private intimacy, as to what course he should pursue with the turbulent laird. 'Does he attend church regularly, and bear a respectable character?' inquired the senator. 'I cannot say he does not,' said the minister. 'Then make him an elder,' said the judge, 'and your interests will be identical.' The method was actually adopted, and the remedy was successful.

The Perth Standard says:—One day last week a young lad brought a piece of quartz rock to Mr. Lilly's Foundry in Perth to get smelted, which was done, and about sixteen pennyweights of bright yellow metal procured. This the lad took to Mr. Northgraves, watchmaker to get tested, when it was found to be pure gold. The lad refused to tell his name, and merely remarked as he left, that 'his fortune was made.' We believe it is now an established fact that the neighborhood of Perth is rich in mineral wealth.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS.—In the Parish of St. George's in-the-East on the 1st of May next certain young women, previously approved of, will have an opportunity of drawing lots for a portion of £100, and the lucky drawer will be entitled to receive that amount as soon as she can obtain a husband to share it with her. The dispensers of the bounty are Raine's charity trustees, and the young women who offer themselves as candidates must have been educated in Mr. Raine's school, and have attained the age of 22 years. They must also have continued members of the Church of England since they left the School.

NEGRO DIGNITY.—A man from the rural districts was dining at the St. Charles New Orleans, recently, and not being posted as to the customary forms respecting the allotment of certain guests to one servant, was continually hauling the servants to bring him various dishes, principally oysters. Thus: 'I say, stranger, have you got any isters?' No response. Repeating loudly, 'I say you stranger, have you got any isters?' At last an old culled pussen turned around, with quite a determined cast of countenance, and looking daggers, replied, 'I isn't a stranger heah, I'se lived heah'n sarvant fur five years; and this isn't an oyster cellar, but a 'spectable fust class hotel!' Amidst the laughter of the party the man retired to look for the ister house.

EFFECT OF HOOPS.—Physicians have lately remarked the extraordinary increase in pelvic diseases among females, which can be attributed to no other cause than to the great weight of crinoline, &c., suspended about the hips. This continuous bearing down induces a host of painful and complicated disorders, which are mostly beyond the skill of the surgeon, and consigns their patients to a reclining posture for the best of their lives.

There is an amateur magician in Albany, if we may believe all that is written of him, who can cause a loaded hod to go up a ladder without any assistance, transform a handkerchief into a rabbit, as is sometimes done for the amusement of children, and make it trot off at a rapid pace, and do many other things that would astonish Anderson, Houdin or Heller. That young man should travel.

No man was ever known to be found drowned with a receipt from a printer in his pocket. It is the best of life preservers. Think of that.

A number of Merchants of Montreal have agreed to close their stores for business during a part of each day, in order to afford time for all parties to obtain bodily refection, vulgarly called dinner.

The great novelist, Dickens, indulges in some peculiarities; a flag waves above his house top, like the Queen's over Buckingham palace, as a signal to all interested, that the distinguished occupant is at home.

Provincial Parliament.

(Special Telegraph to the Leader.)

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, April 2.

The House met to-day after the Easter recess.

Bills were introduced for the consolidation of the debt of Peterboro' and in reference to the Wesleyan College.

On motion of Hon. Mr. ALEXANDER, seconded by Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, an address was ordered for copies of any correspondence or despatches which have passed between the Provincial and Imperial Governments in reference to the Postal subsidies given by the British Government to the different lines of Ocean Steamers running between Great Britain and this Continent.

The Committee on Privileges having reported the death during the year of the Hon. Peter McGill and Hon. Mr. DeBlaquiere, the House, out of respect to the memory of both gentlemen, adjourned until to-morrow.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, April 2.

The House met to-day at three o'clock, after the Easter recess.

After the routine business, bills were introduced by private members to repeal certain enactments relative to certain exemptions from seizure in executions as far as relates to Lower Canada; to amend the law respecting Jurors and Juries in Upper Canada; to amend the assessment law of Upper Canada; relating to sessions of the peace in Upper Canada.

In reply to questions, Ministers stated that an advance has been made to the Grand Trunk Company, in pursuance of a vote of the House; that no change was proposed in the tariff except in reference to the article of hay; that the use of steam tugs on the Welland Canal was under consideration, but was not likely, from unavoidable circumstances, to be introduced this year; and that the improvement of the navigation of the Gulf of the St. Lawrence was engaging the attention of the Government.

A short discussion took place, on motion of M. LANGEVIN, for an address for the correspondence respecting the Reciprocity Treaty.

Hon. Mr. GALT stated that no official correspondence between this Government and that of Washington had taken place.—He was satisfied that the Federal Government was in favor of maintaining the Treaty, notwithstanding the agitation in New York and some other places against it. He defended the Treaty; saying it had greatly benefitted both this country and the United States. The trade of the States with Canada, import and export, had quadrupled since 1856, which was a great argument in favor of the Treaty.

Bills were introduced by members of the Government to provide against fraudulent invoices; to reduce the quorum of the Upper Canada Court of Appeal from 7 to 5 members; to amend the laws relating to the extradition of Criminals to the United States.

Hon. Atty. Gen. MACDONALD gave notice of his intention, next Friday, to introduce a bill for the evidences of Bankrupt Estates, in Upper Canada.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, April 3.

The Council met at three o'clock.

LICENSE LAW AMENDMENT BILL.

On the motion for the second reading of Mr. FURGUSON'S Bill to amend an act entitled 'an Act to diminish the number of licenses issued for the sale of intoxicating liquors by retail;' the object of which is to do away with the restriction, in country places, upon granting more tavern licenses than one in 250 souls.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON moved in amendment, that the Bill be read this day six months.

The amendment was put and lost; contents 15; non contents 29.

JOINT STOCK COMPANIES' DIRECTORS ELECTION BILL.

Hon. Mr. BOULTON moved the 2d reading of the bill referring to the election of Railway, Bank and other directors.

On the suggestion of Hon. Mr. VANKOUGHNET the motion was, however, postponed for a week.

COMMON SCHOOL ACT AMENDMET.

The bill introduced by the Hon. Mr. ALLAN to amend the sixteenth sub-section of the twenty-seventh Section of the Common School Act, by exempting from the payment of rate imposed for the support of any Separate School was read a second time.

ASSESSMENT LAW AMENDMENT BILL.

Hon. Mr. ALEXANDER'S bill to amend the Municipal Institutions Act, by providing that in case of an equality of votes on the election of a Reeve, or of a Deputy Reeve, under the provisions of the 57th sec., then, of those present, the member who has been assessed for the highest amount on the last revised Assessment Roll of the Town, or Incorporated Village, or Township, as the case may be, shall have a second and casting vote, was read a second time.

VACCINATION.

The bill for the extension of vaccination was read a second time.

MAPS AND PLANS.

The bill relating to maps and plans was read a second time.

The Council then adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, April 3.

The house met at three o'clock.

UPPER CANADA MUNICIPAL LAW.

A bill was introduced to amend the municipal law of Upper Canada, and read a first time.

PROTECTION TO CREDITORS.

A bill to protect the creditors of Crown Lands was introduced, and read a first time.

HARBOR OF REFUGE, NORTH SHORE OF LAKE ERIE.

In reply to Mr. Burwell.

Hon. Mr. Ross, Commissioner of Public Works, said the construction of a harbor of refuge on the north shore of Lake Erie was under consideration.

RETURNS.

Returns were ordered of the timber dues collected in the Counties of Kent, Essex and Carleton, of the names, &c., of the stockholders in the different chartered banks; of the sum paid in each year as bounty to Canadian fishermen, and of the lands sold to the Elgin Association.

COMMITTEE ON EMIGRATION RE-APPOINTED.

On motion of Mr. McGee a select committee was struck to take into consideration the most effectual management of the emigrant service.

RIVER TARIFF FOR PILOTAGE.

On motion of M. Archambeault it was resolved that the House should go into committee of the whole on Monday next on certain resolutions relative to the establishment of a new tariff of rates of pilotage between Montreal and Quebec.

SHEFFORD ELECTION.

The adjourned debate upon Mr. Ferres' motion relative to alleged irregularities in connection with the poll books for the municipality of the Township of Granby at the last election for the County of Shefford was resumed. The motion was "that from an examination of the Poll Book taken for the Municipality of the Township of Granby, in the County of Shefford, at the last election, it appears that gross irregularities have occurred in connection with the entries in the said poll book, in violation of the freedom of election, and in breach of the privileges of this House."

To which Mr. Perry had placed on the paper a notice of the following amendment:—

"That the following words be added thereto: 'That it appears by the erasures and changes in the poll books, that the vote of John G. Gowie, in the poll book of the Village of Granby, the votes of Samuel Roberts and John Vipond, in the poll books of the Township of Granby, were entered as having voted for M. A. Bissette, a candidate at said election, and afterwards erased and transferred as voting for L. S. Huntington, the other candidate at said election, and that the votes of John Ingram and Charles Collins on the poll book of the Township of Granby, appear to have been struck off on the objection of L. S. Huntington, that they were not registered, and that the votes of Thomas Starr and Peter Wyotte, in the poll book for the Township of Shefford, the vote of Peter Myotte, in the poll book for the Village of Granby, the vote of Joseph Stanislas, on the poll book for the Township of Milton, and the vote of George Robinson, on the poll book for the Township of Roxton, were entered as having voted for L. S. Huntington, the other candidate at the said election, and were afterwards erased and transferred as voting for the said M. A. Bissette, making three votes struck off M. A. Bissette and entered for L. S. Huntington, and two votes struck off Huntington and entered for Bissette, and five votes struck off from Huntington and entered for Bissette.

"That it also appears by the special return of the Deputy Returning Officer of the Township of North Stukely, that forty-eight votes were entered on the poll book for the said Township in favor of M. A. Bissette, of persons whose names appear on the list of voters of the said Township, as not having the necessary property qualification to entitle them to vote.'

"That the Deputy Returning Officer for the said Townships of Shefford, Granby, Milton, Roxton, North Stukely and the Municipality of the Village of Granby, and the Secretary-Treasurer of the said Township of North Stukely, be summoned to appear at the Bar of this House on the day of April next, to be examined in reference to the said poll books and the said list of voters for the Township of North Stukely."

EVENING SESSION.

When the House re-assembled, Hon. M. Cartier said his opinion at first was that the deputy returning officer ought to be brought to the bar of the House to answer the charge of tampering with the poll books.

M. Lemieux thought the evidence insufficient to warrant the officer being brought to the bar of the House; but he thought the matter ought to go before the election committee.

M. Laberge concurred with the former speaker.

Mr. Foley thought that the facts of the case did not warrant such a severe motion as that of the member for Broome. If the returning officer had committed an irregularity he should be punished as other returning officers had been, and not visited with the severest punishment. It mattered not whether the irregularity was with one or five hundred votes.

Mr. J. S. Macdonald maintained that the returning officer should be punished for presuming to change the poll books.

M Sicotte said the poll books had not been altered.

Mr. J. S. Macdonald pointed out that one name been struck off it; and urged that the returning officer ought to be brought to the bar of the House.

Mr. Pope contended that on the premises laid down by M. Cartier, that officer had no right to change a name on the poll book, whether right or wrong. The vote of the House would have the effect of returning either candidate to-night. He was disposed to bring the officer to the bar and punish him if guilty.

Hon. M. Cartier said bringing the officer to the bar of the House will not affect the election, that will be determined by committee. The returning officer is an officer of the House and ought to be brought to the bar to answer for his conduct.

Mr. Pope moved his amendment, specifying about a dozen votes changed from Huntingdon to Bissette and from Bissette to Huntingdon, and resolved that the officers implicated be brought to the bar.

Hon. M. Cartier would support the amendment and suggested that it should be moved as a substantial motion.

Mr. Dunkin approved of proceedings before an Election Committee over that of bringing parties to the bar of the House; but as this was done last session he would vote for bringing them to the bar in this case.

M. Sicotte opposed the motion and amendment at considerable length.

After some further discussion Mr. Pope withdrew his amendment in favor of one by Mr. Dunkin, substantially the same, but omitting details

M. Dufresne also withdrew his amendment and Mr. Dunkin's was carried on a division.

The House adjourned at half-past twelve.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, April 4.

The House met at 3 o'clock.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Bills were introduced to divide the County of Bruce into two Counties, and to amend the charter of the Niagara District Bank.

THE RIGHTS OF MARRIED WOMEN.

On a division the resolution for the second reading of the Married Women's Assistance Bill, as amended by the select Committee, was lost.—Contents 13; non-contents 15.

CORPORATION LAW AMENDMENT.

The motion for the second reading of the Corporation Law Amendment Bill was likewise lost on a division.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald moved, seconded by Hon. Mr. Ferrie. That the Legislative Council as now constituted is at once an expression of the popular will, and a check to hasty legislation, and the improper exercise of legislative power; that its dignity, independence and usefulness would be greatly promoted and its authority with the country increased if all persons holding offices of emolument under the Crown were excluded therefrom.

On a division the motion was lost.—Contents 4; non-contents 40.

The House then adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, April 4.

After routine business, Bills were introduced to amend the Joint Stock Companies' Clauses Consolidation Act;

To amend the Acts relating to Land Surveyors;

To amend the Upper Canada Law respecting Witnesses and Evidence;

To amend the Upper Canada Law respecting Marriages.

To provide for the separation of the County of Victoria from the County of Peterboro';

To amend the Upper Canada Law in certain particulars affecting the relations of Debtors and Creditors;

To enable County Councils to collect tolls on gravel roads and bridges under their control without reference to their length.

To amend the Lower Canada Consolidated Municipal Act in respect of the provisions as to the sale of intoxicating liquors;

To amend the Upper Canada Municipal Act so as to enable County Councils to allow grazing upon their roadsides.

To amend the Lower Canadian law relating to sales under the authority of justice;

For the improvement of Water Courses in Upper Canada, for more adequately securing the health of localities in Upper Canada against the infection arising from the bodies of persons who have died of infectious diseases and lying unburied;

To quiet titles to real estates in the Townships of Lower Canada and to fix the rate of mill tolls upon grain, to sanction the use of the French language in Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction in Lower Canada.

THE JURY LAWS.

Mr. Walker Powell moved to refer the petition of the Council of the County of Middlesex, praying for amendments to the Jury Laws, to a select committee consisting of Messrs. McMullar, Craig, McMicken, A. P. Macdonald, and the mover.

The Postmaster General opposed the motion. He said he was about to bring in a bill to amend the jury laws in a few particulars, and some other bills on the same subject, and would be introduced, one of which he proposed referring, together with the petition in question, to a committee to be appointed for the purpose. The Speaker left the chair at six o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

After recess, one gentlemen wished to carry on a discussion of the question of the jury laws, but Atty. Genl. Cartier moved the order of the day.

Messrs. Foley and J. S. Macdonald condemned the Ministry for endeavoring to get rid of a measure affecting Upper Canada as this did, and complained of Lower Canada domination over the Upper Provinces.

The Postmaster General said his Jury Act of last session had worked admirably in Upper Canada, and was approved of by all Judges, legal gentlemen and those connected in forms an opinion. His present bill was still further to amend it.

Mr. Robin said the effect of the Postmaster General's bill had been to very materially reduce the expense incurred by the attendance of Reeves and Deputy Reeves at Court.

Th Postmaster General said he did not wish to bark the petition, but was desirous of referring it to the committee to whom would be referred all the petitions and Bills relating to the jury law.

Mr. Burwell made a long speech, condemning the Government for not having a majority of the members of the House in Upper Canada, and indirectly upholding the double majority.

After a rambling discussion,

Mr. Drummond took the Sir of one o'clock amid cries of "adjourn the debate." This was opposed. "The House the divided:—Yeas 59; nays 34. The debate was then adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, April 5th.

The House met at 3 o'clock.

A bill was introduced to amend the Act respecting mutual insurance companies in Upper Canada.

Hon. Mr. Patton gave notice of his intention to move to restore the married women's insurance bill to the orders of the day.

Sir E. P. Tache having introduced a discussion concerning a question raised by the Hon. M. Letellier as to whether it were desirable that he (Hon. Sir E. P. Tache) should sit on the Executive committee, his nephew being a petitioner, it was ultimately resolved that the name of the Hon. Sir. E. P. Tache should be taken off the committee of Election.

The House then adjourned.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, Friday, April 5.

After routine business,

Atty. Gen. Cartier presented the report of the select committee appointed to strike the standing committees, which was received.

Bills were then introduced:

For the protection of settlers in Lower Canada in certain cases;

To amend the assessment law of Upper Canada as regards the sale of lands in respect of which taxes are incressing;

For the protection of hotel keepers from liability in certain cases.

The bill from the Legislative Council to allow verdicts to be returned in civil causes, although juries may not be unanimous, was read the first time.

Mr. Ferguson then moved for leave to introduce a bill to provide for the representation of the people in the Legislative Assembly by readjusting and equalizing the same.

In amendment, M. Cauchon moved the six month's hoist.

A non-content to the amendment.

Mr J. S. Macdonald moved that it be resolved, that until the census returns shall disclose the actual state of the population in Upper and Lower Canada respectively, it is inexpedient to consider the question of altering the representation of the people in Parliament.

On a division this amendment was lost —Yeas 4; nays 102.

Mr. Dufresne then moved that the debate be adjourned until Monday.

The motion was lost—Yeas 49; nays 53.

The House then adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

After the recess,

Atty. Gen. Cartier commenced the debate. He alluded to the use of the principle of Representation by Population in England. There it might be seen that wealth was not overlooked in the question of Parliamentary representation, and it was considered that for a certain number of representatives, to be allotted to a certain number of people, would involve universal suffrage. Why then did Mr. Ferguson, and other great Orangemen and Conservatives, seek to introduce the principle into Canada, as with it must also come universal suffrage? Property in representation, he argued, could never be ignored. Representation by Population did not obtain in England, for in 1851 the population of the United Kingdom was 27,000,000, of which England had 18 millions, Scotland 3 millions, and Ireland 6 millions. The entire number of representatives in the Imperial Parliament was 674, of which Scotland had only 53 and Ireland 105. Surely Representation by population was not adopted there! He asked Mr. Ferguson if he were in Ireland would he advocate the principle.

Mr. Ferguson said he would. He thought Ireland did not, in many things, get her rights, but he hoped she would soon.

Atty. Gen. Cartier was glad to agree with him in this last respect. He had no doubt the statement would help him (Mr. Ferguson) at the next election (Laughter.) If were carried out in England the City of London would have nearly as many representatives as the whole of Scotland, as the population was about the same. He advertred to the United States and showed that the principle of Representation there could not obtain here, as our Council Chamber had not the same functions as the United States Senate. He contended that the principle was not British; that the number of members in the Assembly could not be increased and the Council left as it was. Our system was better than that of the benign sway under which he was happy to see that the new Southern Confederacy had adopted the system of giving heads of departments seats in the House without the right of voting. He hoped they would go farther and assimilate the system entirely to ours. As to the important question, how the Union could be carried on at present, he would ask Mr. Ferguson, did he think that the Union could be worked in 1841, though there was a disproportion of inhabitants at that time.

Mr. Ferguson—Yes; but he thought that injustice was done to Lower Canada at that time.

Atty. Gen. Cartier said that in 1841 Lower Canada had a very much larger population than Upper Canada—admitting that the tables were changed, why cannot the Union be carried on now as at the time of the Union? Then the population of Upper Canada was only 427,000 while that of Lower Canada was 660,000, which was as great an excess over Upper Canada as existed now on the part of Upper Canada. Let any gentleman look at the present population of Upper Canada at the time of the Union, which was only about 900,000—when Lower Canada had an excess of 250,000—and the population of Upper and Lower Canada now, which was about 250,000 upon the excess of the interests of Upper Canada over Lower Canada was only 300,000. With this proportion so disproportionate as to prevent the working of the Union. No sensible person would say so. The honorable gentleman continued his remarks, asserting the equality of Lower and Upper Canada in all institutions, and maintaining at great length his proposition that the Union was as workable now as ever. It it should turn out that Upper Canada had a majority of 300,000 over Lower Canada which was not the result of the entire population, as it was at the time of the Union, when Lower Canada had a majority of 250,000, or more than a third more than Upper Canada.

Mr. Foley complained that Atty. Gen. Cartier had compared the people of Upper Canada to the people of Ireland, who were placed in a degraded position to the people of England, and also of the intention of M. Cartier generally to degrade Upper Canada to comparing them to the coolish of Grape Bay. He strongly repudiated the justice of the comparison.

After some further discussion the debate was adjourned until Monday, to be then the first order of the day.

Mr. Gall, before the House adjourned, moved, pro forma, the House in committee of supply.

The House went into committee, Mr. Benjamin in the chair.

Mr. Gall moved that a supply be granted to Carried.

The Speaker resumed the chair, when it was ordered that the report should be received on Tuesday.

Mr. Gall hoped the public accounts would be down on Monday.

The House adjourned at 12:20 o'clock.

The Maple Leaf,

SANDWICH, APRIL 10, 1861.

That Canada, sooner or later, is to become annexed to the American Republic, seems to be one of the radical dogmas of the New York press. Day after day we are reading in the columns of these very grandiloquent and rather greedy contemporaries of ours, some really surprising and entertaining articles on this well-worn subject. Among other wonderful things, we have it asserted that the people of Canada have grown weary of their allegiance to British rule, and are sighing for the freedom and privileges of Republican institutions. We are told that the interests of our Province demand annexation, and that we can never be a great nation until we forsake our present system of government to become a part of the American confederacy.

This annexation idea has always been a favorite one with our Yankee cousins. It has, however, become more especially so, and has been more than usually dilated upon, ever since there seemed to be an inevitable prospect of a separation being brought about between the Northern and the Southern States. The Northern States —in view of this disruption of the United Government—look to Canada, could it be induced to join them, as one of the great means of mending their shattered fortunes. The acquisition of a splendid country such as ours would be to them a mine of wealth and greatness, and could the resources of which we are possessed be added to those with which they are already most bountifully endowed, their failing power would be wonderfully restored. In as far, there fore, as their desiring or wishing for the annexation of Canada is concerned, we cannot wonder at it. It is a very natural and by no means an unreasonable wish.— They are welcome to indulge it. The redoubtable scribes of the New York journals can speculate about it, and retain it as a subject of their day dreams, just as long as they please. But they should be very wary of transgressing the bounds of discretion and truthfulness by permitting the wish to go rambling in its reveries until it generates thoughts, and resolves them into assertions, for which there is not the slightest foundation.

The people of Canada are NOT (what these writers want the world to believe they are,) weary of the benign sway under which it is now their privilege and happiness to live. There may certainly be a few unreasonable malcontents among us who prate of annexation, but they are very few, and are generally only laughed at or set down as mere fanatics. Most assuredly the specimen we have lately had of the systems and intrigues of Republican Government, as adopted by our neighbors, are very little qualified to make us desire to become subservient to them. Rather would they tend, we should think, to fill the mantle of even the most extreme of the fanatics to whom we have adverted, and cause an entire revulsion in their political prejudices. Is there any conceivable reason why we should desert the free and enlightened principles of British rule to rush into the embrace of a Government that is now so sadly shaken by the very worst forms of anarchy and confusion? Is there any one liberty we are deprived of that we could procure by the change? Is the method of politics and statesmanship in vogue among our neighbors in any way better than our own, that we should desire it? Assuredly not. On the contrary, whatever may be the imperfections of our Government—and ours is imperfect only because every man is so to a greater or less degree—it is infinitely superior to theirs. This is just as certain, as that the people of Canada are perfectly satisfied to let it remain, in most essential particulars, precisely as it is now, and that no idea has the slightest popularity among us which has for its aim our alliance to American republicanism.

The people of Canada, as a people, are as true and loyal to the mother country as that country could desire them to be. No better evidence of this could be reasonably asked for than that afforded in the truly plaud reception accorded to the Prince of Wales on the occasion of his late auspicious visit to our shores. But if further testimony should be wanted, we can point with pride to the contentment and harmony that are so happily existing among us, and to the order and respect that are willingly yielded to the laws by which we are governed.—The se things could not exist with disloyalty. A peaceful, orderly, and law-abiding community is of necessity a community that loves and honors the Government to which it readily yields such implicit obedience and subjection. In marked contra distinction to our own, we look to the much-vaunted American Government—to the gross mismanagement and abuses of its executive powers—to the dangers and difficulties with which it is presently surrounded, and to the pitiable position in which its perplexities have placed it—and when we find that these hasty misfortunes are attributable, more than all, to its Republican systems, we may well be thankful that we have not been following such theories as these.— Pretty theories, of a verity, that are subverted or dismissed at the will of a selfish, unprincipled minority, who, with seeming impunity can turn traitors just when it suits themselves! No, no. There is a link of connection between our country and the great nation under whose indulgent sway we happily live, so strongly rivetted, that as long as our rights and liberties are respected, (and we cannot expect they will ever be violated,) it cannot be severed. We do not meditate any alienation, and we cannot desire it. The true British sentiment is too firmly and inherently roofed within the hearts of this people that it should be readily resigned. For let them be misrepresented or falsified as they may, nothing is further from their thoughts than to desert the good old flag that has braved the battle of a thousand years, whose broad pennants they venerate and love as the proud insignia of a nation whose greatness is altogether unprecedented, and the matchless emblems of that liberty which, while properly regulated and restrained, is alike free from the blighting influences of oppression and the disastrous evils of misrule.

Negro Flitting.

A dark cloud hung around the Town of Windsor, on Monday morning, in the shape of about two hundred negroes, of all ages, and colors, and of both sexes, who had just arrived in this blessed land of freedom, from Chicago and other parts of Illinois. Three hundred more were to arrive last night, and more are to follow, numbering in all over a thousand. They are fugitive slaves, with their wives and children, who are driven from the States from the fear of being run down South again, as a family (five in number) were a week or two ago.

We wish that the Southern slave-owners, whose slaves get to the Free States, would let them stay there in peace. They are by no means a desirable class of settlers, and we don't want them.

Windsor Dramatic Club.

The Windsor Amateurs have completed all their arrangements, and will make their first appearance at the Town Hall, Windsor, on Friday evening next. The piece chosen for this occasion is a drama, called "the Seven Clerks;" to be followed by Scenes from Hamlet. Several amateur Vocalists have promised to assist, and as good music will be provided, we may look for a pleasant evening's entertainment. We hope that a goodly number will attend.

WINDSOR.

J. W. Blackaden, (Agent for Robert Fergus) has just received his Spring stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. He has also received a large quantity of Pound Cotton, which he says is the best in the country, and which he will sell cheaper than any other store in Windsor. Give him a call, ladies, and judge for yourselves.

Hon. Lewis Cass.

This gentleman, after having filled a number of the most important offices of the neighboring Republic, has retired from public life, and returned to Detroit, to spend the remainder of his days on the spot where he first came some fifty years ago, when a wilderness. There is much in Mr. Cass's history that would be interesting;—we regret that we are not sufficiently posted to enter into details, as every person connected with the early settlement of the West, must be interested in its history.

General Cass, as he is best known, was the first Governor of the Territory of Michigan, and has been more or less connected with the State for the last fifty years. The General is possessed of talents, both natural and acquired, of no ordinary kind; and having led a most exemplary and temperate life, he is now, although past the age of three score and ten, a hearty, hale-looking man; and, although he has seen many of his colleagues, passed through some trying scenes, we are pleased to hear he is now enjoying himself in the society of his son and daughter. Few, if any, will go down into the grave with a more unsullied character, than Lewis Cass.

It contains a variety of useful information for the management of the Farm, the Garden, and the House, and is beautifully illustrated. It is published by Orange Judd, Esq., 41 Park Row, New York.

The Murder of Mr. J. S. Hogan.

TWELVE PARTIES IN CUSTODY—A CONVEDERATE CONFESSES.

When the body of the late Mr. John Sheridan Hogan, M. P. P., was discovered near the mouth of the Don, presenting indications that he had been murdered, public suspicion was at once directed towards those disreputable and lawless characters who inhabited Brooks' Bush as the perpetrators of the foul deed. But the authorities as we intimated on Tuesday last, had something more than vague suspicions to work upon; and private inquiries which have been made by the Police Magistrate, the County Crown Attorney and other officials have given them possession of tangible evidence regarding the crime committed and the criminals. Notwithstanding that everything was studiously concealed from the public—in order that the object in view, the sure detection of the guilty parties, might not be frustrated—rumors yesterday became prevalent that the murderers had been apprehended, that one of them had made a full confession, and that the whole mystery was about to be cleared up. In these rumors there was some degree of truth, but how it got published is a question which puzzles the authorities. To present the whole matter to our readers in an intelligible light, it is necessary to begin at the beginning. About a month prior to the discovery of the body, then, a letter was received by the city authorities, the Postmaster, from the Sheriff of a county in the State of New York, inquiring whether a murder had been committed near the Don river, and intimating that some person then in custody had made a statement to that effect. He (the Sheriff) had some doubts as to the truth of the story—suspecting the person might have invented it in order to avoid punishment for the offence which had led to his arrest in New York—and accordingly wrote to Toronto to gain further information. Mr. Lesslie, the Postmaster, forwarded the letter to the Police Magistrate, who immediately conferred with the County Crown Attorney upon the subject. As at that time nothing had been heard or suspected of a murder at the Don, an answer was returned to the American official to that purport; but, nevertheless, measures were privately taken to ferret out everything calculated to throw light upon any lawless act that might have been committed at any previous time in that neighborhood. These inquiries, which were made by the police, resulted in little addition to the information already possessed; but upon the recovery of the body, the contents of the letter referred to became of the gravest importance. It was deemed prudent at once to take into custody all the members of the notorious Brook's Bush gang who could be found in the city. To accomplish this object, detective Arnold and Colgan, with a sufficiently strong body of policemen, were detailed on Monday night and proceeded to the bush, in an ale house in which eight persons were found and secured. These were John Coleman, Charles Gerein, Andrew McGuire, Jane Ward, Ellen McGillock, Mary Cary and Mary Ann Pickley. These are all old and well known habitues of the bush, and have frequently been before the Police Magistrate on the meanest of charges. They were taken to the police station, and the next morning (Tuesday) Sergeant-major McDowell met another of the gang, John Epperson, on the street and took him also into custody. The nine prisoners were brought up in the Police Court on the ostensible charge of disorderly conduct, but really on suspicion of being implicated in the murder of Mr. Hogan. They were thus charged in order that their confederates, whoever they might be, should not become alarmed and effect their escape; and when the report of their arrest appeared in the newspaper of Wednesday morning, notice was taken of it in connection with the murder of Mr. Hogan. One of the girls, Ellen McGillock, intimated to the police that she had some statement to make, and she was accordingly discharged from custody, but the others remanded till Thursday. McGillock was then secretly examined by the Police Magistrate and others in the office of the Chief of Police, and they became acquainted with facts of the utmost importance, which have been withheld from the public as silent as the secrets of the grave. The whole particulars of the murder are said to have been revealed; how Mr. Hogan, while on his way to Mr. Beschell's, was decoyed from the main road by a female; how he was then attacked by the murderers, over with the view of robbing him of his money; how his death resulted, and how his body was disposed of. This in substance was the statement made by McGillock, who although a "woman of the town" for several years, has always, singular to state, maintained the highest character for truth. Indeed on one or two former occasions she gave information to the police which was afterwards found to be strictly correct; and so highly thought of in this respect is she, that in a disputed point the Police Magistrate would believe her solemn declaration in preference to the oath of many parties who figure as witnesses in his Court. On Thursday the prisoners were again brought and formally remanded till Monday. A second examination of McGillock followed, when some additional facts were elicited which involved the necessity of making further arrests. Accordingly on Thursday night detective Colgan apprehended four others namely, William Reid, James Brown, John Hudie and Mary Crooks. They were yesterday also brought before the Magistrate on a charge of "disorderly conduct," and their examination postponed till the same day as the others, Monday next. Thus twelve parties altogether are in custody as having some sort of connection with the murder. It is not probable that all of them are guilty of the crime, but the extent of their guilt can only be judged when the public examination takes place. The particulars of McGillock's confession or statement are held secret by the authorities, but sufficient leaked out yesterday to create considerable excitement in the city. The reason given for withholding the information is that one or two parties are at large whom it would be desirable to obtain, and it is feared they might take flight if their complicity became known. This was no doubt a good reason for concealment so long as the movements of the police were unsuspected, but we imagine, now that the main facts have become public, that nothing will be gained by concealing the details. It has given much gratification to our citizens that the authorities have obtained a clue to the perpetrators of the murder, and it is the universal wish that the guilty may be brought to a speedy punishment. If the right parties have been secured—and there is much reason to believe they have—it speaks well for our police, who in this matter have displayed much vigilance and shrewdness. It is not always that the detection of murderers follows so speedily the discovery of the murder itself. The whole facts connected with the case will, no doubt be presented on Monday, till which time the public will have to wait with what patience they can command.—Leader.

AMHERSTBURGH, April 9, 1861.

To the Editor of the Maple Leaf.

SIR,—In all free countries, the Press is looked upon as the exponent of public opinion, but a stranger would be sorely puzzled to tell what the political opinions of this County are, judging from the tone of our local press. True, the Maple Leaf advocates the Reform cause, and the Observer boldly proclaiming itself Ministerial, denounces Representation by Population as one of the humbugs of the Reform party, and accuses that party of Chartism, &c. This enterprising sheet should have existed about forty years ago, when hard-drinking and high toryism were the orders of the day—a period fitly described by one of the English Reviewers of that time, as follows:

If Princes set a fine example,
(And our Prince-Regent is a sample),
Then, Englishmen, your spirits rouse,
Drink brandy till you're drunk as sows.

When the highest personage in the land could be so represented, it is easy to imagine what the state of society must have been. Then, any man holding liberal opinions was looked upon as a rebel. Happily that time is past, I hope never to return. The Observer may make itself quite easy about Chartism. All the Reformers ask, is British Constitutional Government, and they will accept nothing less. All honor to the Observer, nevertheless; as an open foe is always preferable to a pretended friend. But what can we say of the rest of the local press? They carefully abstain from giving any decided opinion on the affairs of the Province. One week they give the Ministry a slight hint, that the Electors of Essex have a long account to settle with them. They then turn round, and abuse the Opposition in the usual style of the Leader and Spectator. Now, Gentlemen, the sooner you come "down off the fence," and let the people of Essex know where you stand, the better. The old mode of leaving matters until the eve of an election is rather dangerous. Public opinion is moving, while you are standing with folded arms.

The present session will most likely be a short one; but interesting nevertheless, not from what will be done, but from the efforts of our present Government in the art of how not to do anything. The Speech promises a Bankrupt Law; but he would be a bold man who would predict an efficient measure from our present rulers. All the measures demanded by Upper Canada are completely ignored; our present excessive taxation will be continued; no Homestead Law will be passed; Representation by Population is out of the question; the Crown Lands will be sold to speculators as before; the obnoxious Newspaper postage will be continued; but it is useless to comment on the present state of affairs. No sane man ever expected the present Ministry would grapple with the public questions of the day in a statesman like manner; they are politicians every one of them. At the present time it is amusing to witness the efforts of some of the Western members trying hard to make a little political capital previous to the election, and foremost among them is the Member for Welland. He has given notice of a number of measures he intends to introduce—amongst them, one to revive the Usury Laws; another to attach the salaries of Government officials for debt. If he had proposed the adoption of the British rule in this matter, by which all debtors or defaulters are immediately dismissed from their offices, we could have given him some credit for sincerity. But this greatest effort is, a Bill to grant Representation by Population—a measure he has hitherto opposed in every shape, and which he well knows cannot be passed in the present Parliament; because the Ministry he has always said is now supporting, will not allow it. If Mr. McMicken is really sincere in his desire for the passage of this Bill, will he continue to support the Ministry, should they refuse (as they most assuredly will) to grant so reasonable and just a demand? But he may safely be left for the Electors of Welland to deal with; no doubt less they have not forgotten the pledge he made them previous to his election; nor have they failed to observe how those pledges have been kept. Cartier says, "Government will not introduce a Grand Trunk Relief bill this session;" but it by no means follows that they will not attempt to do something for the bankrupt concern. Our Finance Minister is too deeply interested pecuniarily; and the President of the Council may feel he is bound to do something to smooth matters with the English shareholders, whom he has been instrumental in bamboozling, by issuing cooked reports of the earnings of the road.

I see a petition has been presented against the return of Sir Allan MacNab. It is said, there is little doubt but that the gallant Knight will be unseated. The prospect of such a catastrophe is creating great commotion in the Moderate ranks, as it would spoil a nice plot they have been concocting. They well know it would never do for the present town to be in debt at the next election, as they would fail to secure half a dozen supporters from Upper Canada; so they intend to have a fresh shuffle of the cards. Sir Allan would be the most feasible man for Premier for Upper Canada; and as he is anything but a Reformer, they could arrange matters quite comfortably. It would of course be the same old set, under a new name; but those confounded obstinate fellows, the Reformers of the Western Division, are going to spoil it all; and they will be compelled to arrange the whole arc over again, and perhaps have to call in the immaculate member for Welland, the Beauty of Carleton, or some other eminent statesman.

Yours, &c.,
A REFORMER.

We are happy to be able to announce that JAMES CRAWFORD, Esq., of Windsor, who sailed in the Canadian from Portland on the 9th march, arrived safely at Liverpool on the 20th, after a passage of a little over eleven days. We shall probably publish a letter from him in our next issue.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—The voice of the people is the testimony of reason! Ministers of the Gospel are everywhere recommending them while eminent medical men prescribe them for their patients in all cases requiring tonic, disinfectant, antiseptic or alterative remedies. Letters are received from all parts of the United States and the Canadas enclosing orders from respectable physicians or certificates, from clergymen of every denomination, of extraordinary cures effected by the agency of these medicines. If to a tithe of these well authenticated documents were published it would form a respectable sized volume and an interesting addition to the literature of the day. Read the advertisement.

DETROIT, April 8th.

There is very little change in the rates of flour, red wheat extra remaining steady at 4 40 a 4 50. White wheat extra stand at 4 50 a 4 75. The best white wheat ranges from 1 08 a 1 12½, but with little doing. No. 1 red is worth 1 02 a 1 04 for lots free on board. There is little doing and no change of course grades, all of them standing at precisely the same rates as last quoted. Butter continues scarce, and good lots are firm at 12½ a 14c. Eggs were not quite so stiff yesterday, 11c being an outside figure for round lots. Pine middlings are worth 13 00, coarse do 10 50, and bran 9 00. Corn in meal ranges from 70 to 80c. Seed is in fair demand, clover selling at 4 00 a 4 12½, while for timothy it is difficult to get 2 50 per bu. Little doing in provisions.

MARK THESE FACTS!

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, SORES AND ULCERS

All description of sores are remediable by the proper and diligent use of this inestimable preparation. Any attempt to cure bad legs by plastering the edges of the wound together is a folly; for should the skin unite, a deeply diseased condition remains underneath to break out with tenfold fury in a few days. The only rational and successful treatment, as indicated by nature, is to reduce the inflammation in and about the wound and to soothe the neighboring parts by rubbing in plenty of the Ointment as salt is forced into meat.

DIPTHERIA, ULCERATED SORE THROAT, AND SCARLET AND OTHER FEVERS.

Any of these diseases may be cured by well rubbing the Ointment three times a day into the chest, throat and neck of the patient; it will soon penetrate, and give immediate relief. Medicine taken by the mouth must operate upon the whole system ere its influence can be felt in any local part, whereas the Ointment will do its work at once. Whoever tries the ingredient in the above manner for the diseases named, or similar disorders affecting the chest and throat, will find themselves relieved as by a charm.

PILES, FISTULAS, STRICTURES.

The above class of complaints will be removed by nightly fomenting the parts with warm water, and then by most effectually rubbing in the Ointment. Persons suffering from these direful complaints should lose not a moment in arresting their progress. It should be understood that it is not sufficient merely to smear the Ointment on the affected part, but it must be well rubbed in for some considerable time two or three times a day, that it may be taken into the system, when it will remove any hidden sore or wound as effectually as though palpable to the eye. There again bread and water poultices after the rubbing in of the Ointment will do great service. This is the only sure treatment for females, cases of cancer in the stomach, or where there may be a general bearing down.

INDISCRETIONS OF YOUTH;—SORES AND ULCERS;

Blotches, as also swellings, can, with certainty, be radically cured if the Ointment be used freely, and the Pills taken night and morning, as recommended in the printed instructions. When treated in any other way they only dry up in one place to break out in another; whereas this Ointment will remove the humour from the system, and leave the patient a vigorous and healthy being. It will require time with the use of the Pills to ensure a lasting cure.

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS, PARALYSIS AND STIFF JOINTS.

Although the above complaints differ widely in their origin and nature, yet they all require local treatment. Many of the worst cases, of such diseases, will yield in a comparatively short space of time when this Ointment is diligently rubbed into the parts affected, even after every other means have failed. In all serious maladies the Pills should be taken according to the directions accompanying each box.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs,	Piles,
Bunions,	Bite of Moschetoes
Bad Breasts,	and Sand Flies,
Coco bay,	Chiego-foot,
Chilblains,	Chapped Hands,
Corns [Soft]	Cancers,
Contracted and Stiff Joints,	Elephantiasis,
Fistulas,	Glandular Swellings,
Lumbago,	Piles,
Rheumatism,	Scalds,
Sore Nipples,	Sore-throats,
Skin Diseases,	Scurvy,
Sore-heads,	Tumors,
Ulcers,	Wounds,
Yaws.

☞ CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," are discernable as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions, around each pot or box; the same may be seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 30 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilized world, in pots, at 25c., 92c. and $1 each.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

IMPORTANT TO ACTUAL SETTLERS

MR. ALEXANDER CAMERON, (of AMHERSTBURGH and TORONTO,) offers for sale all his Lands in the County of Essex, on the most reasonable terms ever offered by a private land owner.

He will sell to actual settlers on a credit of ten years, and accept one-tenth of the purchase money down.

He will sell at lower rates if parties can pay one-fifth down and the balance in five equal annual instalments.

He will sell to any person well recommended by any of the Ministers in the County to men of industrious habits, without receiving any instalment down, if the intending purchaser cannot pay any thing.

If the applicant and himself cannot agree as to the price of the land, he will refer it to the Reeve of the Township and a person whom he will select to decide between them.

Mr. Cameron proposes to give lists of his Lands to all the Canadian Emigration Agents, with a view to actual settlement to this County, and will also take immediate steps to place them in the market in Europe for intending settlers, and by these means he hopes to be able to sell all his lands within a period of two or three years.

Persons desirous of securing farms for their Sons should apply early, and get the first choice.

Toronto, 1st January, 1861.

NEW TREATMENT!

Buffalo Medical Dispensary,

Established for the Cure of DYSPEPSIA, GENERAL DEBILITY, Fever and Ague, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Erysipelas, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Liver Complaints, Kidneys, Debility, &c., &c., Canker, Sore Mouth, Ulcerated Sore Throat, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, Infirmities of Youth and Old Age, &c., &c.

NO MERCURY USED.

DR. AMOS & SON,

No. 95 Main Street,

(Corner of Main & Quay Sts. Buffalo, N.Y.)

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, may be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years extensive and successful practice in London.

Young Men take particular Notice.

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in schools, &c., growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a train of incurable insidious and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, a feel strange and unaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An instrument for the cure of Debility, or Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months, by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Young Men, take Particular Notice.

Dr. Amos & Son have taken pleasure in announcing that they have this valuable and important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subject to a test by the most eminent physicians in London, Paris, Berlin, Philadelphia and New York, it has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, or any disease caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of these instruments, pledge themselves that in any instance where they fail to effect a beneficiary cure after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful Instrument will observe that the price, with the accompanying directions securely packed and sent by express, is Ten Dollars.

Beware of Quacks and Impostors.

Beware of empirics and itinerant self styled professors, who attempt cures, but never succeed. Dr. Amos & Son have for a long period confined their practice exclusive practice in the treatment of these deficate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

Persons in any part of the World may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with remittance for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secure from observation.

Scientific & Useful.

CULTIVATE RHUBARB.

It will grow without much care—the seedock is scarcely hardier; but to have large succulent stalks, pulpy as an apple, readily cooked, and good when cooked, it must be generously dealt with. The plant is a hearty feeder, and easily appropriates the rankest manure. If there be not a plot of it already established in the garden, select a convenient place about five feet wide, and long enough to contain say two crowns to every three members of the family, the plants to be set four feet apart in the row. The bed may very well be made beside a fence, though much shade is objectionable. A very good plan is to have some roots on the south side of a board fence, to start early, and others on the north side in the shade, where they will start late, and continue good much later in the season. As early in the Spring as the ground can be worked, trench it two spades deep, and work in six or eight inches of well-rotted manure. Do not throw it in lumps here and there, but mix it well throughout the soil. Set one row in the middle of the bed; with good culture it will make a wide spread.—Procure crowns of the Linnæus variety, put them in three inches below the surface; keep the soil loose by stirring occasionally, and entirely free from weeds. As the plants progress, water the bed now and then with wash-water and other house slops—particularly if there be drouth—they will put out broad leaves as if in very thankfulness. A few stalks fit for the table might be gathered the first season, especially if whole roots instead of single crowns can be obtained for plants: it is better to allow the whole growth of single crowns to remain, that the roots may be firmly established.

In the Fall, cover the whole bed with stable manure two or three inches deep, and in the following Spring fork it into the soil. To bring a few plants forward rapidly for first use, set an open box over each crown, and put in three or four inches of manure from the horse stable. Also surround the box with the same material; this will supply much warmth and hasten growth.—After the leaves put forth, it is the practice of some to place a barrel, with both heads out, over the plant, to induce a lengthening of the stalk; it also has a slight blanching effect, and there is less acidity in the edible part. This may be done with a part of the plants. As the growth increases, year by year, and new crowns are formed, they should be divided and reset, or otherwise disposed of. If they become crowded, the growth of leaf and stalk is impeded, and the value for cooking impaired.

PASTURING MEADOW LAND.—Pasturing meadows has been very generally condemned as injurous by American Agriculturists; but under proper conditions it may be the most profitable course for the farmer. After the crop of hay is taken off, a fair growth of grass usually follows on all but very poorly enriched meadows, usually of greater use for pasturage than for cutting as second crop hay, or if not sufficiently large, to remain unfed with the idea of enriching the soil by its decay, or as a protection during the winter. The manure dropped by the animals thus pastured, furnishes a better means of increasing the product of the meadow, than can be obtained from the grass without feeding.

Thaer, in his Principles of Agriculture, speaking of the English practice of pasturing meadow land, says, sheep are suffered to graze upon them until late the spring, and, immediately after the hay is gathered in, cattle are turned on to eat off the aftergrass, says, "all the comparative experiments which have hitherto been made tend to prove that under this system meadow land improves much more, and is rendered more fertile than it would be if mowg twice in the year. The herbage is finer and thicker, and no coarse, hard stems or weeds are seen; the excrements of the animals manure the soil quite sufficiently, and this mode of pro ceeding is greatly to be recommended under certain circumstances."

GOOD WHITEWASH FOR INDOORS.—At the request of many subscribers who have not read the previous volumes of the Agriculturist, we here republish the directions given two years since for the best whitewash we have ever used. For a moderate sized house, say 8 rooms, about 3lb. Ibs. Paris white, and 1 lb best white glue are required. Dissolve the glue in hot water; also make a thick wash with the Paris white and hot water, and add the dissolved glue and sufficient water to make the wash of the proper consistence. As the mass stiffens over night it is better to mix each morning only as much as wanted during the day. If leftover night, warm, or add hot water to make it limpid.

The Paris white is chalk cleansed from its impurities, and is only a very pure whiting—better than is ordinarily used for whitening putty. We use the Cooper glue, which is considered the best here, but any good white glue will answer. It costs here 50 cents per lb at retail, and the Paris white 3 cents per lb. Both articles can be obtained in almost every city or village.

The above makes an excellent whitewash, clean and white, and not easily rubbed off. Its first cost is more than lime wash, but it is durable, and for nice rooms it is far preferable.

TOAST PUDDING.—Contributed to the Agriculturist by J. T. K., Bridgeport, Ct. Mix 1 quart of milk, 3 eggs, and a little salt, as for custard. Cut a small loaf of (bakers' bread in to slices half an inch thick, and lay them separately on platters. Pour the mixture over them, and let them stand two hours, or until the milk is all soaked up; then fry brown on a griddle, and serve up with sauce.

HOW TO COOK HAM.—Never put a ham into a kettle of cold water, and be equally careful never to place one into boiling water. First let the water become lake-warm and then put the ham in. Let it simmer or boil lightly for four or five hours—then take it out and shave the rind off. Rub granulated sugar into the whole surface of the ham, so long as its can be made to receive it. Place the ham in a baking dish with a bottle of prime cider. Baste occasionally with the juice, and let it bake an hour in a gentle heat.

Thorley's Food for Cattle.

AS used in Her Majesty's stables and also on His Royal Highness, the Prince Consort's farm, Windsor.

For Horses it is indispensable in promoting and sustaining all the animal functions in health and vigor. For Milch Cows it is invaluable, increasing the quantity and improving the quality of milk. For Beasts, nothing can compare with it for feeding quickly. For Sheep and Pigs its effects in one month will exceed all expectation.

This Food is extensively used by all the leading agriculturists in England, and its virtues are substantially shown by certificates from the most eminent analytical chemists.

Sold in casks containing 448 feeds price 14 dollars; and half casks containing 224 feeds, 7 dollars.

A Novelty in the Art World!
PHOTOGRAPHY UPON PORCELAIN.

Secured by letters patent in United States, England, France and Belgium.

THE
American Photographic Porcelain Co'py,
No. 781 BROADWAY, NEW YORK,

having secured their novel and ingenious invention by American and European patents, are fully prepared to execute all orders for presenting all the attractive and advantageous features of ordinary photographs, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a fineness unattained quality of durability, by being rendered as imperishable as the natural properties of the articles upon which they are transferred.

As the patented process of the Company enables the reproduction of Photographs, not only on plain surfaces, but on such as are round or of any degree of irregularity —portraits will be produced with faultless accuracy and delicacy of delineation, upon Porcelain wares of any description and dimension used as articles of luxury or of household utility, as thereby securing faithful portraits and furnishing a unique and exquisite style of ornamentation of riches in domestic use.

In order to furnish facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those patrons of the Fine Arts desirous of having Portraits on Porcelain, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured to their own order, which they sell at cost prices.

As the American Company are owners of the patent right, and consequently the only persons authorized to use the process, they have declined granting any

an opportunity to possess

PORTRAITS ON CHINA,

to make the following proposition to

RESIDENTS IN THE COUNTRY, WHO ARE UNABLE TO VISIT PERSONALLY THE ATELIER AND GALLERIES IN NEW YORK.

CANADA WEST LAND AGENCY.

CRAWFORD & CO.

AGENTS FOR THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF IMPROVED FARMS, WILD LANDS, MILLS, MANUFACTORIES, TOWN AND VILLAGE PROPERTY,

WINDSOR, CANADA WEST,

OFFER FOR SALE TO INTENDING SETTLERS, A CHOICE SELECTION OF IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED PROPERTY.

The Properties are situated in the Western District composed of the COUNTIES OF ESSEX AND KENT, generally regarded as the GARDEN OF CANADA, and are brought under the notice of the Farming community, with the fullest confidence that a better choice cannot be made on the Continent of America.

A reference to the Map of Canada West will show the position of the Counties of Essex and Kent to be unsurpassed for facilities of Water Communication and Railway Accommodation. With Lakes Erie and St. Clair, and the Rivers Detroit and Thames, farmers and dealers have abundant conveniences for selling or shipping their farm produce and stock to the most favorable markets—The Great Western Railway traverses the Northern side of the Counties, having its Terminus at Windsor, opposite the City of Detroit; the Niagara and Detroit Rivers Railway, now about to be constructed, will pass through the Southern side, opening up a fine tract of valuable land; and the Grand Trunk Railway has extended its Western Terminus to Detroit, opposite Windsor; this placing the District in direct communication with the leading cities of Canada and the United States.

Satisfactory Testimonials from the most reliable sources can be produced to show the advantages to be derived from making a selection in this District. The climate, from its Southern situation, is mild and genial, and the winters are shorter than in any other part of the Province, offering great inducements for the breeding and rearing of Cattle, and the soil is unsurpassed for richness and fertility, possessing a variety of descriptions capable of producing successfully every kind of grain.

THE PRICES OF THE IMPROVED PROPERTY ARE VERY LOW, and taking the natural advantages into consideration, vastly cheaper than in any other sections of the country, and the terms of payment are exceedingly liberal.

THE WILD OR UNIMPROVED LANDS, of which a large quantity, heavily timbered with the finest descriptions of hardwood, and conveniently located is offered, are exceedingly moderate, and will also be sold on easy terms.

In this District are some favorable situations for MILLS, MANUFACTURIES and MECHANICS, and a few very desirable establishments are included in the list; there is also a large selection of TOWN and VILLAGE PROPERTY.

THIS COMPANY INSURES FOR THREE Years at a time, taking no more hazardous risks than farm buildings, and is the only Insurance Company in Canada that confines itself to this risk, is purely and essentially a Farmer's Company. Ordinary Farm property, isolated, is insured for the above period, by giving a Premium Note for two per cent., of which twelve and a half per cent., (or one-eighth,) is collected in advance, and is endorsed on the note, of which it forms a payment. The Agent's Fee is $1.50 for the Survey—the usual charge made by all other Companies. There is nothing further to be paid till loss occur, rendering an assessment on the Note necessary, and then no more will be called for, than is required Owing to the non-hazardous risks to which the Company is confined, the losses are comparatively speaking small. When the Insurance expires, the Note expires also.

To illustrate the above terms:—If you insure such property for three years, as purely, $500, you pay (exclusive of the Agent's Fee) $1,25 in money, and your Note is held for $8,33 more which is the limit of your liability in the Association. No other Company offers more favorable terms, scarcely any one, terms so favorable. Larger or smaller risks are taken at proportionate rates. Brick and Stone Dwellings are insured a little lower.
